CINCINNATI, (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Provident Bancorp, Inc. (NASDAQ: PRBK) ("Provident"), a $2 billion bank holding company located in Cincinnati, Ohio, and Suburban Federal Savings Bank of Cincinnati ("Suburban"), a $180 million savings bank located in Cincinnati, Ohio, jointly announced today that a letter of intent has been executed to enter into a merger conversion transaction whereby Suburban will adopt a plan of conversion and acquisition which will result in it becoming a wholly owned subsidiary of Provident. In conjunction with the transaction, Suburban depositors will be offered the opportunity to subscribe for stock of Provident in a subscription offering. The transaction is subject to execution of a definitive agreement, Suburban member approval and receipt of necessary regulatory approvals.

The principal subsidiary of Provident is The Provident Bank, an Ohio banking corporation with 33 offices -- 30 in the greater Cincinnati area and 2 in Cleveland and 1 in Columbus, Ohio. Suburban operates 8 offices in the greater Cincinnati area.

Allen L. Davis, president of Provident, stated, "We are excited about the prospect of working with Suburban and believe the acquisition will allow Provident to offer expanded opportunities for their employees as well as expanded services and convenience to customers."

Donald F. Buechner, president of Suburban, stated that "The future for savings and loans was dramatically altered by federal legislation passed in August 1989. Our ability to maintain levels of profitability required to remain competitive was severely restricted by that legislation.

"Suburban is a highly rated, well managed and very strongly capitalized company. New opportunities and services will now be provided to our customers by becoming part of a locally owned and operated bank.

"Our employees, management and directors will continue to participate in the excellent future which is being provided by this affiliation to offer complete banking financial services."

MIAMI, (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Florida Power & Light Company said it is seeking environmental regulators' approval to test a new fuel at its Sanford power plant that ultimately could replace much of the oil FPL now burns to produce electricity. If the tests prove successful, it could save utility customers billions of dollars over the next two decades and further reduce air pollution.

The new fuel, a mixture of water and a non-oil hydrocarbon known as bitumen, burns much like oil but is cheaper. The bitumen-water mixture, marketed under the trade name of Orimulsion, could be burned at several FPL power plants in the future.

Throughout the Sanford test period, government standards protecting ambient air quality will not be exceeded. However, FPL is asking environmental regulators for a temporary relaxation of the plant's current air emission limits to conduct the tests. Emission levels measured at the top of the stack may increase slightly at various times during testing.

If the company decides to convert the Sanford plant to burn the new fuel on a full-time basis, permanent environmental controls would be installed, further reducing the plant's already low emission of several important air pollutants.

FPL's analysis shows replacing oil with Orimulsion at just two 400-megawatt plants could reduce fuel costs by more than $700 million over a 15-year period. Fuel savings from burning Orimulsion at several FPL generating units over the next 15-20 years could amount to several billion dollars.

FPL wants to begin the test at the Sanford plant's Unit 4 later this year and complete it by May 1991 if state and federal environmental regulators approve. The approval would be for an 18-month period in case the test schedule has to be revised. However, the current plan calls for a maximum of 120 days testing at full-power operation.

The tests would involve analysis of plant operating and environmental performance, including boiler temperatures, steam pressures, electricity output and stack emissions. The tests would include the installation and evaluation of several small-scale environmental control devices to determine which might work best in full-scale operation.

FPL is negotiating contracts with Bitor America Corp. for future supplies of the new fuel, which would come from known bitumen reserves in Venezuela. These reserves are the energy equivalent of approximately 64 billion metric tons of coal -- about half the known coal deposits in the United States. Because Orimulsion is a liquid, it can be transported to the Sanford plant in the same way as fuel has been delivered in the past, by river barge. No new roads or rail traffic will be necessary.

The use of alternate fuels and diversification of fuel have been pursuits of FPL during the last decade.

A public meeting on the Sanford test project is scheduled for 7 p.m., Sept. 6 at the De Bary Firehall No. 1792, 93 U.S. Highway 17/92 in De Bary.

#90227p5775 08/15/1990 ~PR Newswire

TORRANCE, CALIF. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - NDE Environmental Corporation (NASDAQ: NDEC) today reported results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Second quarter revenues of $727,490, a 59 percent increase over the 1989 quarter, produced a net loss of $285,600 or 12 cents per share, compared with revenues of $457,673 and a net loss of $47,054 or 3 cents per share in last year's second quarter.

Six-month revenues of $1,242,838, a 54 percent rise over the 1989 period, resulted in a loss of $298,956 or 13 cents per share compared with a loss of $215,387 or 12 cents per share on revenues of $804,931 in the comparable 1989 period.

John R. Mastandrea, president, noted that if the March 7, 1990, acquisition of Pan Am Environmental Services had occurred as of Jan. 1, 1989, pro forma results for the first six months of 1990 would have shown a net loss of $437,849 or 19 cents per share on net sales of $1,352,210. This compares with a loss of $1,285,168 or 71 cents per share on net sales of $854,338 in 1989's first six months.

"The most significant recent financial activity was the July 10, 1990, equity private placement of $5,500,000, which increased the company's total assets to approximately $8,700,000 from approximately $3,600,000 on June 30, 1990, and total stockholders' equity to about $7,400,000 from approximately $2 million on June 30, 1990," Mastandrea pointed out.

"This has given us the financial strength to fund the operations of our new national subsidiary, NDE Testing & Equipment Inc. (formerly Pan Am Environmental Services, Inc.) and to greatly increase NDE's fleet of vans using our patented VPLT underground fuel tank testing system," he pointed out.

"Expenses associated with the private placement and expanded marketing efforts of the subsidiary had a negative impact on second quarter results " Mastandrea explained.

NDE is primarily engaged in the business of testing underground storage tanks. The VPLT System was judged by the Environmental Protection Agency to be the only periodic leak detection system that meets EPA regulations for underfilled tank testing, and it was one of four systems to meet regulations for overfilled tank testing.

In addition to the VPLT System, NDE provides such other services as testing and leak pinpointing for pipelines, underwater hoses and spacecraft; impact testing on materials; and a variety of technical and consulting services.

GLENVIEW, IL (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The U.S. Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) will co-fund a key part of Zenith Electronics Corporation's (NYSE: ZE) research effort on high-definition displays for advanced military computer workstation applications.

Jerry K. Pearlman, Zenith chairman and president, said, "The DARPA announcement reaffirms our belief that we have real, world-leading high-definition display technology and research programs that will lead to lower-cost, larger-screen high-resolution color CRTs (cathode ray tubes)."

Zenith, the only remaining independent U.S. color picture tube and TV manufacturer, has launched a major research effort to develop new production processes for larger-screen versions of its unique "flat tension mask" (FTM) high-resolution color CRT.

The part of the program that DARPA plans to co-fund - the development of interchangeable shadow mask processes - represents a critical part of Zenith's multimillion-dollar high-definition display development effort, Pearlman said. Although the final amount is still subject to contract negotiations, he said Zenith expects the DARPA grant to exceed $1 million.

When coupled with other processes under development, the ability to use interchangeable shadow masks "will revolutionize the manufacture of high-resolution CRTs and offer world-competitive American high-definition display technology," Pearlman said.

The inherent properties of the FTM display (ruggedness, high-brightness, high-resolution, virtually glare-free) make it "ideal for an array of military applications," Zenith said in its proposal to DARPA.

"These include not only Command and Control displays and other military applications, but also any workstation requiring a highly ergonomic dual-page high-resolution display," the proposal stated.

Zenith's FTM is the only high-resolution color CRT that is designed and mass-produced in the United States. All competing high-resolution CRT technologies are manufactured in Far East.

Pearlman called the high-definition display industry "one of the next big high-technology battlegrounds" between the United States and other countries. "For at least the next 30 years, high-definition color CRTs will be the predominant high-resolution display technology for computer workstations and other applications. And, with U.S. advances such as the FTM, it's not too late for the U.S. to win."

Systemwide sales increased $1,463,000, or 11.3 percent while revenues rose $398,000, or 3.6 percent. These increases resulted even though 10 fewer stores were in operation at the end of the second quarter this year. Company-owned comparable store sales for the quarter improved 6.5 percent over the previous year.

Net income for the quarter was down $279,000 due primarily to continued pressure on product margins. Increased promotional discounts to meet market competition and initial higher costs on new contact lens products contributed to the lower gross margin for the quarter.

Cost containment continued to be a priority during the second quarter as selling, general and administrative expenses increased 0.6 percent over last year.

DALLAS (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Mortgage and Equity Trust (NASDAQ: CMETS) today announced operating results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded a net loss of $396,000, or 11 cents per share, on revenues of $3.9 million, compared with net income of $744,000, or 19 cents per share, on revenues of $3.9 million in the second quarter of the prior year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded a net loss of $703,000, or 19 cents per share, on revenues of $7.6 million, compared with net income of $19,000 on revenues of $7.9 million in the first half of 1989.

Net rental income increased $300,000, to $1.7 million, in the first half of 1990, compared with $1.4 million recorded in 1989's first six months. Sale of four foreclosed properties (which had previously reduced net rental income), increased occupancy rates and lower management and administrative expenses were the primary factors in the increase. General and administrative expenses increased in part because of professional fees related to a class action settlement.

The trusts' equity in results of operations of partnerships for the quarter of 1990 was a loss of $400,000, compared with income of $600,000 for the same period in 1989 due to a $.7 million gain recognized during the second quarter of 1989 on the sale of partnership properties.

ATLANTA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Samna Corporation (NASDAQ: SMNA) today announced that it has entered into an agreement with a number of unaffiliated investors in the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom under which the investors will purchase 585,000 newly issued shares of Samna common stock for gross proceeds of $6,288,750, before expenses and brokers' fees.

The closing of the private placement transaction, which was arranged through Interstate/Johnson Lane Corporation and Mabon Nugent & Co., is scheduled to occur on Aug. 21, 1990.

In connection with the private placement, Samna has agreed to use its best efforts to file a restriction statement with the Securities and Exchange Commission to cover possible resales by the investors from time to time in open market of privately negotiated transactions.

Said Mohammadioun, chairman of the board, president and chief executive officer of Samna Corporation, said that Samna will use the net proceeds of the private placement primarily to product marketing and sales promotion activities over the next 18 months, including expenditures for advertising distributor and resale or sales incentives, product demonstrations and trade shows. In addition, he said, Samna will use a portion of the net proceeds to repay approximately $800,000 or bank indebtedness under long-term notes.

Mohammadioun added, "The proceeds of these transactions will enable us to increase our advertising and marketing efforts significantly and to devote substantial resources in promoting our Ami and Ami Professional Windows-based products."

Samna Corporation designs, markets and supports computer software, primarily for wordprocessing applications. The company is focusing on wordprocessing software products for the growing graphical user interface segment of the personal computer software market. Samna's Ami and Ami Professional products operate under the Microsoft Windows environment and are aimed at both traditional wordprocessing desktop publishing users.

CLEVELAND (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Banner Aerospace, Inc. today reported strong sales and earnings gains for its fiscal first quarter ended June 30 1990. This is the first report of quarterly results since the sale by Banner Industries, Inc. (NYSE: BNR) of 53 percent of the common shares of Banner Aerospace in an initial public offering announced in July, 1990.

Net income for the quarter of the Cleveland-based supplier to the aviation aftermarket amounted to $5,766,000, or 32 cents per share, up 76 percent over the pro forma results of $3,276,000, or 18 cents per share, earned a year ago.

Samuel J. Krasney, chairman and chief executive officer, said that the earnings gains reflected profits from increased sales and improved operating margins. He noted that current fiscal year first quarter operating income of $11,613,000 was 56 percent above last year's comparable pro forma quarter.

Current year first quarter sales were $66,274,000, an increase of 40 percent over the $47,325,000 of the comparable period a year earlier.

Krasney said that the sales increase reflected both strong internal growth and increased sales due to the acquisition of two companies in fiscal 1990. Results for the first quarter of the current year included the operations of Austin Jet Corporation, purchased in July, 1989, and Dallas Aerospace, Inc., acquired in September, 1989. Krasney said that demand for the company's products and services continued strong in both domestic and international markets, with international sales amounting to 39 percent of first quarter sales.

Banner Aerospace is a leading distributor of a broad range of new and overhauled replacement parts in the aviation aftermarket. The company's products include fasteners, avionics, electrical items, airframe parts and bearings. The company also processes and sells insulated electrical wire and markets new and refurbished helicopters and refurbished corporate airplanes. Its customers include most the world's commercial airlines as well as air cargo carriers, original equipment manufacturers, distributors aircraft overhaul facilities and corporate aircraft operators.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - First Connecticut Small Business Investment Company, a federally licensed SBIC, said it has filed for Chapter 11 protection under the Federal Bankruptcy Code. The company listed in the petition it filed assets of approximately $70 million and liabilities of approximately $60 million.

The company said the filing was made necessary by liquidity problems caused by a sharp downturn in the business climate in its market area. These problems were accelerated when the Small Business Administration asked for payment by Aug. 24, 1990 of three subordinated debentures totalling $5.5 million and when requests were made for payment by many loan participants having the right to put their loan participations to First Connecticut on short notice, the company said. The company has some $30 million of such participations.

The petition for Chapter 11 protection was filed in the United States

HARTFORD, CONN. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Donald R. Frahm, chairman and president of ITT Hartford Insurance Group, today responded to New Jersey Governor James Florio's announcement of Insurance Commissioner's Samuel Fortunato's decison that if Twin City Fire Insurance Company, a subsidiary of ITT Hartford, pulls out of the car insurance market in the state of New Jersey, the state will force ITT Hartford Insurance Group to give up the rest of its business in New Jersey.

Frahm stated that ITT Hartford is serving, and plans to continue to serve directly, or through its agents, the citizens of New Jersey in several different life and property/casualty areas.

Frahm said that it always has operated, and will continue to operate within the letter and spirit of the law and if it is necessary to continue to write automobile insurance in New Jersey in order to keep the rest of its business it will do so. Frahm added that ITT Hartford intends to pursue the administrative and legal remedies available to it because it feels the commissioner's position is incorrect.

ITT Hartford treasures its reputation for integrity which has been built over 180 years and it deeply regrets the unfair position taken by the insurance commissioner of the state of New Jersey and the characterizations of our position made by Governor Florio. In ITT Hartford's view the courts will ultimately agree with their position that it is improper for the commissioner to hold the entire business of ITT Hartford Insurance Group hostage to the demand that it write automobile insurance unprofitably. According to ITT Hartford, such a position is unfair to ITT's shareholders and to all of ITT Hartford's other insureds throughout the country and in New Jersey as well.

MALVERN, PA. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Dr. Felix Zandman, chairman and chief executive officer of Vishay Intertechnology Inc. (NYSE: VSH), announced today that the company has successfully completed its common share offering of 2 million shares and has received $36 million in net proceeds from this offering.

Bear Stearns & Co. Inc., Salomon Brothers Inc. and Piper, Jaffray & Hopwood Inc. were managing underwriters of the offering.

Commenting on the share offering, Zandman stated: "The proceeds of this offering may be used to repay outstanding bank indebtedness. The debt-to-equity ratio of the company would then be 0.86 ($146 million debt divided by $170 million equity). Following the repayment, the company will still have cash of approximately $25 million.

"Our present cash outlay for interest on long-term debt will now be approximately $11.5 million per year, assuming present interest rates, while our past six months operating profit (annualized) is approximately $60 million."

Vishay Intertechnology Inc. is a leading U.S. and European producer of a wide range of electronic resistors and resistive sensors. It is also a major producer of other types of passive electronic components. The company's products are used in a broad range of industries.

DALLAS (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Transcontinental Realty Investors (NYSE: TCI) today announced operating results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded a net loss of $1.2 million, or 9 cents per share, on revenues of $7.2 million, compared with a net income of $1.1 million, or 9 cents per share, on revenues of $8.5 million in the second quarter of the prior year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded a net loss of $2.1 million, or 16 cents per share, on revenues of $13.9 million, compared with a net income of $1.5 million, or 12 cents per share, on revenues of $16.9 million in the first half of 1989.

Lower interest income and higher general and administrative costs contributed to the 1990 second quarter loss, compared with 1989's second quarter performance. General and administrative expenses increased in part because of professional fees related to a class action settlement. Net rental income remained relatively stable.

HOWELL, N.J. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Union Valley Corporation (AMEX: UVC) today reported losses for the second quarter and six-month period ended June 30, 1990.

For the 1990 second quarter, the net loss was $2,892,000, or $.77 per share, compared to net income of $536,000, or $.11 per share, in the same period last year. Second-quarter 1990 revenues declined to $12,243,000 from $26,087,000 in the 1989 second quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the net loss was $4,439,000, or $1.18 per share, compared to net income of $616,000, or $.13 per share, in the equivalent period of 1989. Revenues for the first six months of 1990 decreased to $21,710,000 from $46,244,000 in the same period last year.

The company's backlog at June 30, 1990 was lower than a year earlier, primarily due to reduced demand for new homes in the company's New Jersey market. The lower demand is principally related to slower economic growth and consumer caution, and the difficulties that prospective homebuyers are experiencing when trying to sell existing homes.

Sales backlog, including non-binding reservations on June 30, 1990, amounted to $29,198,000, or 233 units, compared with $47,726,000, or 314 units, at June 30, 1989.

Union Valley is negotiating revisions to various lending agreements with its banks and holders of its 14-1/4 percent subordinated debentures. The company has previously reported progress in these negotiations, and continues to be cautiously optimistic that the restructuring of its debts can be achieved in due course. The company's lead bank, First Fidelity Bank, N.A., Newark, N.J., has called for the repayment of $84.1 million due Aug. 1, 1990, but continues to negotiate with Union Valley to refinance this sum and provide long-term funding for the company's core homebuilding business.

Terms being negotiated with the bank may require the company to dispose of certain assets outside of the normal course of business, which may have an adverse impact on the company's ability to recover the carrying value of those assets. The company has provided reserves for possible loss on certain real estate assets, and may add to those reserves in the future, based on changing conditions in the market.

Union Valley Corporation designs, builds and markets retirement and pre-retirement communities, non-age restricted housing and commercial real estate in New Jersey, Delaware and Pennsylvania.

PORT HURON, MICH. (AUG. 14) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert J. Thomson, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Southeastern Michigan Gas Enterprises, Inc. (NASDAQ: SMGS), stated that the company reported net loss of $983,000 for the second quarter of 1990 ($.13 per share), compared to net income of $110,000 ($.01 per share) for the same period in 1989.

The decrease in second-quarter net income of $1,093,000 is primarily the result of the recording of a $900,000 provision for possible 90/10 refund payments discussed below, and increased operations and maintenance expenses, depreciation and taxes (other than income taxes) which reflect the higher cost of doing business and maintaining a larger amount of plant.

For the year to date, the company reported net income of $4,773,000 ($.63 per share) compared to $6,688,000 ($.90 per share) for the first half of 1989. In addition to the factors affecting the second-quarter comparison, six-month earnings also decreased because of reduced gas sales by the company's distribution subsidiaries due to 6 percent warmer weather.

In June 1990, the company recorded a provision of $900,000 for the possible refund payments resulting from the 90/10 rule of Southeastern Michigan Gas Company (Southeastern). Although there is no assurance that it can be accomplished, Southeastern is seeking to settle all litigation (discussed below) by refunding $900,000 to its customers. No such provision was made heretofore because of the positive decisions of the Administrative Law Judges (ALJs).

Under the terms of one of its tariffs, Southeastern must refund, prospectively, 90 percent of the gross margin of certain large volume and interruptible sales in excess of certain projected revenues. The Michigan Public Service Commission Staff (the Staff) has claimed that transportation revenues should be included in this calculation. The ALJs in two of Southeastern's Gas Cost Recovery Reconciliation cases concluded that transportation revenues are not subject to this tariff.

However, on May 18, 1990, the Michigan Public Service Commission (MPSC) issued orders in Case Nos. U-8632-R and U-8953-R which did not follow the recommendation of the two ALJs who presided over the cases. The order in Case No. U-8632-R requires Southeastern to refund a principal amount of $859,978 plus interest from Feb. 28, 1988, at 14 percent per annum. This amount was determined by including most natural gas transportation revenue in Southeastern's 90/10 rule. The order in Case No. U-8953-R requires a reopening of the record for the purpose of determining whether a refund under Southeastern's 90/10 rule is required for the period ended Feb. 28, 1989, and the amount thereof. Southeastern has filed data with the MPSC showing that if the Staff's approach is adopted, Southeastern would have a $638,779 principal liability plus interest from Feb. 28, 1989, at 14 percent. Southeastern has filed a motion for reconsideration and rehearing before the MPSC in both cases.

The issue of including transportation revenue in the 90/10 rule has also arisen in the Gas Cost Recovery Reconciliation case for the period ended Feb. 28, 1990. Southeastern has filed affidavits with all parties in that case showing that if the Staff's approach is adopted, Southeastern would have a $542,162 principal liability plus interest from Feb. 28, 1990, at 14 percent.

The recent Michigan Gas Company rate order allowing increased annual revenue of $3,244,000 had no material effect on the results reported above as it only relates to gas sales after June 29, 1990. The full effect will be felt prospectively.

The following is a summary of the results for the quarter, year to date, and 12 months ended June 30:

IRVINE, CA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - National Education Corp. (NYSE: NEC) today announced that its Applied Learning International subsidiary and Wilson Learning CZY. have formed a strategic partnership whereby Applied Learning will distribute all of Wilson Learning's off-the-shelf Interactive Video Instruction (IVI) and several Videotape Training courses. Applied Learning's IVI distribution rights are exclusive in the United States, Canada and the United Kingdom and are nonexclusive in several foreign countries including Scandinavia, Benelux, Australia and New Zealand. As part of the new agreement, and supporting both companies' commitment to the Interactive Video market for Human Resource (HR) training, Wilson Learning will also develop additional training products in HR topics for Applied Learning's service and distribution channels as well as continue to offer customized IVI products separately.

Ron Tapper, president of Applied Learning, stated, "The agreement complements the best capabilities of the two organizations. Applied Learning bring to the partnership its extensive, nationwide service force, its Product Support Center, and its substantial offering in IVI products. Wilson brings its leading-edge thinking on the major business issues of the day, as well as its excellent instructional design and course development capabilities."

In commenting on the new alliance, Audie Dunham, president of Wilson Learning Corp., said, "This partnership is ideal in that it greatly improves our ability to serve clients with more IVI programs to meet their training needs."

TULSA, OK (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Hawkins Energy Corp. (NASDAQ: HECI) today reported revenues of $1,767,000 for the second quarter of 1990; this is a 68 percent increase over the pro forma results during the second quarter of 1989. For the first six months of 1990, revenues were $3,037,000 which is 12 percent higher than the first half of 1989. The increases for the three and six month periods primarily resulted from the acquisition in April, 1990 of Pro-Sales and Equipment Services, an Oklahoma City-based business that specializes in the purchase, remanufacture and sale of gas compressors, and from increases in compressor rental revenues of 158 percent for the six months of 1990 compared with 1989 and 120 percent for the comparative three month periods.

Net income of $6,000 ($.002 per share) was reported for the second quarter of 1990 compared with a pro forma net loss of $302,000 (9 cents per share) for the second quarter of 1989. During the first six months of 1990, the company reported a net loss of $476,000 (15 cents per share) compared with a pro forma net loss of $463,000 (14 cents per share) for the first six months of 1989. The company's loss for the first six months of 1990 was primarily due to a $658,000 write down of the carrying value of its reserves during the first quarter due to lower oil and gas prices at the end of that quarter. The company currently has 3,282,864 outstanding shares of common stock.

Hawkins Energy Corp. was formed in December, 1989, after limited partners in 10 oil and gas drilling partnerships approved the exchange of partnership units for common stock. The pro forma results reported reflect the financial consolidation of separate business entities, each with its own restrictions and objectives.

Hawkins Energy Corp. is a Tulsa-based, publicly held energy company engaged in oil and gas production and the remanufacturing, leasing and sales of gas compressors. Hawkins Energy's common shares are listed on NASDAQ under the symbol HECI.

BRAINTREE, MA. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The board of directors of Grossman's Inc. (NASDAQ: GROS) responded today to the Shidler/Holman group's latest statement regarding its consent solicitation proposal to take control of the Grossman's board.

Tom Schwarz, president and chief operating officer of Grossman's said, "This sudden and unexplained about-face by Shidler/Holman is puzzling, to put it mildly. Just last week, they said, in materials filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission and sent to Grossman's stockholders, that if they got control of the Grossman's board they would implement a sale/leaseback deal between themselves and the company on unspecified terms, and not necessarily with the benefit of a fairness opinion from an independent financial advisor. That so-called plan was vague, conditional and manifestly rife with self-dealing and conflicts of interest.

"Now without a word of explanation, they apparently have abandoned that idea, without substituting anything of any substance as far as we can tell. We think Grossman's stockholders should be asking themselves what Shidler/Holman brings to the table here," Schwarz continued.

"In the past three and a half years, the Grossman's board and management have worked vigorously and successfully to restore the company's financial strength. From Dec. 31, 1986 to June 30, 1990, Grossman's has reduced its debt from $226 million to $86 million and improved its debt to equity ratio dramatically from over 9:1 to less than 1:1," Schwarz concluded.

Grossman's further urged stockholders not to take action until the company sends to stockholders a complete response to the latest, revised Shidler/Holman solicitation materials.

Grossman's, a major retailer of lumber and building materials, operates 156 stores in nine Northeastern states and in California.

LONDON (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Lynton Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: LYNG), the corporate aviation company, announced that it had today acquired the remaining 60 percent of the capital stock of its 40 percent owned related company, European Helicopters Limited (EHL), in exchange for 93,600 of its preferred shares. The preferred shares are convertible into 9,360,000 newly issued common shares of Lynton, representing approximately 15 percent of Lynton's issued and outstanding shares after giving effect to the acquisition of the Linpro Jet Centre and the related issuance of a warrant entitling HM Holdings, Inc., an affiliate of Hanson Industries to acquire approximately 30,000,000 Lynton common shares. The transaction was executed and simultaneously consummated pursuant to a purchase agreement among Lynton and European Helicopters Limited's other shareholders.

As part of this transaction Lynton (U.K.) has moved its operations to EHL's facility at Denham near London's Heathrow International Airport.

Christopher Tennant, chief executive officer of Lynton stated, "The acquisition of the remaining shares of European Helicopters Limited brings all of their operations into Lynton with the key executives led by Steve Borrowdale, becoming full shareholders of Lynton. By combining our U.K. operations with those of EHL we expect this acquisition to strengthen both companies' operations."

EHL is a United Kingdom corporation engaged primarily in the rebuilding, sale and maintenance of corporate helicopters. For its fiscal year ended March 31, 1990, EHL reported revenues of approximately $11,000,000 and pretax profit of approximately $700,000.

Lynton, based in Spring Valley, N.Y. and London, England, is primarily involved in the maintenance, sales and charter of corporate helicopters in the United States and in the sales, management and charter of corporate helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft in the United Kingdom. At March 31, 1990 there were approximately 21,750,000 shares outstanding.

LONDON (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Lynton Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: LYNG), the corporate aviation company, today announced that it had consummated the acquisition of the Linpro Jet Centre located at the Morristown Municipal Airport, Morris County, N.J., for a purchase price of $16 million, paid in cash at closing. The Linpro Jet Centre is to be renamed the Lynton Jet Centre.

The Linpro Jet Centre, a fixed-based operator of approximately 132,000 square feet of hangar and office space, provides storage and fuel services to numerous corporate fixed wing and helicopter aircraft at the Morristown Municipal Airport. The Linpro Jet Centre reported revenues for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989 of $4,466,000 and operating income for the period of $1,401,000; and for the three months ended March 31, 1990, revenues of $1,433,000 and operating income of $429,000.

Simultaneously, Lynton entered into a loan agreement pursuant to which HM Holdings, Inc., an affiliate of Hanson Industries, provided secured debt financing in the amount of $17 million, bearing interest at an initial rate per annum of 10 percent, with principal repayment over seven years in variable installments commencing in the second year of the loan. Lynton also granted HM Holdings a warrant exercisable at any time during the period the loan is outstanding to acquire approximately 300,000 of its preferred shares in exchange for $1 million principal amount of the secured debt. The preferred shares will be convertible into approximately 30 million shares of Lynton common stock representing approximately 49 percent of Lynton's issued and outstanding common shares after giving effect to the conversion of preferred shares issued to the stockholders of European Helicopters Limited in a share exchange transaction consummated simultaneously with the Jet Centre acquisition. In addition, HM Holdings shall have the right to nominate four directors to Lynton's board if HM Holdings exercises its option.

Christopher Tennant, chief executive of Lynton, stated, "We are delighted to have concluded these agreements. The acquisition of the Linpro Jet Centre together with the acquisition of the 60 percent of European Helicopters Limited not already owned by Lynton will, I believe, provide a strong foundation to build Lynton into a leading company in the executive aviation business both in Europe and North America. We also welcome and look forward to working with John Lemen, currently general manager of the Linpro Jet Centre, who has agreed to continue in such position post closing, and his excellent team who have built up Linpro over the past four years to being a premier fixed base operator in the greater New York area," Lynton, based in Spring Valley, N.Y., and London, is primarily involved in the maintenance, sales and charter of corporate helicopters in the United States and in the sales management and charter of corporate helicopters and fixed-wing aircraft in the United Kingdom. At March 31, 1990, there were approximately 21,750,000 shares outstanding. On Aug. 13, 1990 the closing bid price was $.31-1/4 per share and the closing asked price was $.50 per share.

TROY, MICH. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - K mart Corporation (NYSE: KM) today announced it will open an "innovative" new K mart Super Center with a broad assortment of fresh foods, flowers and contemporary fashions in the Medwick Marketplace, Medina, Ohio, in early spring 1991. Construction will begin immediately on the 147,000-square-foot store, located at the northwest corner of North Court Street and Reagan Parkway. Trio Construction Services of Columbus, Ohio, has been awarded the construction contract.

The project is a K mart Corporation development in conjunction with the Zaremba Group of Lakewood, Ohio, who will construct and market the remaining properties in the Marketplace.

"We selected Medina for K mart's first innovative Super Center concept because Medina shoppers have always been loyal K mart customers. Now K mart will reward that loyalty by putting its first K mart Super Center in Medina. We will offer our customers a broad assortment of contemporary fashions and general merchandise plus a new array of fresh foods and grocery products that shoppers want today in a convenient, one-stop shopping environment," said Larry M. Parkin, K mart executive vice president for warehouse and grocery operations.

The addition of a most up-to-date supermarket format will provide new jobs in Medina. Current employees at the relocating North Court Street K mart store will be offered continued employment at the new K mart Super Center.

The K mart Super Center will feature an innovative 53,000-square- foot supermarket of fresh foods and name brand groceries. The remaining 94,000 square feet of K mart merchandise selections will include a wide assortment of contemporary fashion apparel and general merchandise. Specialty areas will include a floral department, a drive-thru garden shop a pharmacy, a hot-and-cold deli, an imported cheese shop, a fresh pizza bar, a salad bar, a complete meat department including fresh fish and seafood, the area's largest frozen food department, and Medina's largest fresh bakery, providing a wide selection of hot breads, buns, cakes, pies and cookies fresh from the baking ovens.

"This is a 'new K mart concept'," said Parkin. "It is certainly not another 'me too' store. It will focus on fresh assortments of everything from prepared foods to fashions, flowers to footwear, with emphasis on variety, value and convenience. Our customers will be checked out quickly through 28 registers in the front of the store," Parkin said. "K mart is proud to put this Super Center flagship store in Medina."

BILLERICA, MASS. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Gerald S. Eilberg, chief financial officer of National Datacomputer, Inc. (NDI) announced today the results of its second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Eilberg reported that revenues for the quarter were $775,422 as compared with revenues of $1,012,983 for the same period in 1989. The net loss for the quarter before adjustments was $221,975 vs. $590,905 for the second quarter of 1989. Non-recurring adjustments totalling $233,575 brought the net loss in the quarter ended June 30, 1990 to $455,550. These adjustments comprised overhead absorption rates and a write-off of deferred legal, accounting and professional fees associated with a financing program.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $1,513,814 with a net loss of $750,001 before adjustments and $983,576 after adjustments. This compares to revenues of $2,822,834 and a net loss of $545,330 for the six months ended June 30, 1989.

Eilberg also reported that the cost reduction program announced in a release on May 17, 1990 was showing results. While selling and general and administrative costs in the second quarter, before adjustment, decreased 36 percent from the first quarter, sales had increased by 5 percent.

Norman Mackinnon, president of NDI stated that "the company has been and continues to be in a very tight cash position, so it is gratifying to see the results in the second quarter which is certainly a tribute to the dedicated employees of NDI. As to financing, we are actively pursuing a two-stage program. Completion of the first phase would solidify the company's short-term goals, while completion of the second stage would allow the company to return to its high-growth pattern."

DEARBORN, MICH. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Ford Motor Company (NYSE: F) has informed employees at its Atlanta Assembly Plant and its Kansas City (Mo.) Assembly Plant Tempo and Topaz assembly system that the facilities will be idled the week of Aug. 20. Also, the previously announced idling of the Thunderbird and Cougar assembly system at the Lorain (Ohio) Assembly Plant during the week of Aug. 13 will be extended for a second week (Aug. 20).

The downtime at Atlanta and Kansas City is necessitated by a shortage of dealer orders. The Lorain downtime is caused by a shortage of interior trim materials.

Atlanta employs approximately 2,500 hourly personnel on two shifts and builds about 5,000 Taurus and Sable models per week. The Tempo/Topaz assembly system at Kansas City employs approximately 2,300 hourly personnel on two shifts and builds approximately 4,000 units per week. The Thunderbird/Cougar assembly system at Lorain employs approximately 2,700 hourly personnel on two shifts and builds about 5,600 units per week.

DALLAS (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Income Opportunity Realty Trust (AMEX: IOT) today announced operating results for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded net loss of $669,000, or 18 cents per share, on revenues of $2.1 million, compared with net loss of $1.8 million, or 49 cents per share, on revenues of $3.7 million in the second quarter of the prior year.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the trust recorded a net loss of $1.1 million, or 31 cents per share, on revenues of $4.1 million, compared with a net loss of $2 million, or 53 cents per share, on revenues of $7.4 million in the first half of 1989.

The reduction in net loss in the first half of 1990, compared with the first half of 1989, was primarily attributable to significant expenses related to a tender offer and higher interest and operating expenses in 1989 than in 1990 because of more properties in the portfolio. Net rental income for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $868,000, compared with $1.8 million in the corresponding period in 1989. This decline also reflects the five properties the trust disposed of during late 1989.

HOUSTON (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - American National Petroleum Co. (NASDAQ: ANPC) (the "company") reported net income of $154,000 (2 cents per common share) for the three months ended June 30, 1990 as compared to net income of $139,000 (2 cents per common share) for the three months ended June 30, 1989. Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 were $2,813,000 compared to $5,047,000 for the 1989 period. The increase in net income for the three months ended June 30, 1989 to 1990 was due primarily to (a) a gain realized from the settlement of a litigation matter, (b) decrease in depletion cost, and (c) decrease in interest expense. The increase in net income was partially offset by decreased sales volumes and price received by crude oil. During the first quarter of 1990, the company changed to the equity method of accounting for its natural gas pipeline, which previously had been reported on a consolidated basis in the company's financial statements. The effects of the accounting change resulted in lower revenues and expenses being reported in the 1990 period as compared to 1989.

IRVING, TX (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Michaels Stores Inc. (AMEX: MKE) today announced a series of management changes which Chairman Sam Wyly said are designed both to strengthen the specialty retail chain's merchandising capabilities and to simplify its decision making processes.

According to Wyly, Donald G. Thomson has been elected president of the company, replacing B. B. Tuley, who has resigned effective immediately. Currently a director of Michaels, Thomson was responsible for negotiating the company's acquisition by the Wyly family.

Having spent much of his career in a variety of senior management and strategic planning positions with ITT Corp., Thomson left that company in 1972 to become president of University Computing Co. He subsequently was chief executive of Bonanza Restaurants Inc. until 1982, when be became a business consultant representing Wyly interests, including Michaels Stores.

Additionally, the chairman announced that Michael J. Dupey, who founded the Michaels concept in 1973, has been engaged to give Michaels what he termed "The benefit of Mike's unique talents that made possible the company's early successes and that were also largely responsible for creating today's arts, crafts and hobby retail industry."

Dupey has been named a Michaels merchandising advisor, a special new role in which he will assist the company, specifically on the selection and marketing of seasonal and promotional merchandise. Michaels Stores and MJDesigns will negotiate jointly for both chains. Together they will be buying substantially more than any other craft chain. Dupey will continue to serve as chief executive officer of his own Dallas-based company, Dupey Management Corp., which currently owns 23 craft stores, operating under the name of "MJDesigns."

Wyly also announced the promotions of R. Don Morris and of Douglas B.

Sullivan to executive vice presidents. Morris will be responsible for all administrative, finance, purchasing and warehousing functions, while all operations and marketing activities will now report to Sullivan.

With the restructuring, Wyly said that Michaels' management span of authority is greatly simplified, noting, "We're putting operational responsibility directly into the hands of managers who are best equipped to make the crucial day-to-day decisions. We're also adding a strong dose of merchandising flair that represents truly exciting possibilities both for the company and its customers.

"And, not least," the chairman added, "we have an executive in Don Thomson who is ideally suited to the task of productively bringing together the essential attributes of extraordinary promotional skill and professional management discipline."

Noted Wyly, "This new organization can be expected to continue building on its foundation and position as a market leader gained under B.B. Tuley's direction, at the same time as it moves more actively to establish new operating processes and exploit new market opportunities."

Michaels Stores Inc., with nearly $300 million in sales last year, is the nation's leading retailer of home decoration and arts and crafts merchandise, currently operating 133 specialty retail stores in 18 states throughout the southern half and midwestern sections of the United States.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Jacor Communications, Inc. (NASDAQ: JCOR) announced that the company completed the sale of the operations of its wholly-owned subsidiary, Eastman Radio, Inc. to a subsidiary of Katz Communications, Inc. for a total cash consideration of $11,750,000.

The Katz organization acquired Eastman's radio station representation contracts and other tangible and intangible assets related to the servicing of those contracts. Certain other assets of Eastman (principally cash, cash equivalents and approximately $2,266,000 of accounts receivable) and all of its existing and contingent liabilities have been retained.

Jacor had owned and operated Eastman since February 1988 when it acquired the company for stock valued at the time at approximately $8,470,000. The recognition of any gain on the transaction will be dependent upon further assessment of contingent liabilities and federal income tax consequences. Jacor's radio stations will continue to be represented by Eastman.

Terry S. Jacobs, chairman, president and CEO of Jacor said, "We believe the Eastman personnel are among the most capable in the rep industry and we look forward to continuing a long-term relationship as Eastman becomes a part of the Katz organization. The sale of Eastman at this favorable price fits our strategic plan to decrease our overall debt and to concentrate our future operations in owning and operating radio stations in the top 25 markets."

SOUTH PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Responding to a request by the staff of the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), Enzon, Inc. (NASDAQ: ENZN) today issued revised financial statements for the past three years. The request arose from an SEC interpretation of a 1987 corporate investment in Enzon.

The revised financial statements cover fiscal years ended June 30, 1987, 1988, and 1989 and for the nine month periods ended March 31, 1989, and 1990. For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1989 the previously reported net loss of $5,032,283 or ($.44) per share becomes net income of $947,654 or $.08 per share, as restated. The net losses reported for the fiscal years ended June 30, 1987 and 1988 were reduced by $235,982 or $.03 per share and $2,784,081 or $.26 per share, respectively. The March 31, 1989 comparative amounts included in the 10-Q filing for the quarter ended March 31, 1990 have been similarly restated.

For the nine month period ended March 31, 1990, the previously reported net loss of $3,454,715 or ($.28) per share remains the same. This restatement had no effect on the company's total assets, total liabilities and stockholder's equity at June 30, 1989 and will have no future effect on the company's assets, liabilities, stockholders' equity, and income.

The SEC request followed a review of a registration statement associated with a recent private placement of Enzon securities. The restatement revises the accounting of a 1987 equity investment in Enzon by Eastman Kodak Company ("Kodak").

On March 5, 1987, the company and Kodak entered into a stock purchase agreement under which Kodak bought 2,000,000 shares of the company's common stock for $15,000,000. Under that agreement, $9,000,000 was to be used to fund all activities necessary to obtain Food and Drug Administration (FDA) approval to market three Enzon products. Enzon initially credited the entire Kodak investment to capital stock and paid-in capital.

As a result of the restatement, Enzon has revised its financial statements to reflect that the $9,000,000 was a liability in 1987. The company's expenditures relating to the three products, previously charged to income, have now reduced the liability. As of March 31, 1990, that liability was $1,710,601. This accounting treatment does not create any new obligation to Kodak or change Enzon's relationship with Kodak. In summary, this restatement reduced Enzon's net losses for 1987 and 1988, resulted in a profit for 1989, and had no effect on the reported loss for the nine months ended March 31, 1990.

Enzon is a biopharmaceutical company developing improved therapies for life threatening diseases through the application of its proprietary technology, PEGNOLOGY(TM), to enhance the delivery of protein-based drugs. In March 1990, Enzon received its first marketing approval from the FDA for ADAGEN(TM), a treatment for a form of Severe Combined Immunodeficiency Disease (SCID).

BLOOMSBURY, N.J. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Wedco Technology Inc. (AMEX: WED) announced today that its board of directors decided at their regular quarterly meeting yesterday to pass the semi-annual dividend.

The board said it concluded that as a result of the large capital budget last year of $9.5 million and the additional $4.5 million plan for capital expansion this year, together with the uncertainties of current economic conditions, extraordinary caution is required at this time in the use of cash. The board said it remains confident in Wedco's future profitability and the success of its expansion program.

Along with the decision to omit the dividend, the Wedco board announced that management is undertaking a concerted effort to cut any non-essential costs, and to improve efficiency and operating margins over the next 12 months. Wedco recently reported net income of $.06 per share for the quarter ended July 30, 1990. Interest expenses and operating costs were up substantially over last year. These increases are primarily related to the opening of new plants in Calgary, Canada; Gainsborough, England; and Houston, which are now successfully in production and will result in positive growth of Wedco's basic services.

MIAMI (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Miami office of the statewide law firm of Broad and Cassel has announced the closing of a $24.5 million purchase of two Florida psychiatric hospitals by American Health Properties, Inc. (NYSE: AHE) (AHP), a health-care-based California REIT whose shares are listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and their lease to two limited partnerships represented by the firm. The sellers were affiliates of American Medical International, Inc. (AMI), as part of AMI's continuing divestiture program.

The Florida facilities are The Retreat in Sunrise, near Fort Lauderdale, and Anclote Manor in Tarpon Springs, outside of Tampa.

In disclosing the agreement, Mike Segal, the head of Broad and Cassel's health care group, stated, "These are doctor-oriented purchases. Physicians, including many psychiatrists, will own significant interests in the partnerships which will operate the hospitals.

"The chairman of the hospitals will be James S. Cassel," said Segal, "a partner of our own law firm, Broad and Cassel." Cassel, 34, played a leading role in implementing the acquisitions. The presidents of the corporate general partners of the partnerships are F. Dee Goldberg and Edward D. Goldman, M.D. Goldberg was formerly the administrator of The Retreat. Dr. Goldman was at one time a part owner of Palmetto General Hospital, a 350-bed acute medical facility.

The Retreat is a 100-licensed-bed, short-term acute care psychiatric and substance abuse hospital which commenced operations in 1989. Anclote Manor is a 130-licensed-bed, long-term psychiatric hospital which has provided treatment for the severely mentally ill for 35 years.

Revenues for January through June 1990 were $945,435, representing a 78 percent increase over the corresponding period in 1989, during which total revenues were $532,287. The net loss of $327,141 for the quarter represents a 17 percent improvement over the net loss of $394,444 for the corresponding period in 1989. For the six month period, the net loss of $1,078,909 represents a 38 percent increase over the net loss of $781,737 for the corresponding period in 1989. As of June 30, 1990, the company's working capital deficit and shareholders' deficiency were $899,160 and $689,800, respectively. Results for this period are not indicative of results to be expected in later periods.

Frank S. Greene, Jr., president of NPS, commented that, "We're pleased that these sales results include revenues derived from new products delivered in the first quarter and accepted by our customers during the second quarter. We're excited about this new equipment, which is used as a direct connection to transfer data between the NPS Page Express workstation and the customers' drum scanners and commercial film plotters. In fact, sales of systems that include these direct connections represent over 40 percent of our revenues for the second quarter."

In June 1990, NPS announced significant changes in its organization to reduce the costs of its operations, including closing a regional office in Illinois and a substantial reduction in the company's workforce. In addition, the company reorganized its direct sales force based in Bethesda Md., to direct its efforts at the printing industry concentrated in the central and eastern United States. The Company has also retained an investment banking firm to assist it with a prospective third-quarter capital infusion.

MALVERN, PA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Tocor Inc. (NASDAQ: TOCRZ) today reported results of operations for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990.

As previously indicated, Tocor's business plan calls for its activities to be limited to conducting pharmaceutical product research and development through an agreement with Centocor Inc. (NASDAQ: CNTO); the company said it does not expect to generate any revenues other than interest income in the near term. Consequently, Tocor said it expects to incur net losses for each quarter of 1990 as well as the next several years.

In the quarter ended June 30, 1990, Tocor continued to perform according to its business plan, with reported research and development expenditures of $3,676,484 and a loss for the quarter of $3,432,657 or $1.19 per share. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, Tocor reported research and development expenditures of $6,531,085 and a loss of $6,036,449 or $2.10 per share.

Tocor was founded to initiate development programs directed toward the search for therapeutic products for use in the treatment of rheumatoid arthritis, multiple sclerosis and systemic lupus erythematosus. Tocor commenced operations in July 1989, and in August 1989, Tocor and Centocor Inc. completed a public offering of 2,875,000 units, each unit consisting of one share of Tocor Callable Common Stock and one warrant to purchase one share of Centocor Common Stock. The proceeds from the public offering are being used by Tocor to fund its research and development agreement with Centocor.

MIAMI (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Catalina Lighting, Inc. (AMEX: LTG), a Miami based company whose stock is traded on the American Stock Exchange announced operating results for its fiscal third quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Increased market share in the nations top home centers helped propel Catalina's sales to a new high. Third quarter sales continued their upward climb establishing new highs for the quarter and nine month period.

Sales for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 increased to a total of approximately $25,000,000, an increase of 66 percent. Net earnings for the period were $415,000 as compared to $586,000 for the same period last year. The decrease in profit was due in part to delayed shipments from the Orient on ceiling fans which the company chose to ship from domestic inventories to maintain strong customer relations.

These shipments caused a decrease in gross margins on warehouse sales which had previously climbed during past periods. Earnings per share for the quarter were $.08 as compared to $.14 per share the prior year. The current earnings per share, however, are based upon a total of 5,281,074 shares outstanding at June 30, 1990 compared to 4,298,239 shares at June 30, 1989.

BELLEVUE, WA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - In a Letter Of Intent signed today, with Advanced Gravis Computer Technology Ltd. ("Gravis") (NASDAQ: GRVSF; Toronto, Vancouver: AED), Logitech International S.A. ("Logitech") has primarily agreed to provide a loan to Gravis of $840,000 (Canadian) to be secured by a convertible debenture maturing 3 years after its date of issue, Gravis announced.

The conclusion of any agreement based on the initial Letter Of Intent is subject to the reaching of a final agreement by each party on the form and terms of the debenture and warrants.

The debenture will bear interest at 12 percent per annum, payable quarterly and is convertible at any time prior to maturity, in whole or in part, at Logitech's option, into 1,500,000 units of Gravis, at a price of $0.56 (Canadian). Each unit will consist of one share of Gravis common stock and one non-transferable warrant entitling Logitech to purchase an additional share at $0.70 (Canadian) for a period of five years from the date the loan is advanced. If converted, this would result in Logitech's owning approximately 34 percent of Advanced Gravis on a fully diluted basis and make Logitech the single largest shareholder. In addition, Gravis will agree to give Logitech a first right of refusal to purchase any further securities to be issued by Gravis, except for any presently outstanding rights to purchase securities and employ incentive options.

Proceeds from this private placement will be used to repay a $300,000 (U.S.) bridge loan made by Logitech in June 1990 and to supplement working capital. With this investment, Gravis' working capital position will be improved and will allow the company a better opportunity to meet the strong expected demand for its joystick products this fall.

"We're enthusiastic about this opportunity," said Logitech President and Chief Executive Officer, Pierluigi Zappacosta. "Both companies address a similar market and share a common interest in input technology. Since our technological bases are complementary, we hope to consider that our combined resources will allow us to diversify and explore new market opportunities."

Founded in 1981, Logitech designs, manufactures and markets desktop tools -- hardware and software products that enhance individual productivity and creativity. The largest manufacturer of computer "mice" in the world, and the leading U.S. manufacturer of hand-held scanners, Logitech maintains manufacturing facilities in Fremont, California; Hsinchu, Taiwan; and Cork, Ireland; and sales offices in major cities in the United States, Europe and the Far East. During fiscal year 1990, which ended

March 31 of this year, Logitech posted a net income of $8.8 million on consolidated worldwide revenues of $111.3 million.

Advanced Gravis designs, manufactures and markets high-quality microcomputer input devices, including the Gravis analog and switch joysticks and an optical Mousestick, for the IBM PC and Apple platforms, as well as input devices for Nintendo, Amiga and Atari machines, and the Hardpac line of portable hard disk drives.

"Gravis welcomes Logitech's investment," said Gravis President and Chief Executive Officer, Grant Russell. "This partnering will bring expertise and synergies in many areas, including manufacturing, R&D and marketing. Our combined potential is very promising."

The conclusion of this transaction is subject to the approval of the shareholders of Gravis and regulatory authorities.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Communications Corporation of America, Inc. (CCA) of Southport, Conn., today filed a $350 million damages action in federal district court in Washington, D.C. against Telecom USA. CCA's suit alleges fraud and breach of a 1989 contract by Telecom USA.

Under the contract, CCA, as Telecom USA's agent, signed up telephone calling card customers for long distance telephone services nationwide. CCA's unique marketing program provided charities, non-profits, and affinity groups with as much as 30 percent of the revenue CCA would have received from long distance calls of Telecom USA's network. CCA also committed 1 percent of its gross Telecom USA income to a special fund for inner city education.

According to CCA's president John Capozzi, Telecom(A) USA notified CCA in March 1990 that it was canceling the contract. "CCA developed a network of over 80 sales representatives nationwide as well as relationships with non-profit and affinity groups representing over 10 million potential card holders," Capozzi said. "At all times, CCA was ready, willing and able to perform on the contract," Capozzi added. "We registered 388 charities corporations and other large users with Telecom USA and performed as agreed. Unfortunately, not only CCA, but many worthwhile charities and other organizations have been hurt by Telecom USA's failure to perform."

Telecom USA, the nation's fourth largest long distance carrier, is in the process of merging with MCI Communications Corporation, the number two carrier in the long distance market. CCA is a wholly owned subsidiary of Convoy Capital Corporation of Montreal, Quebec, Canada which is listed on the NASDAQ Stock Exchange.

CCA is represented by the Washington, D.C. office of the law firm Bell, Boyd and Lloyd which also has offices in Chicago and Dallas and by Phil Musolino.

ANAHEIM, CA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Metalclad Corp. (NASDAQ: MTLC) announced today that it experienced a net loss of $177,000 for the second quarter of 1990 and a net loss of $149,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1990, compared to net income of $209,000 for the second quarter of 1989 and net income of $515,000 for the six months ended June 30, 1989. The loss was primarily attributable to a decrease in contracting activity by some of the company's principal customers and the lack of asbestos abatement contract securals. Net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, was $1,155,000, including an extraordinary item of $392,000 from utilization of net operating loss carryforwards.

Revenues, derived principally from insulation contracting services, asbestos abatement services and insulation material sales, were $6,513,000 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to $9,284,000 in the comparable period in 1989, a decrease of 29.8 percent. Revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, were $12,156,000 compared to $16,526,000 for the comparable period in 1989, a 26.4 percent decline. Revenues decreased primarily as a result of reduced contracting activity by the company's principal customers of insulation maintenance contracts which constitute a majority of the company's insulation contracting revenues. Material sales also declined as a result of the sale of the company's material sales division in Albuquerque, N.M., in August 1989 and the sale in December 1989 of the assets of Reliance Chemicals Corp., the company's wholly owned subsidiary in Houston, which was engaged in the manufacture and sale of microbes. Contract costs and cost of material sales decreased proportionately with the decreases in revenues from contracting activities and material sales; however, general and administrative expenses increased 6.9 percent as a result of the hiring of additional personnel.

The net loss per share in the second quarter of 1990 was ($.04) compared to net income per share of $.05 for the comparable period in 1989. The net loss per share for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was ($.03) compared to net income per share of $.12 for the comparable period in 1989. Net income for the year ended Dec. 31, 1989, was $.26 per share.

Metalclad Corp. is engaged in industrial insulation services, asbestos abatement services, and insulation material sales to customers primarily in California and Washington.

HAMILTON, BERMUDA (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Sea Containers Ltd. (NYSE: SCR) lessor of specialized marine containers, ferry and ports operator and leisure industry investor, today reported net earnings for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990 of $141.8 million ($25.50 per common share). Revenue from continuing operations was $90.4 million. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net earnings were $315.3 million ($36.89 per common share) and revenue excluding gains on sale of ferry and container assets was $189.1 million. Comparisons with 1989 performance are inappropriate because the company sold major parts of its ferries and container leasing businesses earlier this year. In the second quarter of 1990 the company made a gain on sale of container assets of $130 million after establishing a $15 million provision to compensate for possible dislocations to its container leasing business. A $20 million provision was established in the first quarter against the sale of ferry and port assets. Were it not for these provisions, the gains on these sales would have been $325 million.

James B. Sherwood, president, said that because of the asset sales it was difficult to present the second quarter and six months results in a way which allowed investors to determine the trends. He indicated that profits from the leasing of containers not sold were about the same in the second quarter as in the first quarter and these profits were approximately 50 percent higher than in the first and second quarters of 1989.

Sherwood said that the Middle East crisis could adversely affect the company's ferry profits in the second half of the year by increasing fuel prices, however, due to the recent strengthening of the pound sterling against the U.S. dollar, ferry and port earnings will benefit in dollar terms. The supply lines for many of the forces sent to the Middle East are exceptionally long and he thought container demand might increase because of this.

Sherwood reported that the company's revolutionary SeaCat vessel, Hoverspeed Great Britain, had successfully entered service on Aug. 14 after having been delayed by government authorities which required different fire safety standards than prevail on the company's other high speed passenger vessels. These new requirements were not anticipated but at least all further units will be built to meet such requirements, thus avoiding any similar delay in the future. The Hoverspeed Great Britain has been awarded the Hales Trophy for the Blue Riband of the North Atlantic by the Hales Trustees after the ship clipped 2 hours and 45 minutes off the speed record on June 23. The U.S. Merchant Marine Academy Museum has behaved in an unsportsmanlike manner by refusing to hand over the trophy, so the Hales Trustees will likely have to take court action later this year to arrange for the trophy's transfer to the company.

DODGEVILLE, WI. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Lands' End, Inc. (LE) (NYSE: LE), today reported a loss of $2.2 million, or 12 cents per share, in its second quarter ended Aug. 3, compared with net earnings of $2.2 million, equal to 11 cents per share, for the second quarter last year.

Net sales for the most recent three months totaled $117.1 million, up 12 percent from sales of $104.2 million in the second quarter last year.

For the first six months of the current fiscal year, net sales were $229 million, compared with $212 million during the first half of last year. The first six months this year resulted in a net loss of $0.5 million or 3 cents per share, compared with earnings of $6.9 million or 34 cents per share in the same period a year earlier.

Liquidations of excess inventory totaled about 16 percent of net sales during these second quarter, compared with approximately 10 percent in the same period last year. Gross margin on sales fell to 38.2 percent for the quarter just ended, compared with 41.2 percent in the same period last year, principally due to the greater proportion of sales at less than full catalog price.

Selling, general and administrative expenses increased 22 percent to $48.3 million in the second quarter, compared with $39.4 million in the second quarter last year. The increase was principally due to higher variable operating expenses associated with the increased sales volume, greater shipping and handling costs resulting from relatively higher lost sales and backorders, and increases in fixed operating expenses, including higher salaries and depreciation expenses. As a percentage of sales, SG&A was 41.2 percent in fiscal 1991, compared with 37.8 percent in fiscal 1990.

Second quarter ending inventory was $71.3 million, down from $83 million at the same time last year. Lower inventory balances in the latter part of the quarter were the primary cause of the reduction in the company's borrowing on short-term lines of credit, from $11 million at the beginning of the quarter to a zero balance at the end of the quarter.

In commenting on the results, company president and chief executive officer Richard C. Anderson said that the increased sales included a higher volume of liquidations and regular catalog sales. "The quarter benefited from some improvements in overall customer demand for regular catalog merchandise. This was achieved by an increase in the number of catalogs mailed, a greater number of new product offerings and more aggressive pricing of selected products," said Anderson.

"However, greater than expected demand for some products resulted in higher lost sales (orders for products not currently in stock) and increased backorders. The higher operating costs associated with this demand and the lower gross profit contributed to the earnings loss," said Anderson.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Avery, Inc. (NASDAQ: AVRY) reported income from continuing operations of $.2 million (less than $.01 per share) for its second quarter ended June 30, 1990, versus a loss of $1.0 million ($.25 per share) for the comparable year earlier period. The company's results from continuing operations primarily consist of investment income on its marketable securities and commercial paper, interest expense and general and administrative expenses. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported a loss from continuing operations of $.4 million ($.01 per share) versus a loss of $2.2 million ($.50 per share) for the comparable year earlier period. The company previously reported a change in its year end from a fiscal year ending Sept. 30 to a calendar year ending Dec. 31.

There was no income or loss from discontinued operations for the current quarter or first half since (i) Uniroyal Chemical Holding Company (UCHC), formerly a wholly owned subsidiary, was sold prior thereto and (ii) losses of Avery Coal Co., Inc. (Avery Coal), a wholly owned subsidiary, were deferred since the company had previously provided for the anticipated costs to liquidate Avery Coal through June 30, 1990, at which time a liquidating trust was established. The loss from discontinued operations for the 1989 first half amounted to $13.8 million, or $1.14 per share, and consisted of $11.0 million of UCHC losses and a provision for the then anticipated additional loss of $2.8 million on the disposal of Avery Coal. The UCHC loss consisted of $18.5 million of interest expense less $4.7 million of investment income and $2.8 million of other income.

The net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990, amounted to $.4 million ($.01 per share) compared to $16.5 million ($1.68 per share) last year. Such loss for the 1989 first half included an extraordinary charge of $.5 million ($.04 per share) associated with the early extinguishment of debt.

The company has working capital of $25.5 million (including cash, cash equivalents and marketable securities of $28.5 million) long-term debt of $12.5 million and stockholders' equity of $13.0 million.

As previously reported, Nelson Peltz and Peter W. May, the company's largest stockholders and its principal executive officers, have offered to acquire all shares of the company's common stock not already owned by them for $.35 per share in cash. The proposal has been referred to a committee of directors of the company.

(A) On Oct. 30, 1989 the company completed the sale of Uniroyal Chemical Holding Company (UCHC), which prior thereto was a wholly owned subsidiary of the company, the direct parent of Uniroyal Chemical Acquisition Corporation (UCAC) and the indirect parent of Uniroyal Chemical Company, Inc. (Uniroyal Chemical) to UCC Investors Holding, Inc. (UCC Investors), an entity formed by certain members of the management of Uniroyal Chemical. The company originally had announced on Jan. 27, 1988, its intention to sell Uniroyal Chemical and subsequently the company changed the entity being held for sale to UCAC effective June 30, 1988, and to UCHC effective June 30, 1989. The results of operations for UCHC for the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1989, have been reclassified to discontinued operations and the results of operations of Uniroyal Chemical and UCAC are excluded from the consolidated statements of operations since the company believed the sale would result in a profit and the sale announcement dates of these entities was prior to Jan. 1, 1989. Additionally, the company since prior to Jan. 1, 1989, has been following a course leading to the disposition of (the disposition) of Avery Coal Co. Inc. (Avery Coal), a wholly owned subsidiary of the company and effective June 30, 1990, the remaining assets and obligations of Avery Coal were transferred to a liquidating trust. The trust will undertake the disposition of the remaining assets and the discharge of the remaining liabilities. In connection with the disposition, the company recorded aggregate losses of $5,348,000 (with no tax benefit) all of which were provided prior to 1990 and of which $700,000 and $2,148,000 were provided in the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1989, respectively. Avery Coal operations (exclusive of the additional provisions for losses anticipated from the dissolution) for the three and six month periods June 30, 1990 and 1989 are excluded from the results of operations.

(B) The extraordinary charge for the six months ended June 30, 1989 represents the writeoff, with no tax benefit, of previously incurred but unamortized financing fees associated with the early extinguishment of debt repurchased at face value during the quarter ended March 31, 1989.

(C) The income (loss) per share is based on the weighted average number of outstanding common shares aggregating 55,365,000 for the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1990 and 12,147,000 for the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1989. The losses for loss per share purposes have been increased by dividend requirements on cumulative preferred shares of $1,979,000 and $3,862,000 for the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1989, respectively. There were no such dividend requirements for the three and six month periods ended June 30, 1990 since all such preferred shares were converted, surrendered as proceeds for the exercise of warrants or redeemed on Oct. 30, 1989.

TORONTO (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - The Thomas Cook Group was given approval today by the United States Federal Reserve Board to purchase the U.S. retail foreign exchange operations of Deak International Ltd.

The approval clears the way for United Kingdom-based Thomas Cook to acquire Deak International's entire North American retail network, which includes 72 branches in the United States and 38 in Canada. The sale will be finalized today.

Thomas Cook received regulatory approval last month for the acquisition of Deak International's Canadian retail operations. Earlier this year, it acquired 20 Deak International branches in the United Kingdom, as well as a single branch in New Zealand.

"This acquisition makes Thomas Cook the largest retail foreign exchange network in the world," said Peter J. Middleton, chief executive officer of the Thomas Cook Group. "The Deak network, together with Thomas Cook's extensive travel presence in the U.S. and Canada, gives the group a very high retail profile in North America."

For the year ended April 30, 1990, Deak International's retail operations reported revenues of $35 million and year-end assets of $45 million. The operations had previously been owned by Jarden Morgan Ltd., a New Zealand-based financial services firm.

In addition to its foreign exchange services, Deak International is a major retailer of precious metals and travellers cheques. The company's North American retail headquarters is in Toronto.

"Following the completion of the acquisition, the Deak retail foreign exchange operations will be incorporated into our existing network," said

Christopher Rodrigues, chief operating officer of the Thomas Cook Group. "The company will convert to operating as Thomas Cook, harnessing a 149 year-old name that connotes trust and reliability. It will create the first worldwide retail foreign exchange network."

The main business activities of the Thomas Cook Group, which is a wholly-owned subsidiary of Midland Bank plc of the United Kingdom, are foreign exchange, travellers cheques, leisure travel and business travel management. The company is the world's second largest issuer of travellers cheques and operates 1,600 offices in 120 countries.

DENVER (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - On Aug. 14, 1990, a Criminal Complaint was filed against Kent A. Borchard in United States District Court for one count of willful failure to file a 1983 United States Federal Income Tax Return with the Internal Revenue Service in violation of Title 26, United States Code, Section 7203.

According to the Criminal Complaint, Attachment 2, Borchard who resides at 775 9th St., Meeker, Colo. did unlawfully, knowingly and willingly fail to timely file a U.S. Individual Income Tax Return for the calendar year 1983. Borchard filed an extension for 1983 which indicated that he was aware of his filing requirement. Additionally he failed to file timely returns from 1978 through 1986. This pattern of nonfiling indicates that Borchard did not make a mistake regarding his 1983 individual income tax return but rather intentionally failed to file that tax return.

According to IRS officials, failure to file income tax returns carries a maximum penalty of $25,000 and/or one year imprisonment. In addition, persons convicted of criminal tax offenses, in addition to any criminal sentence imposed, are required to pay the tax, civil penalties, and interest that are determined to be due.

This case was investigated by Special Agents of the Internal Revenue Service.

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Health Equity Properties Inc. (NYSE: EQP) completed its first six months of operations for 1990 with revenues of $9,040,920, compared with $9,598,052 for the same period of 1989. The change reflects the company's sale of three properties during 1989. The decrease is also attributed to decrease in interest income due to a reduction in cash reserves and gains recognized in 1989 from the sale of one nursing home.

Net cash flow from operations for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was $3,093,324 (or 85 cents per common share) compared with $3,150,814 (or 87 cents per common share) for the same period of 1989. The change is due to an increase in rents receivable for the six month period ending June 30, 1990. Effective July 1, 1990, the leases of four properties were assigned to a new lessee and operator. The company received a consent fee in cash and notes which approximated the unpaid rent. Since the transaction, net cash flow from operations has stabilized and it is anticipated to increase.

Net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990 was $781,549, compared with net loss before extraordinary items of $820,019 for the same period of 1989. An extraordinary item -- a gain of $492,001 due to the company's assumption of a lease guarantee -- affected the company's net loss for the six month period ending June 30, 1989. The reduction in net loss before extraordinary items is due to a decrease in interest and depreciation expense as a result of the company's 1989 sale of properties.

Based in Winston-Salem, Health Equity Properties owns 76 nursing home facilities with a total of 5,043 beds. The company is managed by a nine member board of directors, five of whom are independent from the company.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Jordan's King Hussein arrives in Washington early Wednesday in advance of a meeting with President Bush Thursday at his summer home in Maine. A Jordanian official who requested anonymity says Hussein is carrying a joint Jordanian-Iraqi peace initiative for Bush to consider. Jordan is caught between demands from the West to enforce the U-N embargo against Iraq and pressure from Baghdad to keep access open for Iraq to Jordan's port of Aqaba on the Red Sea. On Tuesday, Bush said it may be necessary to intercept ships bound for Jordan to sever Iraq's economic lifeline.

The hospital ship U-S-N-S Comfort left port at Norfolk Naval Station in Virginia late Tuesday, en route to the Middle East. The Comfort and its sister ship, Mercy, are the largest floating hospitals in the world. They can provide a wide range of care... including treatment of casualties from chemical warfare. Iraq has chemical weapons and has threatened to use them.

Also leaving Norfolk were the U-S-S Trenton, an amphibious transport dock, and the U-S-S Portland, a dock landing ship. Both were to pick up Marines on Tuesday evening in Morehead City, North Carolina, and take them to the Middle East as part of ''Operation Desert Shield.'' The carrier U-S-S John F. Kennedy battle group is scheduled to leave port Wednesday... although its exact assignment is NOT clear.

The government has unveiled stricter clean-up rules for mining on public land. Under the new policy announced Tuesday by the Interior Department, mine operators will have to post bonds for exploration and mining activity. The bond is designed to ensure that adequate money is available to clean up the sites after the minerals are extracted. But a spokeswoman for Democratic Senator Dale Bumpers of Arkansas says it's NOT enough. Melissa Scolfield says what is needed is total reform of the 1872 federal mining law.

(AUG. 15) UPI - What a spokesman for New York Mayor David Dinkins calls ''a fairly serious disturbance'' broke out at Rikers Island Tuesday night. At least 45 people were injured. Officials say the melee erupted when more than 700 inmates barricaded themselves in their cells, forcing guards to use teargas. The violence erupted hours after an agreement was reached, ending a two-day blockade of the jail's only bridge by guards. The guards were furious about the beating of a fellow guard by three inmates last week.

President Bush goes to the Pentagon Wednesday morning for a briefing on the massive U-S military buildup against Iraqi aggression in the Persian Gulf. Bush will also give a pep talk to defense employees and spell out U-S objectives in the gulf. In Baghdad, sources at Iraq's foreign ministry say Iraq has labeled the Americans as ''restrictees'' who WON'T be allowed to leave until the crisis is resolved.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The average American family with employed mothers paid $49 per week for child care, according to the latest Census Bureau survey, which also showed Wednesday that child care is a $15.5 billion annual industry.

The 1987 Census figures disclosed that 29 million children of employed mothers were enrolled in child care programs. The cost of such programs increased $8 over the previous survey year, 1984-85, the Census Bureau said.

Other key survey findings showed:

-Most children of preschool age with employed mothers were cared for in a home environment, while their mothers were at work. Thirty percent were cared for in their own homes.

-Weekly child care costs were $57 in the Northeast and $43 in the South.

-Seven percent of employed mothers experienced a work disruption caused by the failure of a child care arrangement.

-Children living in poverty were more likely to be cared for in their own homes by grandparents and other relatives while their mothers were at work.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Iraq said an estimated 3,000 Americans stranded in Iraq and occupied Kuwait were being prevented from leaving and no timetable has been set for their departure.

ABC News, quoting sources in Iraq's foreign ministry in Baghdad, said Tuesday that Iraq has now classified Americans in Iraq and Kuwait as ''restrictees'' who will not be allowed to leave until the crisis in the Persian Gulf is resolved.

There were an estimated 2,500 Americans in Kuwait and another 500 to 600 U.S. citizens in Iraq who have been stranded since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he was unfamiliar with the report and could not comment on it.

Border officials said more than 200 foreigners had entered Jordan across the Iraqi border Tuesday. No Americans were reported among them. The officials said thousands of people were on the Iraqi side waiting to cross.

In Baghdad, U.S. businessman Bob Vinton told ABC he and many other Americans can move about freely in Iraq but ''there's been no indication that we can go home at any time.''

Vinton added it was his understanding the 38 Americans being detained in a Baghdad hotel are being allowed ''complete freedom'' within the facility.

''They're not really in contact with other Americans. I think only through Iraqi officials can they talk to anybody.''

Haitham al Najjar, first secretary of the Iraqi Embassy in Washington, confirmed that Americans were not being allowed to leave Iraq and Kuwait and gave no timetable for their release.

''This is true, but it is not a new development. We have been saying since the beginning of the crisis that they can't leave because we are responsible for their safety and only diplomats are now able to go,'' Haitham said in an interview with United Press International.

''They are not prisoners and not hostages,'' he said, but added, ''They are not being allowed to leave at the present time due to the exceptional circumstances. The government might issue some instructions for these foreigners to leave, but that depends on the situation. They will be able to leave when it is possible to do so.

''We can assure you they are living happily, comfortably and in peace and are being visited by the U.S. charge d' affaires in Baghdad,'' Haitham said.

The Iraqi diplomat also said the fate of the Americans was not necessarily tied to Thursday's scheduled meeting between President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein at the president's vacation home in Maine.

Hussein, assuming the role of mediator in the conflict, is said to be carrying a peace initiative from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

''There is no connection between a possible government decision to allow foreigners to leave and King Hussein's visit,'' Haitham said. ''Iraq can make a decision at any time.''

ABC News correspondent Ted Koppel, reporting from Baghdad, said he asked a Foreign Ministry official in the Iraqi capital whether the Americans were being held hostage.

''It is not a word that the Iraqis like to use, but the official conceded to me that even though all of the Americans he said were being well treated and well-housed and that they are in no immediate danger, nevertheless they were not free to leave,'' Koppel said.

''He called them restrictees and made the point that their exit from Iraq was going to be restricted until this crisis is over.''

In Bangkok, a Thai official said Wednesday that Iraq has agreed to allow Thai workers in Kuwait to return home through Jordan. Siri Keiwalinsrit, director general of the Thai Labor Department, said Iraq will allow the first 1,200 of some 7,000 Thai workers in Kuwait to leave ''by the end of this month.''

(AUG. 15) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... U-P-I has the latest news.

Jordan's King Hussein arrived in Washington this morning, bringing with him a joint Iraqi-Jordanian peace plan to end the Persian Gulf crisis. Hussein is to meet with President Bush at the president's vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, tomorrow. Bush returns to Maine this afternoon after several high-level meetings in Washington.

Iraq says an estimated three-thousand Americans stranded in Iraq and occupied Kuwait are NOT being allowed to leave and there is NO timetable for their departure. A broadcast report quotes Iraqi foreign ministry sources as saying the Americans have been classified as ''restrictees'' who will NOT be allowed to leave until the crisis is resolved.

Two wildfires in Oregon's Malheur National Forest continue to burn out of control after hot, gusty winds added fuel to the flames yesterday. The Oregon fires together have blackened more than 20-thousand acres.

Firefighters have made progress against several other fires burning in Western states.

Washington, D-C, Mayor Marion Barry says he'll run for a seat on the City Council as an independent. The mayor says he reached the decision ''after prayerful consideration'' and discussion with his family. Barry says a fourth mayoral term would be too divisive following his trial on cocaine and perjury charges.

President Bush says Congress is to blame for the budget stalemate and yesterday angrily challenged Democrats on Capitol Hill to make one full proposal at the budget summit. Senate Democratic leader George Mitchell of Maine says the president's criticism was ''NOT accurate or helpful.''

(AUG. 15) UPI - A former Northwest Airlines co-pilot testified in Minneapolis yesterday that he did split six pitchers of beer with a cockpit crew member the night before an early flight. But Robert Kirchner says he did NOT fly while intoxicated or violate an F-A-A rule barring pilots from consuming alcohol within eight hours of a flight.

Officials at New York's Rikers Island prison say more than 45 people were injured last night when about 700 inmates barricaded themselves in their cells, forcing prison guards to use tear gas. The violence erupted hours after an agreement was reached with guards furious about last week's beating death of a fellow corrections officer by inmates.

(AUG. 15) UPI - The Pittsburgh Pirates went down to the cellar to get back on top.

The Pirates rebounded from a five-game skid Tuesday and swept the last-place Atlanta Braves 3-1 and 6-4, regaining first place in the National League East by a half-game.

In the first game, Doug Drabek fired a six-hitter and Bobby Bonilla went 3 for 4 including a two-run homer. Bonilla capped the night with his 25th homer on the year and extended his hitting streak to 13 games.

''It was a pretty good day for the team to be able to win a couple of games,'' Bonilla said. ''We were able to get the lead early, which is something we have to do and go from there.

Drabek, 15-5, carried a shutout into the ninth inning before giving up a home run to Dave Justice. Drabek tied his career high for wins in a season by pitching his fifth complete game.

Atlanta starter Charlie Leibrandt, 4-7, allowed three runs and seven hits over seven innings.

In the nightcap, Jeff King drove home four runs with a homer and a double and Zane Smith won his first game for Pittsburgh, leading the Pirates to a 6-4 victory.

Smith, 7-7, allowed four runs, three earned, and four hits over 7 1-3 innings. Bob Patterson got the final two outs for his third save.

Atlanta starter Steve Avery, 2-7, lasted just 2 2-3 innings, allowing six runs, four earned, and three hits.

With two out in the first, Avery walked Gary Redus and Bonilla hit a 1-1 pitch off the net just inside the left-field foul pole for his career-high 25th home run.

After Bonilla's homer, Barry Bonds walked on a 3-2 pitch and King sent an 0-1 pitch from Avery over the left-field wall for another two-run homer, his fifth home run of the season.

Atlanta has a 43-72 record and are 24 1/2 games behind Cincinnati in the NL West.

Elsewhere Tuesday night in the National League, Chicago beat Houston 5-2;

New York split a double-header with Los Angeles, winning 9-8 and losing 2-1; Philadlephia edged San Franciso 4-3 in 13 innings; Cincinnati defeated St. Louis 9-4; and Montreal dumped San Diego 8-3.

Dodgers 2, Mets 1 (2nd)

At New York, Howard Johnson went 3-for-4 with four RBI, powering the Mets in the first game. Dwight Gooden, 12-6, allowed seven runs over 5 2-3 innings. John Franco worked the ninth for his 26th save. Ramon Martinez, 15-5, had a six-game winning streak snapped. In the nightcap, Mike Hartley 4-1, pitched six scoreless innings in his first major-league start. Jay Howell picked up his ninth save and David Cone, 8-6, took the loss.

Reds 9, Cardinals 4

At St. Louis, Jack Armstrong won his first game since the All-Star break and Todd Benzinger drove in three runs to lead Cincinnati. Armstrong improved to 12-8 and St. Louis starter Jose DeLeon, 6-12, yielded eight runs and seven hits in 3 1-3 innings. The Cardinals had a four-game winning streak snapped.

Phillies 4, Giants 3 (13 innings)

At Philadelphia, Rod Booker scored on a wild pitch with two out in the 13th to help the Phillies snap a five-game losing streak. Booker singled off Steve Bedrosian, 5-7, stole second and went to third on Charlie Hayes' groundout. Bedrosian's first pitch to pinch-hitter Dave Hollins was wild, scoring Booker and making a winner of Dennis Cook, 8-2.

Cubs 5, Astros 2

At Chicago, Ryne Sandberg hit his National League-leading 28th home run and drove in three runs for Chicago. Greg Maddux, 10-10, gave up seven hits over 7 2-3 innings for the win, and Bill Long picked up his fourth save. Mike Scott, 9-11, failed in his bid for his fourth straight win.

Expos 8, Padres 3

At San Diego, Dennis Martinez pitched a five-hitter and Otis Nixon posted the first four-hit game of his career to lead the Expos to their sixth straight victory. Martinez, 9-8, struck out nine and walked none, at one point retiring 17 batters in a row. San Diego starter Dennis Rasmussen, 8-11, took the loss.

(AUG. 15) UPI - New York Yankees Manager Stump Merrill is being haunted, not helped, by ghosts from Yankee pasts.

Luis Polonia sprinted to an inside-the-park grand slam against his old squad and Chili Davis added a three-run homer Tuesday night, powering the California Angels to a 9-5 victory to hand the New York Yankees their fifth staight loss.

''Those ex-Yankees are haunting us,'' Merrill said.

The performance by Polonia, who was traded from New York to California in the first month of the season, followed Monday night's game-winning performance by another former Yankee, Dave Winfield.

Trailing 1-0 in the second inning, the Angels came back in the second inning thanks to a slew of Yankee mistakes.

Leadoff batter Lee Stevens struck out, but reached first on New York starter Tim Leary's wild pitch. Leary then hit Lance Parrish with a pitch and Devon White advanced the runners with a sacrifice bunt. Dick Schofield walked to load the bases.

Polonia then ripped an 0-2 pitch toward right fielder Jesse Barfield, his third pulled shot of the night.

Barfield skidded into the turf as the ball skipped past him and rolled to the corner. Polonia wasn't going to stop.

Polonia rounded the bases for only the 74th inside-the-park grand slam in major-league history to give the Angels a 4-1 lead.

The shot was only Polonia's second home run on the season, but both have come against his ex-team from the Bronx, where he felt cheated out of playing opportunities.

The Yankees fought back to a 4-4 tie before Davis belted his three-run homer in the fifth to put the Angels up for good.

The Angels stung Leary for nine runs in the first five innings.

Jim Abbott, 8-10, struggled to post the win, surrendering five runs and 11 hits in 5 2-3 innings. Willie Fraser pitched the last 3 1-3 innings for his first save.

--- AROUND THE AL ---

In other American League action Tuesday night, Minnesota topped Cleveland 5-4, Toronto blasted Chicago 12-4, Milwaukee stopped Detroit 7-6, Kansas City shut out Texas 1-0, Boston blanked Oakland 2-0 and Seattle buried Baltimore 7-1.

At Cleveland, Kent Hrbek drove in two runs and Kirby Puckett collected three hits to lead Minnesota. Mark Guthrie, 4-5, allowed seven hits in seven innings for the win. Rick Aguilera gained his 25th save. Cleveland starter Bud Black, 10-8, was touched for 10 hits in five innings.

Blues Jays 12, White Sox 4

At Chicago, Glenallen Hill belted his second career grand slam and George Bell tied a major league record with three sacrifice flies for Toronto. Todd Stottlemyre, 11-13, gave up only a first-inning double and a seventh-inning single. Chicago starter Greg Hibbard fell to 9-7.

Brewers 7, Tigers 6

At Detroit, Mike Felder's bases-loaded sacrifice fly with one out in the ninth capped a two-run rally for Milwaukee. Chuck Crim, 3-4, pitched 2 2-3 innings of relief for the win. Dan Plesac got the final out for his 17th save. Jerry Don Gleaton, 1-3, lost in relief.

Royals 1, Rangers 0

At Kansas City, Mo., Jim Eisenreich led off the ninth inning with a pinch-hit home run to lift the Royals. Andy McGaffigan and Steve Farr, 9-5 combined for the seven-hit shutout. Gary Mielke, 0-2, was the loser after Texas starter Jamie Moyer took a one-hitter into the seventh inning.

Red Sox 2, Athletics 0

At Oakland, Calif. Roger Clemens fired a five-hitter and struck out 11 batters for lead Boston. Clemens, 17-5, walked only one in recording his 24th career shutout. Oakland starter Mike Moore, 10-11, was forced out of the game in the second inning with a strained right groin.

Mariners 7, Orioles 1

At Seattle, Greg Briley homered twice and Matt Young tossed a five-hitter for the Mariners. Young, 6-12, hurled his sixth complete game of the season, walking four and striking out three. Briley hit both of his homers off Baltimore starter Dave Johnson, 11-8.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Jordan's King Hussein, whose nation is allowing shipments bound for Iraq through its southern port despite a U.N.-mandated trade embargo, arrived in the United States Wednesday and brought with him a Jordanian-Iraqi plan for solving the Persian Gulf crisis.

President Bush, who plans to meet with Hussein Thursday, has warned that Jordan may be undermining efforts to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo against Iraq, imposed after Baghdad invaded and occupied Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute. Thousands of Iraqi troops are now massed on the Saudi border.

The Pentagon said 45,000 heavily armed Marines were arriving in Saudi Arabia to confront Iraq in Operation Desert Shield, joining 26,000 U.S. troops already in position in the oil-rich kingdom as of Tuesday.

In an apparent attempt to gather support in the Persian Gulf region, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offered Wednesday to settle numerous issues in dispute with Gulf War rival Iran.

In a letter to the Iranian leadership read on Baghdad Radio and monitored in Beirut, Saddam offered to exchange all prisoners held by both countries and withdraw Iraqi troops facing Iranian forces along their shared frontier. Border patrols would remain.

The eight-year Gulf War was fought to a standstill. A cease-fire has been in force since August 1988.

There has been little public support for Iraq since it invaded and occupied Kuwait. Improved relations with neighboring Iran could offer Iraq a way around the trade embargo if Tehran agreed to receive Iraqi-bound goods at its ports along the gulf and the Caspian and Arabian seas.

As part of their enforcement of the trade embargo, U.S. and British ships patrolled the waters of the gulf, under orders to interdict Iraqi shipping. A British frigate challenged a Cypriot oil tanker thought to be carrying Iraqi oil. Two Iraqi tankers also were turned away from the United Arab Emirates.

The U.S. and British actions were criticized by other U.N. members, and Washington agreed Tuesday to discuss coordinating military actions with its U.N. Security Council partners.

The United States, with 49 warships sent to the region, maintains it has the military and legal authority to board vessels suspected of violating the economic boycott.

France said its naval forces would not seize Iraqi cargo ships at sea because such a measure would constitute an act of war.

Besides foreign warships already in the gulf, Belgium, Italy and Britain announced they were sending nine ships to the Mediterranean. Greece also placed its naval facilities at the disposal of West Germany to enable it to station a squadron of minesweepers off the East Mediterranean island of Crete.

Three British minesweepers were expected to arrive in about three weeks. They are part of what is called the ''Tupperware navy'' because the hulls are made from reinforced plastic which does not attract magnetic mines.

Iraq called any naval blockade illegal. The Iraqi newspaper Al Jumhuriya said Saddam's forces know how to penetrate a blockade and would ''make (U.S.) troops taste death if they attack.''

The Jordanian king arrived at Andrews Air Force Base near Washington early Wednesday in advance of a meeting with Bush Thursday at his summer home in Maine. A Jordanian official who requested anonymity said Hussein was carrying a joint Jordanian-Iraqi peace initiative for Bush to consider, but the official refused to disclose details of the message.

Jordan is permitting its Red Sea port of Aqaba to allow in shipments of food and other material, which is then sent to Iraq by truck convoy. A Norwegian ship's captain said he was forced by Jordanian police to unload Iraq-bound grain from his vessel in Aqaba, news reports in Oslo said Tuesday.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Thunderstorms soaked the Great Plains and the Southwest Wednesday, flooding Arizona and swelling waterways in Texas, while fog obscured parts of the Northeast and scattered rain fell over the South.

Heavy rain soaked west-central Arizona, causing flooding near the California border early Wednesday, as light showers fell across much of the state, the National Weather Service said. Heavy storms swept the state Tuesday, causing extensive street flooding in Phoenix.

Several highway underpasses in Phoenix were closed because pumps could not handle the runoff that inundated the city's few storm drains. The Phoenix Fire Department made sand bags available to homeowners, and the Red Cross provided emergency housing for 50 people whose homes in low-lying areas were flooded.

Storms moved into already-drenched southeast New Mexico and southwest Texas, where the Rio Grande and other rivers were near or above flood stage. Flash flood warnings were posted near the New Mexico-Texas border.

Showers also lingered across much of Kansas, eastern Colorado and northwest Oklahoma, the NWS said. Thundershowers were reported from southern Nebraska into northern Kansas, where storms were scattered across a 50-mile-wide area.

In the Great Lakes region, thunderstorms moved from Minneapolis into central Wisconsin early Wednesday as high pressure from Canada brought drier air.

Scattered thunderstorms weaved through the South, dropping light rain in the Carolinas and the Florida Keys. Morning temperatures in the region ranged from 74 under hazy skies in Knoxville, Tenn., to 83 in Miami.

Skies were clear across much of the Northeast early Wednesday, but patches of dense fog shrouded parts of New Hampshire and Vermont. Thick fog in Elmira, N.Y., cut visibility to a quarter-mile.

Skies were partly cloudy overnight across much of Pennsylvania, West Virginia and New Jersey. Morning lows ranged mostly in the 60s.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - A livery cab driver was shot to death in Harlem, bringing to 20 the number of drivers killed since the beginning of the year, police said Wednesday.

Abraham Hernandez, 38, was found lying face up on the sidewalk near his car at West 145th Street and Bradhurst Avenue in Harlem about 9:40 p.m. Tuesday, said Sgt. Ed Burns, a police spokesman.

The driver for Cabrini Car Service was found 10 feet from his vehicle with a gunshot wound to the head, police said. Both rear doors of the car were left open, and investigators said they believed the victim was shot during a robbery.

BEIJING (AUG. 15) UPI - Chinese and Western sources dispute government claims that only 355 people remain imprisoned for participating in last year's democracy movement, saying thousands of Chinese are toiling in a vast gulag of ''labor reform'' camps.

The sources, who include Chinese with public security contacts, scoff at Beijing's assurances it has freed most people detained in Beijing for investigation of their roles in the protests.

''There's no way of knowing the total number (incarcerated), but it's clearly in the thousands,'' one Chinese source said.

As an example, more than 50 people from the cities of Baoding and Chengde in Hebei province, which surrounds the capital, were branded as ''hooligans'' after the protests and sent to a labor reform camp, the source said.

The Hebei city of Tangshan about 100 miles from Beijing is the site of little-known Tangshan No. 1 labor reform camp where ''more than 10,000 prisoners'' labor under harsh conditions, according to a Chinese source knowledgeable about security affairs.

China maintains a vast system of ''reform through labor'' prisons and prison camps, where convicts work at menial jobs. Critics charge some convict-made goods are exported.

China regards the camps as separate from the regular prison population. Police may mete out sentences of up to two years of labor reform without a court ruling.

One of the prisoners at the Tangshan camp is renowned dissident Wei Jingshen, imprisoned since 1979 for his leading role in the short-lived ''Democracy Wall'' dissent movement.

Wei was transferred to Tangshan last year by train from a camp in remote western Xinjiang, the source with public security contacts said. The source said Wei is ''lucid and writes a lot,'' dispelling rumors Wei had gone insane during his confinement.

A Western diplomat who recently visited the Tuanhe labor reform camp outside Beijing said he was told by camp vice-director Wei Pengying that ''more than 300'' of the camp's 3,000 prisoners were sent there for offenses related to the June 1989 crackdown.

Other Western diplomats who follow human rights issues in China agreed the number of people still imprisoned for democracy movement ''crimes'' is probably in the thousands.

Observers have difficulty monitoring the secretive prison system in the capital and have even less information about the provinces.

One diplomat said the numbers of arrests in remote areas were likely to be ''far higher'' than government figures admit, and cited a government-exhibited map showing that democracy protests had broken out in more than 80 major cities.

The number of arrests is believed to be especially high in cities where major rioting erupted, including the ancient capital of Xi'an in Shaanxi province.

The majority of those arrested in the crackdown were dealt with swiftly and silently because they were categorized as ''hoodlums'' rather than as political prisoners, a government official said.

''Most of the people who were arrested (in June 1989) were grabbed for offenses like throwing rocks. That's vandalism, not a political crime,'' the official said.

Many of these minor offenders were sent to labor camps, he said.

The government has announced releases this year of nearly 900 people who had been imprisoned following the military crackdown, and maintains that only 355 prisoners remain in Beijing.

But Chinese sources dismiss the low figure and accuse the government of manipulating Western opinion by periodically releasing prominent intellectuals and others held for purely political charges.

A Western diplomat in Beijing agreed.

''It's amazing the way (the Chinese government) has manipulated those figures, and some people are buying it,'' he said.

TOKYO (AUG. 15) UPI - Reflecting robust expansion of the Japanese economy, machine tool orders for the first half of 1990 surged 17.2 percent over a year ago to a record $4.7 billion, the Japan Machine Tool Industry Association said Wednesday.

The association said monthly orders received by 70 major domestic machine tool makers topped $733.3 million for five straight months since February.

For the six-month period, domestic orders accounted for $3.46 billion, up 16.4 percent over a year ago.

Export orders amounted to $1.24 billion, up 19.4 percent over the year-earlier period, the association said.

The association said orders from machinery makers increased 14.5 percent to $1.46 billion, while those from automakers and electric machinery manufacturers increased 27.5 percent and 19.6 percent, respectively, to $1 billion and $198 million.

Orders from precision instrument makers dropped 9.6 percent to $116 million, while those from shipbuilding and transport machinery firms fell 9.3 percent to $54 million, the association said.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein wants peace with his long-time enemy Iran. State-run Baghdad Radio today issued a four-point plan that includes a prisoner exchange, Iraqi troop withdrawal from border positions with Iran within 24 hours and sharing of the strategic Shatt-al-Arab waterway.

Western diplomats in the Persian Gulf region say Saddam may be trying to avoid giving Iran an opporturnity to exploit the current crisis. They say Iran favors a settlement to end the decade-long hostility with Iraq and is likely to go along with Saddam's plan. -

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Women in Kuwait have staged some of the bravest resistance demonstrations against Iraqi occupiers of their tiny Middle Eastern nation, The Washington Post reported Wednesday in a dispatch from Kuwait City.

The newspaper, in a dispatch sent at the end of last week, reported that women have marched against the occupation in several Kuwait City neighborhoods. The protests began Aug. 5, three days after Iraqi soldiers stormed across the border and seized control of the country.

A Post correspondent saw about 60 women demonstrate Aug. 6 in the Rumaithiya neighborhood. No Iraqi troops were present.

''We don't want Iraq. We don't want Saddam (Hussein),'' one woman said.

Another woman said, ''All women of Kuwait are resenting this (invasion). They are protesting this.''

Pamphlets have been distributed in criticism of Saddam, the president of Iraq. ''Do not be fooled by Saddam's Arabism and his love to democracy. ... What Saddam did? What a republic he built!!! It is based on terror, kidnapping and killing,'' a pamphlet read.

Some Kuwaitis have refused to work in order to show their resistance to the occupation.

''We don't want people to go to work because then everything would be normal. We don't want the country to be normal,'' a Kuwaiti told the Post.

Armed civilian resistance began Aug. 3, the newspaper said. The weapons apparently have come from military stores hidden from the Iraqis.

The Post reporter found a stockpile of small arms in a guardhouse. The correspondent reported seeing a harried Kuwaiti load a Mercedes with weapons to take to the neighborhood of Kaifan.

Iraqi troops are stationed at government installations and most hotels in the capital. Soldiers have placed tanks beside the beach and antiaircraft guns near the city, the newspaper said.

The Post said that nine days after the invasion food was still available in Kuwait City but people were aware supplies could dwindle fast. Many people have had trouble getting cash because banks are closed.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - U.S. industrial production was unchanged in July on a sharp decline in the manufacturing of cars, vans and trucks, the Federal Reserve reported Wednesday.

Private economists predicted a small increase in production for last month after increases of 0.4 percent in June and 0.6 percent in May and a decline of 0.1 percent in April.

The utilization of America's factories, meanwhile, slipped from 83.6 percent of capacity in June to 83.4 percent in July, further evidence of the dwindling strength of the economy.

In May, capacity utilization also stood at 83.4 percent.

''Swings in motor vehicle production during the past few months have had a noticeable effect on total output,'' the Fed said. ''In July, production of both autos and trucks fell sharply.''

Excluding automotive production, U.S. industrial production rose 0.2 percent in July ''about the same rate of growth that has been evident so far this year,'' the monthly report said.

In addition to the plunge in auto production, there was a decline last month in the production of household appliances.

The industrial production index, itself, hovered at 109.9 in July, the same level as in June and a better showing than 109.4 in May and 108.8 in April, the Fed said.

By major market groups, production of consumer goods was off 0.4 percent in July, while production of business equipment and construction supplies decreased 0.6 percent and 1.1 percent, respectively.

By major industry groups, overall manufacturing production fell 0.1 percent in July, with a 0.4 percent dip in the durable goods sector offsetting a 0.3 percent gain in the non-durable goods sector.

Mining production jumped 1 percent in July while the production of public utilities slipped 0.4 percent.

The figures are adjusted to reflect seasonal factors.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange soared Wednesday for the market's second largest rally this year on news reports that Iraq may be ready to negotiate a withdrawal from Kuwait.

The market's leading barometer, the 225-share Nikkei Stock Average, shot up 1,439.59 yen to close at 28,112.12. The 5.4 percent gain was the second largest of the year in both percentage or index terms, dealers said. The market gained 1,468.33 yen March 26.

The Nikkei gained 496.10 yen Tuesday on bargain-hunting.

The Tokyo Stock Price Index of all major shares gained 79.16 points to close at 2,099.49. TOPIX gained 27.29 points Tuesday.

Volume was an estimated 450 million shares, up from 362.89 million Tuesday.

The strong rally was based almost entirely on hopes that a peace plan was included in a letter addressed to George Bush by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The letter is to be delivered by King Hussein of Jordan when he meets the U.S. president Thursday in Maine. Jordanian officials told U.S. reporters that Hussein will present a joint Jordanian-Iraqi peace plan.

''The market welcomed the expectations of a solution to the Middle East crisis,'' said Mitsuyoshi Kikuchi, an analyst with the New Japan Securities Co.

The market also got a technical prompt in the morning with a sudden drop of the dollar against the yen, dealers said.

Hopes for a solution to the Middle East crisis swept the trading floor and the market took off soon after.

''Whether or not this is for real remains to be seen,'' warned a broker at W.I. Carr. ''There's a lot more room for disappointment.''

Gains were across the board, and were stronger for corporations with Middle East interests or large capital bases, brokers said.

The yield on Japanese government bonds, often a weather vane for the stock market, retreated from the 8 percent mark to 7.88 percent. Higher yields bode ill for stock prices.

Elsewhere in Asia, share prices surged in light trading on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange amid bargain hunting spurred by a calmer investment environment and hopes that tension in the Middle East would decrease.

The Hang Seng Index added 110.74 points to end the day at 3178.74. The gain followed a rise of 27.25 points Tuesday.

Volume was light at 1.43 billion units.

Bargain hunters snapped up issues made attractive by market corrections and the index gained more than 62 points in the first 15 minutes of trading and the rally continued through the afternoon.

''Although the market is down 12 to 13 percent from its recent high, people are reconsidering their investment strategies,'' said David Harman, a senior investor with Morgan Grenfell.

''We are nowhere near the end to problems in the Gulf, but the more calm investment climate in overseas markets,'' he added. ''If we continue to see a calm environment in overseas markets, then we may see further reconsideration of investment in Hong Kong. However, we can't rule out further bad news from the Gulf.''

Iraq said it plans to withdraw troops from Iranian territory captured during the 8-year war against its eastern neighbor and release Iranian prisoners.

Financials added 51.35, Utilities gained 154.50 and Industrials rose 101.99. Properties surged 190.54.

Share prices shot up on the Singapore Stock Exchange following Tokyo's rally.

The Straits Times Industrial Index climbed 35.68 to 1330.40.

The All Singapore Index rose 8.41 to 381.97.

The exchange recorded a turnover of 84.99 million units.

Analysts said investors were encouraged by reports that Iraq may be ready to negotiate a withdrawal from Kuwait.

However, a dealer warned that if the reports prove false and oil prices continue to rise, the stock market would sink back even further as company earnings are affected.

Gainers were Singapore Press Foreign, Asean Fund (US), Shangri-la, Spore Land, Jurong Shipyard, and Singapore Airlines Foreign.

Losers were UIC, Alex Hldgs, Shell, Ana Hotel, Jacks Ltd., Wearne Bros., and Rothmans.

Share prices closed lower on the Sydney Stock Exchange, pulled down by lower gold price and a strong Australian dollar.

At the close the All Ordinaries index was down one point to 1563.

Brokers said sharply lower gold prices on specualtions that Iraq was seeking peace triggered a wave of profit selling in the gold sector.

The gold index fell 87.5 to 1596.8.

Among the gold issues which retreated were GFMK, down 4 cents to $1.01, Placer Pacific down 10 cents to $3.68, Kidston down 10 cents to $2.85 and Homestake down 7 cents to $1.53.

Also undermining the resource sector was the strong Australian dollar which weighed heavily on the resource issues.

CRA was down 20 cents to $12.00, WMC down 12 cents to $5.56, and Pasminco down 1 cent to $2.15.

Oil issues, BHP and Santos, were mixed in response to peace rumors.

BHP rose 5 cents to $11.20 and Santos fell 4 cents to $4.90.

Banks were firmer with Westpac up 3 cents to $4.85, NAB was up 6 cents to $6.72, and ANZ was down 3 cents to $4.67.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - Guards at the Rikers Island Prison used tear gas to break up a melee that injured more than 120 people, capping a two-day blockade of the island by guards angered by outbreaks of violence.

Emergency Medical Service vehicles brought out dozens of prisoners and guards injured in the Tuesday evening fight.

Authorities said at least 122 people were taken to hospitals. About 30 of the victims were corrections officers, some of whom had been stabbed. Injuries to about 40 other prisoners were being evaluated on the island.

Emergency Medical Services spokeswoman Gail Christianson said none of the injured was being treated at the prison's hospital because of tensions there.

''Because of the instability there, we're escorting them off,'' Christianson said. ''We've been pulling patients off the island since 7 p.m. last night and all through the night.

''It's been difficult. We also have a corrections officer assigned to every prisoner,'' she said.

Police were stationed at the island to escort the emergency vehicles on and off the island and not in anticipation of a new outburst, said Officer Janice Swinney, a police spokeswoman.

The only land access to the island, a long bridge from Queens, had been blocked for nearly two days by Department of Correction officers demanding action following the beating of a fellow guard by three inmates last week.

The crowd of pickets on the mainland end of the bridge would not allow visitors or relief personnel onto Rikers, or medical personnel, guards and other workers to leave.

The tense situation erupted into the fight just shortly after an agreement had been reached Tuesday ending the blockade.

Ruby Ryles, spokeswoman for City Department of Correction, more than 750 prisoners in 14 dormitories in the Otis Bantum Center, one of nine jails on the island, barricaded themselves inside their cells, demanding the right to visitors, legal aid and meals on time.

Guards used tear gas on three dormitories and inmates in the remaining eight dormitories then surrendered about 8:30 p.m., she said.

Earlier Tuesday, city officials who flew to Rikers by helicopter reached a tentative agreement with the guards. Albert Scardino, Mayor David Dinkins's chief spokesman, said negotiators had reached agreement on three major issues:

-Amnesty for guards in the blockade who were not supposed to be on shift.

-More help for guards at security posts.

-A revision in the rights of guards who use force against violent inmates.

Officers initially held out for no sanctions at all but negotiators eventually agreed that only those guards who failed to report to work would face punitive action, probably in the form of docked pay, Scardino said.

The Correction officers were angry over the Aug. 7 attack by three inmates on guard Steve Narby, whose jaw and ribs were broken.

During the blockade, an hourlong brawl broke out between pickets and emergency medical workers trying to get onto the island.

Three guards and seven EMS workers were injured in the fight, and Dinkins said the guards responsible for the attack would face criminal penalties.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Middle East alliances are shifting more quickly than the desert sands. After fighting a bitter eight-year Gulf war with Iran, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein now is offering a peace package to the Tehran government. The Iraqi initiative apparently is designed to give Hussein one less headache and enemy in the wake of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqi offer to Iran reportedly includes an exchange of prisoners... a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from the Iranian border... and acceptance of Iranian demands to share a disputed strategic waterway. If Iran agrees, Iraqi troops could start pulling back from the border within 48 hours.

Iraq has become a pariah in the international community since its August 2nd invasion and annexation of Kuwait. The Iraqi peace overtures indicate Baghdad fears Iran might attempt to exploit the crisis by moving troops to Iraq's province of Kurdistan.

BALTIMORE (AUG. 15) UPI - A 367-pound city woman who says ''fat is not a four-letter word'' is embroiled in a discrimination complaint against a state agency that contends she is too big to drive a car without special equipment.

Regina Guy, 25, 5 feet 6 1/2 inches tall, said the Motor Vehicle Administration is discriminating against her because of her weight and has hired a lawyer to fight the agency.

The MVA has scheduled a hearing for Friday to determine if Guy's driver's license should be revoked.

Before the hearing, members of the National Association for the Advancement of Fat Acceptance and friends will rally to protest the MVA's policy.

MVA spokesman James Lang said he prefers to withhold comment until after he talks with the agency's medical advisory board.

A police officer pulled over the car Guy was driving July 13 because the vehicle's high-beams were on.

After checking the car's registration, police found it was expired.

Guy said the car's owner is handicapped and had tried to get the registration renewed by mail and was awaiting the forms when it expired.

Guy was issued a ticket for driving a car without valid registration, but she said the officer did not mention her weight at the time.

She received a letter Aug. 7 from the MVA, telling her it would re-examine her ability to drive and asking her to explain why her license should not be revoked.

The letter quoted the officer who stopped her in July as saying her weight made it impossible for her to sit behind the wheel of the car.

Guy said other people who are overweight should not permit discrimination against them.

''Don't let them,'' she said. ''Fat is not a four-letter word. It's a description. That's all.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Inventories declined 0.4 percent in June, as businesses worked to control their stockpiles of goods, while sales advanced 1 percent for the second straight month, the Commerce Department said Wednesday.

The inventory-to-sales ratio, which tracks the amount of time it takes to move goods from warehouses to consumers, also declined from 1.49 in May to 1.46 in June - the lowest level since 1982.

A government spokesman said the 0.4 percent drop in inventories was the largest since a 0.4 percent fall in February, and the back-to-back 1 percent gains in sales were the best showing since 1.4 percent in February.

Inventories totaled $797.3 billion in June and sales totaled $544.4 billion. The figures were adjusted for seasonal factors.

Private analysts predicted a 0.3 percent decline in inventories for the month. In May, inventories surged 0.5 percent, raising worries about a glut of goods and few buyers.

''The pace of inventories accumulation remains a critical issue for determining the overall pace of economic activity over the next few quarters,'' according to a market letter by Mitsubishi Bank in New York.

''If businesses feel demand is weakening even more, then an accelerated pace of cutting may ensue,'' the bank letter said. ''This is the key to economic growth at the moment.''

According to the data compiled by the department's Census Bureau, manufacturers inventories declined 0.5 percent in June, on a 0.7 percent fall in durable goods and a 0.2 dip in non-durable goods.

Inventories at retail stores were off 0.1 percent in June while inventories at wholesalers dropped 0.8 percent.

Sales at manufacturers, meanwhile, jumped 0.5 percent, on gains of 0.8 percent in durable goods and 0.2 in non-durable goods, the report said. Retail sales advanced 1 percent and wholesale sales increased 1.7 percent.

SEOUL, SOUTH KOREA (AUG. 15) UPI - Koreans frustrated in their hopes of crossing the border dividing the peninsula on the 45th anniversary of liberation from Japan clashed with police in the south and staged a peaceful demonstration in the north Wednesday.

Students and other dissidents in Seoul battled riot police more than three hours after authorities blocked a plan for South Koreans to join North Koreans in a rally marking the ouster of Japanese forces after 35 years of colonial rule.

About 500 people from North Korea held a two-hour afternoon rally on the northern part of the border truce village of Panmunjom but left the area without trying to cross the border, government officials in Seoul said.

South Korean President Roh Tae-woo, despite restricting travel to the North, said in a Liberation Day address the two Koreas should reconcile and unify ''before the present century is out.''

The violence in Seoul followed a rally at Yonsei University, where more than 15,000 students and dissidents vowed to push participation in a Liberation Day rally at Panmunjom, while straddles the border 35 miles north of the capital.

The National Alliance of Democratic Movements, a Seoul-based dissident group, had decided to defy a government ban and send more than 100 delegates to Panmunjom by bus.

About 5,000 students and dissidents tried to march from the Yonsei campus in western Seoul to escort the delegates to a bus terminal. But about 16,000 police had been posted around Yonsei and along the route to the terminal, and riot police moved in as the dissidents marched off campus at about 10 a.m.

Police said the delegates could take buses as far as Freedom Bridge, 5 miles south of Panmunjom, but forbade the march. The dissidents, who insisted on escorting the delegates to the bus terminal, began throwing rocks and police charged, firing tear gas.

The protesters ran in and out of the university campus, attacking police with firebombs and thousands of rocks. About 1,000 students engaged police in hit-and-run battles along downtown Taehakno Street.

Some demonstrators were arrested, according to witnesses. There were no immediate official reports on arrests and injuries.

Rightist organizations in South Korea also demonstrated. About 3,000 people rallied near the Freedom Bridge, urging North Korea to open the border to free travel. They tried to cross the bridge and march to the truce site but were stopped by police.

On the north side of Panmunjom, demonstrators sang, danced and chanted slogans in what was a ''propaganda show,'' Seoul officials said, while North Korean guards lined up along the military demarcation line to keep the crowd on the North Korean side.

Official North Korean radio said before the rally that some participants wanted to cross into the South for a ''unification march,'' the officials said.

Seoul officials at Panmunjom sent a telephone message to the North saying the safety of North Koreans would be guaranteed for cross-border travel, but said visitors would have to follow the guidance of authorities while in the South.

The Seoul officials said Northern authorities asked if the guarantee was made by the dissident Alliance of Democratic Movements group, as the North had asked, and did not announce similar guarantees for visiting South Koreans.

Official North Korean radio later charged the visit to the South had to be canceled because the South did not provide a safety guarantee, Seoul officials said.

Roh, speaking at a ceremony at Independence Hall in Chinchon, 55 miles southeast of Seoul, said Cold War rivalry is ending and referred to unification moves by East and West Germany.

''We must now open a new era of reconciliation and cooperation between the southern and northern halves of the Korean peninsula also,'' Roh said. ''The paramount national goal now is to unify our divided land before the present century is out.''

Roh said it was regrettable North Korea did not respond to his July 20 proposal for ''grand inter-Korean exchanges of people'' during a five-day period starting Aug. 13. He said South and North Korea should discuss the joint renunciation of force, signing a non-aggression pact, and exchanging permanent representative offices.

CHICAGO (AUG. 15) UPI - Chicago Bulls basketball star Michael Jordan said he will not support a boycott of Nike products by the civil rights group Operation PUSH, calling the action ''unfair.''

Jordan, one of several prominent figures the athletic shoe manufacturer has hired to endorse its products, issued a statement Tuesday that agreed with PUSH's goals but not with its method.

''While all of corporate America needs to provide opportunities for qualified blacks to go up the corporate ladder ... it's unfair to single out Nike just because it's one of the top companies in the industry,'' he said.

PUSH has approached Nike and asked it to provide more jobs and better economic opportunity for minorities. The boycott demand came Saturday after Nike officials questioned PUSH's motivation. Nike said PUSH had recently taken a donation from Reebok, one of Nike's largest competitors.

Jordan is the only high-profile Nike endorser to comment either way on the proposed boycott. Film maker Spike Lee and baseball-football standout Bo Jackson, who have also appeared in Nike ads, have not addressed the dispute.

Meanwhile, Philip Knight, Nike's co-founder, chairman and chief executive officer, made his first public comments on the issue Tuesday, defending the Beaverton, Ore.-based company's minority-hiring practices.

Nike's objections to Reebok's associations with PUSH ''are not a frivolous diversion,'' Knight told The Oregonian newspaper in an interview published Wednesday. He declined to provide details about the relationship but said he believes the issue runs deeper than a $6,000 ad Reebok ran in PUSH's magazine last month.

Nike abruptly canceled talks with Operation PUSH officials planned this week at its Beaverton headquarters to discuss affirmative action goals after learning of the Reebok ad. Nike officials claimed it represented a donation and therefore a conflict of interest, a claim PUSH leaders called unfounded.

Knight said he considers black consumers an important part of Nike's market and that his company has a social responsibility to respond to the black community's concerns.

Though there are no black board members or vice presidents at the company, they are part of ''Nike's future,'' he said. But Knight added, ''We won't let PUSH dictate when or who.''

Knight said it was too early to determine the boycott's effects. ''Ask me in a month,'' he said. But he added, ''This is not a fight between Nike and the black community. It's a fight between Nike and PUSH.''

A financial analyst said the boycott has not been effective, although it may be too early to tell.

''It's difficult to envision the boycott working, unless you really see an impact on the sales and that's certainly not the case,'' said Fred Anschel an athletic footwear analyst for Dean Witter.

Nike stock went up one point Tuesday to 76 3/4 a share.

PUSH leaders Tuesday urged supporters to put electrical tape over the logos on their Nike shoes as part of the boycott. The Rev. Tyrone Crider, national president of the group, also called for a ''direct action campaign'' in 10 cities across the country. He did not specify what that direct action would be.

Other companies that have settled with PUSH after boycott threats include Burger King and beverage makers Adolph Coors Co., Anheuser-Busch, 7-Up Co. and Heublein.

HOUSTON (AUG. 15) UPI - General Homes Corp., once one of the biggest home builders in the nation, has filed for protection from creditors and reorganization under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy code.

The Houston-based builder filed Chapter 11 Tuesday in response to an involuntary bankruptcy petition filed against the firm July 10 by three creditors claiming they were owed $561,400 in interest payments.

General's corporate debt of $365 million includes $225 million owed to senior lenders and $140 million owed other creditors. The firm - which builds homes in Houston, Dallas, Phoenix, Ariz.; and Orlando, Fla., Tampa, Fla., and south Florida - has been behind in paying interest on subordinated notes since May 1988.

General's mortgage company, FGMC Inc., is not affected by the filing, but the firm shut down mortgage offices in Orlando and Phoenix last week.

''There was a tremendous amount of uncertainty created by that (July involuntary) filing,'' General Homes President William Le Sage said Wednesday. ''That made a difficult environment in which to operate.

''Since that filing, we immediately set forth trying to posture ourselves to avoid any disruption this filing might have on our business. We were able to get court approval to continue to pay our subcontractors and suppliers, which is really what causes most of the disruption involved in Chapter 11 filing. That approval is a significant step in reorganizing.''

U.S. Bankruptcy Court Judge Letitia Clark last week approved the plan to ensure prompt payment of employees, subcontractors and suppliers.

The company, which has an inventory of 370 completed houses in Houston and nearly 800 homes in various stages of completion overall, will continue to operate much as usual, Le Sage said.

Some actions, including taking new lots and starting houses, will require approval of the bankruptcy court.

General sold 460 Houston houses in the first half of this year to lead the city in sales volume, according to American Metro/Study Corp. The company dominates Houston's ''starter home'' market, which sells houses under $90,000 to young families.

The Chapter 11 filing will have a significant impact on the Houston home building market, said housing analyst Mike Inselmann of American Metro/Study.

''You're talking about taking the most active builder in the Houston market and giving them a severe handicap,'' he said.

General has no timetable for reorganization, but Le Sage said he was optimistic the company would emerge in good shape.

''We look foward to a very good outcome where we can deal with our creditors and the outcome will maximize the value of the company,'' he said. ''That could take a lot of various forms, and it would be difficult to speculate on what that could be.

''Texas is a very positive investment environment, and that is a big plus for us in this situation.''

General, founded in 1973, became one of the biggest home builders in the nation. But when the Texas economy took a nose dive in the 1980s, General's home sales declined, dropping from 5,407 in 1982 to 2,927 in 1989.

General's new, inexpensive homes faced stiff competition from foreclosed houses on the resale market, which lured buyers with bargain prices.

The company also was squeezed when its sizable land holdings were devalued by the Texas real estate crash in the late 1980s.

General lost $8.2 million on sales of $51.6 million in the quarter ending June 30, compared with a loss of $6.7 million on $65.5 million in revenues in the same period last year.

In 1989, General lost $155 million on revenues of $258.5 million.

General has tried to pare costs through several rounds of layoffs - including 200 workers laid off last week - and now has about 200 employees.

About a year ago, General Homes co-founder and former chairman Jeffrey Payson left the firm.

General Homes is not the only Houston builder to file for Chapter 11 reorganization. Gemcraft Homes Inc., once the biggest builders in Texas, sought bankruptcy protection in March 1989, and eventually was sold by the bankruptcy court to investors who have been rebuilding it as a new company.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush is considering mobilizing the military reserves to help fill in for the tens of thousands of active-duty men and women who are shipping out to Saudi Arabia, U.S. officials said Wednesday.

The president can call up to 200,000 reservists for up to 180 days without having to obtain prior congressional approval, the Pentagon said.

If called up, most of the Army, Air Force, Navy and Marine reservists would probably remain in the United States to carry out the jobs of the military personnel being shipped to Saudi Arabia to deter an Iraqi attack, said a Pentagon spokesman.

Air Force Maj. Douglas Hart said reservists often help the active military anyway, with Air Force reserve and Air National Guard units routinely volunteering to help refuel military planes and haul cargo.

The military reserves were last mobilized in 1970, when President Richard Nixon called on 26,000 of them to help during a postal strike.

The last time the reserves were called up during a conflict was in January 1968, during the Tet offensive in the Vietnam War. A total of 35,280 were mobilized through December 1969.

The Army reserves consist of 593,832 men and women; the Navy reserves, 238,061; the Marine reserves, 80,128; and the Air Force reserves, 136,331.

The mobilization was being considered as a vanguard of 45,000 heavily armed Marines began arriving in Saudi Arabia in a dramatic increase in the number of U.S. troops confronting Iraq in Operation Desert Shield.

At the same time, a fourth aircraft carrier battle group led by the USS John F. Kennedy and accompanied by five warships and two auxiliary ships were preparing to leave Norfolk, Va., Wednesday for the Middle East.

''The Kennedy battle group will be available for potential relief of the Eisenhower battle group or additional tasking to be determined by rapidly changing events in the area,'' the Pentagon said.

A defense official said Tuesday there were about 26,000 U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia and that Operation Desert Shield will ultimately involve ''in excess of 100,000'' U.S. ground troops.

The Pentagon officially has refused to detail the number of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia or the number of those being sent there. Bush ordered the force into the oil kingdom to deter a possible Iraqi attack after Iraq occupied neighboring Kuwait Aug. 2.

A defense official said about 16,000 Marines - a full brigade - would be in Saudi Arabia within days and that a total of 45,000 combat Marines - a full Marine Expeditionary Force - was going to Saudi Arabia.

In addition, the Marines will have more than 100 aircraft - 60 AV-8B Harrier jump jets, 48 F/A-18 fighters and 20 A-6 ground attack planes - along with nearly 25 attack helicopters, 70 tanks and more than 90 155mm howitzers.

The United States has already sent soldiers from the Army's 82nd Airborne Division, Fort Bragg, N.C.; the 101st Airborne Division, Fort Campbell, Ky.; the 24th Infantry (Mechanized) Division, Fort Stewart, Ga.; and the 11th Air Defense Artillery Brigade, Fort Bliss, Texas.

The Air Force has also sent more than 100 F-15 and F-16 jet fighters and five AWACS early warning radar planes.

A U.S. naval armada, numbering about 50 ships and including three aircraft carrier battle groups, is converging of the region, with some ships already taking up stations in the Persian Gulf, the north Indian Ocean and the Red Sea.

SPOKANE, WA (AUG. 15) UPI - The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission has started what it calls an ''informal investigation'' of trading practices at the antiquated Spokane Stock Exchange.

In a letter delivered Tuesday to exchange members, the SEC's Enforcement Division asked the exchange to provide documents covering surveillance procedures, complaints and other matters.

Exchange compliance officer John Campbell said the inquiry could determine whether the nearly 100-year-old exchange can continue operating as the nation's only exchange without an electronic quotation system.

''The Spokane Stock Exchange is a problem to them,'' he said. ''(Exchange members) have not progressed with modern technology.''

The exchange was established in the 1890s to provide capital for the mining industry in eastern Washington, northern Idaho and British Columbia.

Despite efforts to diversify, it is still dominated by highly speculative mining stocks. Workers manually post bid and ask prices on a large board at the exchange, which has about 45 stocks.

Due to the lack of electronic quotations, stocks listed solely on the Spokane exchange are encumbered by regulations for over-the-counter stocks that discourage investors.

For months the exchange has been studying implementation of electronic trading.

The SEC inquiry includes questions about:

-Surveillance and disciplinary procedures, including any examination of member firms undertaken in the last year.

-Handling of ''Regulation T'' extension requests, which if granted allow broker clients to delay or cancel payment for stock.

-Information about brokers who sought membership on the exchange or about companies that applied for listing of their securities.

Campbell said the requests are a follow-up to an inspection last year by a special SEC team.

''I've been expecting a letter of comment regarding deficiencies,'' he said. ''This doesn't give me any heartburn.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The Treasury Department said Wednesday it has set a new deadline of noon Eastern time for the submission of non-competitive tenders, which include small investors, for its securities auctions.

The change will take effect with the sale of 13-week and 26-week Treasury bills scheduled for Nov. 5, the department said. The current deadline for non-competitive bids is 1 p.m. EDT. The deadline for competitive bids will remain 1 p.m.

The Treasury Department said ''the non-competitive submission deadline is being changed to permit auction results to be released to the financial markets more quickly,'' at about 2 p.m. instead of 3 p.m.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has made an offer to Iran. Western diplomats believe he is trying to stop any effort by Iran to take advantage of Iraq's involvement in Kuwait. Tehran radio says Saddam offered to pull his troops away from border territory Iraq captured in its war with Iran. He also offered to share sovereignty over the Shatt al Arab waterway in the northern Persian Gulf.

King Hussein of Jordan arrived in Washington this morning for talks on the Middle East situation. He will meet President Bush at Bush's vacation home in Maine tomorrow. Hussein has made himself a mediator in the crisis. Bush says the Jordanian king must stop any shipments of Iraqi goods through Jordan. If he does NOT, Bush says he may use U-S forces to block them.

Rival black groups armed with spears, clubs and hand-made guns fought today in squatter areas near Johannesburg, South Africa. Army troops went into the area to help police, who since Monday have NOT been able to stop the fighting. A hand grenade exploded among a group of police, wounding one officer. In another incident, a man fired a rifle at police. Police wounded the man but he escaped. In the three days of fighting, at least 99 people are reported dead.

Japan focused on the Middle East crisis today, the 45th anniversary of Japan's defeat in World War Two. Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu attended a memorial service for Japan's war dead and immediately went back to work on on his nation's response to the Persian Gulf crisis. During the memorial service, Kaifu made NO reference to the Mideast situation, but said, ''It is our obligation to work for the establishment of world peace.''

New York police escorted ambulances entering and leaving the Rikers Island Prison after a clash between inmates and guards that capped a two-day blockade by guards angered by continued unrest. Emergency vehicles took injured guards and inmates from the island to hospitals after fighting erupted yesterday. Officials say at least 122 people were hospitalized, 30 of them guards. The only land access to the island was blocked for two days by guards demanding action after a fellow guard was beaten by three inmates last week.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - With the videotaped confessions fresh in their minds, jurors began their seventh day of deliberations Wednesday in the trial of three youths accused of the rape and attempted murder of a woman jogger last year in Central Park.

The 10-man, two-woman jury Tuesday requested the replaying of the confessions of Antron McCray, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15. It was the third viewing since the trial began and the panel once again heard the teens describe in graphic detail the night of violence in Central Park on April 19, 1989.

The third youth, Yusef Salaam, 16, made incriminating statements to a detective but did not sign a written confession or make a video.

The jury Tuesday also asked to rehear testimony about times of the four attacks preceding and four attacks following the assault on the 31-year-old investment banker.

As the jury settled into the jury box at state Supreme Court in Manhattan, apparently attempting to piece together a chronology of violence, a court reporter read from thousands of pages of trial testimony.

Prosecutors have approximated the time of the rape between 9:25 p.m. and 9:40 p.m. April 19, 1989, making the woman the fifth of nine victims.

Antron McCray, 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santanta, 15, are accused of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths who rampaged through the park, robbing and beating victims. They are on trial in state Supreme Court in Manhattan on 13 criminal charges, including rape and attempted murder.

A neighbor of the female jogger testified during the trial that the woman was seen heading for her evening run about 9 p.m. or 9:15 p.m.

Several victims - all joggers or bicyclists - were competitive athletes who registered the times of their laps by checking an illuminated clock on the side of the Newsweek building that can be seen from the south end of the park.

The victims used that information to gauge the time of their confrontations with the gang.

The first victim was a bicyclist, Michael Vigna, who said he spotted the group of teens about 9:05 p.m. north of the 102nd Street transverse. One of the teens took a swing at him but missed as he rode by, he testified.

Next was a homeless man who was beaten into unconsciousness nere riding their tandem bicycle in the same area when they were charged by the group about 9:12 p.m. Dean said several youths grabbed at her and almost ripped her off the bike.

There is a gap in time until the attack on a male jogger, Robert Garner, who was forced off the northern stretch of the reservoir jogging track and punched sometime after 9:30 p.m.

Prosecutors said it was during those missing minutes that the gang jumped the woman jogger on the 102nd Street transverse, beat her senseless with a metal pipe, dragged her into the woods, raped her and left her for dead.

Prosecutors said the gang emerged from the woods in search of more violence, attacking Garner and joggers David Lewis and David Goode on the reservoir jogging track.

Another jogger, John Loughlin, testified he saw the group mugging someone believed to be Garner about 9:45 p.m. Loughlin became a victim himself minutes later, when the group beat him into unconsciousness with a piece of wood.

NEW DELHI, INDIA (AUG. 15) UPI - Prime Minister V.P. Singh told his nation Wednesday on India's Independence Day there will be no compromise with secessionist rebels, who marked the day with more violence and observances to protest the official celebrations.

At least 23 people were killed in Sikh separatist violence.

In the most serious incident, a bomb concealed in luggage on a small bus exploded in the northern part of Punjab state, killing seven passengers and wounding 10 others, police said.

At least 11 other people were slain in scattered violence in Punjab, authorities said. Five people were killed in New Delhi and 17 wounded by a Sikh separatist bombing shortly before midnight near a Hindu temple.

Many residents of Punjab observed a general strike called by Sikh militants, who have been fighting to create an independent Sikh state of ''Khalistan.'' Khalistani flags were raised in at least three villages, authorities said.

In the capital of northern Jammu and Kashmir state, Gov. Girish Saxena presided over independence day celebrations attended by several hundred paramilitary police and government officials while half of Srinagar's 800,000 people were confined to their homes by a curfew.

Most other residents observed a curfew imposed on the entire Kashmir Valley by Moslem militants fighting for independence from India, while militants observed a ''black day'' by hanging black flags from lamps, mosques and government buildings.

Militants bombed two targets and fired a rocket at a military patrol in scattered incidents across the valley but no casualties were reported.

Moslem militants have been waging a secessionist struggle for more than two years but the movement gained widespread support in mid-January after troops fired on a demonstration and killed at least 35 people.

Prime Minister Singh vowed in his speech he would not compromise with the militants and that India should use ''love and weapons both'' to heal the fragmented society.

''If we have made mistakes, we are prepared to correct them. But there cannot be any compromise with separatist elements,'' Singh said in a speech at the Red Fort, where Indian leaders first unfurled the country's flag after independence from Britain in 1947.

''Our policy is clear,'' he said. ''We will win (the hearts of) ... the people with love but we will defeat the enemies of the nation with weapons. We will use love and weapons both.''

The Independence Day speech at the 17th century Red Fort has been a tradition since the country's first prime minister, Jawaharlal Nehru, delivered an address there Aug. 15, 1947, the day India gained its freedom from 200 years of British colonial rule.

Around the country of 820 million, Indians celebrated Independence Day by flying flags, listening to speeches, watching parades and releasing colorful balloons.

But celebrations in northeastern Bihar state, India's poorest, were also marred by violence and arson to protest plans to reserve a large percentage of government jobs for people considered socially and educationally backward.

Protesters in Bihar set ablaze at least two cars near the site of the state government's independence day celebrations. They also attacked and torched several railway stations in the state and chanted anti-government slogans.

Authorities said 133 protesters were arrested in one incident.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Congress doesn't use screaming sirens or flashing lights to patrol the nation's highways, relying instead on cold, hard cash to clear the roads of drugged and drunken drivers.

With increasing frequency, Congress is using the power of the federal purse to virtually dictate to the states how to handle drunken drivers or drug users on their highways.

If states refuse to comply, their share of highway construction money is cut. But, if they join the program, they are rewarded with more for highway safety programs.

The latest congressional raid in this area, once the exclusive province of states and local jurisdictions, is in the transportation appropriations bills approved by the Senate and House before the August recess.

Although the provisions in the two bills are not identical - a compromise has to be reached in conference - the intent is the same: get drug users off the road.

The proposal, initiated in the House, would withhold 2 percent of a state's highway money unless the state passes a law requiring suspension or revocation for a minimum of half a year the driver's license of anyone convicted of a federal or state drug violation.

The Senate, however, approved a 5 percent cut in highway funds, climbing to 10 percent if a state fails to comply within four years after the law is enacted.

Surprisingly, the Senate gives the state an out: if a governor certifies he opposes the license program and the legislature adopts a resolution expressing its opposition, the program would not apply.

The Senate, taking into consideration past reaction, apparently is convinced the state will go along.

''According to polls, the concept of withholding the driver's license of drug offenders is supported by about 80 percent of Americans,'' the committee report said. ''The committee expects that the Senate language will be effective in encouraging states to consider and enact license suspension law.''

The withholding of highway money is the same tool Congress used to force the states, despite the reluctance of a number of them, to raise the minimum age for drinking to 21. All have now complied.

Congress uses the ''carrot'' to deal with drunken drivers, giving special grants to states that adopt ''countermeasures of proven effectiveness to prevent drunk driving.''

States become eligible for the basic grants by enacting laws that, at a miminum, require prompt license suspension, mandatory jail sentences for second offenses and a maximum blood-alcohol level of .10. The grants are also awarded to states that lift registrations and require the return of license plates.

Even larger supplemental grants can be made to states that outlaw open containers or drinking in a car.

Also already in effect is a program enacted by Congress that punishes states - through a cut of 5 percent in their highway money - if more than half the drivers in the state exceed the 55 mph speed limit. A 65 mph limit has since been approved for non-urban area roads.

The Senate transportation appropriations subcommittee, chaired by wealthy and liberal Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., has targeted another type of scoflaw in its efforts to make the highways safer.

Approved by the Senate was a provision which would prohibit the use of radar detectors - the so-called ''fuzzbusters'' - by truck and bus drivers to evade speeding laws. Federal law does not prohibit the use of the detectors although some states - Virginia and Connecticutt among them - do.

''While the general prohibition of radar detectors is properly left to the states, the use of radar detectors in vehicles in interstate commerce is an appropriate arena for the federal government to regulate,'' the committee report said.

LONDON (AUG. 15) UPI - An American and two Britons died and another man was seriously injured in the collision of two British jet fighters off the east coast of Britain, the Royal Air Force said Wednesday.

Two RAF Tornados crashed over the North Sea Tuesday, bringing to 19 the number of Tornados lost in British airspace since 1983.

Three men were killed, including U.S. Air Force Maj. Dennis Wise, a married 36-year-old from Iowa who was training as a pilot in Britain as part of an exchange program between the RAF and the Air Force.

An RAF spokesman said rescuers had not recovered the bodies of Wise or Flight Lt. John Bowles, the British navigator of Wise's jet.

The two men in the second Tornado were picked out of the frigid waters of the North Sea by a Sea King helicopter, the spokesman said.

Squadron leader Gordon Graham, 37, the navigator of the second craft, was pronounced dead at a Grimsby hospital. The pilot, whose name was not released, survived and was in serious condition, officials said.

The collision occurred 10 miles east of Spurn Head, which is 200 miles northeast of London.

The two Tornados - arrow-shaped, two-seater jet fighters - were on routine training flights from RAF bases in Laarbruch, West Germany, and Honington, England, the spokesman said.

WAYNESBORO, Va. (AUG. 15) UPI - Lew DeWitt, an original member of the Statler Brothers country and Western group, died at his home Wednesday morning at the age of 53.

Statler Brothers spokeswoman Ann Peters confirmed that DeWitt, who had been in poor health, died about 9:35 a.m.

DeWitt's manager, Chet Fitzgerald, told a Staunton radio station the cause of death appeared to be cardiac arrest brought on by his poor health.

In a brief statement issued by Peters, the Statler Brothers, who are on a road tour now, said they visited DeWitt a couple of weeks ago and knew he was in poor health but were stunned by his death.

''We're shocked,'' the Statler Brothers said in their statement. ''Our prayers go out to his family.''

DeWitt, a tenor and guitarist, quit the Statler Brothers in 1982 after 18 years with the group when he developed an intestinal disorder that landed him in the University of Virginia hospital and nearly killed him.

DeWitt recovered and shortly after embarked on a solo career.

DeWitt wrote one of the Statler's biggest hits, ''Flowers on the Wall.''

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush lifted Wednesday a set of trade restrictions on East Germany to give American businesses a jump on gaining a commercial foothold in its coming unification with West Germany.

Bush signed an executive order that exempted East Germany from the Jackson-Vanik Amendment to the Trade Act of 1974, which until the democratic revolution of 1989 denied many East European countries trade privileges with the United States.

The amendment was aimed at the Soviet Union and other communist countries that restricted emigration to the West. In the last several years, liberalized emigration policies and the emergence of non-communist governments in Eastern Europe has led to a reevaluation of its application.

The action taken by Bush makes East Germany eligible for trade-promoting loan guarantees and credits from the Export-Import Bank. One major step it also could have authorized - a grant of most-favored-nation status, which would have made East German exports to the United States eligible for lowest-possible tariffs - was not taken because of the few months remaining before full German unification, administration officials said.

PORTLAND, Maine (AUG. 15) UPI - Lobstermen upset about the rock-bottom prices being paid them by dealers gave about 500 tasty clawed creatures Wednesday to soup kitchens, day care centers and lunch programs for the elderly.

Ed Blackmore, president of the Maine Lobstermens Association, said the giveaway was aimed at drawing attention to the plight of the lobstermen, who have been receiving between $1.75 and $1.85 per pound for their catches in recent weeks.

''This is an opportunity for the industry to make a statement,'' Blackmore said. ''Maybe the public will look at this, maybe there will be some lobster feeds for some friends and neighbors, and maybe we will help the industry at the same time.''

Under the watchful eyes of reporters and television cameras, lobstermen lifted containers of the lobsters from a white boat onto the rough wooden planking of Widgery Wharf on the Portland waterfront. The lobsters were tossed into coolers brought to the wharf by representatives of several food programs.

''I've got a lot of recipes if anyone needs to know how to cook these things,'' said Greg Griffin, a lobsterman from Cape Elizabeth. ''They are cheaper than hamburger, and I think we may be heading for chicken wings.''

The low prices, down to around $2.85 per pound on the local retail market, are the result of several factors, including a healthy supply of the creatures and a declining market for all luxury foods caused by the slowdown of the economy.

Another problem is that lobsters shed their shells in late July and early August, and ''shedders'' become weakened and cannot stand the rigors of shipping.

''For about three weeks a year we have lobsters which shed their shells and cannot be shipped any great distances,'' said Alan Caron, director of the Maine Lobster Marketing Group, which organized the lobster giveway. ''They stay in this market, and Maine people have to consume them.''

Blackmore said the lobster price problems would get better if the state would take a more active part in marketing the creatures, and in providing research to find ways to successfully move the ''shedders'' during the summer season.

For Ken Cleaves, the industry's problems caused an unexpected windfall for his church's soup kitchen. Cleaves is a member of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, which operates a weekend hot lunch program for homeless and poor people in one of Portland's poorer neighborhoods.

''We are going to make a lobster stew, and maybe some lobsters rolls,'' Cleaves said.

''I think our people may be a little surprised, although we do feed them clam chowder once in a awhile,'' he said.

In all, about 10 programs were expected to benefit from the lobster giveaway, according to Caron.

GALVESTON, Texas (AUG. 15) UPI - Another 1,850 young Kemp's ridley sea turtles were released into the Gulf of Mexico Wednesday as part of a program to increase the population of the endangered turtle.

The turtles hatched on a Mexican beach last July, were collected when they were a bit larger than a silver dollar and moved to the Galveston National Marine Fisheries Service laboratory to grow large enough to have a better chance for survival in the wild.

The turtles released Wednesday had grown to about the size of a small dinner plate, said Neal Baxter, acting director of the Fisheries Service lab.

The release took place about 75 miles south of Galveston in waters 100 to 180 feet deep, raising concerns by some conservationists who claim the young turtles cannot survive in such deep waters.

But Baxter said the turtles should survive because they will seek food at the water's surface.

''They're not big enough to go to the bottom for food,'' he said. ''Normally, at that size, they are searching for food near the surface. We felt this would be the best place to put them.''

For a decade, the annual ''head start'' turtle classes have been released in near-shore waters off Port Aransas, where they fed on crab and eventually migrated to bay waters along the gulf and Atlantic coasts.

''The 1989 class of head start Kemp's ridley sea turtles is being released much too far from shore just to accommodate the shrimp industry,'' said Carole Allen, founder of Help Endangered Animals - Ridley Turtles.

In one week after the shrimping season reopened in Texas waters last month 34 dead sea turtles - half of them ridleys - were found dead on Texas beaches near which shrimping activity was heaviest.

Autopsy tests on the turtles have not been completed but officials said they have not been able to tie the deaths directly to shrimping. Federal law requires shrimp nets to be equipped with turtle excluder devices, or TEDS, which allow turtles to escape the nets before drowning.

Shrimpers oppose use of the devices, claiming they also allow large portions of the shrimp catch to escape.

This year's release twice was delayed - in October after Hurricane Jerry destroyed the building where the turtles are housed and in June after a major tanker explosion dumped nearly 3.9 million gallons of oil into the Gulf of Mexico.

The turtles released Wednesday brought to more than 16,000 the number of head start ridley sea turtles returned to the wild over the last 12 years. There is no exact count of the number of Kemp's ridleys, but Baxter said this year about 500 females nested on the Mexican beach where the hatchlings are collected.

''We don't have a count on the males, and we don't know for sure that each female comes (ashore to nest) every year,'' he said. ''But that's the only real number we have.''

Tagged turtles from the head start program have been found as far away as Ireland, he said.

ALBANY, N.Y. (AUG. 15) UPI - The state attorney general warned consumers Wednesday that con artists may try to exploit the current Middle East crisis by selling phony investments.

Attorney General Robert Abrams said small investors are good prey for high-pressure con men who sell bogus oil, gas and precious metals schemes.

A ''con artist's best friend is a headline or television news report'' that refers to a disruption of oil supplies to the United States, Abrams said.

''Nothing works as well for a swindler as being able to point to front-page headlines ... as proof of the need for investors to 'act now' and make a quick profit,'' Abrams said. ''These investments are usually blatantly phony.''

He said a rash of so-called boiler-room salespeople will work telephones to try to push illicit investments on the unsuspecting.

He said bogus gas and oil well investments have been a staple of con artists since the Arab oil embargo of more than 15 years ago.

Abrams said investors are generally told that by buying into fake partnerships, they can reap the benefits of rising oil prices.

Abrams advised the public not to turn money over to a stranger who contacts them by phone and pressures them to act immediately to turn over their savings.

The attorney general's Bureau of Investor Protection and Securities issued a one-page investor bulletin describing phony oil and gas partnerships.

''Unfortunately, the wells in question often do not exist, are dry or out of production, or belong to someone else,'' the guide says.

So-called ''bank-financed'' precious metals programs are considered by some fraud experts to be the fastest-growing commodity telemarketing scam in the nation.

In it, an investor is asked to place 20 percent down and the salesperson supposedly arranges with a bank to finance the rest of the purchase. But a dip in the price of gold, large commissions, or even the ocassional false claim will quickly wipe out the down payment, the guide says.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - A coalition representing television makers charged Wednesday that foreign manufacturers are skirting anti-dumping rules by shipping picture tubes to Mexico for assembly and import to the United States.

The group, the Committee to Preserve American Color Television, asked the Commerce Department to impose anti-dumping duties on color picture tubes entering the United States inside television sets made in Mexico.

Two years ago, the Commerce Department ruled that Japan, Korea, Singapore and Canada were ''dumping'' picture tubes into the U.S. market.

Dumping, the sale of goods at less than fair market value, occurs when the sale price of goods in the importing country is lower than the price in the exporting country.

Since the department's finding, imports of televisions from Mexico have increased 139 percent, the group said, while the volume of imported color televisions from the Far East has dropped significantly.

Jerry Pearlman, chairman of Zenith Electronics Corp., said the ability of U.S. television manufacturers to compete profitably has been severely limited by what he called ''diversionary tactics'' of foreign manufacturers.

Color television imports from Japan have dwindled to less than 320,000 last year from 4.3 million in 1985. During the same period, imports from Mexico increased to 3.9 million from about 138,000.

''Imports did not increase because Mexican manufacturers recently developed a television-manufacturing industry,'' the group said. ''Rather, foreign manufacturers who are currently subject to anti-dumping duty orders covering color picture tubes and color televisions have discovered a new means of evading payment of anti-dumping duties.''

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 15) UPI - Irate farmers pelted East Germany's agriculture minister with eggs and tomatoes Wednesday during a huge demonstration in East Berlin to protest falling prices and growing surpluses in the farming sector.

More than 100,000 people participated in rallies throughout East Germany, demanding billions of dollars in government funds to prevent the complete collapse of agriculture. Some estimates put the total number of demonstrators at about 250,000.

The protest was the largest by farm workers in East Germany and the first since mass demonstrations brought down the Communist leadership last fall.

At East Berlin's downtown Alexanderplatz, more than 30,000 protesters booed government ministers, including Agriculture Minister Peter Pollack. The crowd pelted them with eggs and tomatoes and chanted ''liars, liars.'' They prevented Pollack from addressing the crowd and a small group roughed up the official.

Many demonstrators waved black flags and a small group carried a coffin onto the stage to symbolize the burial of East German farming.

''End the closing-down sale of agriculture,'' one banner demanded.

Farmers say they cannot compete against West German imports that have flooded the country since the strong West German deutsche mark replaced the weak East German currency in East Germany on July 1.

They claim that the conservative East German government of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere failed to restructure former state-run cooperatives into competitive farms.

''This new government is no better than the communists,'' said Karl-Heinz Garling, one of the farmers demonstrating in East Berlin.

In recent weeks farmers have dumped fresh milk on fields and left bumper crops unharvested because they could not find buyers for their produce.

Forecasts show that about one-third of grain harvest and two-thirds of the potato harvest will not be sold. Farmers also fear they will not find buyers for their livestock.

''We will have a lot of cattle freezing in the fields in winter if we cannot sell them,'' said Hans-Joachin Schultze, 55, who drove 80 miles from the Neustrelitz farming cooperative, to attend the demonstration in Berlin.

In Bonn, West Germany, East German farmers presented a petition to Agriculture Minister Ignaz Kiechle, demanding export subsidies, debt-repayment support and a swift rehabilitation of the farming sector.

Farmers complain that the $3.3 billion earmarked by the West German government to support East German agriculture is far short of real needs. Unionists addressing the demonstrators said an additional $2 billion will be needed immediately and a total of $5.7 billion in the next few years.

Trade unionists said many of the 800,000 people employed in the agricultural sector will lose their jobs, as the economic situation continues to deteriorate, forcing companies to lay off workers.

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, Calif. (AUG. 15) UPI - The millions of dollars it is costing to suppress the wildfires ravaging Yosemite National Park are only part of the economic damage the blazes are causing.

For starters, the Yosemite Park and Curry Co., exclusive concessionaire in the park, is losing hundreds of thousands of dollars because officials were forced to close the park as firefighters battled to control the flames and save buildings and ancient trees.

''We're really not counting our losses at this point,'' John Piomoono, Curry Co. vice president, said Wednesday. ''But as a general figure, in August, when the park is usually operating at capacity, we normally would take in several hundred thousand dollars a day.''

That figure includes hotel, motel and campsite rental revenues as well as sales at stores, shops and restaurants in Yosemite Valley and rental of such things as bicycles and horses.

Normally, as many as 20,000 people are visiting in Yosemite on any given day in the month of August, the park's busiest month.

There were nearly that many in the park last week when lightning strikes started the fires.

When the park was ordered closed Aug. 9, some 10,000 visitors remained in Yosemite Valley and had to be escorted out in caravans over the smoke-choked highway in the park.

That left only firefighters, rangers and some office staff and concession employees in the park during the battle to contain and control the raging blazes. Hotels and campagrounds remained empty of paying customers.

The Curry Co. isn't the only one hurt financially by the closure of Yosemite.

Mariposa County, which on the west side of the park, also is losing thousands of dollars a day while the park is closed. The county normally clears about $1.6 million a year - more than it collects in property taxes - from its 7 percent room tax on the facilities in Yosemite.

''That's only a small part of the problem,'' said Mariposa County Supervisor Art Baggett, a resident of the community of El Portal just outside the park's western boundary. ''We have a lot of motels, restaurants and other small businesses, mom and pop operations, which are really hurt by the park closure.''

He said operators of medium-sized and large businesses can last through temporary park closures.

''But the small store or motel owner doesn't have the financial resources to keep up his payroll and to make it through until the park reopens and the tourists come back,'' Baggett said. ''The money they are losing every day is what they would use to buy food, school clothes for their kids and pay the mortgage.''

Baggett said it would be several weeks before the total financial impact on his county and its business owners could be tallied.

However, he said the owner of one small motel just outside the park told him he was losing $1,500 a day while the park is closed.

''There is no way mom and pop businesses can deal with losses like that unless we find a way of helping them.'' Baggett said. ''That's going to be our job once the fires are out and things begin to get back to normal.

''We have to try to help these people pick their lives back up and help them deal with their losses,'' he said.

He said private citizens whose homes were burned in the Foresta area in the early days of the park fires also would need help.

''The park and the land will recover eventually. Mother Nature will see to that. But unless we can help them, there will be people who won't be able to recover from the effects of the fires,'' Baggett said.

The Tuolumne County community of Groveland, just outside Yosemite, also is being hurt by the park closure.

(AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush gave a pep talk today to two-thousand Pentagon employees who are implementing his policy in the Middle East crisis. Bush said the military stand being taken against Iraq is- in his words- ''one of the most important deployments of allied military power since the Second World War.'' Earlier, Bush met with his security advisers apparently to be brought up to date on the crisis.

Iraq is trying to make friends with Iran, its enemy in an eight-year war. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offered today to withdraw Iraq's troops from Iranian territory it captured during the war. He also proposed an exchange of prisoners. About 70-thousand Iraqis and 30-thousand Iranians are still prisoners of war, even though their war ended two years ago.

Tens of thousands of East German farmers are protesting today against policies they fear may wipe out their farms. They demand that the government turn former state-run co-operatives into competitive farms. East German farmers say they are close to ruin since the strong West German mark replaced the eastern mark last month.

Researchers say an experimental treatment using a light-activated drug to attack the AIDS virus shows promise. A pilot study done at a Morristown, New Jersey, hospital shows that four of five patients with AIDS-related complex appeared to benefit from the treatment, photo-pheresis. It involves giving oral doses of a naturally occurring chemical, removing blood from one arm, then exposing the blood to ultra-violet light. The light activates the drug, which then appears to attack the AIDS virus.

SIDON, LEBANON (AUG. 15) UPI - Palestinian extremist leader Mohammed Abul Abbas urged his fighters Wednesday to ''hit American interests'' in a show of solidarity with Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

Abul Abbas, leader of the 150-strong Palestine Liberation Front responsible for the 1986 hijacking of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro, made the request to his followers in a statement released in the southern port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

''My strugglers, I call on you to hit American interests and all spying centers affiliated with the Americans,'' Abul Abbas said.

It was not known if the extremist leader, who maintains a headquarters in Iraq, was himself in the port city.

Abul Abbas also implied that the interests of conservative countries in the Persian Gulf may also be targeted.

But observers speculated that the threat seemed essentially designed to express solidarity with Saddam, whose invasion and annexation of Kuwait has triggered a crisis in which a formidable multi-national but mostly U.S. military force faces the Iraqi war machine along the Kuwaiti-Saudi border.

The PLF has bases in the Sidon region where Yasser Arafat, the chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, maintains his largest military presence in Lebanon.

The PLO has expressed solidarity with Saddam's invasion of Kuwait, while Syria, which controls two thirds of Lebanon, with the exception of the Sidon area, has opposed the incursion.

''I urge on you to strike at American presence in the (Persian) Gulf. Open fire on our enemies everywhere and shake the land under the feet of the aggressors,'' Abul Abbas said.

This week, hundreds of radical Palestinian guerrillas in southern Lebanon reportedly enlisted to join Iraqi troops in any possible confrontation with Western forces deployed in Saudi Arabia.

In the Achille Lauro hijacking, PLF guerrillas shot and killed Leon Klinghoffer, a handicapped, elderly New Yorker, and tossed his body into the sea. The group had also launched a series of cross-border attacks against Israel.

(AUG. 15) UPI - South Korean students and dissidents fought riot police in Seoul for about three hours today after the government blocked a plan for South Koreans to join North Koreans in a rally. The two Koreas will hold separate events to mark the 45th anniversary of the ouster of Japanese forces after 35 years of colonial rule. About 500 North Koreans held a rally in the northern part of the truce village at Panmunjom , but left without trying to cross the border.

Japan observes the 45th anniversary of its surrender in World War Two today. Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu and Emperor Akihito attended a memorial service for Japanese war dead. Kaifu then turned his attention to a current military situation. Back in his office, he worked on Japanese policy on the Mideast crisis. Japan is participating in the U-N sanctions against Iraq.

DALLAS (AUG. 15) UPI - Lyme disease may be the cause of many previously unexplained strokes, researchers reported Wednesday.

After reviewing a dozen stroke cases, doctors at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington urged doctors to test patients with unexplained stroke for Lyme disease.

''It could be that some people are suffering from strokes in the United States from Lyme disease and we just are not detecting it,'' said Dr. Eugene May, who reported his findings with his colleagues in the American Heart Association's journal Stroke.

Lyme disease is an infection transmitted to humans through the bites of certain ticks. The first symptoms, a rash at the bite site and flu-like symptoms, often are overlooked.

If diagnosed early, Lyme disease usually responds to treatment with antibiotics. Without treatment, complications such as chronic arthritis and damge to the heart and muscles can occur. About 15 percent of patients with Lyme disease develop neurologic complications.

In some untreated cases, the organism that causes Lyme disease may spread through blood vessels in the surface of the brain to the interior of the brain, causing inflammation or irritation that blocks blood flow and a stroke, the reseachers speculated.

May and Dr. Bahman Jabbari began studying the problem last year when a 20-year-old U.S. soldier stationed in Germany was transferred to their Washington hospital after suffering a stroke.

''Because it's so unusual for young people to have strokes, he obviously needed to be thoroughly examined to find out why this had happened,'' May said.

The neurologists found the soldier had meningitis, an inflammation of the tissue around the brain and spinal cord. Blood and spinal fluid tests indicated the soldier was infected with the organism that causes Lyme disease.

The soldier was treated with large doses of antibiotics over several weeks. His short-term memory and chronic fatigue gradually improved and he made a significant recovery, the doctors said.

May and Jabbari found 11 other cases of stroke patients linked to Lyme disease described in scientific publications. All 12 patients had meningitis and all had been infected in Europe.

''I suspect strokes caused by Lyme disease have occurred in the U.S., but none has been reported so far,'' May said.

FLINT, MI (AUG. 15) UPI - The overwhelming ratification of a new contract ending a six-day strike at a General Motors Corp. parts plant in Flint will preserve thousands of jobs at the AC complex for at least the next five years, allowing many workers to reach retirement age, union representatives said.

The agreement also marks the first time a carmaker has guaranteed job levels at a specific plant even if work is transferred to other plants, the United Auto Workers union said.

Some UAW leaders also said the local agreement, approved by a 97 percent margin on Tuesday, should be be used a role model during national bargaining now going on between the union and giant carmaker.

''What's been done here should be a model for the corporation,'' said Michael Grimes, bargaining chairman of UAW Local 659 in Flint.

However, several GM officials strongly hinted that was not likely to happen.

GM is now negotiating a new pact covering over 330,000 workers nationwide to replace an existing three-year agreement set to expire Sept. 14. Many industry analysts say the UAW, also bargaining with Ford Motor Co. and Chrysler Corp., will concentrate its efforts on GM by selecting it within the next several weeks as the strike target, or the company where it sets a pattern the other two will hopefully follow.

The strike by about 3,200 workers in Flint over longstanding disputes concerning health, safety, subcontracting and outsourcing halted output at numerous facilities in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Wisconsin and Louisiana since last Wednesday, idling more than 20,000 workers as of Tuesday.

Several more assembly plants would have been closed as the supply of parts such as fuel tanks and engine valves dried up.

GM, like most carmakers, operates on a streamlined inventory system called ''just-in-time'' manufacturing, which cuts costs and improves quality - but makes its assembly plants more vulnerable to strikes at parts facilities.

The Flint agreement essentially preserves the jobs of all 3,108 workers at the plant, including about 600 workers that were to be idled and another 600 whose jobs were displaced by outside suppliers to GM.

The automaker also agreed to invest over $21 million in several modernization programs.

Among them were a $9.5 million commitment from GM to refurbish the existing molding equipment and add a ''world class'' paint system for its grille production in Plant 2, and an $11.5 million commitment by GM to increase fuel tank jobs and work jointly with the union in attracting more fuel tank business.

GM also agreed to delay the closedown of minivan door and radiator support production at the AC West plant from 1992 to August of 1993.

''General Motors was extremely pleased to learn that the membership of UAW Local 659 has overwhelmingly ratified the tentative agreement reached yesterday in effect ending the strike at the AC Rochester division's West plant,'' GM said in a statement.

''The issues were resolved and this is an agreement we can live with,'' GM spokesman John Maciarz said, adding that the automaker hoped to have all of its plants and facilities affected by the strike back in operation by early next week.

ST. LOUIS (AUG. 15) UPI - McDonnell Douglas Corp. Chairman John F. McDonnell and other top executives will take pay cuts this year as part of a major cost-cutting plan, a newspaper said Wednesday.

McDonnell, who received $634,438 in cash last year, will take a 15 percent cut in his total compensation, according to the St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Gerald A. Johnston, president, will take a cut of 5 percent. He earned $345,316 in cash and $214,000 in stock incentives last year.

William S. Ross, president of the company's McDonnell Aircraft Co. unit, will take a 5 percent cut. Last year, he earned $227,819 in cash and $142,000 in stock incentives, the newspaper said.

A company spokeswoman said Tuesday she had no information about pay cuts for executives at other McDonnell Douglas units.

Also Tuesday, McDonnell Douglas completed a second wave of layoff notifications at its St. Louis plant. The layoffs were part of a plan to cut up to 5,200 of 40,500 jobs by the end of the year.

Most of the latest cuts affected McDonnell Aircraft, the company's largest unit, in St. Louis. Among other programs, McDonnell Aircraft produces the F/A-18 Hornet and is developing the A-12 attack plane in partnership with General Dynamics Corp.

McDonnell Douglas, hurt by reductions in the U.S. defense budget, last month announced plans to cut up to 17,000 of 132,000 jobs nationwide in an effort to reduce expenses by at least $700 million a year.

SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 15) UPI - Saudi fighter pilots Wednesday boasted that they could defeat Iraq's air force and said they were finding it easy to work with British and American pilots now flying missions with them along the Kuwait-Saudi border.

And they said they had no qualms about fighting fellow Arabs if Saddam Hussein decided to send his forces into the Saudi kingdom.

''Nobody likes war but if he wants to fight we will fight to the death,'' one Saudi pilot said Wednesday before the Saudi Air Force staged a demonstration from a visiting pool of American journalists.

The Saudi pilots all speak English and have been trained in the United Sates, and American and British planes make up the Saudi arsenal.

Now, with a multinational defense force forming here, a Saudi squadron commander said Saudi, American and Britsh pilots are flying as a single force under a single command.

''From the first day they arrived here that plan had to be implemented before we leave the ground,'' the commander said.

A number of U.S. planes were seen parked outside an intricate hanger and maintenance area on one Saudi air base visited by the Defense Department pool.

He said Iraqi planes have been spotted along the Kuwait-Saudi border but that none have crossed clearly into Saudi territory.

''I don't think it wise for them to cross that border, '' he said. ''We will react to that. ... I'm confident that we could inflict heavy damage.''

The squadron commander, who said he got his first training in Selma, Alabama, and had studied at other U.S. military installations, said ''as a military man'' that he expected the Mideast standofff to be resolved only through combat.

''I am here as an instrument of the hand of the politician, to use if they need me,'' he said. Should it come to war, he said, ''I'm not afraid, ... I am ready.''

A half dozen pilots interviewed before a scrambling of Saudi jets expressed little doubt that they could defeat the Iraqi air force and also do significant harm to Iraqi tanks and other ground forces.

And none said a potential war pitting Arab against Arab had made them reluctant to fight. Ground rules prohibit use of their names.

''We have to put a leash on them,'' a Saudi commander said when asked how eager his men were to take on the Iraqis. ''We have to put a leash on me '' he said with a laugh.

The Saudi pilots said it has been easy for them to join forces with Amercian and British pilots because of their training in the West.

''What are friends for,'' one pilot said when asked about the flux of the outside air arsenal. ''We are quite comfortable with the Royal Air Force and the U.S. Air Force.

In addition to the F-15s, the Saudi air force has American-made F-5s, AWACSs and C-130s and British-made Hawks, Lightnings and Tornadoes.

Inside one facility at the base was a reminder of the occassional fights in the U.S. Congress over selling the Saudis American air firepower.

BOSTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Hydrogenated vegetable oils found in shortening and margarine, once touted for their healthful properties, actually appear to boost levels of artery-clogging cholesterol in the blood, scientists said Wednesday.

It had been thought that hydrogenated oils were beneficial because they are made from oils rich in polyunsaturated fats that are known to lower the levels of low-density lipoprotein, or LDL, the so-called ''bad cholesterol'' in the body.

But a study by Ronald Mensink and Martijn Katan of the Agricultural University in Wangeningen, the Netherlands, found diets high in hydrogenated oils increased LDL concentrations and lowered levels of high-density lipoprotein, which is considered the body's good form of cholesterol.

Hydrogenation is a process used to convert liquid oils to a semi-solid form by adding hydrogen molecules to the fatty acids in the oils. The resulting configurations are known as ''trans fatty acids.''

When volunteers consumed diets with a 10 percent component of trans fatty acids, the impact on their cholesterol was ''at least as unfavorable'' as diets with a similar content of cholesterol-raising saturated fats, Mensink and Katan reported in The New England Journal of Medicine.

Small amounts of trans fatty acids are found in milk products but much larger amounts are found in margarines, margarine-based products, shortenings and vegitable oils used for frying, said Mensink and Katan. They said these acids account for an estimated 6 percent to 8 percent of average daily fat intake of Americans and between 2 percent and 4 percent of their average daily diets.

In an editorial accompanying the new study, Dr. Scott Grundy of the University of Texas Southwestern Medical Center in Dallas called the fact that trans fatty acids contained in hydrogenated oils both raised LDL levels and lowered HDL levels ''a combination of detrimental effects that is particularly worrisome.''

Because trans fatty acids account for only a small percentage of the dietary intakes of most Americans, they might seem to be of little importance, he said. But he noted that they are found in a variety of foods, and said that if Americans are to reduce their cholesterol levels, they should curtail their consumption of all cholesterol-raising fats.

He recommended that food labels be changed so that they do not simply identify whether a food contains saturated or unsaturated fats, but whether they contain the kinds of fats that can adversely affect cholesterol.

The International Food Information Council in Washington, an industry group, noted that the dietary proportion of trans fatty acids consumed by study parctipants was several times greater than what the average American eats.

The margarine used in the study also had a larger percentage of trans fatty acids than most margarines sold in the United States, the group said adding that the study results are not consistent with prior research findings.

Fred Mattson, a biochemist at the University of California-San Diego who has studied trans fatty acids, said he thinks more research involving larger groups and diets and products typical of those eaten by Americans is needed ''before you start changing labels and telling people not to eat things.''

In the study, researchers placed 34 women and 25 men on three different diets for three weeks each and compared the effects the diets had on their cholesterol.

In comparison to diets that included 10 percent unsaturated, non-hydrogenated fats such as sunflower and olive oils, diets with a 10 percent saturated fat content increased average LDL levels of the study participants but did not increase or decrease HDL levels, the researchers found.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 15) UPI - Christian Brando, jailed since May 16 awaiting trial for the shooting death of his half-sister's boyfriend, was freed Wednesday on a $4 million property bond.

His father, actor Marlon Brando, arrived at the Men's Central Jail in a black Mercedes limousine accompanied by his son's attorney, Robert Shapiro and his son Miko Brando.

Following behind the limo was a black compact car with two young women friends of the defendant.

The actor and the attorney went into the jail and emerged a short time later at 10:33 a.m. with Christian. Both the famed actor and his 32-year-old son made short statements to the throngs of reporters and photographers before leaving.

''It's a very simple moment, one that I've long looked forward to,'' the elder Brando said. ''I'm glad to have my son out of jail.''

Christian Brando said, ''I'm just going to go home and try to straighten this thing out. I want to thank all the people who supported me and wrote letters to me. ''I'm glad to be out.''

After his experience in county jail, asked one reporter, how would he fare in state prison?

''I'm not planning to go,'' he replied.

Marlon Brando and Shapiro left in the limousine. Christian and Miko left with the two women in the compact car.

Christian's bail was approved Tuesday in Santa Monica Superior Court by Judge David Perez. Under the agreement, the actor's $4 million mountaintop estate - where the shooting victim, Dag Drollett was killed - was posted as collateral for Christian's $2 million bail.

NORFOLK, Va. (AUG. 15) UPI - The aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy battle group left port Wednesday as families awaited word on whether it would be the fourth carrier sent to the troubled Middle East.

The carrier left Norfolk Naval Station at 11 a.m. as about 150 family members and friends yelled goodbyes. Several expressed concerned about the possibility the carrier and other ships could be sent to the Middle East.

''I feel confident that they'll come back in one piece,'' said Kelly Larson, whose husband, Steve, sailed away on one of the Kennedy's seven support ships.

''Sure, we're all worried that they're going to the Persian Gulf but we're all just going to hope for the best,'' she saaid

The official Navy position is the battle group will be available for ''potential relief'' of the carrier USS Dwight D. Eisenhower battle group, which is stationed in the Red Sea. Roughly 12,000 personnel make up the Kennedy battle group.

The USS Saratoga group is in the Mediterranean and the USS Independence is in the Gulf of Oman.

Navy officials in Norfolk said the Kennedy initially would carry out routine operations off Virginia while awaiting final word from the Pentagon. If the need arises, the Navy could dispatch its fourth carrier group - a third of its total carrier fleet - to the Persian Gulf area.

''We're ready. We'll be safe. God bless America,'' a Kennedy officer said over the carrier's public address system as the ship left port.

The guided-missile cruisers USS Thomas S. Gates and USS San Jacinto also left Norfolk Wednesday.

Jeff Taylor, a sonar technician, waved goodbye to his wife, Marge, and two children from the deck of the Gates. ''I don't like leaving my family,'' he said, but quickly added, ''I'm pretty confident in what we're going to do.''

Family members said many sailors just returned from sea duty last week when they learned the Kennedy group would be leaving. They said not knowing the date of the sailors' return made this deployment more difficult.

''It's just kind of, 'We're going, we don't know where,' ''said Marge Taylor.

A steady stream of ships has been moving out of Norfolk since President Bush ordered the military mobilization to the Middle East.

Other ships leaving Norfolk with the Kennedy were the guided-missile cruiser USS Mississippi and combat stores ship USS Sylvania, the destroyer USS Moosbrugger, of Charleston, S.C.; guided-missile frigate USS Samuel B. Roberts of Newport, R.I., which was damaged in 1988 by a mine in the Persian Gulf, and the fast-combat support ship USS Seattle, of Earle, N.J.

On Monday, 13 ships from Norfolk-based Amphibious Group Two began leaving to pick up the 4th Marine Expeditionary Brigade. The ships are picking up thousands of Marines in Morehead City, N.C., as part of a rapid deployment to Saudi Arabia.

The dock landing ships USS Gunston Hall and USS Portland, as well as the USS Trenton, an amphibious transport dock, all have sailed from Norfolk to pick up Marines.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The leaders of El Salvador's armed forces are ''engaged in a conspiracy to obstruct justice'' in the investigation of last year's slayings of six Jesuit priests, their housekeeper and her daughter, the head of a House Democratic task force on the case said Wednesday.

But Rep. Joseph Moakley, D-Mass., said task force investigators who visited El Salvador last week also found that members of the armed forces not involved in the killings are upset that they may lead to a cut in U.S. military aid.

''As a result,'' Moakley said, ''the armed forces are increasingly divided and pressure is growing for an end to the conspiracy of silence and lies that - from day one - has characterized the military's attitude towards this case.''

The Jesuits and the two women were killed by uniformed men Nov. 16 at the University of of Central America in San Salvador at the height of an offensive by the leftist Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front.

Army Col. Guillermo Alfredo Benavides and eight U.S.-trained soldiers were charged in the killings, which the military first blamed on the FMLN. A 10th member of the armed forces was charged with destroying evidence in the case.

Moakley's investigative panel, named by House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said in an April 30 report that the investigation was at a ''standstill.''

After the latest visit by his staff, Moakley said, ''Salvadoran military officers have withheld evidence, destroyed evidence, falsified evidence and repeatedly perjured themselves in testimony.''

Calling such behavior unlikely without the approval of military leaders, he said, ''I believe that the high command of the Salvadoran armed forces is engaged in a conspiracy to obstruct justice in the Jesuits' case.

''Even more important, I believe that that high command's goal, from the beginning, has been to control the investigation and to limit the number and rank of officers who will be held responsible for the crimes.''

Moakley said the result is that ''progress in the case remains slow'' despite the efforts of the leader of the investigation, Judge Ricardo Zamora; Salvadoran President Alfredo Cristiani; and U.S. officials.

The House voted in June to halve the $85 million El Salvador receives in military aid and the Senate will consider similiar proposals when it returns to work in September. Meanwhile, the White House has been negotiating with congressional leaders to forge agreeement on a smaller cut in military aid.

Moakley added that he hoped the constroversy over the Jesuit killings would not hinder peace talks scheduled to resume next week between the government and the rebels, and he called on the FMLN to ''respond constructively'' to proposals made by the government.

(AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush told Pentagon workers today- quoting now- ''Sanctions are working.'' He addressed two-thousand Pentagon personnel to build up their morale as they implement sanctions against Iraq. He called for international action to isolate Iraq. In Bush's words- ''We must ensure that NO goods get in and that NOT one drop of oil gets out.''

Washington officials say Bush is considering mobilizing military reserves because of the crisis in the Middle East. The reservists probably would stay in the United States and do the jobs of military people being sent to Saudi Arabia. The Pentagon says Bush can call up to 200-thousand reservists for 180 days without congressional approval. Reserves have NOT been mobilized since 1970.

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AUG. 15) UPI - Rocket engineers are struggling to keep the shuttle Discovery on track for blastoff Oct. 5 on a high-priority flight to launch the European-built Ulysses solar probe, officials said Wednesday.

At least six of the 10 days of on-the-launch-pad ''contingency'' time originally built into Discovery's processing schedule to handle unexpected problems already have been lost because of a series of minor glitches and trouble getting the repaired shuttle Columbia off the ground.

Given that NASA traditionally loses a day per week at the launch pad - and given the ever-present possibility of problems launching Columbia on Sept. 1 as currently planned - the Oct. 5 target date for the Ulysses mission could be in jeopardy.

In most cases, a minor launch delay would not be viewed with alarm. But NASA managers are especially anxious to keep Discovery on schedule because if Ulysses is not launched by Oct. 23, the flight will have to be delayed for 13 months.

Ulysses originally was scheduled for launch in 1986 but the flight was put on hold in the wake of the Challenger disaster and another major delay would be a significant setback for an unprecedented project to study the sun's polar regions, which cannot be seen from Earth.

Engineers are gearing up to move Discovery to a rocket assembly building Aug. 24 for attachment to an external fuel tank and boosters. Rollout to launch pad 39B is planned for around Sept. 1, a few hours after Columbia takes off from nearby pad 39A. Discovery's move originally was set for Aug. 25.

NASA wants to launch Discovery as close to the opening of its 18-day ''launch window'' as possible to make sure time is available to recover from weather-related delays or any technical problems that might crop up.

''I'm concerned about it. We do have a window there but I think we'll come very close to (Oct. 5),'' NASA deputy administrator J.R. Thompson said in a telephone interview. ''We're going to pull out all the stops to be there at the front of that window.''

The tight, 18-day launch period is based on a requirement to first send Ulysses to distant Jupiter so it can use the giant planet's gravity to sling it down, out of the plane of the solar system and onto a trajectory that will carry it over the poles of the sun.

Despite an extremely tight launch processing schedule, managers at the Kennedy Space Center said Wednesday they are hopeful they can keep Ulysses on track for takeoff Oct. 5.

''Am I optimistic we can make the 5th? Certainly,'' said Jay Honeycutt, director of shuttle operations at the Florida spaceport.

Earlier this year, NASA managers decided to use Discovery for only two missions in 1990: to ferry the Hubble Space Telescope into orbit, a flight successfully carried out in April, and to launch Ulysses.

While the five months between flights normally would be more than enough to ready a shuttle for another launch, Discovery's processing flow has been especially difficult.

First, engineers had to install a complex cooling system to carry heat away from Ulysses' nuclear generator. And then a series of minor mishaps and glitches, along with problems launching Columbia and its leaking sistership Atlantis, combined to eat up most of the shuttle's original 10 days of on-the-pad contingency time.

For safety reasons, engineers cannot work at pad 39B during Columbia's final countdown and launch from nearby pad 39A. For that reason, agency managers have developed a schedule that calls for moving Discovery to pad 39B after Columbia takes off.

''By working Labor Day ... and doing all the pad operations without another vehicle on the other pad, we can put an efficient schedule together that doesn't have to take them into consideration,'' said John ''Tip'' Talone, director of Discovery's ground processing.

MOSCOW (AUG. 15) UPI - Iraq has agreed to allow Soviet women and children to leave the country by a tortuous overland route, but male workers are not being allowed out, the Soviet Foreign Ministry said Wednesday.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said the long distances and desert heat of 113 degrees will make the evacuation from Baghdad to Jordan difficult.

He said the Iraqis had agreed to allow the women, children and ill people among the estimated 9,000 Soviet citizens in Iraq and Kuwait to leave the country, but only over land rather than by the easier air or sea routes.

''Under conditions set by Iraqi authorities ... men are staying in Iraq,'' he said. ''They didn't give any reason.''

Asked if he felt the Soviet men in Iraq were being held hostage, Gremitskikh responded: ''I do not want to use that word, hostage, since hostage has a very specific notion.

''And we hope that Iraq does not consider our citizens as hostages.''

Iraq has also reportedly refused to allow Americans and other Westerners to leave the country until the Persian Gulf crisis is concluded.

''You may compare our situation with the situation of other nations,'' Gremitskikh said.

The Foreign Ministry spokesman also announced Wednesday that the Soviet Union sent special envoy Mikhail Sytenko to the Middle East in a continued diplomatic effort to solve the crisis sparked by Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

Sytenko, who left the Soviet Union Tuesday, will meet Iraqi leaders in Baghdad as part of his tour of the area that will also include Syria, Jordan and Egypt.

''(The visit) goes along with the Soviet Union's efforts to stop the escalation of tensions in the region,'' Gremitskikh said.

The spokesman said the Soviet Union had not decided how to respond to Iraq's demand that all foreign embassies in Kuwait be closed by Aug. 24.

''There is an international legal aspect to the problem,'' Gremitskikh said, adding that if countries closed their embassies in Kuwait it might be seen as ''silent agreement to the annexation by Iraq.''

''No specific decisions have been made,'' he said.

He repeated the Soviet Union's stand that the U.N. Security Council's military staff committee should take an active role in determining how to enforce economic sanctions against Iraq, but refused to say if Moscow supported a U.N. military force.

''It has been suggested that the military staff committee of the Security Council could play a certain role in the implementation of the resolution of the General Assembly with respect to sanctions against Iraq,'' he said.

''As regards the idea concerning the establishment or non-establishment of a multi-national force, we believe the issue should be resolved within the framework of the Security Council,'' he said. ''We are ready to participate in discussions of this idea.''

The Soviet Union sent two warships to the Persian Gulf area after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, but Gremitskikh said Wednesday they were there to protect Soviet shipping and the Soviet Union does not plan to participate in a U.S.-led blockade of Iraq.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 15) UPI - Sen. Dan Coats, R-Ind., asked Jordan's King Hussein Wednesday for help in gaining the release of a pregnant woman who was trapped in Kuwait with her two children when the country was invaded by Iraq.

Joan Khaja, 26, was visiting relatives and has not been heard from since Aug. 3, although the State Department reported as of late last week she and the children were alive and well.

''Khaja has become the symbol of the plight of the Americans and other nationals who are being detained in Kuwait by Iraq,'' Coats said at a news conference.

Khaja is seven months pregnant and Coats said the ''compassionate and humane thing'' for Iraq to do would be to release her and the two children and all other Americans and nationals.

Hussein, carrying a message from Iaqi leader Saddam Hussein, arrived in the United States Wednesday and plans to meet with President Bush Thursday in Kennebunkport, Maine. Coats said he had written a letter to be given to Hussein at the meeting.

UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 15) UPI - U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar Wednesday hailed Iraq's offer to withdraw troops from occupied Iranian territory and repatriate prisoners of war as a ''major new development'' toward implementing a 1987 U.N. peace plan.

Perez de Cuellar said in a statement he welcomed the proposal made by Iraqi President Sassam Hussein in a letter to Iranian President Ali Hashemi Rafsanjani.

The U.N. chief said the letter, which was ''being carefully studied,'' appeared to represent ''a major new development in the efforts aimed at implementing'' U.N. Security Council Resolution 598, adopted in July 1987 to end the war.

Iran and Iraq suspended their nearly eight-year war in 1988 under a cease-fire proposed under the resolution.

But the two sides failed to agree on all aspects of the plan, which also called for a withdrawal to internationally recognized borders, an exchange of prisoners and the establishment of a committee to determine which side started the war.

Perez de Cuellar said he ''was encouraged'' by Iraq's offer to begin withdrawing troops Friday from occupied Iranian land, as well as to repatriate prisoners of war the same day.

He added he had instructed U.N. observers at the Iran-Iraq border ''to be at the disposal of the parties.''

The Iraqi proposal came amid a Persian Gulf crisis triggered by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and occupation of Kuwait. Iraqi troops later massed on the Kuwaiti-Saudi border, prompting the deployment of U.S. and other troops in Saudi Arabia.

Analysts said Iraq's peace offer to Tehran may have been intended to ease pressure on Iraq's eastern border with Iran while Baghdad confronts the Western troops in Saudi Arabia.

The United States and Britain also have imposed a de facto blockade on Iraq.

Amid the crisis, an American source said the ambassadors of the five permanent members of the Security Council ''are waiting to receive instructions from their governments after yesterday's meeting in Washington to discuss the reactivation of the U.N.'s Military Staff

Committee.''

The committee would coordinate joint U.N. military activity. The Soviet Union suggested the committee be reactivated because of concern over military action in the gulf. The suggestion followed controversy over the U.S. and British blockade.

The five permanent members are United States, Soviet Union, Great Britain, France and China. One country acts as coordinator on a monthly rotating basis and this month's coordinator is the French ambassador, Pierre Louis Blanc.

France was expected to call a meeting of the five members once the ambassadors received their instructions.

The ambassadors from the five nations met Tuesday in Washington with Robert Kimmit, undersecretary of state for political affairs, to discuss a possible role for the U.N. Military Staff Committee. The consultations were to continue in New York, possibly Friday, according to diplomatic sources.

Although the Military Staff Committee meets secretly every two weeks, it never has been used because Security Council members have not been able to agree about its functions. It was conceived as a general staff responsible to the Security Council for overall strategic planning and technical advice on military issues.

The U.N. military committee is comprised of representatives of the military chiefs of staff of the five permanent security council members. Representatives of other U.N members can be invited as appropriate.

It was not clear what role the Military Staff Committee would take in the crisis or whether it would replace or work with the U.S.-led multinational force that is carrying out the blockade against trade to and from Iraqi.

The Bush administration has shied from the term ''blockade,'' instead calling the attempt to prohibit commerce to and from Iraq an ''interdiction.''

The United States, at the request of the exiled government of Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, has coordinated the multinational blockade of goods going to and from Iraq.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - Bert Parks, 75, said Wednesday he has just one worry about returning to the Miss America pageant where he serenaded 25 years of winners with the song ''There She Is.''

''Suppose I forget the lyrics?''

More than a decade after he was axed for being too old, Park appeared at a press conference with Miss American Chairman Leonard Horn to announce his return.

''One thing that haunts me,'' he said, kidding with reporters. ''Suppose I forget the lyrics? Turning to Horn, he added, ''You will have a teleprompter.''

Parks and Horn said they were ''burying the hatchet'' 11 years after late Chairman Albert Marks Jr. fired Parks in an attempt to update the show for a new generation.

But no, Parks won't belt out ''There She Is'' to the winner of this year's 70th anniversary pageant, scheduled for Sept. 8.

Pageant officials said they were ''contractually obligated'' to give that duty to Gary Collins, who now hosts the pageant with former Miss America Phyllis George.

Instead, Parks said, he plans to sing the song in tribute to at least 26 former contest winners, dating back to Miss America of 1933. About half of the returning winners were crowned by him.

Pageant officials promised Parks would play an ''integral'' part in this year's contest.

''If they had said to me, 'Sing the song and disappear into the woodwork,' I would have said, 'Go find yourself another boy,' he said.

Parks said he still had some ''residual resentment'' over his dismissal, which he said he first heard about from a reporter.

''But it was mostly the crass way in which it was done,'' he said.

Parks, joined by Horn and 1977 Miss America Dorothy Benham of Edina, Minn. used a newly sharpened axe to cut a cake decorated with the words ''Welcome back, Bert.''

Horn said the idea for Parks' return originated with his wife, who told him she grew misty-eyed when she watched a scene from the new movie ''The Freshman'' in which Parks makes a cameo appearance singing ''There She Is'' to a Komodo Dragon, a giant lizard native to Indonesia.

Referring to the movie scene, Parks said there was nothing wrong with a little self-parody.

''I've done dog beauty contests and cat beauty contests,'' he said. ''If you don't have a sense of humor about yourself, you might as well cash it in.''

PARIS (AUG. 15) UPI - France Wednesday denied reports of a rift among the Western powers over the Persian Gulf crisis Wednesday, saying it was prepared ''to do what needs to be done'' to enforce the U.N.-endorsed trade embargo against Iraq.

A spokesman for the presidential Elysee Palace said so far no attempt has been made to break the sanctions, and that France's position is ''equivalent'' to that of the United States and Britain.

The French have the second largest millitary presence among the Western nations in the Middle East.

French officials also said the U.N. Security Council should further define the role of the Western naval forces in enforcing the embargo amid stepped up military and diplomatic efforts to maintain the sanctions.

British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher, meanwhile, sent a defense minister to the Middle East to bolster Arab support for the multinational military force in the Gulf. Alan Clark, the British minister for defense procurement, will meet with leaders in Qatar, Bahrain, Abu Dhabi and Dubai.

Britain reinforced its naval contingent by ordering four more warships to the Persian Gulf and East Mediterranean to join 7 British vessels already in the region, and Turkey prevented two ships from unloading food cargo destined for Iraq.

Turkish officials said a Moroccan and Danish vessel were prevented from unloading frozen meat cargo meant for Iraq when they arrived at the southern Turkish port of Mersin.

A third ship flying the Mexican flag and carrying cargos for both Turkey and Iraq was allowed to unload only the goods meant for Turkey.

Turkey, the first state in the region to say it would comply with U.N. Security Council sanctions imposed on Iraq for invading Kuwait on Aug 2 and annexing it, has closed a twin oil pipeline running through its territory from Iraq's Kirkuk oilfields to a Mediterranean terminal.

Turkey was earning $300 million in transit charges for the pipelines, and officials said losses from suspended trade with Iraq could reach $3 billion a year.

Italian Foreign Minister Gianni De Michelis, speaking on the eve of a European Community mission to Amman, indicated at a news conference that he and two other European foreign ministers visiting the Jordanian capital Thursday will offer the prospect of financial aid to Jordan to try and help it resolve its problems in return for closing one of the last remaining conduits for food and materials to reach Iraq via the Red Sea port of Aqaba.

President Bush has said Jordan may be undermining efforts to enforce the U.N.-ordered trade embargo. Thousands of Iraqi troops now are massed on the Saudi border, prompting the deployment of a multi-national force dominated by U.S. troops.

French President Francois Mitterrand, who has maintained that French forces would operate independently but in solidarity of those from the United States, also continued his diplomatic offensive which included 12 envoys dispatched to 24 countries and to the Palestine Liberation Organization.

One of the emissaries, Claude Cheysson, a former foreign minister who met Tuesday with PLO leader Yasser Arafat in Tunis, said the Palestinian leader had pledged to intervene for the release of French citizens trapped in Kuwait and Iraq. Other envoys traveled to Syria, Jordan, Yemen, Oman, Turkey and Yugoslavia.

TOKOZA, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 15) UPI - Police and soldiers trying to quell fighting between rival black tribes swept through black townships Wednesday to seize weapons from homes and hostels. Police said 140 people have been killed in three days of violence.

Police summoned troops to help separate the warring factions but sporadic battles continued in what was considered the worst internecine violence outside Natal province, where such fighting frequently erupts. Hospital sources said at least 320 people were wounded.

Authorities described the running street battles through hostels and squatter settlements in three townships as a tribal conflict between Zulus and Xhosas. But officials of the African National Congress blamed the bloodshed on their rivals, the exclusively Zulu Inkatha movement.

Senior ANC official Pallo Jordan warned the slaughter had placed peace talks with the government "under stress" because of alleged support from police ranks for the Inkatha movement, led by Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

Law and Order Minister Adriaan Vlok denounced the allegations of partiality, branding them "propagandistic lies to vilify the police" and called on the faction leaders to "use their influence to stop this unnecessary killing and violence."

Unable to contain the fighting themselves, police early Wednesday summoned

Police spokesman Capt. Eugene Opperman reported 140 people killed after dusk fell over the smoldering townships of Tokoza, Katlehong and Vosloorus all situated in a cluster east of Johannesburg.

While the groups fought in isolated areas, soldiers raided hundreds of hostel rooms and squatter shacks, confiscating machetes, clubs, and hand-made firearms. Opperman said a search of one hostel uncovered a cache of AK-47 rifles, ammunition and limpet mines.

Despite the presence of hundreds of troops and riot police, one roaming mob tried to burn to death an unidentified man after soaking him in gasoline in full view of reporters and residents. One reporter tried to douse the flames as the victim writhed and screamed, and police arrived in time only to take him to the hospital.

Police twice came under fire during the day. Opperman said one officer was wounded at a hostel when an unidentified attacker hurled a hand grenade into a patrolling squad. In a second incident, a man armed with an AK-47 fired on police, was wounded in return fire and escaped.

Hospitals reported having difficulty coping with the casualties, and refugees fled the areas and sought refuge in churches and tent camps. Witnesses reported one squatter camp in Tokoza in flames, and said charred bodies were being removed from gutted shacks.

Hundreds of mainly Xhosa hostel dwellers and Zulu squatters in Tokoza have been clashing since Monday following the fatal shooting Sunday of an Inkatha official in the township of shacks and dusty roads.

The ANC-linked Congress of South African Trade Unions, a key player in the strife in Natal, declared the townships' people have been "subjected to the most brutal forms of barbaric terror" by attackers "aided and abetted by trigger-happy elements of the police force."

It noted that in terms of the peace pact struck between the ANC and the government last Tuesday, when the movement agreed to suspend its 29-year-old armed struggle against white minority rule, reformist President Frederik de Klerk agreed to act on alleged police excesses.

South Africa's internecine violence has been centered on Natal, where since 1986 more than 3,000 people have died in the territorial wars between supporters of the ANC and Inkatha.

But with the legalization of the ANC and other black opposition groups in February and the parties increasingly vying for support, the conflict has spread particularly to the Transvaal.

ANC leader Nelson Mandela has accused Buthelezi of fomenting the violence to consolidate his position, and ANC officials brand the Zulu chief a government stooge for his close links to Pretoria.

"It is clear that Inkatha is exporting the battle from Natal into the Transvaal in trying to fight for existence in the political arena," Chris Dlamini, a union official told a news conference. Inkatha, which claims the allegiance of most of the six million Zulus, alleges the ANC is trying to undermine it in Natal and elsewhere.

Beside the tribal differences, the ANC is regarded as the leading anti-apartheid group, always ready to confront Pretoria, but Inkatha is a more cautious movement seeking talks rather than confrontation with the white minority government.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The government should make it even easier for cancer and AIDS patients to get new drugs, perhaps in part by paying outside experts to evaluate potential therapies, a national panel recommended Wednesday.

In its final report, the National Committee to Review Current Procedures for Approval of New Drugs for Cancer and AIDS endorsed recent moves by the Food and Drug Administration to give patients with life-threatening ailments quicker access to promising drugs. But committee chairman, Dr. Louis Lasagna, said, ''There's still room for improvement.''

''The sick need neither hostility nor a bogging down in the quagmire of micromanagement. They do need a cooperative working together to achieve common goals,'' Lasagna said.

If all the committee's recommendations are implemented, Lasagna, dean of Tufts University School of Medicine in Boston, estimated ''a couple years'' could be trimmed off the drug development process.

It currently takes about seven years for the average drug to wend its way through FDA-required human tests and data reviews. However, AZT, the only government-approved drug to directly fight the AIDS virus, cleared the hurdles in about two years.

''This (report) goes beyond what I have seen before'' in terms of speeding up drug development for cancer and AIDS, said Dr. Samuel Broder, head of the National Cancer Institute. ''I think it will be a fruitful guidepost for a lot of the things we need to do in the 1990s.''

A spokesman for the Health and Human Service Department, which oversees FDA, had no comment Wednesday but said the recommendations were being reviewed.

The nine-member Lasagna committee, which included Nobel laureate Gertrude Elion and Theodore Cooper, president of the Upjohn Co., recommended the FDA consider paying outside experts ''who have no conflict of interest'' to review new drug applications.

Drug companies could then choose to pay for such a review, which the panel said could be faster than waiting for an in-house FDA review. The FDA would retain drug approval power.

In the past year, the FDA has been shaken by revelations that staff members in its generic drug division accepted bribes from pharmaceutical companies. But Lasagna said he did not think corruption would be a major problem if drug applications were contracted out to private industry.

The committee, convened in 1988, also concluded the FDA should require experimental drugs for AIDS and cancer be tested only for safety and effectiveness, not how they stack up against existing drugs for such conditions.

That would eliminate time-consuming ''Phase 3'' tests, often involving thousands of patients, traditionally required to win drug approval. The FDA last fall took steps in that direction by attempting to combine such tests with smaller effectiveness trials.

The FDA has made progress in relaxing its stance that a drug must be able to prolong life before gaining approval, but further work is needed to establish uniform yardsticks - like tumor shrinkage or improved immune cell counts in AIDS patients - that show a drug is beneficial, the panel said.

''The agency was more demanding on some occasions than it needed to be,'' Lasagna said.

The United States has a reputation for being one of the toughest nations for phamaceutical companies to win approval to sell new drugs.

Lasgana and Armand Hammer, chairman of the President's Cancer Panel, presented the report to President Bush Wednesday at the White House, but they said he did not have a chance to review the 15-page document.

Other recommendations included:

-Medicare, Medicaid and private health insurers should provide identical coverage for experimental drugs for cancer and AIDS patients. Coverage should not vary from region to region or insurer to insurer.

-HHS should set up a permanent ''policy and oversight'' committee to monitor FDA activities.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Saudi Arabia will cut oil deliveries to U.S. oil companies and other large customers next month by at least 15 percent in a reallocation of its exports, U.S. industry sources said Wednesday.

''They're cutting back September liftings by 15 to 20 percent in order to reallocate their barrels,'' said one source, who commented on condition he remain unidentified.

The source said he was told some of the reallocation would be sent to European refineries owned by Kuwait, which has been unable to export crude oil since the Aug. 2 occupation of its country by Iraq.

The United States and other industrialized nations had hoped Saudi Arabia, the world's largest exporter, the United Arab Emirates and Venezuela would help make up the 4 million barrels a day lost because of the United Nations embargo of oil from Iraq and Kuwait ordered following the Iraqi invasion.

The sources could not give any reason for the Saudi action other than to perhaps help beleaguered neighbor Kuwait by replacing the oil that would have normally gone to Kuwaiti refineries in Europe.

The U.S. companies that would apparently be immediately affected would be the members of the Saudi Aramco consortium - Exxon Corp., Mobil Corp. Texaco Inc. and Chevron Corp.

One source said daily Saudi production declined about 400,000 barrels daily in late July to about 5 million barrels. Production has rebounded to 5.4 million barrels but exports have remained steady, the source said.

Despite hopes the Saudis, the UAE and Venezuela would raise production to compensate for the loss of Iraqi and Kuwati oil, a source in a U.S. oil company said, ''We have not seen any plus volumes coming out of Saudi Arabia, the UAE and Venezuela yet.''

Venezuela initially indicated it would raise production but then qualified it by saying it would only do so with the approval of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

There has been no sign Venezuela has changed its position, the source said.

TUNIS, Tunisia (AUG. 15) UPI - Police used tear gas to break up an unauthorized pro-Iraqi demonstration organized by Moslem fundamentalists Wednesday in the Tunisian capital one day after an ''official'' march was held in favor of Iraq.

About 3,000 to 5,000 demonstrators marched through the streets of Tunis shouting anti-American slogans in the demonstration organized by militant members of the Islamic Ennhadha movement.

''We didn't organize the demonstration but we approve of the initiative by our militant members,'' said a spokesman for Ennahdha.

On Tuesday, more than 10,000 people participated in a peaceful pro-Iraqi march supported by the government and opposition groups. Although organizers sought to keep the demonstration from going to extremes, a few militants burned an American and an Israeli flag.

The demonstrations are a sign of growing support for Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein in normally moderate Tunisia.

The Ennahdha is in an awkward position, however, because it is strongly aligned with Saudi Arabia, from which it receives financial aid.

Tunisia did not attend the Arab summit meeting last Friday that voted to condemn Iraq, and President Zine el Abedine Ben Ali has denounced the Western military intervention.

Tuesday's march bypassed the center of the capital, using a secondary road to arrive at the offices of the Arab League and the Iraqi embassy, where delegations were received.

Some demonstrators shouted slogans such as ''Arab solution to an Arab conflict,'' and ''King Fahd is a traitor and a coward.''

In a related development in Tunis, French special envoy Claude Cheysson met Tuesday night with Palestine Liberation Organization Yasser Arafat as part of the French diplomatic offensive in the Gulf crisis.

Arafat declined to speak with reporters following the meeting. Cheysson, a former foreign minister in France, said Arafat refused to accept the U.N. Security Council position.

Arafat indicated that he would not take a position against Iraq because he had acted as a mediator between Iraq and Kuwait, and such a move might compromise his status, Cheysson said.

Additionally, according to Cheysson, Arafat warned that the Iraqi leader ''must not be pushed into a corner,'' having shown his determination to withstand the Iran-Iraq war over eight years.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - About one in four American babies were born to unwed mothers in 1988 and births among young teenagers continued to climb after falling through much of the previous decade, health officials reported Wednesday.

The National Center for Health Statistics, in its annual report on birth patterns, said 1,005,299 births to unwed women occurred in 1988, the last year for which statistics were available. That figure was 8 percent higher than in 1987 and 51 percent greater than in 1980.

Rates of unwed childbearing remained highest for blacks, with nearly two out of three births among unmarried women, but rates have recently been rising faster among whites, where the proportion of births to unwed women now stands at one in five.

The birth rate among unmarried women 25 and older rose faster than for younger women during the period, but the highest levels of such births continue to be among women ages 18 to 24.

One disturbing finding of the report was that the birth rate among younger teenagers rose for the second year in a row in 1988, after declining during most of the '70s and '80s.

''This is an important public health concern since pregnancies among young teenagers bring increased risks for both the mother and child,'' said Assistant Health Secretary James Mason.

The birth rate for teenagers ages 15 through 17 was 33.8 births per 1,000 girls - a rate higher than for any year since 1977 and 10 percent higher than the 1986 level.

The largest annual increase in birth rates in 1988 was reported among wome ages 40 through 44. Although the rate remains very low, 4.8 births per 1,000 women, it was 9 percent higher than in 1987 and up 20 percent from 1985.

In addition, birth rates for women in their 30s have risen more than 40 percent since 1975.

(AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush today called on the nations of the world to make sure ''that NOT one drop of oil gets out'' of Iraq. In a speech to Pentagon employees in Washington, D-C... the president defended his moves against Iraq's invasion of Kuwait on the grounds of preserving the sovereignty of nations and keeping U-S promises to old friends.

An extremist Palestinian leader today sided with Iraq and called for fighters to open fire on what he termed ''American interests'' in the Persian Gulf. Abul Abbas released the statement from Sidon, Lebanon. Abbas leads an estimated 150 members in the Palestine Liberation Front, which hijacked the Achille Lauro cruise ship in 1986.

Sources behind the scenes say Iran is overjoyed at today's peace plan from enemy Iraq. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein is offering to give Iran the land he took from it in their war, which ended in 1988. Saddam said the move would keep the West from exploiting tensions between the two countries.

President Bush today lifted some trade restrictions against East Germany. This will give American businesses a chance to make deals as the former communist nation unifies with West Germany. Bush's action also makes East Germany eligible for loan guarantees and credits from the Export-Import Bank.

A separatist sect carried out a wave of violence to mark India's independence day today. The Sikhs, who want an independent homeland, were responsible for at least 23 deaths. The worst incident was in northern Punjab state where police say a bomb explosion on a bus killed seven passengers.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Jack Boorman has been appointed director of the International Monetary Fund's key Exchange and Trade Relations Department, the organization said Wednesday.

Boorman, 48, a U.S. citizen, has been the deputy director of the department since 1987. He succeeds L.A. Whittome, who retired and was reappointed special counselor to IMF's Managing Director Michel Camdessus.

The Exchange and Trade Department assists the area departments of the IMF in country consultations and the formulation of country economic programs. It also helps in the design of the IMF's lending facilities, access to IMF resources, the debt strategy, and surveillance over members' exchange rates.

The department works closely with the Paris Club, the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development and the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade, and coordinates the IMF's relations with other bilateral agencies and multilateral institutions.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 15) UPI - About 80,000 clerks and meat cutters at Southern California supermarkets overwhelmingly approved a new three-year contract, union officials announced Wednesday.

The package received 88.23 percent approval from retail clerks and 94.38 percent backing from meat cutters during four days of voting from Saturday through Tuesday, said Michael O'Rourke, a spokesman for the United Food and Commercial Workers union.

The union's leadership had recommended approval of the package last week after concluding nearly two months of talks with representatives of six major chains - Albertson's, Alpha Beta, Lucky, Ralphs, Stater Bros., and Vons. "While we are not overjoyed by the package, I'd say that we are more or less satisfied," O'Rourke said.

The key parts of the package included wage increases of more than 12 percent for top classificiations and protection of pension funds and health benefits, O'Rourke said. "It also takes us above the level of the clerks in Northern California for the first time since the 1960s," O'Rourke said.

During the intensive negotiations, the union twice threatened to strike because of a lack of progress before reaching a settlement on Aug. 10. A strike would have initially hit the Lucky chain, but could have spread quickly to the other chains and affected as many as 800 stores between San Luis Obispo and San Diego.

The talks represented the first time that the union had negotiated simultaneously with management's Food Employers Council for both the clerks and the meat cutters. As a result, the two groups approved similar contracts, O'Rourke said.

The new contract provides for a $1.65 salary increase - about 12.6 percent - over the three years for food clerk department heads and "journeyman" food clerks, who have worked for more than a year.

The increase, retroactive to July 30, breaks down to 60 cents an hour during the first year, 55 cents an hour in the second year and 50 cents an hour for the third year. Department heads currently receive $14.05 an hour and journeyman food clerks get $13.05 an hour.

Apprentice food clerks, who currently earn between $7.83 and $11.75 an hour, will receive pay boosts ranging from 98 cents to $1.48 an hour during the life of the contract. General merchandise clerks are slated to receive wage increases of 83 cents to $1.28 an hour, while clerk helpers will get a $1-per-hour boost.

The new contract also provides an increase in the minimum number of hours for clerks from 16 to 20 hours per week. The complex package contained numerous changes in health and welfare benefits, including some concessions from the union, such as a requirement for a $3 co-payment on prescriptions and a 12-hour increase in the work hours for clerks to become eligible for health benefits.

Some of the management concessions included adding "grandparent" to the definition of immediate family for funeral leave, increases in medical allowances and various job security measures, such as clarifying who is allowed to perform stocking work at the stores.

The issue of the chains using non-union vending companies for stocking store shelves was a sticking point during the talks. The new contract provides for a watchdog committee, with three members from each side, to monitor adherence to the rules.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait will produce inflation and recession in the already weakened U.S. economy, hurting most domestic industries, a respected economist warned.

The Middle East crisis is inflationary because of the chain-like effects from higher crude oil prices on costs of energy, materials and supplies, Allen Sinai, chief economist for Boston Co. Economic Advisors Inc., said late Tuesday.

In turn, the higher costs triggered by the crisis will be passed on to the prices for goods and services bought by consumers, the economist said. The effects will be similar for other industrial nations.

In a bulletin to clients, Sinai said the effect of the crisis will also be recessionary, squeezing purchasing power through rising prices that will reduce discretionary income. It will produce a falloff in companies' cash flow and cut consumer and business spending as well, he said.

According to Sinai's scenario, the economic squeeze will spread to federal, state and local governments by increasing their budget deficits. All levels of government will suffer from higher operating costs and greater support payments stemming from rising unemployment, Sinai said.

At the state and local levels, where balanced budgets are required by law, higher governmental deficits could force cutbacks in outlays or higher taxes, thus reducing growth. In addition, the Middle East crisis could drive longer-term interest rates up, Sinai said.

The economy, which Sinai said appeared to be slipping into a mild recession even before Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2, will now be subjected to cross currents, with the disinflationary recessionary effects of the crisis lagging behind the sharp inflationary impact of the oil price shock.

"Whether markets perceive the price increases as transitory or permanent is an important factor for determining how high interest rates might go," Sinai said.

"How the Federal Reserve handles a potentially recessionary economy beset by the inflationary effects from higher oil and energy prices will likely determine short-term interest rates."

The crisis will produce few winners among industries, Sinai said, noting revenues should increase for companies involved in oil, coal, gold mining, natural gas, oil and gas drilling, and oil well equipment and services. Among the losing industries will be those suffering from increased costs, such as electric products, housewares and shoes.

Many more industries, Sinai said, will lose business revenues as a result of the crisis: automobiles, steel, banking, building materials, containers electrical equipment, electronics, hardware and tools, household furnishings and apparel, machine tools, machinery, metals, office equipment, paper and forest products.

As the economic slowdown spreads, he continued, other industries will lose revenue: broadcast media and newspapers, communications and computer equipment, entertainement and leisure, brokerages, financial and banks, retail and department stores, thrifts and new telephones.

According to Sinai, some industries face a one-two punch of lower revenues and higher costs, chiefly aerospace, airlines, aluminum, chemicals, construction and engineering, hotels, railroads, food retailers, telecommunications, textiles and transportation.

But Sinai said some industries will manage to stay winners by being able to avoid higher costs or lower revenues: soft and hard drinks, computer software and service, commercial services, wholesale trade, drugs and drug retailers, foods and food wholesalers, health care and hospitals, household products, insurance, medical supplies, pollution control, publishing, telephone, tobacco, and toys.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Chinese poultry production, which climbed last year despite an austerity program that drove up feed prices and pinched consumer demand, may go up 5.5 percent this year, an attache's report said Wednesday.

Pork remains the mainstay of the diet, accounting for 83 percent of the meat eaten by Chinese. However, in a development similar to U.S. trends, poultry and other non-red meats are expected to gradually fill a larger share of the meat demand. "Poultry meat is still considered a luxury product and is not yet part of the everyday diet," the U.S. agricultural attache in Beijing reported.

The United States was the leading poultry exporter to China last year, shipping $13.8 million of the $37 million in imports, which primarily were wings, feet and paws. China exported $64.6 worth of chicken parts, mostly boneless breasts and legs.

Exports during the first five months of this year were up 25 percent from 1989's pace. Exports during 1989 were 28 percent larger than the preceding year.

"China is moving strongly into the Asian poultry market," the report said, thanks to foreign investors who have put resources into joint ventures in China.

Broiler production was forecast to climb nine percent this year, followed by 11 percent in 1991. Exports were projected for 93,000 tons this year and 149,000 tons next year.

China produced 2.84 million tons of poultry meat last year, with three million tons forecast for this year and 3.3 million tons in 1991. "Producers will be aided by lower feed grain prices, however (protein) meal supplies remain tight," the report said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - A proposed federal tax on stock and bond sales would devastate the city's economy and the nation's financial markets, throwing thousands out of work, city Comptroller Elizabeth Holtzman warned Wednesday.

She said the measure, up for consideration this fall in Washington as part of a deficit-closing package, would drive the security industry overseas and lead to a regional and possibly nationwide recession.

The proposal is to impose a Securities Transfer Excise Tax (STET) of 0.5 percent on all stock and bond sales by private corporations and state and municipal governments. Mayor David Dinkins already has written to Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady and congressional budget negotiators to denounce the plan.

Joining the outcry, Holtzman released a study on the impact of the tax that estimated it would lead to the loss of 28,000 jobs in New York City alone, where the economy is heavily dependent on the financial industry and is still reeling from the impact of the 1987 stock market crash.

STET also would cost the city pension funds $51 million annually in direct payments of the tax, immediately throwing the city budget out of balance, Holtzman said. In addition, a 1987 Congressional Research Service study found that the tax would cause a stock market decline of between 9.3 percent and 14.6 percent.

Holtzman said that if that proved correct the worth of the city pension fund's stock holdings would drop by $1.2 billion to $1.9 billion, a loss that also would have to be covered by the city. She said it similarly would wreak havoc with public and private pension funds across the country.

"The STET is a bullet aimed at the heart of New York City, Holtzman said. "This is a tax on all Americans who save in the form of stocks and bonds, and in particular, it is a tax on all American workers' pension funds," she said. "This is the wrong tax at the wrong time."

Holtzman was joined by Public Securities Association Chairman Austin Koenen, who said there was was "no question" the transfer tax would hurt the local and national economy.

MILWAUKEE (AUG. 15) UPI - Midwest Express Airlines said Wednesday it would increase regular fares beginning Aug. 23, and was examining whether to follow the lead of other carriers in matching cuts on vacation fares.

"We're planning to increase prices 5.3 percent on the 23rd, which is falling in line with most of the carriers," said Jay Sorensen, manager of markets and pricing for Midwest Express, which is based in Milwaukee. "Except for fares we announced for our winter special sale, we won't increase those."

Major airlines delayed planned fuel-related ticket price hikes that were to go into effect Wednesday, while drastically cutting supersaver fares in what appeared to be the start of a fare war in an industry facing tough times ahead.

American, Pan American, United, and Delta said they would postpone until next week a 5.3 percent increase in ticket prices they had announced earlier to offset some of the higher fuel costs brought on by the Iraqi conquest of Kuwait and the subsequent global embargo against oil exports from those two countries.

American, Northwest, United, Midway, and Pan American also said they would match fare cuts on their lowest discount supersaver fares in markets where they compete with Trans World Airlines and Eastern Airlines.

Those cuts ranging from 20 to 40 percent would apply to tickets purchased by Aug. 29 for travel between Labor Day and the middle of December, with a five-day blackout during Thanksgiving. Sorensen said Midwest Express would decide Thursday what to do about its discount vacation fares.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The Air Force's fleet of cargo jets and tankers is running at full throttle to get men and weaponry to Saudi Arabia, but the operation is taxing the system.

And Air Force officials are relying heavily on charter flights for troops to make more cargo planes available to haul tanks, howitzers, field gear, repair parts and all the equipment military men need.

The airlift will not be cheap. Before oil prices jumped it was costing almost $8,900 an hour to fly the huge C-5As. The C-141 can operate for roughly $3,500 per hour, and the smaller C-130 costs about $3,960 an hour to operate. While the Pentagon deferred questions about the Saudi contribution to the operation to the Saudi Arabians, it was believed they were providing fuel for returning aircraft.

''You can never have enough airlift for the ultimate scenarios and this is one of the more intense scenarios with long flights and a lot of logistics '' said Air Force spokesman Capt. George Sillia, noting the 7,000-mile distance from the East Coast to Saudi Arabia.

The trip in the jets can take up to 16 hours and can require both inflight refueling and fuel stopovers at bases enroute. The prop-jet C-130s fly at about half the speed of the jets, making their journey an exercise in endurance for the personnel involved.

The fleet, Sillia, said in an interview, is ''taxed to 100 percent in some respects.'' He said about 70 percent of the air transport capability is being devoted to Operation Desert Shield, and the rest to normal transport requirements.

''It hasn't necessarily strained the fleet. It's not a crisis situation, but we're using it very heavily. This is going to age the fleet,'' he said.

Some of the C-130s are 30 years old, and the C-141s first went to work 25 years ago. The Air Force had plans to try to stretch out the life of the C-141s, commonly called ''Starlifters,'' but the emergency airlift is rapidly eating into the time left on the airframes.

Some of the older Starlifters, said Sillia, might be worn out by the added flight time if the airlift and continual resupply effort goes on for an extensive period of time.

One of the political beneficiaries of the airlift may be the C-17, now being developed by McDonnell Douglas as a replacement for the Starlifter. It is designed to carry outsized loads such as main battle tanks like the C-5A but takeoff and land on smaller runways like the C-130, which can operate on strips as short as 3,000 feet.

The initial program of 210 aircraft was scaled back recently to 120, and although the program was pared back in the budget now pending on Capitol Hill for cost and technical reasons, the Iraqi crisis is likely to create renewed interest in pressing forward with the C-17 and other conventional weapons programs.

''You can't just suddenly skip a generation of modernization because you want a peace dividend,'' he said. ''... Our number one goal is deterrence.

We want to be so good nobody will want to fight us. If we get there soon enough we don't have to fight. Nobody dies and we win without shooting,'' he said.

The air fleet, according to the new military Transport Command in Illinois includes 660 of the C-130s, know as the Hercules, 266 of the StarLifters and 127 of the huge C-5A Galaxies.

Also contributing to the operatrs.

The KC-135s can each get two fighters to Europe and the KC-10 can escort four to six fighters, depending on the type of plane and its fuel needs. The KC-10 additionally can haul fighter support equipment in its cargo area.

Marge Holz, spokeswoman for the sealift component of the transportation command, said there is less stress on the sea leg of the command than on the Military Airlift Command in the Air Force.

ATLANTA (AUG. 15) UPI - An Atlanta woman has become the 90th IBM employee to be loaned to one of 16 schools in Georgia serving minority or disadvantaged students, the company said Wednesday.

Pat Dingle, a 17-year veteran of IBM, will take a leave of absence with full salary and benefits to work at Morehouse College, a predominantly black school, in the coming academic year.

"I'm really excited about it," said Dingle. "I think it's going to be a real challenge to understand what's required of me and how what I teach will help my students in their professional development."

Dingle, senior compensation and benefits administrator for IBM's Southern area, will co-lecture a class for the department of business and economics on professional development that brings "an understanding of the real world" to the students.

"This class explores all of the areas not taught in other business courses " said Dingle. "We will teach corporate survival techniques such as proper business etiquette, dress and protocol as well as interviewing and resume writing skills. I want to let the students know what the real world will expect of them so they can attain jobs and then adjust to the corporate environment quickly."

Dingle also hopes to help Morehouse expand its cooperative education program which offers students temporary paid assignments in local businesses related to their area of study.

"I will actively seek student participants for the program," said Dingle. "This practical experience will be invaluable to students when they look for a job."

This year, IBM has placed 52 employees in schools in 21 states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico. Under the program, IBM pays the participants their full salary and benefits and provides them with relocation assistance while they are on assignment.

Ray Nord, director of external programs for IBM in Purchase, N.Y., said the employees are all volunteers who must receive permission from their managers to take part in the program.

"These people volunteer to take a year out of their lives to do this, so they are highly motivated going in," said Nord. "We're very proud of this program."

Since 1971, IBM has loaned more than 900 employees to more than 200 colleges, universities and related educational organizations serving black Hispanic, Appalachian and American Indian students or students with disabilities. In 1989, IBM contributed nearly $34.6 million in cash, equipment and employee support to educational institutions in the United States.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission proposed a rule Wednesday that will exempt foreign banks and insurance companies from a federal law requiring them to register as investment companies before selling securities in the United States.

The proposal, which will soon be open for a 60-day public comment period, essentially codifies an existing SEC practice, as the agency has routinely exempted foreign banks and insurance companies from the requirement on an individual basis.

But by bringing the exemption into law, the SEC would eliminate staff time needed to process individual requests, and would also cut the waiting period for foreign banks and insurers that wish to sell securities here.

During the open meeting held Wednesday to consider the proposed rule change, Commissioner Mary Schapiro suggested that the agency also consider widening the exemption to include foreign governments and their finance subsidiaries.

An SEC attorney who requested anonymity said that the ruling to a degree contradicted SEC efforts to gain greater control over the securities activities of banks, but said the change was needed to make securities laws more consistent.

U.S. banks and insurance companies are already exempt from registering as an investment company and from registering their securities with the SEC. Securities issued by foreign banks and insurance companies, however, will still have to be registered with the SEC.

The exemption will apply to foreign banks and insurance companies - and their finance subsidiaries and holding companies - that are "substantially" engaged in commercial banking or insuring activities.

SEC officials indicated that even companies whose banking or insuring activities comprised less than 50 percent of their business would qualify for an exemption. The officials added that the exemption was needed because it was almost impossible for banks to meet the investment company registration requirements.

For example, the Investment Company Act of 1940 requires that 40 percent of an investment company's board of directors be independent of management. While foreign banks could meet this stipulation relatively easily, they would have much more trouble with the limitations the Act places on the amount of debt securities an investment company can issue.

"Banks are heavily leveraged; investment companies are not," said Gene Gohlke, acting director of the SEC's division of investment management. "Our opinion is that most companies can't operate as a bank and an investment company," he added.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Several days ago the Amoco Corp. bought full-page newspaper advertisements in which it promised the public to show support for President Bush's Iraqi blockade by acting ''reasonably and responsibly'' with regard to the price of oil it charges consumers.

But for years the mammoth U.S. oil producer has waged a public relations campaign of a different kind with a select group of Americans - members of Congress.

Amoco's political action committee funneled $204,000 to influential lawmakers from 1983 through July, more than any other domestic oil concern according to PAC reports filed with the Federal Election Commission.

Chevron Corp. and the Atlantic Richfield Co., were not far behind, contributing $203,000 each to members of Congress. Other top contributors included Atlantic Richfield, which contributed $151,200 to lawmakers; Phillips Petroleum Co., with $146,100, and Mobil Corp., with $122,000.

Texaco Inc., made contributions totaling $146,000, while Exxon Corp., donated $112,200 to candidates.

Most observers agree that the donations were made in part to deflect the kind of accusations of price gouging that oil companies have heard in the past several weeks.

One typical reaction came from Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, who accused big oil of being ''too quick to pounce on the current crisis in the (Persian) Gulf to extract some quick short-term profits from a situation fraught with danger for America.''

Bentsen's populist attack was notable not only because he represents the state that produces the most domestic oil, but because he has received more money from oil interests than any other member of Congress, an impressive $234,000 since 1983.

Bentsen's spokesman, Jack Devore, said the large contributions were not surprising, nor were they shunned. ''Due to the fact that energy is such a key industry in the state, you're going to get large contributions,'' he said.

Indeed, Bentsen was followed on the leader board by fellow Texan, Republican Sen. Phil Gramm, a stalwart supporter of oil who is up for re-election this year and received $184,000, and Sen. Bennett Johnston, D-La., the influential chairman of the Senate Energy and Natural Resources Committee, who received $160,000.

Unlike Bentsen, neither Gramm nor Johnston have lambasted the oil companies or even asked them to hold prices in check.

But even Bentsen's speech against ''big oil'' was softened when in the same breadth he asked the Bush administration to offer more incentives for domestic oil exploration to ease the flow of oil from the Middle East.

''I don't think there's anybody up here who is always solidly pro oil,'' said one Capitol Hill aide who works on petroleum issues.

Rep. Billy Tauzin, D-La., the second top House recipient of oil money during the 1987-88 election cycle, once joked, ''If you're in the pocket of the oil companies it's because you're biting them in the ass.''

Tauzin, who received $81,800 from oil PACs, has often fought for oil interests. Yet, the lawmaker was a key sponsor of a strict oil spill law that imposes tougher negligence standards on oil companies. The legislation was spurred by the 1989 Exxon Valdez oil spill.

Tauzin was joined by Rep. Don Young, R-Alaska., the top House recipient of oil PAC money, with $83,400 in donations.

Last week, while consumers were complaining of higher gasoline prices at the pump, Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., convened a hearing of his Energy and Commerce subcommittee on Energy and Power to explore the oil companies' justification for the increase.

Sharp complained that the prices were not justified and accused the oil companies of profitting from the Persian Gulf crisis.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Americans are consuming record amounts of meat - 220.3 pounds apiece this year - with a 6-pound increase likely next year as chicken challenges beef as the No. 1 meat, the government said Wednesday.

The increase in consumption was expected to follow a 3 percent expansion in meat production in 1991, to 64.3 billion pounds, and a slight downturn in prices.

Grocery-store prices for red meats set records this year. Agriculture Department economists said pork prices were expected to rise 12 percent this year and choice beef 6 percent. Poultry prices were average 2 percent below last year's price.

Farmers and ranchers were forecast to produce 63.3 billion pounds of meat and poultry this year, up 1 percent from last year. The government earlier this year forecast a 2 percent increase but trimmed the estimate due to smaller broiler production.

Per capita consumption of chicken are projected for 70 pounds this year, compared to 67 pounds for beef. Last year, beef led 68.9 pounds to 66.6 pounds.

Chicken consumption has been rising and beef declining for the past decade as Americans looked for lower-cost and lower-fat foods. The beef industry has been taking steps to produce leaner meat and to trim more fat from the cuts sold to shoppers. Beef consumption in 1991 was forecast for 67 pounds while chicken consumption was tabbed for 73 pounds.

According to the department's National Food Review magazine, beef would hold a 14-pound lead this year when boneless weights are compared, 63.9 pounds to 49.7 pounds. However, it notes chicken consumption ''is forecast to top 75 percent of beef consumption in 1990, up from 35 percent in 1971.''

The government estimated meat and poultry consumption would climb to 226 pounds next year, compared to the 220.3 forecast for this year.

Beef production, estimated at 22.69 billion pounds this year, was expected to rise 1 percent to 22.97 billion pounds next year. Pork was projected to rise 3 percent from this year's 15.35 billion pounds to 15.85 billion pounds next year.

Poultry production, pegged for 23.61 billion pounds this year, was estimated to rise 5 percent for a 1991 total of 24.81 billion pounds.

''Favorable producer returns will encourage continued expansion in the poultry sector and increased pork production,'' the department said.

''Increasing pork and poultry supplies in 1991 are likely to cause pork prices to decline 1 percent-3 percent, while poultry prices decline 4 percent-6 percent. Declining prices for competing meats will likely hold beef price gains to 1 percent-2 percent.''

AQABA, Jordan (AUG. 15) UPI - Jordan finds itself in the midst of international efforts to strangle Iraq economically and on a collision course with the United States by allowing trucks laden with goods to pour across its border into Iraq.

The convoys of truck plying the roads from the strategically important port of Aqaba are fast becoming Baghdad's lifeline, getting goods already on Jordanian soil across the border as quickly as possible.

At the border town of Ruweished, 180 miles from Amman, witnesses said commercial trucks from Iraq and Jordan at one point were crossing the border one every five minutes.

Iraqi drivers said they were meeting no challenge from Jordanians on any cargo, be it oil or foodstuffs. At Aqaba, dozens of Iraqi-registered trucks entered and left the port with foodstuffs, cooking oil, industrial goods and Japanese cars.

''The burst of activity that's been reported with convoys leaving Aqaba for the Iraqi border seems to be an effort to clear the backlog of Iraqi cargo which is currently in the port,'' John Landells, Lloyds List shipping editor in London, said Wednesday.

''We've received reports that pressure is being brought to bear on ships in Aqaba to discharge their cargoes quickly, and it is significant that a grain storage vessel which has been used by the Iraqis for some time is being cleared completely,'' he said.

Jordanian authorities forced a Norwegian-owned ship's captain to unload Iraq-bound grain from his vessel last week.

But the number of ships heading to Aqaba has dropped significantly in recent days, an indication that ship owners may be diverting their ships away from the Jordanian port. One Lloyds of London shipping source said 11 ships were in port last week, but only three this week.

A sign of increased pressure on Iraq came Wednesday from Turkey when authorities turned away two ships from unloading frozen meat destined for Iraq.

Exporters can legally send medicine but no food to Iraq under a clause in the U.N. sanction package, imposed after the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion and annexation of Kuwait, allowing shipments ''under special humanitarian circumstances.''

But shipping sources in Dubai said the U.N. embargo could be easily contravened by altering paperwork that accompanies cargo.

King Hussein and President Bush, who will meet Thursday in the United States, may be on a collision course over the sanctions.

Jordanian officials maintain their country does not want to defy the sanctions but must find a way to adhere to them without harming their economy. Bush has warned that it may be necessary to intercept ships bound for Jordan to sever Iraq's economic lifeline.

Bush said nations must work together to ''ensure that no goods get in and not one drop of oil gets out'' of Iraq.

Some analysts warned that a watertight embargo causing great hardship in Iraq would not compel Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to leave Kuwait and could backfire on the supporters of the U.N. plan.

''Starving women and children? This is not what America wants,'' one Arab analyst said. ''They will be ready to break the sanctions before Iraq because Saddam certainly won't be too sensitive about his own citizens.''

In a related development, the Suez Canal Authority gave orders not to allow an Iraqi vessel to use the waterway because it refused to pay $12,000 in tolls, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported.

The vessel, the Zein el Koas, was carrying a cargo of foodstuffs and had arrived Monday at Port Said on the Mediterranean at the canal's northern tip. But the Iraqi Navigation Co. told the crew not to pay the tolls to cross the Canal, the news agency reported.

TRENTON, N.J. (AUG. 15) UPI - The State Supreme Court Wednesday denied a request by attorneys for Donald Trump that plans for restructuring his financial empire be kept secret.

The ruling could give the public its first close look at the workings of Trump's real estate and casino dealings.

The ruling by State Supreme Court Justice Alan Handler came a day after the state appellate court ordered the documents released.

Trump's lawyers had already released hundreds of pages of documents after losing a bid to seal the entire plan last week.

The lawyers argued that releasing details of Trump's reorganization blueprint could hurt his business dealings.

Carol Kokotajlo, a spokeswoman for the Casino Control Commission, said the records were vital to the public understanding of hearings on the plan set for Thursday and Friday.

''The commissioners have already seen it (the financial plan). But it's a matter of the public being able to see and examine the documents,'' Kokotajlo said. ''If during the hearing you want to discuss the documents, how do you do it if they are all ordered sealed and the public is there?''

The commission is heading towards a vote on whether to approve Trump's deal with the banks, in which Trump used his three Atlantic City Casinos as collateral for a $65 million loan. The loan went to cover the interest on more than $1 billion already owed to the banks by Trump.

Kokotajlo said the commission's final decision on the plan could come as soon as Friday.

''There are a tremendous amount of documents to be reviewed by each of the commissioners, so it's hard to say exactly when it (the decision will come),'' she said.

The documents include spreadsheets outlining the earnings from Trump properties, loan repayment schedules, and details of Trump's personal assets and debts.

Kokotajlo said that only a few documents which could help Trump's competitors will stay under wraps.

Lawyers for Trump were unavailable for comment on Wednesday.

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AUG. 15) UPI - The government's chief negotiator said Wednesday a neutral U.N. proposal would be a way to break the stalemate over military reforms when peace talks with rebels resume this week.

''The armed forces is the principal and most important topic,'' Oscar Santamaria said the day before leaving for a new round of talks in Costa Rica with rebels of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, known as the FMLN.

Santamaria said the government proposal accepts the need for restructuring and reducing the size of the Salvadoran military, but he said the FMLN refuses to compromise on the issue.

To break the impasse, Santamaria suggested that a neutral proposal be put forward by U.N. mediator in the talks, Alvaro de Soto.

''The United Nations says they are ready to enter into a process of arbitration, but the FMLN is opposed,'' he said. ''The excuse they give is that they want almost 100 percent of their demands (dealing with the armed forces) responded to favorably.''

The subject of the armed forces dominated the last two rounds of talks held in Mexico during June and in Costa Rica during July, preventing agreements to end the decade-old civil war that has cost more than 72,000 lives, mostly of civilians.

Santamaria said the September cease-fire deadline, established at an earlier series of talks, is still within their grasp.

''The cease-fire in September is an aspiration that has at least remained fixed on the schedule. I hope we achieve it,'' he said.

Despite talk of peace and future cease-fires, rebels have launched an all-out attack on the electrical system, knocking out 60 percent of the country's power and forcing the light company to ration electricity, officials said.

''We have seven primary transmitters of 115,000 volts each out of service because of rebel sabotage, but we are working on getting them functioning again,'' hydroelectric commission official Fausto Tulio Angulo said.

Various parts of the country were blacked out Tuesday after a rebel attack on installations, and electricity was rationed in the capital.

Officials said the damaged transmitters are connected to the main hydroelectric plants in the country, several of which are in remote areas.

Angulo said it would cost millions of dollars to repair the damage, adding that the commission has lost more than $50 million in the past decade because of rebel sabotage.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - Average yields for money market mutual funds were unchanged or lower in the latest reporting week, while rates at competing savings and loan institutions were lower, financial information services that track these yields and rates said Wednesday.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said that average seven-day simple yields were unchanged at 7.50 percent but that 30-day simple yields eased to 7.54 percent from the previous week's 7.58. The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 45 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 5.91 percent, down from 5.93 a week earlier; Super-Now accounts, 4.98 percent, down from 4.99; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.53 percent, down from 7.54; 1-year CDs, 7.63 percent, down from 7.65; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.69 percent, down from 7.71; and five-year CDs, 7.79 percent, down from 7.81.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.25 percent down from 8.28.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage rose in the latest week to 9.62 percent from 9.51 and the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage reached 9.92 percent from 9.79.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12.26 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush has seized on a blockade of food as a weapon in the Persian Gulf conflict with Saddam Hussein, but the best bet Wednesday was that grain and other foodstuffs would flow again if starvation stalks Iraq.

A State Department official and other sources hinted as much privately even as Bush reiterated publicly that the United States and other nations involved in the showdown with Iraq ''must ensure that no goods get in and that not one drop of oil gets out.''

U.S. government and other agricultural analysts said there was no indication of food shortages in Iraq at this time. Recent harvests of wheat and barley, plus harvests of corn and rice in the offing should relieve any immediate pressure for imports, they said.

In an apparent attempt to pressure on Saddam by squeezing the Iraqi home front, the U.S.-led blockade has gone beyond U.N. Security Council Resolution 661 and has barred food as well as other supplies from Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

The U.N. resolution prohibits shipping food to Iraq and Kuwait, but allows for exceptions ''in humanitarian circumstances.'' The resolution was adopted Aug. 6, four days after Iraq's lightning takeover of neighboring Kuwait.

If the Persian Gulf crisis persists, U.S. policy will require adjustment and restrictions against at least some food supplies will have to be lifted, said a source familiar with government planning.

''We need to be very Draconian at first and see what the levels are'' over the long haul, the source said. ''We need to get Saddam Hussein out of there. But food and medicine can be fine tuned.''

''We cannot be seen to the rank and file over the long term as wanting to starve people,'' the source said. ''We're going to have to bring our quarantine more into line with our humanitarian nature.''

In Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, ''food is generally available, although scarcities are being reported in some areas,'' State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

She was asked whether the embargo on food supplies would continue even if it begins affecting the roughly 3,000 Americans and thousands of other foreigners trapped in Iraq and Kuwait.

''I'm not going to deal with hypotheticals or what-ifs,'' Tutwiler replied.

But a State Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, hinted the food embargo would continue only as long as there is no starvation.

''There's no emergency or humanitarian necessity'' for allowing food through the blockade at this early stage, the official said.

And if there were a demonstrated need for food?

''We are a humanitarian nation,'' came the reply.

Iraq, with a population of about 19 million, consumes about 6.6 million metric tons of both food and feed grains annually, according to the Agriculture Department's Economic Research Service. ''Overall, the dependency (on food imports) is high,'' said ERS analyst Michael Kurtzig.

Iraq may have up to three months worth of grain reserves, analysts said.

In the past, the United States has supplied nearly all of Iraq's corn and soybean meal imports, 80 percent of the rice, one-third of the wheat, one-fourth of the vegetable oil and 20 percent of the sugar.

Even if the blockade were eased for humanitarian reasons to allow food into Iraq, the shipment of U.S. goods would not resume under terms of the executive order Bush issued when the crisis began.

PARIS (AUG. 15) UPI - For many of the Albanian refugees given asylum in France last month, French hospitality has been rejected for the American dream.

Officials said 130 of the 543 Albanians who arrived July 15 aboard the Orient Star ferry have formally applied for U.S. immigration, spurning efforts at permanent resettlement in France.

On Wednesday, negotiations with the recalcitrant refugees - who were to be resettled from military camps to apartments - remained deadlocked.

A group of 26 Albanians remained in a gymnasium near the town of Florange in eastern France, where they spent their second consecutive night instead of accepting apartments provided by the French government.

The dialogue is marked by a lack of comprehension and communicability, said Claude Pierret, a local official from nearby Thionville who was attempting to negotiate with the 26, including seven couples and two small children.

Talks were being held in Italian through a translator or in poor English.

The phrase used repeatedly by the Albanians is ''We want to go to America.''

Separately, a group of 34 Albanian refugees demonstrated outside the U.S. Embassy in Paris Wednesday for the second consecutive day to demand immigration visas, despite the fact that the embassy was closed for a French holiday.

Nearly 60 refugees from the same transit camp refused to accept new accommodations provided by the government, saying they did not want to be resettled in separate towns while waiting for their U.S. visa applications to be considered. But French officials said the camp at Emance had to be closed by Aug. 21.

French policy allows the refugees the freedom to live and travel as they please, but most of the refugees have little money and do not speak French diminishing their options.

The government started the resettlement of refugees into new accommodations Monday to begin their integration into French society, officials said.

Earlier this month about 90 refugees were blocked by French police after they began marching from their camp in Mourmelon in eastern France toward the American Embassy.

The refugees were intercepted by police after having walked 4 miles in the scorching sun and taken back to their camp.

The U.S. Embassy said at the time it was ''prepared to accept as refugees those Albanians that have identifiable ties to the U.S.''

U.S. officials said that while the processing of applications of people who do have a claim would take about six to eight months, those rejected would be notified by Sept. 12.

INGLEWOOD, CA. (AUG. 15) UPI - Michael Cooper, a fierce defender and one of the remaining links to the Lakers' championship teams, was waived by Los Angeles Wednesday in a move to grant the 32-year-old guard's wish to play in Italy.

Cooper, an overachiever in his 12 years with the Lakers, must clear the NBA's 48-hour waivers before he can sign a 3-year, $5 million contract with Il Messaggero Roma of the Italian League. He had one year remaining on his Los Angeles contract.

The Il Messaggero contract calls for payments of $1.6 million, 1.7 million and $1.8 million over the next three seasons.

Cooper played on five Lakers championship teams in the 1980s. His best season was 1981-82 when he averaged 11.9 points.

#90227u1935 08/15/1990 ~United Press International

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - Stocks closed slightly higher Wednesday, buoyed by a sense of relief that tensions in the Middle East have not escalated dramatically.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 0.99 Tuesday, rose another 0.50 to 2748.27.

Advances led declines, 889-628. A total of 1,991 NYSE issues were traded. Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index rose 0.44 to 186.54. The price of an average share rose 8 cents.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up 0.67 to 340.06. Volume amounted to 135,210,000 shares, up slightly from 130,320,000 traded Tuesday.

The market had been oversold and due for a reaction after the declines in recent weeks, said Eugene Peroni Jr., chief technical analyst at Janney Montgomery Scott in Philadelphia.

"The market had a bit of a respite, if not a reprieve, from all the external bugaboos that have been haunting it," he said, citing the Middle East crisis, the troubled savings and loan industry and disappointing corporate earnings. "So many of these things appeared to be influential in the downdraft," he said.

A sense of relief that the Middle East has not erupted into an all-out war helped fuel the stock market, said Jeff Kaminsky, head of institutional sales trading at Mabon, Nugent & Co.

Also supporting the rally was optimism about the visit to Washington by Jordan's King Hussein, he said. "It's taken a little bit of the tension out of the market," Kaminsky said. "The market is up for psychological reasons more than anything else," he said. "Market participants perceive the dialogue that's going on as constructive."

Although prices closed higher, they fell off morning highs following a slide in the bond market, analysts noted. Bonds slowed after getting a boost from the Federal Reserve report showing U.S. industrial production unchanged in July on a sharp decline in the manufacturing of cars, vans and trucks.

Private economists had predicted a small increase in production, and also noted the data was collected before the Middle East crisis. Higher oil prices are likely to send the production rate tumbling, they said.

The stock market is operating in a two-tier mode, showing some sectors of the economy are suffering while others are prospering because of Iraq or other factors, Peroni noted. So-called recession-proof stocks such as food are strong, while others such as automobile manufacturers are weaker, he said.

On the trading floor, Wal-Mart Stores was the most active, down 1/4 to 30 1/4. Ambase Corp. followed, plunging 4 3/4 to 2 3/4. The company announced Tuesday it has agreed to sell its home insurance subsidiary and said it was unlikely, based on the anticipated proceeds, it could pay a previously announced dividend. United Telecommunications was third, up 7/8 to 27 1/8.

Procter & Gamble rose 3/4 to 83 1/2, Colgate added 3/8 to 69 1/4, and Conagra gained 3/8 to 34 3/4. General Motors lost 3/8 to 39 7/8, while Ford Motor Co. was up 1/8 to 38 1/8.

Among the blue chips, AT&T rose 1/4 to 35 1/4, General Electric lost 7/8 to 66 1/8, and American Express lost 3/8 to 26 5/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 161,142,570 shares, up from 160,914,500 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices were higher on the American Stock Exchange. The Amex Market Value index rose 0.70 to 340.64. Advances led declines 289-271 among the 797 issues traded. The price of an average share gained three cents. Composite volume totaled 16,662,400 shares vs. 18,050,200 traded Tuesday. ENSCO led the Amex actives, off 1/4 to 4 3/4.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index closed up 1.12 to 411.45.

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - A free-falling dollar plunged to yet another record intraday low against the German mark Wednesday in New York trading as global investors lacking confidence in the U.S. economy voted with their feet.

But the U.S. currency rallied from its low of 1.5540 deutsche marks later in the session, as market participants bought back in to cover their short dollar positions - trading commitments made to sell the unit.

"One-fifty-five deutsche marks this morning!" said Michael McGuinness, a vice president for currency with Harris Trust & Savings Bank in Chicago, voicing astonishment. "People cannot comprehend 1.55 deutsche marks."

The price of 1.5540 marks, at which the dollar changed hands, was yet another record trading low for the dollar. Tuesday the dollar hit 1.5612 marks, its lowest price since Germany's postwar mark was created in 1948.

Late in the New York session the dollar was quoted at 1.5650 German marks, up a bit from 1.5645 marks the previous day. Against Japan's currency the dollar traded at 147.60 yen, off from 148.70 late Tuesday.

The dollar mainly recovered on technical short-covering, but it also got some help from rumors suggesting trouble in the Gulf. But traders said the dollar's "safe-haven" attraction, whereby investors traditionally piled into it as the best financial refuge, was a thing of the past.

"We're coming back to (economic) fundamentals on the U.S. dollar ... there's not a compelling reason to hold dollars," commented Abigail Cook, a foreign exchange vice president with the Hongkong & Shanghai Banking Corp.

"Most people have felt that with the mark they can get a little bit more bang for their investment," she explained. "What people are looking for is safety in their investment, and also a higher interest rate."

Other New York dollar rates: 1.3055 Swiss francs, up from 1.3015; 5.2410 French francs, off from 5.2535; and 1,149 lire, off from 1,156. The British pound moved up to $1.90 from $1.8985.

In Europe, the dollar slid to a record Continental low against the mark and also lost ground against the other European currencies.

Traders said the dollar came under renewed selling pressure after a series of indicators hinted the U.S. may be headed for a recession.

"The weak U.S. economy is pushing the dollar lower," said currency analyst Klaus Elsner with Deutsche Bank in Frankfurt.

The dollar ended in Frankfurt at 1.5585 German marks from 1.5705 Tuesday. The previous record was 1.5630 marks, set in January 1987.

Buyers shunned the dollar in favor of the Swiss franc and German mark despite the ongoing Persian Gulf crisis, analysts said. "There is an anti-dollar feeling," said Andy Baxter, chief dealer with Bank of America in London. "People don't feel they're getting a good return."

The U.S. unit continued to slide toward an all-time low in Zurich, closing at 1.3020 Swiss francs from 1.3140. It reached its lowest-ever level against the Swiss franc Dec. 31, 1987 when it slipped to 1.2750.

In London, the pound sterling rose to its highest point against the dollar in over two years at $1.9025 against $1.8945. The pound last advanced above the $1.90 point in April of 1988. Markets in Paris, Brussels and Milan were closed for public holidays.

Earlier in Tokyo, the dollar fell against the yen on news that talks were called between President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein. The dollar closed at 147.85 yen, off more than two yen from Tuesday's 149.90 yen.

Gold prices plunged as investors took profits on the strong rises seen since late last week. Gold ended off $13.50 in Zurich at $398.50 an ounce, vs. $412 Tuesday. In London it was at $403 an ounce vs. $409.875.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $402.50 an ounce, off from $405 an ounce Tuesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $402.60 an ounce, down from $404.80.

Silver also fell, closing in Zurich at $5.10 an ounce against $5.25 Tuesday, and to $5.12 an ounce against $5.27 in London.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.09 an ounce, off from $5.21. Comex silver closed at $5.068 an ounce, down from $5.191.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - State Department officials confirmed that an American woman and her 10-year-old daughter were shot and killed in Riyadh Saudi Arabia, officials said Wednesday.

A spokesman for the State Department Task Force on Kuwait said, ''This was a tragic incident related to a criminal case and unrelated to the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.''

According to the State Department, Kimberly Hinkson and her daughter, Courtney, were shot when a criminal trying to flee Saudi police opened fire.

The State Department said the Saudi police have been investigating the case and cooperating with American officials.

According to a friend of the family, the Hinksons had lived in Saudi capital city of Riyadh, where Kimberly Hinkson's husband, Kent, was working as a computer expert for the past four years. The family was scheduled to leave Saudi Arabia in two weeks and had already bought a home in Provo, Utah.

Kent Hinkson told the friend, in a telephone call from the U.S. Embassy in Saudi Arabia, that his wife and daughter were shot in an apparent kidnap attempt. He said he suffered a minor bullet wound to the head and his 3-year-old daughter escaped injury.

BURGESS, VA. (AUG. 15) UPI - A Navy A-6E Intruder fighter-bomber crashed 35 miles south of Maryland's Paxtuxent Naval Air Station Wednesday, killing one crew member and critically injuring another, the Navy said.

The plane, which had taken off from Paxtuxent, crashed and burst into flames in a field along State Route 360 in Virginia's Northumberland County.

The injured flyer - who apparently parachuted from the disabled craft - was taken by Virginia State Police helicopter to the Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. The flyer was reported in critical but stable condition.

The other crew member apparently was killed in the crash.

Navy spokesman Fred Bradshaw said in a telephone interview from Paxtuxent no identities would be released until relatives were notified.

The all-weather, night-attack aircraft has been the Navy's standard carrier-based plane since the '60s and saw extensive use in the Vietnam war. It is capable of carrying seven tons of ordnance.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - Energy Secretary James Watkins said Wednesday increased U.S. production and greater conservation could yield 550,000 extra barrels of oil a day within six months, nearly offsetting the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti supplies.

In an effort to ''damp out speculation'' about possible oil shortages that could push prices up, Watkins held a news conference to announce industry plans to boost Alaskan oil production and government-orchestrated efforts to reduce U.S. oil consumption by utilities as well as average Americans.

Watkins also said the Energy Department would work with Chevron and local officials in Santa Barbara, Calif., to resolve a dispute holding up the flow of oil from the completed Port Arguello offshore platform.

And he said the government would increase purchases of ''gasohol'' - a mixture of 90 percent gasoline and 10 percent grain alcohol - to reduce use of oil. He said the move was in response to a promise by gasohol companies to increase production.

Overall, Watkins said the increased domestic oil and gasohol production, along with reduced utility demand, could provide an additional 270,000 barrels of oil a day within six months.

Otherwise, Watkins said average Americans held the key to reducing U.S. oil consumption, largely through more careful automobile maintenance and driving practices that he said could save 280,000 barrels of oil a day.

For example, he said maintaining proper tire pressure could save 100,000 barrels of oil a day; obeying posted speed limits, 50,000 barrels; for two-car households, using the more fuel-efficient car, worth 40,000 barrels if 20 percent of America's two-car families comply; joining a car-pool, worth 90,000 barrels assuming a 20 percent increase.

While acknowledging some uncertainty over the success of such measures, Watkins expressed hope the nation could, by early 1991, substantially offset the loss of 600,000 to 700,000 barrels of oil a day that was being imported from Iraq and Kuwait before Baghdad overran its neighbor.

Watkins said Energy Department officials had been working round the clock to ease oil supply worries, but denied the situation is an energy crisis.

Rather, he said the department was responding to President Bush's call last week to Americans to help the campaign against Iraq by reducing U.S. dependence on foreign oil.

''This is a time when we ought to be doing things at home to minimize the impact of what's going on over there,'' Watkins told reporters. ''It's a prudent move.''

While Bush banned imports of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil and has called on Americans to conserve, he has raised some eyebrows by cruising around his Maine oceanfront home in his speedboat, Fidelity, which guzzles about 25 gallons of gas an hour. On Wednesday, gas for boats at Chick's Marina in Kennebunkport was going for $1.55 a gallon, up 15 cents since the Iraqi invasion.

In addition to the 280,000 barrel-a-day conservation target for average Americans, Watkins said an additional 270,000 barrels a day in savings could be achieved with these measures:

-A promise by Atlantic Richfield Co., British Petroleum and Exxon to immediately increase production from Alaska's North Slope by 50,000 barrels a day. They also pledged to use new extraction techniques that eventually could boost output by another 90,000 barrels a day, though that might not be feasible within the short term.

-A joint effort with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission to remove regulatory barriers to fuel switching by utilities from oil to coal or natural gas. Federal officials hope state utility commissions will allow such fuel-switching even if it raises customer bills a little. The department estimates fuel-switching could save 100,000 barrels a day.

-Work to get the Port Arguello platform into production, which Watkins said could yield 75,000 barrels a day.

-Relaxation of state limits on drilling, known as ''allowable'' rules. Watkins said talks were under way with Texas and other officials in hopes of increasing production by 30,000 barrels a day.

-The increased federal use of gasohol, which could replace 10,000 barrels a day.

-Increased production from the Energy Department's Naval Petroleum Reserve of about 5,000 barrels a day.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - A German doctor and a Spanish colleague were indicted Wednesday on charges of conspiring to smuggle munitions, including thousands of armor-piercing missiles and poison-gas artillery shells, to Iraq, Iran and Libya.

The two were arrested Monday in Orlando, Fla., by Customs Service agents who began their investigation, dubbed ''Operation Dragon,'' last year after getting a tip from an official of a strategic technology company, Customs Commissioner Carrol Hallett told a news conference.

John Kelley, director of Customs' strategic investigations office, said ''Operation Dragon'' was continuing and that at least two other people, a German and a Spaniard still in Europe, were involved in the plot. Customs officials said no munitions actually were exported.

If convicted, Dr. Claus Fuhler, 33, who Kelley identified as a German eye doctor residing in Barcelona, Spain, faces up to 10 years in prison and a $500,000 fine. Juan Martin Peche-Koesters, 36, of Madrid, Spain, faces up to 15 years in prison and a $750,000 fine.

''Merchants of death who sell high-tech, highly destructive weapons to irresponsible parties are just as guilty as those who may pull the triggers that loose death and destruction upon innocent persons,'' Attorney General Dick Thornburg said in announcing the three-count indictment in Orlando.

Hallett described the men, who worked on a 15 percent commission, as ''obviously motivated by greed.'' She did not know if they had political motivations, but added that U.S. officials would contact German and Spanish officials to find out more about the suspects.

In a conspiracy that began July 4 of last year, the Europeans planned to ship the munitions through Spain, identifying the arms in invoices as drilling equipment, Customs Service officials said.

In one of the many letters sent to U.S. informants and agents, Fuhler told them that the conspirators would refer to the munitions as ''toys,'' the indictment said.

The first count of the indictment charges the men with seeking to arrange the export of 10,000 armor-piercing TOW missles and 20,000 artillery shells, half of them capable of releasing poison gas upon impact, for use by Iraq, Iran or another Arab country. The purchase price was $160 million Hallett said.

The second count charges them with conspiring to export TOWs to Libya and the third alleges they conspired to export rifles, mortars, demolition charges, mines, pistols and Toyota jeeps with 106mm artillery guns to an Arab country. The TOWs cost $3.7 million and the other equipment $860,000, Hallett said.

The third count said Peche-Kosters informed the agents Feb. 5 that they had agreed to buy the other equipment from another source.

Despite the ability of the men to find other suppliers for some of the goods, Hallett hailed the case as a ''perfect example'' of how government-industry cooperation can prevent illegal exports.

While acknowledging ''there is much that slips past us,'' she said Customs was succeeding in preventing illegal weapons shipments, pointing to this year's seizure in England of nuclear triggers bound for Iraq as a prime example.

DETROIT (AUG. 15) UPI - Tentative price lists issued by several General Motors Corp. divisions Wednesday show the giant automaker is raising base prices aggressively on several 1991-model car lines despite a published estimate last week of a 2.3 percent increase when compared with similarly equipped 1990 models.

A spokesman for GM's Cadillac luxury car division said base prices will climb as high as 10 percent on its most popular car line, the Sedan de Ville, from $27,705 to $30,455. However, he said many expensive extras like anti-lock brakes have been made standard for 1991.

Cadillac's Allante roadster finally cracked the $60,000 mark despite a history of slower-than-anticipated sales. Its base price rose 4.8 percent to $60,800 for 1991 when equipped with the removeable hardtop.

GM's Buick division posted base price increases ranging from 1.8 percent on its Skylark sedan ($10,725 vs. $10,535 in late 1990), to 5.8 percent on its Riviera coupe ($24,560 vs. $23,205).

GM's Oldsmobile division raised base prices as high as 13.8 percent, with its Cutlass Calais SL sedan getting the highest increase ($15,095 vs. $13,265).

Full price comparisons from GM's Pontiac division were not immediately available, although figures indicate base prices on its Trans Sport minivan rose as much as 3.6 percent on the SE model($18,889 vs. $18,245), while its Bonneville sedans rose as much as 6.2 percent for the SE Sedan ($20,464 vs $19,264).

A full list of prices from GM's Chevrolet division was also not immediately available. But the Lumina, its least expensive mid-sized sedan was increased by 4.3 percent to $12,870.

GM announced last Friday its 1991 car prices would tentatively rise an average 2.3 percent, or $389, while its light trucks will rise 2.9 percent or $499 from 1990 levels.

But like other automakers, industry leader GM calculates those increases on a comparably-equipped basis - meaning it is including in those prices many features that cost extra for 1990. In fact, its Cadillac division said its prices are up by only 0.3 percent to 6 percent when measured that way.

GM has argued that comparing base prices is an invalid exercise, since most buyers order extra-cost features anyway. But base prices often form a starting point for buyers looking at several brands, and the degree of change often indicates whether a car is selling well or not.

GM also said that for 1991, it has lowered the cost of many of extra-cost options grouped together in packages. But that means some consumers are forced to buy more features than they really need.

Several analysts say GM's price adjustments may be a moot point anyway, since rebates averaging more than $1,000 a car, low-rate financing offers, and the age-old art of haggling for the best deal may negate any increases intended to cover higher material and manufacturing costs.

GM has vowed to raise its share of the U.S. vehicle market, but only if it can be done profitably.

Intensified competition from both No. 2 Detroit carmaker Ford Motor Co. and Asian carmakers, as well as self-inflicted problems with quality, caused GM's share to plummet nearly 10 percent during the last decade.

Lately, however, GM has started to show some scant gains as it unveils a barrage of all new or substantially redesigned products. Its overall slice of the domestic car and truck market rose one-tenth of a point during the past six months, to 35.6 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - William Farley, president of Chicago-based Fruit of the Loom Inc., said Wednesday he has sold 3.75 million shares in the company to a foreign investor.

Land Free Investment Ltd., a corporation organized under the laws of the United Kingdom's Isle of Guernsey, paid $43.1 million, or $11.50 a share, for the Class A common stock under a stock purchase agreement dated August 13, according to a filing Farley made with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

While Farley will continue to control 53.6 percent of the voting power of Fruit of the Loom, the stock purchase agreement lowers his actual holdings in the company to 11.7 million shares of common stock, which represents 27.3 percent of the company's outstanding shares.

On the American Stock Exchange, the price of Fruit of the Loom stock rose $1.125 in heavy trading Wednesday, closing at $12.625 a share.

Farley's holdings include 327,000 shares of Fruit of the Loom Class A common stock, 3.2 million shares of Class B common stock and an additional 8.2 million shares of Class B stock that Farley owns through Farley Inc., Fruit of the Loom's parent company.

Farley and Farley Inc. have been struggling under a heavy debt load incurred in the company's April 1989 acquisition of bed linen manufacturer West Point-Pepperell.

As part of the Land Free deal, Farley also concluded a put option agreement that grants Land Free the right to sell the shares back to Farley for $15.54 a share next July under certain conditions.

Simultaneously, Land Free has granted Farley a call option that allows him under certain conditions, to buy the shares from Land Free next summer for $15.44 a share.

The two sides also concluded a registration rights agreement that requires Fruit of the Loom to register Land Free's 3.75 million shares of stock with the SEC next March, along with 2.5 million shares of Farley's Class B stock that he has pledged as collateral for the put option.

Under federal securities laws, stock must be registered before it is sold on the open market.

(AUG. 15) UPI - Oil sources say Saudi Arabia will cut its oil deliveries to U-S companies and other large customers next month. The cuts will total 15 to 20 percent. Saudi Arabia is the world's largest oil exporter. The West had looked to Saudi Arabia to make up for the four-Million barrels a day lost because of the U-N embargo of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil.

U-N Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar says a new offer from Iraq is welcome as a way of implementing a 1987 U-N peace plan for Iran and Iraq. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein offered today to withdraw troops from land captured from Iran. Perez de Cuellar says he has ordered U-N observers on the border to help with the withdrawal and also to help in a suggested prisoner exchange.

(AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush warned Iraq Wednesday that ''no one should doubt our staying power or determination,'' while Iraqi President Saddam Hussein surprised Iran with a peace offer in a desperate bid for Arab support in the Persian Gulf.

Saddam, spurned by most of his Arab allies after invading Kuwait, tried to neutralize Western ''evil forces'' and secure his eastern flank in the peace offer to Iran which followed a 1988 cease-fire in their bitter 8-year war.

Saddam's proposal, including a prisoner exchange and a withdrawal of troops from border areas, came as Jordan's King Hussein arrived in the United States with a Jordanian-Iraqi plan for solving the Persian Gulf crisis.

An Arab diplomat said the plan called for an international conference to settle the gulf dispute, provided no more troops are sent into the area.

Bush, who plans to meet with Hussein Thursday, has warned that Jordan may be undermining efforts to enforce a U.N.-ordered trade embargo that was imposed against Iraq after Baghdad invaded and occupied Kuwait Aug. 2 in an oil and border dispute. Thousands of Iraqi troops now are massed on the Saudi border, prompting the deployment of a multinational force dominated by U.S. troops.

Bush, in an address to some 2,000 employees at the Pentagon, defended the U.S. military presence in Saudi Arabia and the gulf and called it ''one of the most important deployments of allied military power'' since World War II.

''No one should doubt our staying power or our determination,'' Bush said. ''It is about keeping our word - our solemn world of honor - and standing by old friends.''

Meanwhile, the aircraft carrier USS Kennedy, accompanied by five other warships, left Wednesday for the Middle East. The Kennedy would be the forth U.S. carrier dispatched to the region.

Bush also is considering mobilizing the military reserves to help fill in domestically for the tens of thousands of active-duty men and women sent to the Middle East, Pentagon officials said Wednesday.

The president can call up to 200,000 reservists for up to 180 days without prior congressional approval, the Pentagon said.

In Iraq's four-point proposal to Iran, broadcast on state-run Baghdad radio, Saddam offered to start withdrawing his troops from border positions within 48 hours if Iran accepted the plan.

Apparently referring to the U.S. troop buildup in the Middle East, Saddam said improved Iran-Iraq ties ''will open the way for serious interaction with all (Moslem) believers for confronting evil forces which are after harming Moslems and the Arab nation.''

U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Ceullar hailed Iraq's offer as a ''major new development'' toward implementing a 1987 U.N. peace plan.

Iranian officials were reported to have been privately ''overjoyed'' with Baghdad's proposal, but reserved any official comment until they could examine the full text of the Iraqi offer.

Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati said the Iraqi president's letter was handed to an Iranian official at Ahwaz, near the Iraqi border, but the document had not reached Tehran by late Wednesday.

Both sides have maintained thousands of troops along their 750-mile joint border, which a small U.N. force of some 300 men has patrolled since 1988. Although they have exchanged accusations of breaking the cease-fire, U.N. officials have not reported any major violations.

News that Iraq might be willing to negotiate a settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis sent the Tokyo stock market Wednesday rocketing to its second-biggest one-day rally of the year, rebounding from its recent drop after Japan agreed to abide by the embargo. But the talk of peace also prompted a flurry of dollar-selling in Europe and Japan. In Frankfurt, the dollar plunged to a record postwar low of 1.5625 German marks.

The Pentagon said 45,000 heavily armed Marines were arriving in Saudi Arabia to confront Iraq in Operation Desert Shield, joining 26,000 U.S. troops already in the oil-rich kingdom as of Tuesday.

The U.S. Air Force's fleet of cargo jets and tankers is running at full throttle to get men and weaponry into Saudi Arabia. But the operation is taxing the system and Air Force officials, who rely heavily on charter flights for troops to make more cargo planes available to bring in military equipment.

In Saudi Arabia, Brig. Gen. Turk Bin Nasser, a member of the Saudi royal family, said his own forces had no qualms about fighting fellow Arabs should Iraqi troops attack the kingdom.

''We would not like to see Arabs fighting Arabs, but if we have to we will do it,'' the general told reporters in a military pool.

The official also discounted Iraq's ability to hit populated Saudi areas with chemical weapons and said many of the command responsibilities of the growing multinational defense force in Saudi Arabia remain unresolved.

The Iraqi government, meanwhile, tightened its grip on foreigners, including an estimated 3,000 Americans stranded in Iraq and Kuwait, indicating they would not be permitted to leave until the crisis is resolved. But the State Department continued to resist calling them hostages.

In Kuwait, some of the bravest resistance to the Iraqi occupation came from groups of women protesting in the streets, The Washington Post reported.

A Post correspondent saw about 60 women demonstrate Aug. 6 in the Rumaithiya neighborhood of Kuwait City. No Iraqi troops were present.

''We don't want Iraq. We don't want Saddam,'' one woman said.

Another woman said, ''All women of Kuwait are resenting this (invasion). They are protesting this.''

The report said Iraqi troops had begun firing at the women and cited one unconfirmed account that four people, including a 16-year-old girl, had died of injuries received during an Aug. 8 protest in the Jabiriya neighborhood.

Iraqi troops are stationed at government installations and most hotels in the capital. Soldiers have placed tanks beside the beach and anti-aircraft guns near the city, the newspaper said.

Refugees reported widespread cases of looting in banks, gold shops and homes.

Thousands of priceless Persian carpets and other valuables in the palace of the emir were being removed by trucks to Iraq, the refugees said.

In Cairo, Kuwait's exiled foreign minister said Iraqi occupation troops would have to blow up the whole building to get at millions of dollars worth of gold in the safes of Kuwait's central bank, the Egyptian Gazette said.

''Even if the Iraqis decided to blow up the bank's safe, which contains 150 million dinars ($450 million) worth of gold, the central bank's building would sink in the gulf water as the building is designed this way '' Kuwaiti Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabbah was quoted as saying.

A gulf Arab government official in the United Arab Emirates said any Iraqi move to defuse tension in the region was welcome, but warned Baghdad against trying to use ''an Iranian card'' against gulf Arabs.

Syria, meanwhile, was ''extremely concerned'' about a possible rapprochement between Iraq, its arch ideological foe, and Iran, its ally, an Arab envoy said.

Since the suspension of the gulf war and the death of Iranian leader Ayatollah Khomeini, Iran has eased its anti-Western rhetoric. Iran's pragmatist president, Hojatoleslam Ali Akbar Rafsanjani, has made it clear his priority is revamping his country's war-shattered economy.

As part of their enforcement of the U.N.-mandated trade embargo, U.S. and British ships patrolled the waters of the gulf, under orders to interdict Iraqi shipping. A British frigate has challenged a Cypriot oil tanker thought to be carrying Iraqi oil. Two Iraqi tankers also were turned away from the United Arab Emirates.

The U.S. and British actions were criticized by other U.N. members, and Washington agreed Tuesday to discuss coordinating military actions with its U.N. Security Council partners.

The United States, with 55 warships sent to the region, maintains it has the military and legal authority to board vessels suspected of violating the economic boycott.

France said its naval forces would not seize Iraqi cargo ships at sea because such a measure would constitute an act of war.

Besides foreign warships already in the gulf, Belgium, Italy and Britain announced they were sending nine ships to the Mediterranean. Greece also placed its naval facilities at the disposal of West Germany to enable it to station a squadron of minesweepers off the East Mediterranean island of Crete. Three British minesweepers were expected to arrive in about three weeks.

Saudi Arabia also was asking for military assistance from Indonesia and Malaysia, a Saudi diplomat said in Jakarta.

Iraq has called any naval blockade illegal. The Iraqi newspaper Al Jumhuriya said Saddam's forces know how to penetrate a blockade and would ''make (U.S.) troops taste death if they attack.''

Jordan is permitting its Red Sea port of Aqaba to allow in limited shipments of food and other material, which is then sent to Iraq by truck convoy. A Norwegian ship's captain said he was forced by Jordanian police to unload Iraq-bound grain from his vessel in Aqaba, news reports in Oslo said Tuesday.

Sources said shipping into the port had diminished Wednesday and there was no new cargo to unload.

Jordan, Iraq's neighbor to the west, is caught between demands from the West to enforce the embargo and pressure from Baghdad to keep access open for Iraq to the port of Aqaba.

Bush said Tuesday it may be necessary to intercept ships bound for Jordan to sever Iraq's economic lifeline. ''If it's a hole through which commerce flows in an otherwise tight net, I would certainly think that Aqaba should be closed to Iraqi commerce,'' he said.

In reaction to the volatile situation in the region, Jordan has called on its citizens to conserve water, build bomb shelters and maintain adequate food.

Meanwhile, Saudi Arabia will substantially cut deliveries to U.S. oil companies and other large customers next month in a reallocation of its oil exports that could eventually affect petroleum prices, U.S. industry sources said Wednesday.

''They're cutting back September liftings by 15 to 20 percent in order to reallocate their barrels,'' said one source who requested anonymity.

Saudi Arabia is the largest foreign supplier of crude oil to the United States, accounting for about 19 percent of U.S. oil imports.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 15) UPI - The Securities and Exchange Commission said Wednesday that 12 former officers and associates of ZZZZ Best, the corporate shell that masqueraded as a carpet cleaning empire, have agreed to permanent injunctions against violating securities laws.

The dozen included Barry Minkow, the whiz-kid founder of ZZZZ Best who was convicted of 57 counts of fraud and conspiracy and sentenced in March 1989 to 25 years in prison. Five of the others have been convicted of fraud and received sentences ranging from 60 days to eight years.

ZZZZ Best collapsed in 1987 after having obtained loans and making stock offerings to the tune of about $26 million, based on phony estimates by the company that it was producing annual revenues of $43 million.

The SEC said the injunctions stemmed from its investigation into fraudulent conduct in the company's 1986 filings for a $15 million public offering, included these misrepresentrations:

-That the company said it had generated $5 million in revenues in 1986 from its insurance restoration business, which was actually non-existent.

-That the company said it had bought 22 generators worth $2 million, which were actually worth $600,000.

-That ZZZZ Best failed to disclose that the company that bought the generators on behalf of ZZZZ Best, 4Z, and the company that sold them were both owned by the same person, Maurice Rind. The SEC said the filings did not disclose that Rind had received $700,000 in compensation for arranging the deal.

-That a company owned by one of the ZZZZ Best directors had sold equipment to the company for more than $1 million during 1986, when in fact neither the company nor the equipment existed.

Karen Matteson, a senior SEC trial attorney, said the injunctions enable the agency to seek stiff criminal penalties if the individuals violate securities laws again.

She also said that when an individual agrees to an injunction, it does not constitute an admission of guilt.

The SEC said that in connection with the investigation and the injunctions it had filed a federal lawsuit in Los Angeles against the 12 people who agreed to the injunctions.

Besides Minkow, the defendants are: former ZZZZ Best officers Bruce T. Anderson, Charles Arrington III and Mark Morze; former board members Hal Berman, Daniel Krowpman, Harold Lipman and Neal Dem; and former ZZZZ Best suppliers Henry Kitsch, Edward Krivda, Thomas Padgett and Robert Victor.

The SEC said that it has also sued Rind and Mark Roddy, who posed as a supplier of insurance restoration projects to ZZZZ Best. Neither has agreed to an injunction.

The SEC is also seeking $700,000 from Rind for the generators. Rind, who was described as a financial consultant to ZZZZ Best, was not immediately available for comment.

Arrington, Krivda, Krowpman, Morze, Padgett and Roddy have all been convicted in connection with the case.

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AUG. 15) UPI - US Sprint's major cost control effort, introduced after the company reported a second-quarter loss, held down costs last month, Chairman William Esrey told employees Wednesday.

In a letter addressed to colleagues, Esrey said the company's effort to reduce costs - including laying off up to 1,300 support and corporate employees systemwide - resulted in lower cost increases during July than in previous months.

Esrey attributed the successful cost containment effort to employees' individual efforts, but added that these efforts must continue during August, typically a slow growth month for Sprint.

Sprint on July 17 announced a $42 million net operating loss, including a one-time charge of $72 million, for the second quarter.

Esrey's letter said another welcome development at Sprint was ''marked growth'' in minutes of long distance use during July, higher than any other month during the year.

The Sprint chairman also addressed what he called widespread speculation about a revival of billing problems at the company.

''We have no fundamental billing problems,'' the letter said. ''We are currently transitioning our customer base to a new advanced invoice processing system, which delivers to our customers never before available management tools for running their businesses and households.''

Esrey said nearly all Sprint's residential customers and many of its small business customers were receiving the detailed bills.

''US Sprint is currently billing its customers on time and well within accepted industry standards,'' he wrote.

The company's ''force realignment'', Esrey said, is essential but painful.

The Sprint chairman said his letter was intended to reassure employees that their ''confidence in Sprint is well founded''. Esrey said he was concerned that ''overreaction'' and negative publicity surrounding Sprint's second-quarter earnings announcement ''did not focus on the underlying strength of our company.''

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AUG. 15) UPI - Dominican workers ended their general strike Wednesday following two days of protests that left 13 people dead and at least 60 wounded, with more than 1,000 demonstrators arrested.

Organizers called off the scheduled two-day strike but warned they would call another if President Joaquin Balaguer does not change the government's new economic policies.

Thirteen people, including a 12 year old, were killed by military and police gunfire. The victims were identified by police and hospitals.

At least 60 people were reported wounded, many of whom were being treated Wednesday at hospitals across the country.

Virtudes Alvarez, a spokeswoman for the strike organizing committee, accused the police and the army of firing indiscriminately on demonstrators. Alvarez charged that a number of those killed were dragged from their homes and shot.

Police Chief Jose Ramon Mota Paulino said the 13 were killed in violent outbreaks instigated by strike organizers. ''The forces of order had no intention of firing against civilians,'' he said.

Nelsida Marmolejos, a deputy for the Dominican Liberation Party and a union leader, said: ''The strike is finished. We lifted it at at 6 in the morning satisfied that the people have triumphed.''

Marmolejos and Alvarez said the unions would call another strike, ''within a reasonable period,'' if the government does not go back on the so-called Economic Solidarity Pact signed last week with business leaders.

The strike organizing committee called on the government to set free all protesters detained by authorities during the strike. Police and the strike organizing committee said more than 1,000 people were arrested, mostly in the capital and other major cities.

Demands of the strikers include a 150 percent wage increase for workers and a monthly salary for professionals of at least 5,000 pesos, equivalent to $475. Professionals now make about $200 a month.

Last week, Balaguer increased prices for basic goods. He also raised wages by 30 percent for public employees, who were getting an average of $60 a month.

Juan Jose Arteaga, an adviser to Balaguer, said the economic measures will be maintained.

Balaguer is scheduled to start his a second four-year term Thursday.

CHICAGO (AUG. 15) UPI - Weber-Stephen Products Co. filed two law suits Wednesday charging Margaret Worldwide Merchandize Corp. and Ingood Co. Ltd., both of Taipei, Taiwan, of consumer fraud and trademark infringement.

The suits asked a federal judge to order the companies to stop selling the grills that are ''confusingly similar to Weber's Kettle'' grill.

The suit accused Margaret of making and selling copy-cat grills.

The Weber, as it's commonly known, was invented in 1955 by George Stephen. The bowl-shaped grill is better for conducting heat and preventing flare-ups than other designs, said the company, based in Palatine, Ill.

ATLANTA (AUG. 15) UPI - Former Atlanta Roman Catholic Archbishop Eugene Marino was moved from a church retreat near New York City to a psychiatriac hospital last week after attempting suicide, it was reported Wednesday.

WAGA-TV in Atlanta, quoting anonymous sources, said Marino was moved from the Trinity House church retreat near Larchmont, N.Y., to the St. Vincent's Hospital of Westchester, N.Y., after the unusccessful suicide attempt.

Father Peter Dora, the spokesman for the Atlanta Archdiocese, declined to comment, saying it was a private medical matter outside the jurisdiction of the archdiocese.

Marino resigned July 10 as the archbishop of the Atlanta archdiocese, citing personal and health problems. A short time later, it was revealed he had a two-year romantic relationship with Vicki Long, a 27-year-old single mother from suburban Riverdale.

Long has since been linked to sexual affairs with a nun and two other priests, one of whom she claimed fathered her daughter.

Last week Long traveled to Chicago to meet with talk show hostess Oprah Winfrey, and this week her picture and story appeared in several tabloids.

Long, meanwhile, was admitted Monday to the West Paces Ferry Hospital after complaining of abdominal pain. She was released Wednesday afternoon and returned to her Riverdale home.

Her physician, Dr. Reginald Fowler, said Tuesday that Long was undergoing tests to learn the cause of her stomach pains. Fowler said he believed the pain had physicial rather than psychologial origins. But Fowler added that ''any medical problem that has pain involved could have a psychological component.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 15) UPI - The jury in the rape and attempted murder trial of three youths accused of attacking a woman jogger in Central Park Wednesday appeared to be considering the final charges needed to reach a verdict.

In its seventh day of deliberations, the jury sent out notes asking to rehear the legal definitions of rape and sodomy. The 10-man, two-woman jury also asked to hear again the legal rules for determining guilt based on the theory of acting in concert.

Antron McCray, 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, are accused of gang raping and beating a 30-year-old investment banker in Central Park on April 19, 1989.

They are charged with joining as many as 30 other youths who who went ''wilding'' through the moonlit park - randomly beating and robbing victims.

Each is charged with 13 criminal counts - including attempted murder and rape - stemming from the attack on the female jogger and assaults on two male joggers.

The jury late Wednesday sent out two separate notes concerning the attempted murder count, the first requesting legal guidance on reaching a verdict on the charge.

Justice Thomas Galligan explained that the jury must find ''intent'' to commit murder, advising the jury to look at how badly the woman was beaten.

The jury then sent out the second note, asking for any testimony concerning the severity and number of blows to the jogger's head and torso.

The panel retired for the night at 6:45 p.m. and will resume its deliberations after the testimony is read back at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Earlier in the day, as the three teens fidgeted in their seats in state Supreme Court, the jurors listened intently to Justice Thomas Galligan's explanation of the legal requirements for reaching a guilty verdict.

On rape, Galligan said, the jury must find three things: there was penetration, ''however slight,'' the act occured ''without her consent'' and she was forced to comply through physical force or threat of force.

Under the theory of acting in concert, a person who completes 1 percent of an act is as guilty as one who undertakes 99 percent of it, the judge said. As an example, he referred to a bank robbery that involves a person who planned the crime, a lookout, a getaway driver and a gunman who carries it out.

''The planner and each of those who never went into the bank are equally guilty as the man who went into the bank to forcibly rob it,'' Galligan explained.

Both McCray and Santana gave police both written and videotaped confessions. Salaam made incriminating statements to a detective but did not sign a written confession or make a video.

McCray in his video said he climbed on top of the woman but claimed he feigned intercourse. Santana in his video said he knelt next to the woman and grabbed her breasts.

A detective testified that Salaam told him he hit the jogger twice with a pipe and felt her breasts.

WORCESTER, Mass. (AUG. 15) UPI - Wyman-Gordon Co. said Wednesday it has canceled plans to sell its automobile crankshaft forging and machining plants in Jackson, Mich., and Danville, Ill., to a British company.

The Worcester-based company signed a letter of intent in June with United Engineering Steels Ltd. of Rotherham, England. ''Since it became clear that final agreement could not be reached, further negotiations were terminated by mutual agreement,'' said Donald M. Tucker, vice president of law and administration for Wyman-Gordon.

''Price was part of it but there were a lot of issues and sticking points '' added F. James Walnista, a Wyman-Gordon spokesman. The company would not disclose its asking price or what UES offered.

''Sure, it's on the market,'' Walnista said, ''but for now we're just going back to operating them as we did before. We have no plans to go out and seek a buyer.''

He said the plans to sell to UES were part of the company's strategy, which has not changed, to ''devote our energies to aerospace.'' He said the plants probably would be sold eventually.

The Danville, Ill., factory forges crankshafts and employs about 230 workers and the Jackson, Mich., facility has 409 workers, Walnista said.

(AUG. 15) UPI - The State Department resists describing the estimated three-thousand U-S citizens in Iraq and Kuwait as ''hostages.'' But that word is becoming increasingly appropriate as Iraq tightens its control over the up to three-Million foreigners stranded by the Iraqi invasion. Iraq itself refers to those people as ''restrictees.''

President Bush gave a pep talk today at the Pentagon. His address was also aimed at criticism that he has NOT fully explained the reasons behind the U-S military deployment to Saudi Arabia. Bush said Operation Desert Shield- in his words- ''is about fighting aggression and preserving the sovereignty of nations.'' Bush said it's also ''about keeping our word- our solemn word of honor- and standing by old friends.''

Fire officials are worried that 23-thousand firefighters in the West may face greater risk of injuries or deaths as they get more fatigued. LOS ANGELES (AUG. 15) UPI - A man armed with a military-style rifle held up two FBI agents on a stake-out early Wednesday, taking one of their cars, police said.

The agents were in separate vehicles parked close by each other when the thief approached them about 12:30 a.m. near a McDonald's restaurant on Century Boulevard, police Cdmr. Willian Booth said.

The two agents escaped, but the thief drove off in one of their cars, a 1990 black Mustang.

Booth said the car contained ''at least a shotgun,'' a cellular telephone and a law enforcement radio.

FBI spokesman Fred Reagan declined to discuss the incident.

Police believe the suspect, described only as a black man in his 20s, had an accomplice, who was driving a 1979 gold Toyota.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 15) UPI - President Bush, rallying U.S. servicemen behind the sweeping American military action in the Persian Gulf, called on the nations of the world Wednesday to ''ensure that no goods get in and that not one drop of oil gets out'' of Saddam Hussein's Iraq.

On the eve of critical talks with King Hussein of Jordan, a country through which Saddam has reportedly been shipping supplies despite U.N.-ordered sanctions, Bush said, ''Our action in the gulf is about fighting aggression and preserving the sovereignty of nations.

''It is about keeping our word - our solemn word of honor - and standing by old friends,'' he added.

Bush, renewing his call on Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait, made the remarks at the Pentagon to some 2,000 Pentagon employees shortly after receiving a high-level briefing on the crisis in the gulf.

Telling the military personnel that they had launched over the past 10 days ''one of the most important deployments of allied military power since the second world war,'' Bush lashed out at the Iraqi president for the Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and pointed to his growing isolation.

''The American people are with us. Congress is with us. Our allies are with us. And the vast majority of the Arab people are with us,'' Bush declared. ''No one should doubt our staying power or our determination.''

Bush left Washington after the pep talk to return to his summer home at Kennebunkport, Maine, where his is to meet with Hussein, a longtime friend on Thursday. The president, who declared last week he would not let the crisis make him a prisoner in the White House, headed out for a round of golf in the afternoon and refused to answer questions about his upcoming meeting with the king.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater told reporters the U.S. side is ''willing to listen to (Hussein's) concerns and we're certainly eager to express our viewpoints and tell him what our policy is.''

Bush articulated the U.S. policy bluntly during his remarks at the Pentagon, saying, ''Sanctions are working. Ships of numerous countries are sailing with ours to see that the United Nations sanctions - approved without dissent - are enforced.

''And together we must ensure that no goods get in and that not one drop of oil gets out.''

Bush's call for concerted international action to support a tightly drawn quarantine against Iraq carried a special message for the Jordanian king, whose nation is torn between the Western blockade and the economic cost of halting trade with Iraq.

Hussein, carrying a peace plan he drafted with Saddam, arrived at Andrews Air Force Base outside Washington early Wednesday.

Bush said he was unaware what the two Arab neighbors plan to recommend, but maintainted that he wants Hussein to halt any and all Iraqi-bound shipments through Jordan. If he fails to do so, the president says, U.S. forces may.

After confering with King Hussein, Bush will meet in Kennebunkport with Saudi Arabian Foreign Minister, Prince Saud al Faisal, and Saudi Ambassador to the United States, Prince Bandar bin Sultan, the White House said.

On Tuesday, Bush said he does not believe that Saddam sees the Americans as shields against U.S. attacks. ''But it's a troubling situation when people are held against their will,'' he told a White House news conference.

ABC News, quoting sources in Iraq's foreign ministry in Baghdad, said Tuesday night that Iraq has labeled Americans in Iraq and Kuwait as ''restrictees'' who will not be allowed to leave until the crisis in the Persian Gulf is resolved.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said he was not familiar with the report and thus could not comment on it.

The president also offered no hope of a diplomatic solution soon to settle the showdown between Iraq and much of the world over Baghdad's Aug. 2 takeover of Kuwait.

''I don't see it right now,'' he said. ''But as (U.N.-backed economic) sanctions take effect - and it's going to take awhile - I would hope there would be a diplomatic solution.''

Hussein is a longtime U.S. friend, but he has also voiced support for Saddam, even calling him an ''Arab patriot.'' On Sunday, he telphoned Bush and asked for a face-to-face meeting to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis.

Bush readily agreed, and on Tuesday, he told reporters, ''It's going to be an interesting conversation.''

The president said he was concerned that Jordan may provide the means for Iraq to escape the full weight of a U.N.-mandated embargo, backed up by a de facto U.S. naval blockade.

Bush refused to pass judgment on reports of shipments of goods to Iraq through the Jordian port of Aqaba, but said any country that permitted such activity ''would be in violation of the sanctions.''

He said, ''If it's a hole through which commerce flows in an otherwise tight net, I would certainly think that Aqaba should be closed to Iraqi commerce.''

Asked about Hussein's charges Monday that the U.S. forces had created an ''explosive situation'' in the Middle East, Bush said, ''I don't agree with that.''

''I think we are there not to have the situation explosive, but to supplement fully what the United Nations has done in condemning this outrageous aggression'' by Iraq in its takeover of Kuwait, the president said.

Bush said Hussein made no mention in their telephone conversation Sunday of the peace plan he and Saddam drafted. On Sunday, Bush rejected a conditional peace initiative by Saddam as ''a replay of old positions.''

Hussein, torn between political loyalties and economic dependencies, has tried with limited success to find middle ground, alternately drawing the wrath of all sides.

A defensive Bush is now drawing some heat himself.

He said Tuesday that he believed the United States was correct in beginning unilateral naval blockade against Iraq Sunday, even though other nations have complained he should have sought help of other U.N. members first.

''I think we acted legally,'' the president said.

Regardless, the five permanent members of the U.N. Security Council agreed to discuss a Soviet suggestion to create a U.N. military command in the Persian Gulf for joint operations against Iraq.

The State Department recommended to the ambassadors of Britain, France, the Soviet Union and China that the meeting be convened at U.N. headquarters in New York no later than the end of this week.

Bush said he does not ''have any problems talking to the Soviets.'' But he said, ''I don't think it's essential to have a U.N. flag for countries to carry out their responsibilities.''

Amid fresh estimates that the buildup of U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia, which borders on Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, may exceed 100,000, Bush said Tuesday he still does not know how much the military operation will cost.

Some experts, however, have estimated that it is already costing millions of dollars a day, and the administration acknowledges that the expense may force revisions in budget plans.

Kuwait foreign minister, Saud al Sabah, met with Bush Tuesday and thanked the president for ''standing up to bullies and dictators.''

During a picture-taking session in the Oval Office, al Sabah also delivered a simple message: ''All we want is to free our country.''

CLEVELAND (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Ameritrust Corp. (NASDAQ:AMTR) announced that it is implementing a cost management program that is expected to lower expenses by $28 million in 1991 and $32 million in 1992.

The program involves a reduction in staffing levels of 780 employees corporate-wide, approximately 40 percent of which will be achieved through normal attrition and reduction in the use of temporary services, and the elimination or downsizing of certain non-strategic businesses.

In 1990, a restructuring charge of between $14 million to $18 million will be recorded and will be offset in whole or in part by reduced operating expenses and gains arising from extraordinary transactions. The restructuring charge includes the costs of transition benefits for displaced employees and will be recorded in the third quarter of this year.

''In order to continue to provide a high quality of service in a cost efficient manner, we are taking these actions after very extensive planning and consideration,'' said Jerry V. Jarrett, chairman and chief executive officer of Ameritrust. ''We have a history of treating displaced employees fairly, with comprehensive severance options and career transition programs, and we will be very sensitive to our employees' concerns and needs during this time.

Ameritrust is focusing on consumer banking, trust and investment management and relationship corporate banking, with emphasis on small and medium-sized companies in the Midwest. Areas being de-emphasized include non-relationship corporate lending, especially in the area of syndicated highly leveraged transactions, which will result in reduced revenues.

Ameritrust also announced yesterday that the Board of Directors had declared a regular dividend of 32 cents per common share, payable Sept. 7, 1990, to common stockholders of record at the close of business on Aug. 27 1990.

The Board of Directors of the lead bank also entered into an understanding with the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency which responds to regulatory concerns arising from the 1990 examination. The previously announced action plan adopted by the Board in July addresses the same issues.

BOULDER, CO (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Sterling-Rice Group, a Boulder-based marketing consulting firm, announced Thursday that they have been retained by four new clients.

In the past few weeks, Kraft General Foods, Curtice Burns Meat Snacks (formerly Lowery's), Earth Wise (a start-up by Mo Siegel, founder of Celestial Seasonings) and Boulder Sausage have hired SRG to perform a variety of marketing, new product development and advertising assignments.

Says Rick Sterling, president of SRG, ''We're pleased to be cultivating more business in the state of Colorado. Our focus has been on national consumer products companies and that typically means most of our business comes from out-of-state.''

Adds partner Michael Rice, ''It makes sense for us to develop a stronger business base locally. There are many important and progressive companies in this state.''

Sterling-Rice Group specializes in business development and assists a host of local and national consumer products companies. Other SRG clients are: American Lamb Council, Carnation, Ralston Purina, National Livestock and Meat Board, Keebler, Earth's Best Baby Food, and Interlocken among others.

MOORPARK, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Reflecting the rapid expansion of Moorpark, Calif.-based collectible car auction company Spectrum Vehicle Auctions, co-principals Kurt Hazard and Drew Donen announced Thursday that Holden Raphael has joined them as a partner and Nigel Thewlis has been made general manager.

Raphael, 37, of Calabasas, Calif., a long-time rare-car collector and industry expert, joined Spectrum in 1985 as a vice-president and was promoted to president a year later.

His responsibilities at Spectrum include sales force supervision, negotiation of business deals and liaison with large collections. As partner, Raphael takes an equal third share in the company. Married with one child, Raphael was formerly a record producer with Mercury Records and a multi-Platinum award winning musician.

Thewlis, 33, of Northridge, Calif., joined Spectrum in 1987 as the company's auction announcer. Thewlis was soon promoted to event coordinator, and in 1989 he was made vice-president.

As general manager, Thewlis is responsible for all auction administration, contract negotiation and advertising. Thewlis' previous experience and reputation as a dynamic public speaker for the National Notary Association brought him to Spectrum's attention.

Spectrum is the largest rare-car auction business on the West Coast. Last year, Spectrum put up for sale 5,000 cars worth $250 million and gained international notoriety as auctioneer for Zsa Zsa Gabor's Rolls, Jose Canseco's Jaguar, Reggie Jackson's ''muscle cars'' and Sylvester Stallone's ''urban assault vehicle.''

AKRON, OH (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Ohio Edison Co. said that the increase in revenues granted today by the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) is inadequate and unreasonable based on evidence presented during a year-long rate proceeding.

The rate increase is the first received by Edison in over two and a half years and includes costs associated with the company's share of Beaver Valley 2, which has been serving its customers since 1987. Edison said that the commission's decision will have a materially adverse effect on the company's financial results. Therefore, Ohio Edison's Board of Directors can be expected to examine the company's ability to maintain its current common stock dividend level. The third quarter common stock dividend is normally declared at the August meeting of Ohio Edison's Board of Directors, scheduled for Aug. 21, 1990.

The PUCO granted an 8.5 percent increase in revenues, or about $142 million. During the rate proceeding, Ohio Edison had proposed a three-step increase which would have kept rate increases at or below the expected inflation rate for four more years. That proposal would have increased revenues about 4.6 percent in 1990, 4.3 percent in 1991, 2.6 percent in 1992, and specified that there would be no further increase before 1994.

The Beaver Valley generating unit will help the company meet its customers' growing needs for electricity over the next 40 years or more and will enable Edison to rely less on its older, less-efficient generating units.

Before requesting the increase, Ohio Edison had initiated measures that significantly reduced the effect of Beaver Valley 2 on electric rates. For example, Edison negotiated a sale and leaseback of a large share of its ownership in the unit, secured sales agreements with other utilities, and achieved substantial reductions in the costs of payroll, financing and fuel.

Ohio Edison is now reviewing the PUCO's 115-page decision in detail. Under Ohio law, the company may request a hearing before the PUCO and ultimately could appeal the decision to the Ohio Supreme Court.

EMERYVILLE, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Cetus Corp. (NASDAQ: CTUS) announced Thursday that Robert A. Fildes has resigned as president and chief executive officer and as a director of the company.

The resignation resulted from differing views regarding the company's priorities. Ronald E. Cape has been named as chief executive officer and Hollings C. Renton has been elected as president and will continue as chief operating officer of the company. Fildes will provide continuing services to Cetus as a consultant.

"We will continue to build value in our pharmaceutical business and maximize our GeneAmp PCR technology," said Ronald E. Cape. "In the past, we have sought strategic relationships which contributed to our objectives and we now intend to pursue more aggressively alliances which will help us build our business and lower our risk."

The company also announced that it would reduce its workforce by approximately 100 people to lower its current operating expenses. Cetus currently employs 950 people worldwide.

Cetus has advanced various therapeutic products into human clinical testing, notably Proleukin interleukin-2 and Macrolin macrophagecolony stimulating factor. The company's broadly capable research and development organization has a variety of products in development and preclinical testing.

The company has a profitable generic chemotherapeutic venture business currently marketing doxorubicin and five other anticancer products in the United States. Cetus also operates a wholly owned European subsidiary, EuroCetus, which currently markets Proleukin in most Western European countries.

Cetus is noted for its development of GeneAmp polymerase chain reaction (PCR) technology, a method for rapidly amplifying genetic information. The company has embarked upon several commercial applications of the technology including a profitable research instrumentation and reagent venture with the Perkin-Elmer Corp., a diagnostics products and services arrangement with Hoffmann-La Roche, and a forensics product business.

Cape, a founder of Cetus, relinquished the chief executive officer title to Fildes in 1986 and continued as chairman. Renton joined the company in 1981 and was named vice president, finance in 1983.

He was promoted to executive vice president and chief financial officer in 1985 and was named chief operating officer in 1987. Fildes joined the company in 1982 as president and chief operating officer.

Cetus reported cash assets of $155 million at the close of its last fiscal year ended June 30, 1990. Founded in 1971, Cetus Corp. is headquartered in Emeryville, and also operates EuroCetus in Amsterdam, Netherlands.

SUNNYVALE, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Western Microwave Inc. (NASDAQ:WMIC) Thursday announced operating results for the third quarter of fiscal 1990 (the three months ended July 1, 1990). The results are:

(In thousands, except per-share data, unaudited)

	Three Months Ended		Nine Months Ended
	7-01-90	7-02-89	7-01-90	7-02-89
Sales	$1,461	$2,277	$6,520	$7,455
Loss before tax provision	(316)	(311)	(626)	(524)
Net loss	$ (316)	$ (311)	$ (627)	(524)
Loss per share	(22 cents)	(22 cents)	(45 cents)	(36 cents)
Weighted average shares outstanding	1,405	1,428	1,405	1,463

The decline in sales was attributed to an interruption in the company's normal manufacturing capabilities occasioned by the restructuring of its operations, the continuing realignment of its top management and organization, the decision to assign a number of production personnel to non-revenue producing warranty repairs, and, to a lesser extent, planning for a relocation of its facility.

The third quarter loss was attributed to cost overruns on several contracts, and increased legal and other expenses and reserves in connection with pending and threatened environmental litigation and other corporate matters involving the ongoing restructuring of the company's operations. These two items accounted for approximately $360,000 during the third quarter.

The company also announced that the lease for its Sunnyvale, Calif., facility expired during the third quarter. The company was unable to reach an agreement with its landlord, who then instituted legal proceedings to evict the company from the facility. The company has leased new space in Sunnyvale, and has commenced its relocation, which is expected to be completed by Aug. 30, 1990.

As a result of the decision of the company to relocate, the landlord has notified the company of his intention to institute legal action against the company for the costs of investigating and remedying suspected toxic contamination at the site, estimated by the landlord to be not less than

In addition, the landlord has notified the company of his intention to hold it liable for lost rents during the estimated 18 month-long cleanup period at the rate of $30,000 per month, and for other administrative costs and legal expenses.

The landlord's claim is in addition to the claim reported by the company during the second quarter from Intersil Inc. In both cases, the company's environmental consultants are assessing the extent of its potential liability, if any, to the landlord and the nature and extent of such liability, if any, cannot be assessed at this time.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Wells Fargo Bank customers now control the world -- with a 24-hour, integrated global cash management system.

Called Hexagon, this electronic banking system lets business customers use personal computers to manage all their worldwide cash positions plus access a wealth of other services.

''We are pleased to offer this powerful and versatile tool to companies with international business activities,'' said Mary Carryer, senior vice president and director of Wells Fargo's international trade services. ''Hexagon gives them the superior electronic banking capabilities overseas that the bank has long provided within the United States,'' she added.

Through Hexagon, users monitor overseas bank account balances, transfer funds between their foreign accounts and Wells Fargo, make international payments, initiate letters of credit, and get market information, including foreign exchange rates and stock prices.

Wells Fargo is offering Hexagon under a license from The Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation Limited, which developed the system and now counts over 2,800 subscribers in 28 countries.

Hexagon is the first product introduction resulting from the alliance forged by Wells Fargo and HongkongBank last year.

Under that cooperative agreement, HongkongBank serves Wells Fargo's customers outside the United States while Wells Fargo handles the needs of HongkongBank customers in California.

Hexagon is unique in its ability to support an extensive range of products on a single system. Most other banks have independent products to handle each service.

Hexagon also is truly global. It is on line to more than 1,400 HongkongBank group branches worldwide and accepts information electronically from many other major banks around the world.

Wells Fargo Bank, the principal subsidiary of Wells Fargo & Company, is the tenth largest U.S. bank.

STAMFORD, Conn. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Warrantech Corp. (NASDAQ:WTEC; WTECD), announced Wednesday results for the company's first quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The company again posted record results as gross revenues increased by 297 percent to $12,308,269, up from $4,140,828 recorded in the year earlier first quarter, due in part, to the acquisition of the assets of Dealer Based Services Inc. Net income more than doubled to $322,913, up from last year's first-quarter results of $154,125.

Deferred revenues to be recognized in future periods increased to $7,647,735, up from last year's first-quarter total of $642,558.

Joel San Antonio, chairman of Warrantech, stated that, ''We are satisfied with the results of the first quarter, as traditionally this is one of our slower times of the year. The expanded customer base utilizing the company's specialized services and continuing efforts to streamline the operations of the company all contributed to the first- quarter results.''

Warrantech administers service contracts for consumer electronic products, appliances and home office equipment. Through their wholly owned subsidiary, Warrantech Dealer Based Services, the company administers service contracts for automobiles, leisure craft marine and recreational vehicles.

VAN NUYS, CA. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Com Systems Inc. (AMEX:CTM) Thursday reported a 58 percent increase in revenues for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, to $36,944,000 vs. $23,329,000 for the same period a year earlier.

The company's net loss for the period narrowed to $583,000, or 22 cents per share (after preferred dividends), vs. a loss of $2,876,000, or 60 cents per share (after preferred dividends), during the corresponding period in 1989. Six-months revenue increased 44 percent to $64,841,000 vs. $44,910,000 in 1989, and the net loss for the six months was reduced to $1,525,000 from $2, 075,000 a year earlier.

With completion of the TMC Communications Inc., acquisition, revenue in the second quarter of 1990 grew by 32 percent over the first quarter of 1990 to $36,944,000. Operating profits increased to $918,000 and earnings before depreciation, amortization and interest increased to $2,564,000 during the period.

Commenting on the quarter, Com Systems Inc. Chairman, Rex Licklider, stated: ''The company continued to improve its operating performance in all areas during the second quarter. The levels of fraudulent use of our network trended downward, general and administrative expenses expressed as a percentage of revenue decreased, and revenues were up significantly.

''The efficiencies we anticipated in our network as a result of the recent acquisition of TMC Communications Inc. began to be realized during the period and new order input was at record levels. Given all these factors, we believe the basis for an improved second half of 1990 is in place.''

SAN JOSE, CA. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Microscience International Corp. (NASDAQ:MSIC), a leading supplier of high-quality 3 1/2-inch and 5 1/4-inch Winchester disk drives, Thursday reported results for the second-quarter and six-month period ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the quarter were $22.9 million, down 3 percent from $23.6 million reported for the same period last year. The company had a loss from operations of $2.2 million compared with a loss of $586,000 for the same period last year. Net income was $527,000, or $.008 per share, compared with a net loss of $659,000, or $.04 per share, in the second quarter last year.

Revenues for the six months ended June 30, 1990, rose to $50 million from $43.4 million for the 1989 six-month period. There was a net loss from operations of $2.1 million compared with $1.0 million in the similar period last year. Net income totaled $9.7 million, or $.15 per share, compared with a net loss of $1.5 million, or $.10 per share, last year.

During the three and six months ended June 30, 1990, the company sold 3,838,000 and 13,838,000 shares of stock of its Taiwan subsidiary, respectively, to private investors in Taiwan. These sales resulted in net proceeds of approximately $5,598,000 and $20,598,000 respectively and a gain of approximately $3,795,000 and $13,602,000, respectively.

The sales represented approximately 35 percent of the company's investment in the subsidiary. The company plans to utilize the proceeds from these and future sales to meet its long-term capital needs.

Revenues for the second quarter were down from record revenues of $27.2 million in the quarter ended March 31, 1990, primarily due to lower shipments of the company's older 5 1/4-inch products. This factor, together with lower average sales prices and provisions for excess and obsolete material components of the older products, also led to a decrease in gross margin in the second quarter.

Sales of the company's 3 1/2-inch products continued to grow during the quarter, despite the overall decrease in revenues. The company plans to continue to increase production of its 3 1/2-inch products to meet the strong demand for Microscience products in the marketplace.

The company also announced that it has accepted the resignation of Donald V. Fluken as vice president and chief financial officer. Flukin, who joined Microscience in that capacity in October 1988, has left to pursue other business interests. Candidates for the position are currently being considered.

Microscience International Corp. designs, develops and manufactures industry-leading, high-quality 3 1/2-inch and 5 1/4-inch half-height Winchester disk drives for the desktop computer and workstation industries.

SACRAMENTO, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Two of Sacramento's largest health organizations - Foundation Health and Mercy General Hospital - have signed a new agreement that will provide additional medical service options for thousands of Sacramento-area residents beginning Sept. 1.

"The addition of Mercy General as our eighth top-quality hospital stimulates healthy competition - an important consideration for anyone concerned with controlling spiralling health care costs," said Daniel D. Crowley, chief executive officer of Foundation Health Corp., which operates one of California's largest health maintenance organizations.

"Our favorable contract rates with Mercy will help effectively stabilize medical care costs in the Greater Sacramento region as well as providing greater access to health care service for our members," he added.

Sister Bridget McCarthy, president of Mercy Healthcare Sacramento, the parent company of Mercy General, praised the new alliance: "It means greater convenience and more consumer options for hundreds of doctors and their Foundation Health patients who have been asking for such an agreement for some time."

Sister Bridget, Crowley and other officials associated with both organizations symbolically opened the doors to the new relationship Thursday in an undergroupnd tunnel connecting Mercy General Hospital with Mercy Medical Plaza, a new medical office and outpatient services complex that houses dozens of independent physician practices.

"Until this agreement, the physicians in the Medical Plaza and elsewhere were unable to treat Foundation Health patients at Mercy General," said Dr. Roger Mathews, an Ob/Gyn. "This is a major step toward providing greater health care options for hundreds of physicians and thousands of patients in the area."

As a result of the new alliance, Foundation Health's panel of local doctors, already the largest in the Sacramento area, will grow even bigger with addition of the 400-doctor Mercy Independent Practice Association affiliated with Mercy.

Crowley noted that the addition of Mercy General "augments Foundation Health's already outstanding network of hospitals" in the Sacramento area, which includes Mercy San Juan Hospital and Mercy Hospital of Folsom, Sutter Community Hospitals, American River Hospital, Methodist Hospital and the UC Davis Medical Center.

SUNNYVALE, CA. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - California Microwave Inc. (OTC:CMIC) set records for annual earnings and sales, reporting a 29 percent increase in net income to $6.6 million, or 80 cents a share, on a 16 percent increase in sales to $145.9 million for its fiscal year ended June 30.

Fourth quarter net income increased 17 percent to $1.8 million, or 22 cents a share, on a sales increase of 2 percent to $39.3 million.

The company's sales growth continues to be led by sales to new satellite communications systems customers, particularly international carriers and U.S. government users.

Sales of satellite communications systems and equipment in 1990 increased by approximately 45 percent over those in 1989.

New orders booked totaled $131.9 million, a 10 percent decrease from 1989's record level of $146.4 million. Commercial orders accounted for nearly 60 percent of the company's bookings amount, with international orders comprising nearly half of all commercial orders.

Orders for satellite communications systems and equipment represented about 75 percent of California Microwave's total 1990 bookings. Following the close of the 1990 fiscal year, the company announced a $12.6 million contract for a satellite communications network in Thailand.

Year-end backlog was $111.5 million compared to $125.4 one year ago. The strength of bookings after the end of the fiscal year has brought the backlog at the end of July to over $132 million. Approximately 90 percent of the company's current backlog is expected to be delivered during the next 12 months.

Fiscal 1989 net income was $5.1 million, or 63 cents a share, on sales of $125.4 million. Fourth quarter results last year were net income of $1.5 million, or 19 cents a share, on sales of $38.3 million.

Significant events in California Microwave's 1990 fiscal year included agreement to acquire the remaining minority interest in the company's microwave radio subsidiary, Microwave Data Systems Inc. of Rochester, N.Y.; the successful completion of a major fixed-price U.S. government development contract for a complex, software-intensive intelligence communications system; and the on-time delivery and installation of the Washington-Moscow Hotline satellite earth station.

According to California Microwave's chairman and chief executive officer, Dr. David B. Leeson, ''We are pleased that our sales and earnings reached record levels this year, and expect new records in fiscal 1991.''

In a separate announcement, California Microwave said it will distribute $878,976 in profit-sharing bonuses to employees on Friday, Aug. 17. Additionally, the company announced it had contributed $265,140 in fiscal 1990 to employee accounts in the California Microwave 401(k) Tax-Deferred Savings Plan.

FRESNO, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Cellular One of Fresno led the way last week in a dramatic effort to provide badly needed emergency telephone service to firefighters in the ravaged Yosemite Valley.

Flames crippled all communications within the park and took down all outside telephone service for several days. In a dramatic three-day effort Cellular One was able to transport equipment from Sacramento, Calif., establish an enhancer at a key location, and distribute phones to U.S. Forest Service and other firefighters.

According to Cellular One representatives, service was still marginal, however, so the company ordered and placed a high gain parabolic antenna in a key location to solve the transmission problem.

By Sunday, firefighters and communications specialists had facsimile capability in the Wawona Command Post. Phones were made available in a Cellular One van on the Wawona golf course, and phone service was in place at the heliport and the National District Park office.

"I am very proud of our efforts during this emergency," said David Needham Cellular One district manager who is based in Fresno. "Our engineers and technical team worked non-stop to respond and, fortunately, we were successful. An emergency of this kind also underscores the significance of cellular telephone service to our community."

LONGVIEW, WA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Longview Fibre Co. (NYSE:LFB) Thursday reported results for the three and nine months ended July 31, 1990.

Consolidated Statement of Income

Net income was essentially the same for the third quarter 1990, but declined 12 percent for the 1990 fiscal year to date. Profits for the manufacturing segments of the business are lower for the quarter and year to date, while log profits are improved.

Logs

Operating profits improved 42 percent for the third quarter while year-to-date operating profits improved 20 percent over a year ago. Volume of logs sold is up 12 percent for the quarter and up 2 percent for the year. Demand and prices remain strong in the export market while declining in the domestic market. It is expected volume sold in the fourth quarter will be at normal levels unless fire weather materially curtails logging. The impact of the spotted owl/ancient trees issue on the forest industry remains a serious concern since guildelines are currently being developed and have not been fully implemented.

Paper and Paperboard

Operating profits are at reduced levels as compared with the same 1989 periods. The third quarter declined 7 percent and year to date declined 17 percent. Scheduled maintenance, mechanical problems, and resulting lower production are the principal causes for the lower profits. Rate of incoming orders has slowed, but the backlog remains adequate due to lower production. Demand and prices for paper are at satisfactory levels in the domestic market while somewhat lower in the export market. Demand for paperboard in the domestic and export markets has improved while prices remain weak.

Converted Products

Competitive price pressures and reduced sales volume caused operating profits to decline 47 percent and 37 percent for the third quarter and year-to-date 1990 as compared with like periods of 1989.

Other

Interest expensed is up sharply in 1990 due to higher interest rates and increased borrowing for plant, equipment and timberland acquisitions.

Income Taxes

Taxes on income are approximately 35 percent of pretax income for both years.

Liquidity and Capital Resources

Capital expenditures are above available funds from cash flow and therefore, increase total borrowing. This is expected to continue for the near future. Adequate financing is available. During the first three quarters, the company purchased 651,420 (post five-for-one split) shares of its common stock and expects to purchase approximately 250,000 additional shares during the remainder of the fiscal year.

Operations/Products

The company owns and operates tree farms in Oregon and Washington which produce logs for sale. Its pulp and paper mill at Longview, Wash., produces, primarily from purchased wood chips and sawdust, pulp which is manufactured into kraft paper and containerboard. The company's 15 converting plants in 10 states produce shipping containers, and merchandise and grocery bags.

GLENDALE, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - B. Wayne Hughes, president of Storage Equities Inc. (NYSE:SEQ), announced Thursday that revenues for the three months ended June 30, 1990, were $7,978,500, compared with $8,656,100 for the same period in 1989.

Net income equaled $2,460,700, or 22 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1990. This compares with net income of $2,417,400, or 22 cents per share, for the second quarter of 1989.

Revenues for the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, equaled $16,191,600 compared with $17,478,100 for the same period in 1989. Income before extraordinary loss and gain on sale of real estate for the first half of 1990 was 45 cents per share, compared with 45 cents per share for the similar period one year earlier.

Net income was $6,093,600, or 55 cents per share, for the first six months of 1990, including a $1,146,100, or 10 cents per share, gain on the sale of one property. This compares with net income of $4,483,200, or 41 cents per share, after a loss on the early extinguishment of debt of $435,500, or 4 cents per share, for the 1989 six-month period.

A 20-cents-per-share quarterly distribution was declared on Aug. 15, 1990, by the board of directors. The distribution is payable on Sept. 28, 1990, to shareholders of record as of Sept. 14, 1990. Cash available for distribution for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, was $2,898,200, compared with $2,959,100 one year earlier.

Cash available for distribution is generally defined as income before gain on sale of real estate and extraordinary loss on early extinguishment of debt and before deductions for depreciation, amortization and noncash interest expense, plus proceeds from rental guarantees and from the sale of real estate in excess of its original cost.

SEQ is an equity-oriented real estate investment trust (REIT) formed to acquire income-producing real estate and to provide current cash distributions and opportunities for long-term appreciation in the value of its real estate.

SEQ owns interests in 253 properties, of which 21 are wholly owned. The portfolio is strategically located in 35 states. Assets totaled $256,507,200 as of the end of the 1990 second quarter. TORONTO (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Lemington Limited of Dublin, a wholly owned subsidiary of Corona Corp. (ASE:IRC.A, ToSE/VcSE/MoSE:ICR.A.,ICR.B.) has acquired 7,195,000 ordinary shares of Conroy Petroleum and Natural Resources PLC of Dublin in open market purchases.

Conroy is principally engaged in the development of a major zinc-lead property at Galmoy in Kilkenny County, Ireland.

These shares, when aggregated with 1,732,277 Conroy ordinary shares, previously owned by an associated company of Corona, Noramco Mining Corp. of Vancouver, represent a total holding of 8,927,277 ordinary shares, or 24.2 percent of the outstanding ordinary shares of Conroy.

To the knowledge of Lemington, this is the largest shareholding in Conroy.

The Galmoy deposit contains in excess of 7 million tonnes grading 11 percent zinc and 1 percent lead. The deposit is only 60-100 meters below surface. Potential production rate is expected to be 1,800 tonnes per day. At this production level reserves are sufficient for over 10 years. Final feasibility was conducted by Kilborn Engineering (B.C.) Limited. Presently, Conroy is procuring all the necessary permits to commence operations.

Over the last few years, Corona has been developing a significant stake in base metals mining, focusing on zinc and lead production through Breakwater Resources Ltd. of Vancouver, Canada, and Noramco, as well as exploration properties held in Canada.

Breakwater, in which Corona has a 27 percent interest, is developing as a major producer of zinc and lead and owns 100 percent of the El Mochito Mine in Honduras, with proven and probable reserves of 3.7 million tonnes grading over 9.5 percent zinc, and 2.7 percent lead.

As well, Breakwater owns 100 percent of the Caribou mine in New Brunswick, which contains 2.8 million tonnes proven and probable reserves of zinc and lead grading 7.8 percent and 3.6 percent, respectively.

Breakwater has the right to earn a 70 percent interest in the significant Estrades Property in Quebec, which is estimated to contain proven and probable reserves of more than 1 million tons grading 10.7 percent zinc with a small percentage of lead. With this acquisition, Corona will become exposed to four producing and developing zinc/lead mines located in diverse and stable political environments.

VANCOUVER, BRITISH COLUMBIA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Brenna Resources Ltd. (VSE:BRW) announced several important corporate developments that are presently occuring at this time.

COLE PROPERTY, RANDSBURG MINING DISTRICT, KERN COUNTY, CALIF.

The company has completed a 12 hole drilling program with very encouraging results. Nine of the 12 holes were drilled on the extension of a low-angle fault system open to both strike and depth. The western extension of the fault system is on ground controlled by Glamis Gold Ltd. The remaining system is on claims optioned to the company.

It seems probable that the largest portion of this system is existing on the company's property. The nine holes drilled through the fault system all intersecting ore-grade mineralization over widths associated with low-cost open-pit heap-leaching mining methods. The weighted average of the nine holes is 60 feet of width grading 0.038 ounces per ton gold.

The strike length covered to-date is 760 feet and is open to the east and to depth. Drill spacing along strike has not exceeded 100 foot centres. The Company's immediate objective is to drill along the eastern extension of the system and to depth.

It is important to understand the Randsburg District when making an evaluation of the information presented. Glamis Gold Ltd., which borders our western, northern and eastern boundaries, have been producing gold from their property for the past 5 years. The average grade of their Yellow Aster property is 0.022 ounces of gold per ton of ore mined. The cut-off grade is 0.01 opt gold. The direct cash cost is less than $190 per ounce of gold or about $4 per ton.

Glamis Gold Ltd. recently purchased the adjacent Echo Bay Mines property for U.S. $5 million and a 1 percent net smelter royalty. The average grade of that deposit is about 0.026 opt gold. Glamis is currently producing 40,000 ounces of gold per year.

The company has revised its agreement to acquire the Cole property and accordingly has submitted the revised agreement for filing with the Vancouver Stock Exchange. The revised agreement contains a one year option period whereby the company may evaluate the said property in order to determine whether a sufficient determinate value exist on the Cole property.

If, in the opinion of the Vancouver Stock Exchange a determinate value does exist on the Cole property, the company may then enter into an agreement for assignment of lease and option. The one year option period requires the company to issue 50,000 free-trading common shares. The agreements are subject to regulatory approval.

PHOENIX (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Revenues of Stratford American Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS:STRC) rose to $1,018,000 in the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, from the $983,000 reported from the same period in 1989.

The company's second quarter 1990 net loss of $1,009,000, equal to 2 cents per share, was comparable to second quarter 1989 loss of $1,102,000 or 2 cents per share. The net loss for the six months ended June 30, 1990, of $1,992,000 remains less than the $2,321,000 loss for the same period in 1989.

The company's April 1990 acquisition of a 25 percent working interest in an oil gas field in Noble County, Okla., contributed $243,000 of revenues during the second quarter. Chairman David H. Eaton reported that ''revenues from this interest for the remainder of 1990 are anticipated to exceed $600,000 with successful results from the drilling of additional wells in the field.''

He further stated that, ''The current oil prices will have a favorable impact on future oil and gas revenues.''

The Sports Careers division first National Job Fair was held in May 1990. There were approximately 350 participants who attended this function. According to Mark Tudi, president of Sports Careers, ''This turnout for our first Job Fair provides real encouragement for the future of Sports Careers.''

The company is aggressively seeking to bolster future real estate revenues by increasing fees generated from asset management, property management and consulting work.

Stratford American Corp. holds working interests in oil and gas properties and in various commercial and industrial real estate primarily in Arizona.

GOLDEN, Colo. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Horizon Gold Shares Inc. (NASDAQ:HRIZ), Thursday announced sales of precious metals of $1,638,987 and a net loss of $706,766, or 3 cents per share, for the three months ended June 30, 1990.

Net loss included foreign exchange losses of $186,521, principally an unrealized foreign exchange loss related to Horizon's subordinated convertible debentures payable in Swiss francs and $125,272 of interest expense related to the debentures. The net loss also included noncash depreciation and depletion expenses of $552,162.

John E. Watson, chairman of the Golden-based precious metals producing company, indicated that the net loss is the result of Horizon winding up its current programs at Buffalo Valley Mine and Tuscarora Gold Mines, and beginning work on several larger scale projects with more significant long-range potential.

Horizon is currently involved in developing activities at its new Dixie Comstock Deposit, located in Churchill County, Nev., exploration activities at the Hope Butte property, located in Malheur County, Ore., an in preliminary studies at the Mt. Chase base and precious metals deposit, located in Penobscot, Maine.

Assuming that all permits can be obtained in a timely manner, Horizon expects gold production to commence at the Dixie Comstock property in early 1991.

Based on preliminary analysis, Horizon expects gold production of approximately 25,000 ounces per year at Dixie Comstock.

SANTA MONICA, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Vidmark Inc. (NASDAQ:VDMK) Thursday announced that year-end earnings increased 59 percent to $4.2 million, or $1.10 per share, on revenues of $37.2 million for the year ended June 30, 1990.

This compares with earnings of $2.7 million, or 70 cents per share, on revenues of $21.6 million for the year ended June 30, 1989.

Earnings for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $393,000, or 10 cents per share, on revenues of $7.7 million, compared with earnings of $883,000, or 23 cents per share, on revenues of $7.2 million for the same period in 1989.

''We are pleased that for our first reporting period as a public company we are able to show such excellent results. For the year ended June 30, 1990, earnings increased by 59 percent, revenues were up 72 percent and earnings per share climbed 57 percent,'' said Mark Amin, chairman of the board.

Roger A. Burlage, president and chief executive officer, said: ''In this business, one quarter's results may vary compared to the previous year. Our goal is to ensure long-term profitability. Due to an unusually high number of major motion pictures released on video cassette by our competitors, our fourth-quarter earnings fell below the comparable quarter in fiscal 1989.''

Burlage said the company's prospects for continued success in fiscal 1991 are good because there is reduced competition from other independent distributors.

Vidmark became a public company on June 29, 1990, through an initial public offering of 1.5 million shares of common stock.

The company is an international distributor of motion pictures, primarily engaged in the distribution of feature films for the domestic home video market and in the licensing of distribution rights to motion pictures for foreign markets.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - FarWest Financial Corp. (NYSE/PSE:FWF) announced Thursday that its net loss for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, will be $3.7 million, or 47 cents per share, as compared with net earnings of $10.8 million, or $1.38 per share, for the comparable period of 1989.

The loss reflects additional reserves of $16.9 million during the second quarter of 1990 for losses on loans and investments. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the net loss is $29.9 million, or $3.83 per share, as compared with earnings of $16.3 million and $2.09 per share for the comparable period of 1989.

As previously announced, FarWest Financial's principal subsidiary, FarWest Savings and Loan Association, failed to meet its regulatory capital requirements. FarWest Savings filed a Capital Plan with the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) in December 1989, which was amended in May 1990.

Acceptance of the Capital Plan depended in part on the liquidation of a wholly owned subsidiary into FarWest Savings. The San Francisco Regional Office of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. (FDIC) advised FarWest that, in its view, the liquidation could not be consummated.

FarWest believes that the position taken by the Regional Office of the FDIC is incorrect and it has formally presented the matter to the FDIC in Washington, D.C. Although the issue is pending resolution by the FDIC in Washington, the OTS rejected FarWest Savings' Capital Plan by letter received on Aug. 13, 1990, and imposed operating restrictions on FarWest Savings.

Such restrictions preclude, among other matters, the purchase or sale of assets and the creation of new loans or commitments without prior approval of the San Francisco office of OTS.

FarWest Savings is currently subject to a regular annual examination by the OTS, the FDIC and the California State Commissioner's Office.

While FarWest Savings believes that its assets and liabilities are properly valued, the regulatory authorities, in the exercise of their judgment, may require the establishment of additional reserves for loans, investments and other contingent liabilities. Such reserves, to the extent appropriate, would be reflected in results of operations for the third quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, FarWest's net interest margin exceeded its general and administrative expenses by $19.3 million. At June 30, 1990, total assets were $3.7 billion, approximately $605 million below the Dec. 31, 1989, total. FarWest continues to be profitable on an operating basis.

FarWest Savings' tangible net worth at June 30, 1990, was $37.7 million. Adjusting such tangible net worth for the capital deduction that would be required should the liquidation plan be finally denied would cause the tangible capital on a regulatory basis to be a negative $23.6 million, which could increase to as much as negative $75 million if certain accounting and tax issues are not favorably resolved.

ANTWERP, BELGIUM (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Shlomo Dovrat, President and Chief Executive Officer of Oshap Technologies Ltd. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbols: OSHSF, OSHWF; NASDAQ Symbol: OSHUF) Thursday announced results for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, net sales increased by 61.3% to BF 324,182,000 (US $9,473,000) from BF 200,951,000 (US $5,872,000) for the same period last year. The gross profit for the three months ended June 30, 1990 increased by 224%, representing 42.3% of sales, compared with 21.1% of sales for the same period a year ago. The Company reported an operating profit after financial expenses of BF 21,173,000 (US $619,000) as compared to a loss of BF 53,197,000 (US $1,555,000) for the three months ended June 30, 1989. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net sales increased by 33.8% to BF 648,108,000 (US $18,939,000) from BF 484,376,000 (US $14,155,000) for the same period last year. The gross profit for the six months ended June 30, 1990 increased by 76.4%, representing 41.2% of sales, compared with 31.3% of sales for the same period a year ago.

The Company reported a net profit of BF 70,594,000 (US $2,063,000), or BF 12.41 (US $0.36) per share, as compared to BF 43,670,000 (US $1,276,000), or BF 8.04 (US $0.24) per share, in the first half of 1989.

Shlomo Dovrat, President and Chief Executive Officer, stated, ''The increase in net sales for the six months was primarily due to a 244% increase in sales of ROBCAD Workstations and increasing sales of Pegard products. These gains were partly offset by reduced sales of foundry automation products. The significant improvement in gross margins for the six month period is primarily due to the volume of high margin ROBCAD Workstation sales and the improved productivity of Pegard. These gains were partially offset by the increase in R&D costs and SG&A expenses, principally associated with the expansion of our ROBCAD Workstation business segment. The increase in the net financial income is attributable to the improvement in the Company's cash position.''

Oshap Technologies Ltd. provides advanced computer aided engineering workstations, flexible machining systems and standard automation products to major worldwide industrial concerns. Oshap is also a manufacturer of hyperthermia and medical imaging equipment.

SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Dayna Communications Inc. Thursday announced shipment of its DaynaPORT Ethernet cards for Macintosh computers.

The cards are available immediately worldwide, at a suggested U.S. retail price of $499.

Two models of DaynaPORT cards are currently available for Macintosh II and SE/30 series computers. The DaynaPORT E/II is a NuBus card for all Macintosh II models and the DaynaPORT E/30 supports the Macintosh SE/30 bus topology. The cards provide both a BNC connector for thin Ethernet and an AUI port for external transceiver connections to thick Ethernet, twisted pair wiring and fiber optic cables.

Based on Novell Inc.'s EtherPort technology, the DaynaPORT cards allow Macintosh users to share company-wide network services over Ethernet cable systems. DaynaPORT cards support a variety of protocols in addition to EtherTalk, including TCP/IP, Decnet and OSI. Dayna also provides drivers for A/UX 2.0 with the cards. Future enhancements will include support for System 7 and 10BASE-T.

Dayna Communications Inc. is a privately held company that designs and manufactures a range of products to meet the connectivity and productivity needs of personal computer users.

COSTA MESA, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Emulex Corp. (OTC:EMLX), a leading supplier of system and network-enhancement products for the computer industry, announced Thursday that earnings for its fourth quarter ended July 1, 1990, were $1 million, or 10 cents per share, which compared with $2.2 million, or 20 cents per share, for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

The earnings were based on net sales of $32.5 million, compared with $36.9 million in the previous year.

Fred B. Cox, Emulex's chairman and chief executive officer, said the fourth-quarter revenues were in line with analysts' expectations and that earnings were higher than anticipated, primarily because of higher gross profit margins.

He said: ''In the fourth quarter we continued the sequential improvement in revenues begun in the third quarter, ending the year with a quarterly profit, and we achieved higher gross margins as a percentage of revenues than in any of the last four quarters.

''In addition, our bookings during the fourth quarter also improved, and as a result we are entering fiscal 1991 with a stronger backlog position.''

For the fiscal year Emulex reported a net loss of $1 million and a per-share loss of 10 cents based on net sales of $120.5 million. In fiscal 1989, which was a record year for Emulex, net income was $13.3 million and $1.15 per share on net sales of $148.7 million.

Discussing the year, Cox said: ''While our financial performance was disappointing, we made a number of important strategic moves and investments during the year to position the company better for the future. During our third quarter we wrote off selected fixed assets and strengthened our reserves, which contributed to the net loss for that quarter. We returned to profitability in the fourth quarter.''

Cox said he looks for the company's results to improve for fiscal 1991 and characterized the coming year as a transitional one. He explained: ''Our company and our industry are in a continued state of transition. The computer business has not been considered 'robust' for some time now, and many analysts believe it is already in a mild recession. However, some parts of the industry are in a growth mode.

''Emulex is improving its position in the growth segments of networking and storage based on our commitment to support open systems and multivendor computer environments, a direction that is positive for our future, for fiscal 1991 and beyond.

''In 1990 we introduced a number of new products related to this strategy in all our business areas, and we will continue to put a high level of resources into engineering and development in the coming year. Our financial position continues to be a major strength for the company.''

Emulex Corp. designs, manufactures and markets high-performance computer-enhancement products in the areas of system/network connectivity and storage control. Emulex addresses the DEC and IBM PC marketplaces, as well as markets for industry-standard protocols such as SCSI, TCP/IP and X.25. The company sells worldwide to end-users, OEMs, distributors, systems integrators and value-added resellers.

BLUE BELL, PA. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - U.S. Bioscience Inc. (ASE:UBS) Thursday reported revenues of $1,036,257 and a net loss of $833,053, or 5 cents per share, for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The 1990 results compare to revenues of $41,136 and a net loss of $1,509,494, or 15 cents per share, for the like period of the prior year.

For the six-month period ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $1,292,564 and the net loss was $2,513,694, or 16 cents per share, compared to revenues of $82,442, and a net loss of $2,706,348, or 27 cents per share, for the like period of 1989.

According to Philip S. Schein, M.D., chairman, president and chief executive officer, the decrease in the net loss was brought about by increased investment income, which was a result of the company's private placement in September 1989 and public offering in February 1990.

The company realized net proceeds of approximately $14 million and $33 million, in the private placement and public offering, respectively. In addition, the decrease in the net loss reflected decreased interest expense which resulted from the use of approximately 10 percent of the proceeds from the public offering to reduce long-term debt.

Schein said that the loss per share was further reduced by the dilution resulting principally from the issuance of new shares in the private placement and the public offering. Operating expenses were consistent with management's expectations and reflect the company's expanded drug research and product development programs.

U.S. Bioscience is a development-stage pharmaceutical company focused on drugs and therapies to increase the survival rate and productivity of cancer patients.

The company has seven drugs in development, including two in Phase III clinical trials, the final stage of development, and has submitted its first new drug application (NDA) to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

ROSELAND, NJ (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Automatic Data Processing, Inc. achieved record revenues and earnings in its fourth fiscal quarter and fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, Josh S. Weston, chairman and chief executive officer, announced Thursday.

This represented ADP's 116th consecutive quarter of double-digit earnings per share growth since becoming a public company in 1961.

In the fourth quarter, revenues increased 2 percent to $425,827,000. Net earnings, aided by a lower effective tax rate, advanced 13 percent to $59,670,000. Earnings per share, on increased shares, increased 11 percent to $.81 from $.73 last year. As announced last quarter, fourth-quarter earnings per share were reduced by about two percentage points from a change in pricing and timing of billings for laser printing and W-2 statements that had previously benefitted the third quarter.

For fiscal 1990, ADP's revenues increased 2 percent to $1,714,041,000. Net earnings advanced 13 percent to $211,710,000. Earnings per share increased 14 percent to $2.88 from $2.53 in fiscal 1989.

Commenting on the overall results, Weston said, ''ADP's four largest businesses account for approximately 90 percent of total revenues. Employer Services, about 55 percent of revenues, grew by almost 15 percent in fiscal 1990. Brokerage Services and Dealer Services grew at single-digit levels primarily because of industry weakness. Automotive Claims Services also grew at single-digit levels for the year although growth rates accelerated to a double-digit level in the latter half of the year.

ADP, with $1.7 billion in revenues and more than 200,000 clients, is the largest independent computing services firm in the United States.

KLM, NLM CityHopper and NetherLines traffic and capacity available (in millions of ton miles)

First quarter 1990/91 net income amounted to NLG 41.4 million compared with NLG 230.1 million in the 1989/90 first quarter, NLG 111.4 million of this decline is due to a lower extraordinary item, NLG 13.6 million compared with NLG 125.0 million last year.

The operating results before taxes amount to NLG 27.8 million compared with NLG 105.1 million last year.

This decline was caused by various factors including: -- The negative effect of lower exchange rates for several important currencies, on balance: NLG 45.0 million -- Higher deprecations due to fleet removal: NLG 24.6 million -- A lower share in results of holdings: NLG 21.4 million

Further details of several items in the consolidated statement of earnings: -- Growth in capacity (8 percent) was higher than of traffic (6 percent). Load factor consequently declined by 1.2 points to 70.7 percent. -- Though traffic increased by 6 percent, traffic revenues are only up by 2 percent on last year's first quarter. -- This decline in average yield is solely caused by the currency exchange rate effect, especially in relation to the dollar and yen. -- The increase in depreciations is mainly due to the introduction of Boeing 747-400 aircraft to the fleet. -- Book profits on the sale of a Boeing 747-200 aircraft, have, among other, contributed to the item sales of tangible fixed assets. -- The decrease in the item share in results of holdings is, for the most part, due to the holdings in airlines.

During the report period, two Boeing 747-400 aircraft have joined the KLM fleet, both under capital lease financing. Perpetual subordinated loans totalling 30 billion yen have been finalized, thus strengthening proforma equity by NLG 365 million.

As far as is currrently foreseeable, the results will remain under pressure from, for instance, the negative effects of currency exchange rates and congestion. Fuel prices and the consequences of the Middle East situation remain uncertain factors. Action has meanwhile been taken to further reduce the overall cost level. The pursuit of higher quality service levels will continue unabated.

This report is unaudited.

PALO ALTO, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Company (NYSE:HWP) today reported an 8 percent increase in net revenue, a 7 percent increase in earnings from operations and a 5 percent decrease in net earnings for its 1990 third quarter, which ended July 31. Earnings per share were $.73 on 242 million shares of common stock outstanding, compared with $.79 on 236 million shares in the same period of the 1989 fiscal year. Total orders rose 9 percent during the quarter.

All comparisons reflect two months of Apollo results in the 1989 third quarter and three months during the same period of 1990. HP purchased Apollo Computer Inc. in May 1989.

Net revenue for the third quarter totaled $3.2 billion, compared with $3.0 billion in the corresponding 1989 quarter. Net revenue from U.S. sales and service was $1.5 billion, even with the $1.5 billion reported in the third quarter of fiscal year 1989. Net revenue from outside the U.S. amounted to $1.7 billion, a gain of 14 percent from $1.5 billion reported during the same period of the previous year.

LOS ANGELES (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Westwood One Inc. Thursday reported that all of the company's radio network divisions showed significant increases in their target audiences, according to RADAR 41 (a).

RADAR, released twice yearly, is the measurement of network radio issued by Statistical Research Inc. of Westfield, N.J.

Based upon all broadcasts by network (except overnight), Westwood One's NBC Radio Network showed the largest gain in its target demographic of adults 25-54, with a 30.6 percent increase over RADAR 40. It was up 26.4 percent in the broad 12+ category.

The Mutual Broadcasting System showed a 9.2 percent increase in the adult 25-54 category and grew 4.2 percent in 12+.

When using daypart comparisons of Monday through Saturday, 6 a.m. to 7 p.m., Mutual and NBC were up 18.7 percent and 10.1 percent respectively in their target demographics.

The Source, Westwood One's youth network, continued to hold its number one ranking in adults 18-34, up 5 percent from the previous RADAR report.

Westwood One's newest network entry, WONE (Westwood One News & Entertainment Radio Network), premiered handsomely, ranking in the top ten in all primary demographics.

William J. Battison, Westwood One's president and chief financial officer said, ''We're particularly pleased by the strong showing of all our networks in RADAR 41. The book will be used to provide ratings information for the balance of the year.

''The significant audience increases experienced by our networks will provide a strong base for our network reconfiguration announced earlier this week, which will be used in the pending up front season.''

RALEIGH, NC (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Ron E. Doggett, chairman and chief executive officer of GoodMark Foods Inc. (NASDAQ/NMS:GDMK), Thursday announced that revenues for the first quarter ending Aug. 26, 1990, are expected to reach approximately $36.0 million, up 4.0 percent over revenues of $34.6 million in the first quarter last year.

He indicated that net income for the first quarter is expected to be in the range of 10 cents to 12 cents per share, compared with 30 cents per share earned in the year-earlier period. Final results for the quarter will be reported during the second week of September.

Doggett said: ''Our business continued to increase gradually during the first quarter, but sales and earnings fell below budget. Our plans projected a 10 percent to 12 percent increase in revenues along with higher marketing expenses, so we expected earnings below those of the very strong first quarter last year. Our expenses are on plan and we have improved margins offsetting high meat costs. However, revenues have not yet reached forecast levels.

''We expect improved revenue performance and earnings comparisons during the final three quarters of fiscal 1991. New products have been introduced and several more are scheduled. We also have strong marketing programs planned over the balance of the year. We continue to expect both sales and net income for fiscal 1991 to improve over last year.''

GoodMark Foods is the nation's leading producer and marketer of meat snacks.

The company is also a regional producer of packaged meat products, cookies crackers, brownies and other snacks. Its principal brands include Slim Jim, Penrose, and Pemmican meat snacks; Jesse Jones packaged meats; A Whale Of A Snack cookies and crackers; Rachel's Brownies; and Andy Capp's snacks.

POMPANO BEACH, FLA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - ROCK-A-BYE BABY Inc. has been selected by the Juvenile Products Manufacturer's Association (JPMA) to participate in its 1990 trade show to be held in Dallas in October.

The trade show, held at the Dallas Apparel Mart from Oct. 4-7, is the industry's premier event for spotlighting new products and firms. More than 250 exhibitors will be featured and about 3000 of the industry's leading retailers and distributors will be represented.

Andrew Horn, president and chief executive officer of ROCK-A-BYE BABY Inc. said his firm will use the show to introduce several significant product innovations and improvements to its existing line of proprietary infant care products. ''Participation in the show creates substantial business for the company,'' Horn said.

''Last year, the show was responsible for the successful introduction of our new ROCK-A-BYE BEAR, and sales exceeded our greatest expectations. This year we expect even more industry exposure due to our expanded product line and the fact that we've been selected to occupy one of the permanent show rooms situated on the same floor as many of the world's leading manufacturers.''

''Although it is the largest show of its kind in the United States, there are always more applicants than exhibit spaces,'' explained Horn.

''Participants are selected based on the quality of their product line and sales potential. Last year, ROCK-A-BYE BABY Inc. was selected ahead of 40 other firms for the right to exhibit and the fact that we were selected again this year says a lot about the quality and demand for our products.''

ROCK-A-BYE BABY Inc., a manufacturer and marketer of infant care products, is a publically traded company based in Pompano Beach, Fla. The company's products are sold through more than 700 retail and mail order houses nationwide. Shares are traded over the counter.

KOKOMO, IN (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Delco Electronics Corp. is negotiating with Motorola and Texas Instruments (TI) to produce and market worldwide its new integrated circuit (IC) technology that links microprocessors and serial data buses.

Both Motorola and TI would produce Data Link Controller (DLC) ICs, and derivatives of the DLC, for a variety of customer uses.

DLC devices act as an interface and line driver between a microprocessor and an SAE J1850 serial data bus. Delco Electronics designed two versions of the DLC. Both conform to the single-wire version of the J1850 serial data bus and contain the protocol handling logic, transmission line driver and receiver circuitry.

''This IC technology promotes the SAE J1850 standard for serial data communication,'' said Walter R. McIndoo, director, IC Delco, a business unit of Delco Electronics. ''Additionally, commercial sources for the DLC design enhance General Motor's goal of standardization of on-vehicle serial buses within the automotive industry,'' McIndoo added.

As the electronics content-per-vehicle increases, the need for greater flexibility and ease of communication among the electronics systems and components increases. The SAE J1850 calls for standardization of a communication bus among electronics systems. A communication bus is the link among the electronic systems.

One version of the IC would provide for direct interface with the parallel microprocessor bus of the Motorola 68HC11 and 68332 families. The second DLC version would provide a direct interface with the Serial Peripheral Interface (SPI) found on Motorola's 68HC11, 68332 and Texas Instruments TMS 370 families.

The DLC is capable of operating in temperatures ranging from minus 40 C to 125 C. The IC is built with a high voltage Complementary Metal Oxide Semiconductor (CMOS) process.

Delco Electronics sought out Motorola and TI as commercial sources for the DLC to promote establishment of GM's version of the SAE J1850 data communications bus as a standard worldwide. Delco Electronics has no plans to sell the DLC commercially, but will manufacture the DLC for internal use.

Delco Electronics is a subsidiary of GM Hughes Electronics.

NEW HYDE PARK, N.Y. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Bamberger Polymers Inc. (ASE:BPI) Thursday reported results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Revenues for the second quarter totalled $43,998,000 as compared to $48,466,000 for the corresponding period last year. There was a net loss of $517,000, or 17 cents per share vs. a loss of $198,000 or 6 cents per share for the same period in 1989.

In the first half of 1990, revenues were $88,577,000 vs. $97,508,000 for the first half of 1989. There was a net loss of $210,000, or 7 cents per share as compared to a loss of $851,000, or 25 cents per share for the similar period in 1989.

Results for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990 were adversely affected by net after tax costs of $112,000 and $200,000 respectively, relating to the development and introduction of new products as well as $83,000 of one-time after tax expenses relating to the distribution of Interpak Holdings Inc. by Bamberger Polymers.

Management also believes that the results of the second quarter were significantly adversely effected by the action of certain sales executives who acted in concert to interfere with the company's business activities. The company has instituted legal action against this group for these alleged wrong-doings.

PALO ALTO, CA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Hewlett-Packard Company today announced that Jacques A. Clay, currently general manager of the Grenoble (France) Personal Computer Division, has been appointed general manager of the Personal Computer Group (PCG), and that the group's headquarters will relocate from Sunnyvale, Calif., to Grenoble.

The announcement reflects the growing importance of international markets for PCs and terminals, said Lewis E. Platt, HP executive vice president and head of the company's Computer Products Sector. ''Currently, international markets represent more than half of HP's sales of PCs and terminals and have great potential for expansion. As such, it is quite opportune to have an international PCG headquarters.''

While Grenoble becomes the new group headquarters, PCG will retain its four regional headquarters and their present management: Europe, which Clay will continue to head; North America, Michel A. Naggiar, region manager; Asia-Pacific, Steve M. Cakebread, region manager, and Latin America, John Toppel, region manager.

Clay, 47, replaces Robert L. Puette, who left HP recently. Since joining HP in 1973, Clay has held management positions in HP's Grenoble and Sunnyvale locations. After holding positions as controller and operations manager for several Grenoble entities, he served two years as manufacturing manager of the Grenoble PC Division. In 1987, he transferred to California as general manager of the Sunnyvale Personal Computer Operation. In 1988, he returned to France as general manager of the Grenoble PC Division. Clay has a marketing degree from Ecole Superieur Commerce in Lyon, France, and a bachelor's degree in law from Grenoble University.

HP has two industrial sites in the Grenoble region, which produce personal computers, terminals and cardiology equipment. In addition, Grenoble distributes all HP PCs sold in Europe and conducts research and development for PCs. The Grenoble region, which opened in 1971, is located close to HP's European headquarters in Geneva. The company has approximately 4,000 employees in France. Hewlett-Packard Company is an international manufacturer of measurement and computation products and systems recognized for excellence in quality and support. The company's products and services are used in industry, business, engineering, science medicine and education in approximately 100 countries. HP has 92,000 employees and had revenue of $11.9 billion in its 1989 fiscal year.

GRAND FORKS, ND (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Northern Telecom (NYSE:NT) and US WEST Communications announced Thursday the completion of the first successful market trial of the Caller ID Name Display service.

This new calling service allows customers, who have telephones equipped with a display screen, to see the name of the caller before answering the phone.

About 120 residential and small business customers participated in the trial, which focused on the technical aspects of providing the service. This included testing the Northern Telecom software that makes the service possible.

The software, running on a Northern Telecom DMS-100 switching system which serves Grand Forks, stored and delivered the names of the callers to the customers. The names and numbers of the calling parties were matched using customer line information contained within the switch.

''This is the first customer trial of Caller ID Name Display in the country and it went off without a hitch,'' said Northern Telecom's Susan Briner, senior product manager for residential services. ''The software worked the first time and continued working without any problems.''

Grand Forks residents said they liked the new Caller ID service. ''Our preliminary research shows that customers were extremely pleased with being able to see the name of the person calling,'' said Terri Ford, CLASS project manager, US WEST. ''They felt it added a great deal of value to the Caller ID service.''

Caller ID Name Display is one of several CLASS services tested during the six-month trial. CLASS services are advanced calling services (Caller ID customer initiated call trace, automatic recall, and others) the telephone operating companies are introducing throughout the United States.

During the first phase -- January 4 thru March 4 -- customers received the number of the calling party using Northern Telecom's Maestro telephone, or Caller ID adjunct units. The Maestro is the first residential telephone with an integrated display panel that supports Caller ID services.

During the second phase of the trial -- May 15 thur July 15 -- customers used a Northern Telecom prototype Caller ID adjunct unit to receive both the name and number of the calling party. The Northern Telecom prototype adjunct unit allows a customer to see both the caller's name and number before answering the phone.

A second trial, involving Northern Telecom and US WEST, is slated to begin in January in Boise, Idaho, where 45,000 residents and business customers will have the opportunity to purchase the Caller ID Name Display service. The market trial will last about six months.

Northern Telecom's Caller ID Name Display software is slated to be generally available in December on Northern Telecom DMS-100 switching systems.

Northern Telecom is the leading global supplier of fully digital telecommunications switching systems, providing products and services to telephone operating companies, corporations, governments, universities and other institutions worldwide. Northern Telecom, with 1989 revenues of $6.1 billion, employs more than 49,000 people around the world.

COLUMBUS, OH (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) today ruled on Ohio Edison's request to increase rates, granting an 8.5 percent increase over current company revenues, or an increase of $142,376,000.

Ohio Edison had requested an increase of approximately $216,000,000. The rates authorized today by the Commission include, for the first time, the costs of the Beaver Valley 2 nuclear plant.

In making rulings in rate cases, the Commission is required by law to authorize rates which are fair and reasonable to customers, while at the same time, allowing the company the opportunity to meet expenses, pay interest on debts, and provide a reasonable return to stockholders. The PUCO set an 11.20 percent rate of return in today's decision.

The typical Ohio Edison residential customer using 500 kwh per month, currently pays approximately $57.23 per month for electric service. With today's increase, it is estimated that the customer would pay approximately $62.38 per month.

The Commission determined that Ohio Edison has a 22.85 percent reserve margin, which is the amount of generating capacity above what is needed to meet customer peak demand. Although PUCO guidelines established in a 1987 opinion define a benchmark reserve margin of 20 percent, the Commission did not make any adjustment to the revenue requirement in this case because there is only a slight deviation from the 20 percent benchmark and because Ohio Edison's reserve margin is expected to drop below 20 percent after 1991.

The Commission approved the establishment of a seasonal rate structure. The summer billing months will be June through September and winter billing months will be October through May, with a slightly higher rate during the summer billing period. The Commission noted that although seasonal rates are new to Ohio Edison, they are in effect at six other major Ohio electric utility companies.

The PUCO rejected nearly $2,938,750 in advertising costs, including the costs of advertisements featuring Cleveland Browns' quarterback Bernie Kosar, as well as costs for employee memberships and club expenses, agreeing with the Office Of Consumers' Counsel that ratepayers should not bear these costs.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - SCOR U.S. Corp. (NYSE:SUR) announced Thursday that its stock repurchase program, which was initiated in December 1988 to buyback SCOR U.S. common stock in the open market, has been expanded by an additional $1 million.

This increase will allow SCOR U.S. to repurchase approximately $2 million in common stock, as market conditions permit.

In the past, Societe Commerciale de Reassurance (''SCOR Paris''), the immediate parent of SCOR U.S., has participated in the SCOR U.S. program by matching, on a one-for-one basis, the amount of common stock bought back by SCOR U.S. From December 1988 through April 1989, SCOR Paris and SCOR U.S. each repurchased shares totaling $1.44 million.

Today's announcement, however, modifies the former 50 % - 50% buy-back program by allowing SCOR U.S. to repurchase stock without its parent's participation.

Patrick Peugeot, chairman and chief executive officer of SCOR U.S., stated that ''SCOR Paris encourages this change, however, we still maintain our long-term goal of reducing SCOR Paris' 79 percent ownership of SCOR U.S.''

Peugeot also announced that, ''Due to current stock market conditions, SCOR U.S. and SCOR S.A. do not intend to proceed with their previously announced plans for a public offering of SCOR U.S. shares in the foreseeable future.''

SCOR U.S. Corp. is the holding company of Scor Reinsurance Co. and The Unity Group. Scor Re specializes in underwriting treaties covering commercial and technical risks, and is a recognized leader in the provision of facultative property, casualty and special risk covers.

The Unity Group primarily underwrites property business on a treaty basis. Scor Re and The Unity Group are both headquartered in New York City. In addition, Scor Re operates branch offices in Chicago, Dallas, Hartford and New York City.

NASHUA, NH (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Lockheed Sanders has delivered the 1000th production unit of the AN/ALG-126B onboard countermeasure system that protects military aircraft against radar guided missiles.

Delivery of the 1000th unit to the Navy on Aug. 12, 1990 marks a significant milestone for Sanders manufacturing. Charles A. Maxwell, vice president for Operations, noted that since the start of ALQ-126B production in 1983, the manufacturing cycle time for an individual unit has dramatically been reduced from 33 weeks to 16 weeks. System test time has also been reduced from 16 to two weeks. Despite inflationary impact on labor material, Sanders system unit cost have remained constant.

The ALQ-126B, a major element in the U.S. Navy improved electronic warfare suite, provides protection for U.S. Navy fighter and attack aircraft as well as the armed forces of a number of allied and friendly nations. Norman A. Whitaker, director of ALQ-126B production programs at Sanders, said the 1000th delivery milestone underscores the company's capabilities to produce highly complex, extremely sophisticated electronic systems - in volume and on schedule.

Whitaker said that reports from the Fleet indicate that the ALQ-126B is one of the best deployed EW systems. ''The field reliability performance has exceeded the design specifications,'' he added.

The ALQ-126B demonstrates Sanders ability to package increased performance in limited space, Whitaker said. ''It uses distributed microprocessors, solid-state amplifiers, microwave integrated circuits, a digital instantaneous frequency measurement receiver, liquid filled power supplies 16 layer motherboard and advances in digital circuitry and large scale integration to provide significantly enhanced performance over previousy built ECM systems.

The technology is modern and meets or exceeds design parameters while maintaining its traditional 2.3 cubic feet of space in the aircraft.

''Today we are developing Gallium Arsenide (GaAs) microcircuits that will enable us to advance system performance within existing volume and weight constraints. Because GaAs chips typically require fewer components to implement a particular function than do silicon devices, they will not only provide added space for future upgrades, but further enhance overall system reliability as well,'' Whitaker said.

The ALQ-126B systems provide protection for A-4, A-6, A-7, F-4, F-14 and the F/A-18 aircraft. Sanders also produces ALQ-164 pod versions for installation on AV-8 Harrier aircraft.

BOSTON (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The Boston Bancorp (NASDAQ:SBOS), the holding company for South Boston Savings Bank, Thursday reported net income of $3,418,000, or $0.49 per share, for the third quarter of the fiscal year, ended July 31, 1990.

For the same period of fiscal 1989, the Company earned $3,566,000, or $0.46 per share. Per share amounts for the latest quarter were based on 6,899,320 weighted average shares outstanding, compared with 7,743,770 in the year-ago quarter.

For the nine months ended July 31, 1990, the Boston Bancorp earned $10,655,000, or $1.52 per share, compared with $11,446,000, or $1.47 per share, in the first nine months of the prior fiscal year.

The results for the third quarter of fiscal 1990 represented an annualized return on average equity of 14.08% and a return on average assets of .91%. Total assets at July 31, 1990 were $1.6 billion. Stockholders' equity was $97,333,000 at the end of fiscal 1990 third quarter, or $14.27 per share.

Net interest income before provision for loan losses was $8,078,000 for the third quarter of fiscal 1990, compared with $8,326,000 for the same quarter of fiscal 1989. The interest rate spread was 1.84% for the quarter ended July 31, 1990, compared with 1.90% in the same period last year. Net interest income was $24,913,000 for the first nine months of this fiscal year, compared with $26,969,000 in the fiscal 1989 period.

Other real estate, which is comprised of mortgages in foreclosure and possession increased to $19,304,000 at July 31, 1990 from $13,648,000 at October 31, 1989. Loans delinquent and in possession and foreclosure were 1.31% of total assets at July 31, 1990 compared to 1.01% at October 31, 1989. Management believes there is adequate value in these properties, and will continue to closely monitor this situation in light of present economic conditions.

Total other income was $2,064,000 for the fiscal 1990 third quarter, increasing from $1,330,000 in the three months ended July 31, 1989. The difference was due to increases in net gains on sales of securities and loan fees and service charges. Other income rose to $5,636,000 for the first nine months of this year from $3,037,000 in the fiscal 1989 first nine months.

The Boston Bancorp is the holding company for South Boston Savings Bank, a state-chartered stock savings bank headquartered in South Boston, Massachusetts. South Boston also has full-service offices in Dorchester, Quincy, Weymouth and, as a result of the Eliot Savings purchase, in Needham and West Roxbury, Massachusetts. HOUSTON (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The Mischer Corp. (NASDAQ:MSHR) Thursday reported income of $108,000, or 3 cents per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to a loss of $2,332,000, or 78 cents per share, for the same period in 1989.

The company reported net income of $1,611,000, or 51 cents per share, and net loss of $4,937,000, or $1.94 per share, for the six months ended June 30, 1990 and 1989, respectively. Revenues from continuing operations for the six months ended June 30, 1990 were $3,345,000 as compared to $6,509,000 for the same period in 1989.

The decrease in revenues is a result of a reduction in the number of lots and acres sold in the first two quarters of 1990 plus revenues for 1989 include the sale of a warehouse in Harahan, Louisiana.

Net losses from continuing operations for the six months ended June 30, 1990 and 1989 were $40,452,000, or $12.69 per share, and $4,474,000, or $1.76 per share, respectively. The loss from continuing operations for the first six months of 1990 included a $37,022,000, or $11.62 per share, writedown during the first quarter on assets conveyed to its major bank creditors.

In addition, The Mischer Corp. recognized a $40,899,000, or $12.84 per share, extraordinary gain on the debt settlement, net of federal income taxes in the first quarter of 1990.

The company is engaged in real estate development and management primarily in the Houston area.

Davis stated that the decline in revenues and resulting loss for the three month period ended June 30 was attributable to a decrease in military sales which is a direct result of the slowdown in defense industry spending. Management believes it has made appropriate adjustments in manpower and expenses in line with anticipated sales levels in future quarters.

Efforts are underway to modify some of the company's products for sales to the non-military market. The company is also increasing its marketing efforts for the sale of its military products to foreign markets.

Tele-Optics Inc. has been awarded a $1.4 million contract by the U.S. Army for an optical device which is an important component of the M1 Tank.

MONTGOMERY, AL (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The Enstar Group Inc. (OTC NASDAQ Symbol:ENST) Thursday announced the election of Nimrod T. (''Rod'') Frazer to the company's board of directors.

Frazer will succeed Laurence D. Fink, who is resigning. Frazer is chairman and co-founder of The Frazer Lanier Co., a regional investment banking firm headquartered in Montgomery.

He has been active in the securities industry since 1956 and has been a securities industry spokesman before committees of the United States Congress.

He is a graduate of Huntingdon College (1954) and Harvard Business School (1956). Frazer is a recognized community leader.

Fink, who has been a board member of Enstar since July 1989, and American Savings & Loan Association of Florida (OTC NASDAQ Symbol:ASLA) since May 1988, recently informed the boards of both companies that the recent growth of his business commitments made the time required to adequately serve on both boards impossible.

After extensive discussions with management and Fink it was concluded that his financial market expertise would be most valuable to all shareholders if he devoted his time to American Savings.

As a result, Fink has resigned from the Enstar board of directors effective Aug. 16, and continues on the board of American Savings.

Richard Grassgreen, chairman of Enstar, said, ''We are very pleased to have Frazer on our board. Rod has been a shareholder of the company since it was founded in 1969. His business expertise and long association with our company will provide valuable assistance and advice to our management team.

''We are grateful to Mr. Fink for his significant contribution to Enstar and we are pleased that the company will be able to continue to benefit from his expertise through his directorate on the American Savings Board.''

RENO, NV (AUG. 12) BUSINESS WIRE - Gexa Gold Corp. announced Thursday the results of an initial exploratory drill program on its 100 percent-controlled Maverick Springs project located in Elko County, Nev.

The company was encouraged by the following intercept:

Hole Number	Depth	Au Oz/Ton	Ag Oz/Ton
MS-05	785'-820'	0.023	2.57

Because of drilling conditions the hole was stopped at 820'. The subsequent assays showed that the bottom 10 feet averaged 0.041 oz/ton Au and 7.33 oz/ton Ag.

The Maverick Springs property is comprised of 125 unpatented claims and is located in an area that has limited published geological data. However, the property lies within a broadly favorable geological area, located approximately 50 miles southeast of Elko, Nev., along the projected strike of the Carlin trend.

The company's initial drilling was part of a general assessment program. The positioning of these widely spaced holes (four) was for the purpose of ascertaining the reasoning for the large increase in exploratory activity on claims adjacent to Gexa's, where three drill rigs have been active during the summer.

The company went on to say that while there is no reason to believe, at this time, that it has identified the correct reasons for this activity, the mineralization encountered will enable Gexa to develop a more significant exploration program.

Gexa Gold Corp. is a public corporation traded on the National Association of Securities Dealers Automated Quotation system, ''NASDAQ,'' under the trading symbol of ''GEXA.'' The company's common stock is also listed on the Spokane Stock Exchange.

ALBANY, NY (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - According to a recent issue of American Banker, one of the financial industry's leading publications, KeyCorp out-performed most of the banking industry in shareholder value during the second quarter of 1990.

During that time period, the American Banker index of 225 publicly traded bank stocks fell 1.73 percent, and the Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 5.3 percent while KeyCorp shares appreciated in value by 14.6 percent for the quarter.

A more recent article in American Banker reported on a study conducted by Montgomery Securities Inc. in San Francisco. According to the study, only a select group of 10 of the nation's top 50 banks reported any appreciation in their stock prices over the past two years.

KeyCorp was one of the 10. Common factors among these industry leaders cited in the report included exceptionally strong credit cultures and the avoidance of major asset problems. It was also noted that banks such as KeyCorp have been opportunistic in expanding their franchises or are operating in areas of the country with good regional economies.

In its 1990 annual survey of the 100 largest commercial banking companies in the United States, Fortune ranked KeyCorp as the 41st largest bank in the country, up from 44th last year. With respect to total return to investors, KeyCorp delivered a 39.5 percent return during 1989, making it the 14th highest in the nation. That return is higher than eight of the 10 largest banks on the Fortune list.

For the 10-year period 1979 through 1989, KeyCorp's total return to shareholders of 24.2 percent ranked 15th in the nation on the Fortune list. For the 10-year period, KeyCorp's return was better than nine of the 10 largest banks in the country.

''KeyCorp is one of the few banks reporting not only earnings improvements but a solid return to shareholders as well,'' noted Victor J. Riley Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer.

''Bank stocks in general have been among some of the less popular investments and the concern about loan quality has resulted in lower prices for many bank stocks.

''We will probably be painted with the same brush as other banks and that is most unfortunate,'' continued Riley. ''Our loan portfolio is sound. In addition, regulatory authorities have recently completed a review of the loan portfolios at several of our Key Banks where the previous rating issued by regulators was either maintained or upgraded. In all cases, the authorities agreed with our internal assessment of credit quality and no increases in loan loss reserves were mandated.''

KeyCorp (NYSE:KEY) with assets of $16 billion, is a multi-regional bank holding company headquartered in Albany. It has focused its banking expansion activities in the Northeast and Northwest.

Pursuing a middle market target -- consumers and small- to medium-sized businesses -- KeyCorp has concentrated its resources in cities and smaller communities of the northern tier of states, thus avoiding overcrowded marketplaces and single industry loan exposure.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The Farm Credit System reported combined net income of $171 million for the second quarter of 1990, compared with net income of $180 million for the same period of the prior year.

Net income for the first six months of 1990 was $362 million, compared with $356 million for the first six months of 1989.

Net interest income increased $39 million to $295 million for the second quarter of 1990 and increased $120 million to $616 million for the six months ended June 30, 1990 as compared with net interest income of $256 million and $496 million for the same periods of the prior year. The increase in net interest income was attributable primarily to the retirement of higher-cost debt which matured over the past year.

Also contributing to this increase was the continued improvement in the credit quality of the loan portfolio, reflected principally by the overall reductions in nonaccrual loans of $193 million or 6.7 percent since the second quarter of 1989.

Gross loan volume increased $501 million to $51.208 billion at June 30, 1990 from $50.707 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. The net growth resulted from an increase in loans to cooperatives, and a seasonal increase in short- and intermediate-term loans offset partially by a decrease in long-term real estate loans.

Despite the overall improvement in the credit quality of the System's loan portfolios over the past several quarters, nonaccrual loans increased to $2.674 billion at June 30, 1990 from $2.553 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. The increase was attributable to two bank's adoption, in response to high-risk asset accounting guidelines recently issued by the Farm Credit Administration, the System's regulator, of an approach to classification of high-risk assets that is more conservative than the approach previously utilized by those banks. This increase was partially offset by a net decline in nonaccrual loans at the remaining System Banks, whose managements believe that they are in substantial compliance with the FCA's recently-issued guidelines.

High-risk loans, excluding nonaccrual loans, and related accrued interest decreased to $4.139 billion at June 30, 1990 from $4.540 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. The System's non-earning assets, which consist of nonaccrual loans and other property owned, were $3.040 billion at June 30, 1990, compared with $3.021 billion at Dec. 31, 1989, representing 5.9 percent of the System's loans and other property owned at both dates.

The allowance for loan losses was $1.531 billion at June 30, 1990, compared to $1.578 billion at Dec. 31, 1989. The allowance was 22.5 percent of the System's total high-risk loans, including accrued interest, and 57.2 percent of its nonaccrual loans at June 30, 1990. This compared with 22.2 percent and 61.8 percent, respectively, at Dec. 31, 1989.

The Farm Credit System is a nationwide system of federally chartered agricultural lending institutions cooperatively owned by their borrowers.

SEATTLE (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Signalling the beginning of a new era in home-entertainment options for American consumers, SkyPix Corp. Thursday announced that it will begin offering an 80-channel direct-to-home satellite (DBS) TV service in the first quarter of next year.

SkyPix is designed to provide consumers with a whole new way to watch TV, while offering viewers the world's first in-home video store. SkyPix viewers will be able to choose from 40 to 50 major Hollywood films at any time in a virtual on-demand programming schedule.

In addition to movies, SkyPix will offer an exciting selection of news, sports, major live events, music, original children's programming and a package of 10 superstations from across America.

The heart of the SkyPix system is a small, lightweight 22-inch to 36-inch antenna (size dependent on geographic location) and sleek remote-control receiver that will be sold through consumer electronics specialty chains and satellite retailers at a suggested retail price of $699.

All authorized SkyPix dealers will have trained installers available. Do-it-yourselfers, however, will find that installation of the SkyPix system is fast and easy; all appropriate cables and mounting hardware will be included in the package, along with a toll-free ''800'' number for on-the-spot assistance.

The other direct-to-home venture, K-Prime Partners, will launch without video compression. Only 3 of its 10 channels will carry pay-per-view movies; the rest is simply superstation programming.

SkyPix will be launched with an initial private capitalization of $200 million arranged by BT Securities, a subsidiary of Banker's Trust, PaineWebber and Seattle-based Cope Brothers Capital.

SkyPix Corporation is headquartered at 25670 74th Avenue South, Kent, Washington 98032 Tel. 206/854-7596.

GREENBELT, MD (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - COMNET Corp. (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: CNET) Thursday announced results for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990.

The Company reported revenue of $5,682,000 for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 (the first quarter of Fiscal 1991) compared with $5,466,000 for the same quarter the prior year. Net earnings were $462,000 for the latest quarter, up from the $361,000 reported for the same quarter last year.

Earnings per share were $0.16 vs. $0.14 last year, based on 2,864,680 shares this year and 2,656,694 shares last year. At the end of the first quarter, $1,250,000 of 8 percent subordinated debentures were exchanged at the request of individual holders, for 125,000 shares of COMNET Common (treasury) Stock.

The Company's largest subsidiary, Group 1 Software (NASDAQ/NMS Symbol: GSOF; 83 percent owned by COMNET), reported record first quarter revenues and earnings for the quarter ended June 30, 1990. Revenue totalled $4,921,000 compared with $4,733,000 for the same quarter the prior year. Net earnings were $747,000 compared with $691,000 the prior year.

Group 1 launched the marketing program for its new AS/400 midrange computer software during the first quarter. This represented significant expense in advance of offsetting revenues, since the full midrange software line will be phased-in over coming months. Response to the initial marketing effort has been excellent and sales pipelines are building.

COM-MED Systems, another COMNET subsidiary (100 percent owned), signed software sales agreements with three new clients during the quarter, including an account operating a chain of assisted living centers.

The use of COM-MED Systems' state-of-the-art software in assisted living facilities offers potential for a sizeable market in addition to the nursing home market which the Company has been primarily addressing to date. The backlog of contracts signed by COM-MED Systems with software installations yet to be competed (and, therefore, without revenue recognized as yet) totalled $467,000 at June 30, 1990.

Revenue for the quarter for COMNET's AIM Division was below expectations. Business activity at AIM in the present fiscal quarter, however, is substantially stronger.

LITTLETON, MASS. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Alliant Computer Systems Thursday announced the sale of two RISC-based FX/2800 supercomputers to associated Swedish institutions.

The Manne Siegbahn Institute (MSI) of Physics and the related KTH -- Royal Institute of Technology, both headquartered in Stockholm, have joined the growing number of Alliant FX/2800 users.

''We chose the FX/2800 for MSI because we needed a shared resource that could easily handle a number of very large applications, simultaneously,'' said Hans Holmgren, head of the computer section at Stockholm University Department of Physics.

Holmgren is responsible for purchasing computers for the Physics Center, the cooperative organization that links MSI, KTH, Stockholm University and the Stockholm Astronomy Observatory. The FX/2800 supercomputer at MSI is primarily used for quantum chemistry and high energy physics computations associated with the pan-European CERN accelerator ring project. KTH's system will be used for a mix of chemistry, fluid dynamics and other applications.

''Another reason for choosing the FX/2800 was its design and future development concept based on an open architecture, parallelism and standard peripherals,'' said Holmgren. ''Confidence in the company we deal with is very important. We lost confidence in some of the major manufacturers who supplied us in the past. We trust Alliant as they listen carefully to the scientific community.''

''The FX/2800 is easy to work with and gives us the throughput and time to solution that is important for our very large and varied applications,'' said Dr. Nils Elander, senior scientist at MSI. ''We also knew from experience that we would get good service and support from Alliant.''

Alliant Computer Systems Corp. manufactures standards-based parallel supercomputers with visualization tools that enable scientists and engineers to quickly interpret and solve complex problems.

HARTFORD, CT. (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - The board of directors of The Advest Group Inc. has approved a plan to buy back up to two million shares or approximately 20 percent, of the company's common stock, it was announced today.

All purchases shall be conducted from time-to-time in the open market.

Anthony A. LaCroix, chairman of the board and chief executive officer, cited the current low price of the stock as a key reason for the decision. ''With the stock selling at less than half of book value, this is an opportune time to put excess cash to good use,'' he said.

The company also announced that the board approved a quarterly dividend of $0.04 per share payable on September 17 to stockholders of record as of August 31.

RICHMOND, VA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - To further the development of partnerships and alliances with its suppliers and customers, James River Corp. (NYSE: JR) Thursday announced it has appointed John M. Nevin as senior vice president of a newly formed management function, Strategic Services.

''A key element of James River's corporate strategy has always been to form partnerships that provide our customers with products and services that have greater value,'' said company President Robert C Williams.

''Central to this effort are our Corporate Materials and Energy Procurement, Transportation and Customer Relations functions, all of which will be combined under Mr. Nevin's direction. His strong operating background and experience will enhance our total capabilities in this important quality performance area.'' Nevin, who will join James River on Sept. 1 from Wilton, Ct., comes from International Paper Co., where he was vice president of manufacturing, pulp and paper.

Nevin is a graduate of Princeton University with a B.S. degree in chemical engineering. He and his wife Joy have three children.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Teletrak Advanced Technology Systems Inc. (OTC) Thursday reported financial results for the second quarter and first half ended June 30.

Sales for the second quarter were $488,379 versus $529,072 for the same period last year. Net loss was $86,588 or nil cents per share as compared to a loss of $70,079 or nil cents per share in 1989.

First half sales totalled $1,123,889 versus $824,039 in 1989. Net loss was $82,372 or nil cents per share as compared to a loss of $247,641 or 1 cent per share in 1989.

Management stated that certain shipments originally planned for the second quarter were moved to the second half of the year due to budgetary limitations by one major financial institution. The company believes that based upon present indications from prospective customers, second half sales should exceed the first half and that operations should be profitable for that period.

Teletrak is a software development company and system integrator specializing in optical disc data technology which provides on-line storage and retrieval informations systems.

RICHMOND, VA (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - James River Corp. (NYSE: JR) announced Thursday at its annual meeting of shareholders that its board of directors has approved a plan to enhance shareholder value by restructuring the company's operations.

This plan is the culmination of several major steps which were initiated during the last fiscal year including the sale of its Nonwovens Division and the shutdown of several unprofitable operations.

The plan, which is expected to be substantially completed within a year, will allow the Company to concentrate its management and financial resources on four core product areas:

Towel and Tissue
Dixie Food Service Products
Food and Consumer Packaging Communication Papers

The new direction will increase the resources available for strategic expansion and allow the Company to simplify its structure so that it can concentrate on global growth opportunities in those James River businesses in which it commands a substantial market share, which are less cyclical, and which have the highest potential to provide James River with competitive advantage.

The company plans to divest its Specialty Industrial Papers Business, its eastern Business Papers operations in Berlin/Gorham and Groveton, New Hampshire, and Wiggins, Mississippi, and its coated printing papers operations at West Linn, Oregon. Less competitive towel and tissue operations in South Glens Falls, New York, and Ashland, Wisconsin will be phased out or sold.

The current annual sales rate of these operations is approximately $1.3 billion. The company also plans to reduce its interest in its pulp mill in Marathon, Ontario from 80 percent to 50 percent.

The company has signed a letter of intent to sell the Specialty Industrial Papers Business to a new company controlled by AEA Investors Inc. and a management group headed by James E. Rogers, currently Group Executive for this business.

James River will retain a 20 percent interest in the new company which is expected to be headquartered in Richmond, Va. Consummation of the transaction is subject to the completion of financing and the negotiation of definitive agreements.

RANDOLPH, MA (AUG. 19) BUSINESS WIRE - Apogee Technology Inc. (NASDAQ:APGG) reported Thursday that sales for the second quarter ended June 30, were approximately $627,000 compared with $501,000 in the same period last year.

Apogee reported a net operating loss of $151,000, or 10 cents per share compared to a loss of $139,000, or 9 cents per share in the 1989 second quarter.

Apogee, which is a foremost manufacturer of high-quality, high-end ribbon speakers, also reported that its order backlogs are at their highest levels ever.

For the first six months of 1990 the company reported revenues of approximately $1.286 million and a net operating loss of $309,000, or 20 cents per share compared with sales of $1.305 million and a net operating loss of $51,000, or 3 cents per share in the same period last year.

The company reported increases in research and development costs in the second quarter and first half this year compared with the same periods last year. R&D spending for the quarter was $108,000 compared with $102,000 last year and for the first half totaled $237,000 compared with $186,000.

These costs were primarily related to development of a digital amplifier, final development and testing associated with bringing Apogee's new Stage speaker system to production, development of the company's new Centaurus speaker line as well as research on various other new products.

Jason Bloom, president and chief executive officer of Apogee, said that the company has been testing a research model of an advanced architectural design of its digital amplifier.

He said that while further performance improvements and testing are progressing, initial results have proven the concept and functionality of the design. The company intends to seek patent protection for the digital amplifier.

Bloom said that some of the potential applications of the digitial amplifier may cover a wide range of commercial uses including home and professional audio entertainment and automobile audio systems as well as non-entertainment applications in robotics, electric automation, inertial navigation electronic drive elements and electric automotive drive systems.

MOBILE, AL (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - Altus Bank, a Federal Savings Bank (NASDAQ/NMS: ALTS) announced Thursday that the board of directors has made the decision to apply for participation in a new government assistance program referred to as the Accelerated Resolution Program (ARP), according to James H. Gambill, president and chief executive officer.

The ARP, adopted on July 10, 1990, is a method for the government to address a capital deficient institution on an expedited basis and is designed to preserve an institution's franchise value and return it to capital compliance.

Gambill explained that under the program, an institution may be recapitalized with the branch network, core deposit base and majority of assets remaining in place while the problem assets are assumed by the government.

Only institutions which have an acceptable management structure and a stable operating environment, as determined by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS), are eligible for the program. Based on these criteria management believes Altus is eligible for the program.

Although Altus reported a slight profit for the second quarter, it is currently operating at capital levels below its minimum regulatory requirements. As previously reported Altus submitted a capital plan to the OTS on Jan. 8, 1990, which describes the manner by which the company intends to achieve regulatory capital compliance.

The OTS has not yet taken action on the company's plan; however, the plan does not provide for a capital injection. Gambill stated, "It appears from recent published information that plans of other companies which did not include a capital injection have been disapproved."

The rejection of Altus' plan could lead to the company being placed in Resolution Trust Corp. conservatorship or receivership which would eliminate all stockholders' rights.

"Due to these circumstances, the board of directors has authorized management to seek inclusion in the ARP as it believes that the program is the most effective resolution for Altus' capital deficiency. An investor group, including certain current Altus directors, has been established and intends to submit a proposal by the end of the week.

"Under initial regulatory guidelines, participation in the ARP eliminates shareholder equity, and management is searching for alternatives to avoid this result and provide some future value to the current shareholders," said Gambill.

STAMFORD, CT (AUG. 16) BUSINESS WIRE - EnviroSource Inc. reported a second quarter net loss despite improved results from continuing operations, and stated that it expects to delay the Sept. redemption of a subsidiary's preferred stock, but that available sources of funds are anticipated to be sufficient to satisfy its other 1990 cash requirements.

Second quarter 1990 revenues increased 23 percent to $59 million. The company's continuing operations reported a $19,000 loss for the quarter, as compared with a loss of $2.2 million in the second quarter of 1989. After deducting preferred stock dividends and accretion, per share losses from continuing operations were $.13 in 1990 and $.66 in 1989.

EnviroSource also reported an $11 million additional loss from discontinued operations in the second quarter of 1990, due to increases in estimated costs to complete long-term contracts and to resolve disputed contract items at its McGraw Construction subsidiary, versus $2.2 million of income from discontinued operations in 1989.

Overall, the company reported a net loss of $11 million in the 1990 quarter, compared with net income of $287,000 in 1989.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues increased 18 percent to $108 million. Results from continuing operations were a loss of $4.6 million, or $.69 per share, compared with a 1989 loss of $6.1 million, or $1.51 per share. The loss from discontinued operations amounted to $14 million, versus income of $6.9 million in 1989.

In total, the company reported a net loss of $18.6 million for the first six months of 1990, versus 1989 net income of $2.3 million, which also included a $1.5 million extraordinary income tax benefit. The company also reported that in light of its present sources of funds it expects to defer the scheduled Sept. 1, 1990 redemption of $20 million of preferred stock of a Canadian subsidiary.

EnviroSource has commenced discussions with the holder of such preferred stock concerning alternative approaches to such redemption, but no agreement has been reached on any such alternative.

The company confirmed that borrowing capacity under its bank credit agreement, cash flow from operations and proceeds from anticipated sales of non-strategic assets are expected to be sufficient to satisfy 1990 operating requirements and interest on debt.

EnviroSource supplies industrial customers with long-term, specialized services, primarily the recycling, handling, stabilization or landfilling of environmentally sensitive wastes or by-products.

SANTO DOMINGO (AUG. 16) - President Joaquin Balaguer was sworn in to a sixth term in the Dominican Republic Thursday, two days after a general strike degenerated into rioting which claimed 15 lives.

The conservative Mr. Balaguer, 83 and legally blind, took the oath of office from the chief justice of the Dominican Supreme Court during a ceremony before parliament.

The inauguration started 40 minutes late because opposition parties boycotted the ceremony to protest Mr. Balaguer's disputed election victory, thus preventing the congress from achieving a quorum.

At least 15 people died in disturbances during a two-day strike Monday and Tuesday which was called to protest the government's new economic austerity plan.

Looters in the capital sacked a large grocery store, clearing its shelves of foodstuffs, while more looting was reported in other cities across the country.

Dozens of people were injured and more than 1,000 others arrested as protesters and looters faced off against police and merchants.

Under the austerity plan, the price of sugar, the country's main export, rose 175 per cent, while gasoline prices and bus fares nearly doubled.

The plan raised the salaries of both public- and private-sector employees by 30 to 40 per cent.

Mr. Balaguer is starting his second consecutive four-year term and his sixth overall as president of this Spanish-speaking nation of seven million people which shares the Caribbean island of Hispaniola with Haiti.

Mr. Balaguer won re-election May 16 by a slim margin, with his main rival, 81-year-old Juan Bosch, claiming fraud.

SOWETO, South Africa (AUG. 16) - President Frederik de Klerk and black leader Nelson Mandela held crisis talks Thursday as undercurrents of violence bubbling nationwide boiled over into massive bloodshed around Johannesburg.

The talks, announced by the president's office, took place in Johannesburg even as supporters of Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha party and African National Congress comrades stood baying for each other's blood after a dawn raid on a packed commuter train left six people dead in Soweto black township.

"The discussions covered various aspects of the present state of unrest and violence ... and steps to curb it," the presidential statement said.

Only teargas-spraying police in riot gear managed to keep a 1,000-strong group of ANC "comrades" from surging across a bridge spanning the track near Soweto's Inhlanzane station to avenge the dawn attack.

Eyewitnesses said a heavily-armed 400-strong Inkatha impi (war party) had swarmed down on to a train standing at the station.

"They pulled passengers out and slashed at them with pangas (machetes). Others they simply shot," witness John Tolk told Agence France-Presse. Police said 99 people were injured.

Warned Mr. Tolk: "We're going to kill them (the Inkatha members) and destroy their hostels, no matter how long it takes. As soon as we can get past the police ..."

But, standing shoulder to shoulder, riot squad policemen formed a human barricade to prevent the comrades from breaking through.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the tracks, Zulus sporting red headbands stood chanting and war dancing as they taunted the comrades.

Police eventually pushed the comrades back with teargas, but by nightfall groups were gathering again and burning barricades were being erected in the streets.

"We're going to attack tonight, no doubt," said one angry comrade. "We have to teach these Inkatha people a lesson."

Black-on-black violence, sparked by the train attack, also broke out in other parts of Soweto Thursday, according to correspondents.

At Merafe station, hostels housing migrant workers, widely branded hardcore Inkatha warriors, were torched by the comrades, according to an AFP reporter whose car was stoned and unsuccessfully petrol-bombed by a mob of comrades.

Across the tracks, 700 Inkatha supporters clashed with ANC supporters, and at least one man was left bleeding from a gash in his head.

As medics attended to him, an Inkatha man took out a handgun and blazed away at passers-by, sending them scattering in all directions, an AFP reporter said.

In a bid to defuse the issue, Winnie Mandela, wife of ANC deputy president Nelson Mandela, addressed a crowd of supporters at a stadium near the flashpoints, the South African Press Association (SAPA) said.

Meanwhile, anti-Inkatha sentiment ran high in Tokoza township, east of Johannesburg, where police found another five bodies Thursday to bring the death toll in four days of Inkatha-ANC clashes there to 148. Some 500 people were injured, police said.

Thousands of ANC supporters streamed into the local stadium to hear Tokoza Civic Association (TCA) member Cas Khanyile call for Mr. Mandela and Mr. Buthelezi to meet urgently in an attempt to broker peace.

Numerous attempts to hold peace talks between the two organisations have faltered in Natal province, where the power struggle has seen some 3,000 people killed since the conflict was sparked in 1986.

Inkatha has been blamed for "exporting" the violence to Transvaal province and for sparking the Tokoza violence, in which two squatter camps were virtually demolished by Zulus wearing red headbands, according to witnesses.

Most of those who died were burned to death as their shanties were torched during an orgy of violence early Wednesday.

Amid tight police security, ANC-aligned leaders called at Thursday's rally for an end to violence and warned that an Inkatha meeting planned in Tokoza on Saturday would escalate the conflict.

ANC organiser in the area, Paul Mashatiele, warned that even though the ANC had last week decided to suspend its 29-year armed struggle, it did not mean "that we have to abandon our means of defence".

Police spokesman Colonel Frans Malherbe said further talks involving police and representatives from both sides was due to be held on Monday.

Isolated incidents, including the arrest of a man with a petrol bomb and another man who tried to attack a policeman with a panga while being disarmed had occurred Thursday, Col. Malherbe said.

MANAMA (AUG. 16) - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein vowed Thursday that "thousands of Americans" would return home in coffins in the event of a U.S.-Iraqi confrontation and said the doors to a Jihad (Moslem holy war) were open.

Mr. Hussein issued the threat as U.S. President George Bush prepared to meet at his vacation home in Maine with Jordan's King Hussein, who is carrying a message from the Iraqi president.

"Oh Moslems the door of the Jihad that had angered Bush the adulterer has opened. March towards it ... let shame be on the despicable, shame on atheist aggressors, dignity for Arabs and Moslems and all honourable supporters of the right in the world," the Iraqi president said.

His message, entitled "open letter to the U.S. President", was entirely directed at Mr. Bush and gave the impression that the American president had become the Iraqi leader's number one enemy, according to Gulf analysts.

Mr. Hussein -- whose statements were carried by the official Iraqi news agency INA and state-run Iraqi television -- repeatedly called the American president a liar in a tit-for-tat retaliation.

Mr. Bush has also describes the Iraqi leader as a liar in a speech on Wednesday.

"We pray to God to avoid any confrontation between Iraq and the United States that will result in thousands of Americans (returning home) in coffins after you have pushed them into a dark tunnel," said Mr. Hussein.

"Mr. President of the United States of America, you lied a first time when you told your people that you had sent troops to Saudi Arabia to protect American interests and a second time (when) you told them that the mission of the American troops was to force Iraqi troops from Kuwait," said Mr. Hussein.

"Can Iraq ask you to withdraw your forces from the southern American states? ... We are on our territory (in Kuwait) and the Kuwaitis ... have been Iraqis for a millenium," he said.

He stressed that he would not reverse his August 8 decision to merge Iraq and Kuwait, which followed the August 2 invasion of the tiny oil-rich emirate by Iraqi troops.

Mr. Hussein also vowed never to allow the deposed Kuwaiti regime to return describing the ousted royal family as "the mentally-deficient emirs of crude oil who deformed the image of Arabs."

Mr. Hussein urged the American president to be "honest with your people and tell them that the Arab and Islamic public opinion is against your presence on the land of prophets ... and that they will resist your designs and sacrifice in defence of faith ...,"

And he stressed that he had never "promised" anything to Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak" saying only that he would not use force until the Jeddah meeting.

Mr. Hussein was apparently referring to a meeting between Iraqi and Kuwaiti officials in the western Saudi town of Jeddah to resolve an oil and border dispute. The talks broke down on August 1.

Mr. Bush said Wednesday in a speech to Pentagon employees that the United States wanted to accomplish four goals in the international showdown with Iraq:

-- the immediate, complete and unconditional withdrawal of Iraqi forces from Kuwait;

-- return of Kuwait's legitimate government to power.

-- the security and stability of Saudi Arabia and the Gulf region in general.

-- protection of American lives abroad.

The Iraqi leader said that Mr. Bush's remarks were "feverish" and "clearly showed disrespect for the Arab mentality."

Some 3,500 U.S. citizens were living in Kuwait and Iraq before the Gulf crisis erupted and only a few of them have been able to leave.

Some 50,000 American ground and air troops have been deployed in the region.

AMMAN (AUG. 16) - The European Economic Community (ECC) is ready "to give Jordan full political and economic support" should it agree to respect U.N. sanctions against Iraq, Italian Foreign Minister Gianni de Michelis said here Thursday.

"We expressed to the Jordanians our willingness to participate in the framework of a United Nations decision for economic and financial support of the kingdom," he told a press conference before flying to Saudi Arabia.

Italy holds the current rotating presidency of the EEC and Mr. de Michelis is the head of a European troika, also comprising the Foreign Ministers of Luxembourg, Jacques Poos, and Ireland Gerard Collins.

Mr. de Michelis was accompanied by his Irish and Luxembourg counterparts as he held talks here with Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan Ibn Talal on efforts needed to enforce sanctions against Iraq in the aftermath of its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Prince Hassan told the European officials that his country considered the U.N. Security Council Resolution of August 6 to impose trade and arms sanctions against Iraq as "mandatory and accepted it in principle."

A staunch Arab ally of Iraq, Jordan has asked the Security Council to study the negative effects an endorsement of sanctions would have on its economy.

Iraq is Jordan's first trade partner and supplies Amman with 95 per cent of its oil needs.

Jordan's southern port of Aqaba was a vital lifeline for Iraq during its eight-year war with Iran and is still receiving Iraq-bound supplies.

The EEC mission here came as King Hussein was in the United States for talks with President George Bush, during which he will be asked to outline the situation at Aqaba.

The monarch is carrying a message from Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein.

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 16) - The African National Congress (ANC) made an impassioned plea for peace here late Thursday after clashes in Johannesburg's black township Soweto left six more dead to add to the 148 killed east of the city this week.

Following hard on the heels of Thursday's crisis meeting between ANC Deputy President Nelson Mandela and President Frederik de Klerk, the ANC statement said black people were killing each other "like beasts."

In a marked departure from pervious statements blaming Zulu leader Chief Mangosuthu Buthelezi's Inkatha movement for starting trouble and the South African Police for abetting it, the ANC Thursday blamed "misguided individuals" who had infiltrated migrant workers' hostels urging people to fight.

"They spread rumours that one section of the commnity is planning to attack another. They have taken it upon themselves to divide us along ethnic lines.

"They urge one language group to fight another. Within the hostels, hatred is being sown everywhere."

Hostels, where black men from far-off tribal homelands are cooped up away from their families often for a year or more at a time, have proved fertile seed beds of violence.

PARIS (AUG. 16) - Experts of the International Energy Agency (IEA) met here Thursday to discuss ways of coping with repercussions on industrial countries of the trade embargo on Iraq and Kuwait.

In principle, that embargo deprives the world oil market of about four million barrels of oil a day that came from Iraq and Kuwait before Iraq initiated the current Gulf crisis by invading Kuwait on August 2.

The experts' talks were aimed at preparing for a special meeting of the IEA Executive Committee, to be attended by the permanent representatives of the agency's 21 member countries here next Thursday.

The experts reviewed the level of oil stocks in IEA countries, possibilities of having generating stations use natural gas or coal rather than oil, and the impact of measures aimed at cutting oil consumptiopn.

They also discussed ways in which IEA countries could increase oil extraction.

At an August 9 emergency meeting here, members agreed that their oil supplies were not sufficiently threatened by the Gulf conflict to justify emergency steps, particularly releasing oil from government stockpiles.

The IEA consists of all members of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development except three: France, Iceland and Finland.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) - King Hussein of Jordan emerged from a meeting with President George Bush Thursday saying his country will adhere to U.N. sanctions against Iraq.

Hussein, who met with Bush at his summer home in Kennebunkport, Maine, said they had had ''a frank, open, candid discussion'', but that he had brought no message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

''I'm not talking on behalf of anyone in the area, but for myself,'' he said.

Iraqi reports had hinted that the monarch would be acting as a mediator in the Gulf crisis, and the Iraqi envoy in Washington said in a Cnn interview Wednesday that the message was a ''very practical, very progressive'' offer.

The Hashemite monarch had met with Saddam in Baghdad on Monday. According to U.S. media accounts, Saddam has suggested an international conference on the crisis, and has offered to pull his troops out of Kuwait if Washington would agree to stop sending forces to Saudi Arabia.

Hussein told reporters that he was leaving the United States ''with a clearer idea of what the president's thinking is, and I feel very happy with the warmth I've received.''

Asked whether shipments to Iraq were going through the Jordanian port of Aqaba, he said, ''I'm not suggesting we've altered our position at all in this regard.

''Jordan has regarded the sanctions as ones that the government of Jordan would respect, and this is the case.''

But when reporters pressed him on whether supplies were getting through to Iraq from Aqaba nonetheless, Hussein said, ''We are reaching the United Nations to find out exactly what these sanctions mean. The situation is unclear.''

''There are no shipments at the moment as far as I know.''

The Hashemite monarch refused to provide further details of his talk with Bush except to say that his country was ''passing through a very difficult economic situation.''

''But this,'' he added, ''as I told the president, was the least of my worries at the moment.''

ACCRA (AUG. 16) - The World Bank will continue to maintain its high financial assistance to Ghana during the next three to four years to enable it to establish a more self-sustaining economy, Silvio Capoluongo, the Bank's resident representative in Ghana, said here Thursday.

He told the Ghana News Agency that the Bank is convinced that Ghana can fight poverty and improve living conditions in the next few years if no major external economic obstacles stand in its way.

This conviction stems from ''the record steadiness and improvement that the economy has achieved'' since the beginning of the country's economic recovery programme in 1983, Mr. Capoluongo said. ''From a rather poor state, the economy is now firmly stabilized and all its distortions largely eliminated.''

The Bank, the International Monetary Fund and western donor Nations have supported Ghana's economic recovery, and authorities say the positive turnaround of the battered economy, good growth rates and general economic improvements in various areas point to its success.

Mr. Capoluongo said the Bank expects that the next phase of the programme will be driven by considerations of long-term development issues, such as population and environment, and creation of a more conducive atmosphere for rapid involvement of the private sector. He stressed the need to open things up for private investments to provide resources for growth and replace aid flows in the future.

Mr. Capoluongo said during the next Bank credit meeting, to be held soon, discussions will centre on how to expedite action in this area, and that the bank will be prepared to support a proposed capital market in the country.

On Ghana's debt, he said the percentage of foreign earnings used to service debt is projected to fall to about 25 per cent in the 1990s from 60 per cent now.

Ghana, he said , had benefitted from a 1.5-billion-dollar loan from the International Monetary Fund and about 600 million dollars from the World Bank. Repayment of the IMF loan began in 1984, but the World Bank loans have 10 years grace and 30 years repayment period.

VRYHEID, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 16) - Suspected right wingers lobbed a teargas cannister into a hall in this former 19th century Boer republic town Thursday in a bid to stop President Frederik de Klerk addressing a meeting.

Mr. De Klerk had already begun speaking to ruling National Party (NP) supporters when around 100 men, thought to be members of the neo-fascist

Afrikaner Resistance Movement (AWB), started chanting for an all-white Boer state, the South African news agency SAPA said.

Repeated attempts to remove them failed, so Mr. De Klerk appealed to all those who wanted to hear him to step outside for a few moments while police cleared the hecklers.

As police shepherded the last few right wingers to the door a teargas cannister was lobbed inside, SAPA said. NP officials from Vryheid, in what is now northern Natal, said the meeting would go ahead.

Right wingers are vehemently opposed to Mr. De Klerk's reforms to scrap apartheid and introduce a non-racial democracy enfranchising the black majority.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) - The Bush administration protested Thursday against Iraqi orders for some 2,500 Americans in Kuwait to gather in a hotel in Kuwait City.

Deputy State Department spokesman Richard Boucher termed the order ''uncalled for'' and said the U.S. charge d'affaires in Baghdad would deliver a formal protest to the Iraqi Foreign Ministry.

Boucher said the U.S. embassy in Kuwait was informed of the Iraqi order by ''military occupation authorities''. He said they cited ''concern about the protection of the American community from unspecified threats'' and called for the Americans to assemble ''within two hours.''

The ambassador made it clear, Boucher, that he would issue no such instructions to U.S. citizens.

Americans in Kuwait were informed of the Iraqi move, Boucher said, but were not given any specific instructions about what they should do. The State Department believes most are safely in their homes in Kuwait.

The estimated 4,000 British citizens in Kuwait also received the same demand.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) - Iraq has increased its troop contingent in Kuwait to about 160,000, the Defense Department said Thursday.

"It's slightly different every day. They continue to move forces around...There's a continuing flow in and out of the country (Kuwait) through the northern border," Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams told reporters.

He spoke of a "slight increase" of the Iraqi expeditionary corps to 160,000 men from the 140,000 reported early this week.

The spokesman also said that Iraq still maintained around 500,000 troops on its border with Iran, with no indication of a change following reports that Baghdad and Teheran appeared on the verge of a peace agreement.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein has offered to pull his forces out of Iranian territory captured by Iraqi forces in the 1980-1988 Gulf war.

Mr. Williams denied suggestions that the U.S. military buildup in Saudi Arabia was taking an increasingly offensive nature, particularly with the deployment of the radar-eluding stealth F-117 jet fighter.

He reminded reporters that Iraq was an "enormously large, well-equipped adversary" with one million men under arms.

He said the United States needed enough forces to deter and resist any Iraqi attack against oil-rich Saudi Arabia in the wake of Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait.

Referring indirectly to the deployment of the F-117, he said some forces were a deterrent "by their mere presence."

BANJUL (AUG. 16) - Liberian rebel leader Charles Taylor called off a visit to Gambia on Thursday during which he was to have met officials from West African nations trying to mediate in Liberia's civil war.

A statement from Gambian President Sir Dawda Jawara's office said the National Patriotic Front of Liberia (NPFL) leader had cancelled the trip to Banjul "for technical reasons."

The Gambian head of state, acting chairman of the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), had rescheduled the meeting with the representatives of mediating countries for Monday.

Observers said the ministers had planned to try to convince Mr. Taylor to allow the ECOWAS peace-keeping force to enter Liberia.

Mr. Taylor said Wednesday he would not allow the force to disembark unless he himself had requested it. He dismissed the five-nation mediation group as a "regional dictatorship club."

The foreign ministers of Togo and Sierra Leone and a member of Ghana's government had already arrived here to meet with Mr. Taylor when he cancelled the visit.

Meanwhile, in Abidjan, Mr. Taylor's foreign minister, Thomas Woewiyu, said the NPFL had "seized soldiers of one of the countries participating" in the West African force set to intervene in the bloody conflict.

Mr. Woewiyu, during a visit to Abidjan, repeated that the NPFL "opposes the West African force" and that "its mission, if it is has one, will be one of the most contested," the Ivory Coast daily Fraternite-Matin reported Thursday.

He revealed that Mr. Taylor's group had seized soldiers from one of the nations staffing the peace force because "they had already been fighting alongside (Liberian President) Samuel Doe's troops for the past few months."

Mr. Doe is holed up in his Executive Mansion in Monrovia.

NICOSIA (AUG. 16) - An Iraqi Oil Ministry official said Thursday that the United States had allowed tankers to unload Iraqi oil in American ports after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

"Hours after the U.S. announcement of the unjust economic boycott against Iraq, instructions were given to its competent authorities allowing the unloading of shipments of Iraqi oil which were loaded before August 2," the unidentified official said in an Iraqi news agency dispatch monitored here.

"Those shipments were unloaded in the American ports in the past days," the official said.

"The objective of that was to protect the U.S. economic interests and to avoid a stoppage by some of its refineries," the official added.

The Iraqi news agency said that Iraqi oil loaded before the August 2 invasion of Kuwait would continue to arrive in the United States until the middle of September "while most of the oil shipments to Europe before the boycott decision have already arrived and were unloaded there."

The United States championed efforts to impose sanctions against Iraq resulting in an overwhelming vote on August 6 at the U.N. Security Council for a financial, trade and arms embargo on Iraq.

ATHENS (AUG. 16) - Greece is "closely monitoring" the balance of forces between Greece and Turkey following press reports that Ankara is to receive 40 U.S. fighter planes, a government spokesman said Thursday.

The Greek press has reported that U.S. Secretary of State James Baker had pledged to Turkish President Turgut Ozal last week the delivery of 40 F-4E fighter planes in exchange for Turkish support in the Gulf crisis.

The Greek Foreign Ministry has not confirmed the reports.

Asked about the reports, spokesman Vyron Polydoras said Thursday that the Greek government was "closely monitoring" the balance of forces situation in the region.

The pro-government conservative daily Messimvrini said Thursday that the delivery of the U.S. jet fighters would upset the balance of forces between longtime antagonists Greece and Turkey.

RIYADH (AUG. 16) - Saudi Oil Minister Hisham Nazer called Thursday for an immediate meeting of the 13-member Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (Opec) to come up with a joint stand on developments in the Gulf.

Nazer's statement came on the heels of a peldge by President George Bush Wednesday not allow a ''single drop'' of Iraqi oil to be exported, in accordance with applying a U.N. Secruity Council resolutuion imposing sanctions on Iraqi for its invasion of Kuwait August 2.

The official Saudi Press Agency added that Saudi Arabia joins other Opec members in calling for the emergency meeting. It was not known whether Iraq would attend.

Spa quoted Nazer as also denying reports that his country had informed its clients of intentions to reduce delivery of its oil to clients by 17 per cent. Nazer reiterated that Saudi Arabia would meet its commitments.

AJACCIO (AUG. 17) - Gasoline (petrol) retailers and local authorities in the French Mediterranean island of Corsica reached a price agreement late Thursday, ending a pump strike that has left hundreds of tourists and boat operators stranded.

After lengthy talks here, representatives of the two gasoline retailers' organizations said they had accepted a proposal from the oil companies to guarantee them a profit margin of 25 centimes (about four cents) per litre.

Some 170 service stations on the island, closed since Tuesday, were due to reopen early Friday, the representatives added.

The local prefect, Alain Bidou, who negotiated the deal, stressed that Corsica was a special case in gasoline distribution, since many retailers were independents who did not take a commission and lived only on the profit they made against wholesale prices.

Before Thursday's agreement was announced, some 20 taxi drivers parked their vehicles outside the prefect's offices, adding their protests to those of tourists, tour boat operators and fishermen affected by the strike.

Some tourists arriving by car-ferry in Ajaccio and Bastia had stayed in the towns rather than risk running out of fuel on the way to their holiday homes and camping sites.

Corsican gas retailers complained that their profits were significantly reduced following a decision by the French Government to put a ceiling on gasoline prices at the pumps after the sudden rise in oil prices linked to the Gulf crisis.

In Paris Thursday, Gilbert Thibaudeau, head of an association representing most of the 6,000 independent gasoline retailers in France, warned that if the "Corsicans demanded and got something", others on the mainland would follow their example.

In Aveyron, another tourist area in southern France, about a dozen gasoline stations forced to sell at a loss have shut down.

Some stations in Aveyron department, far from the nearest supply depots, were buying a litre of super for 5.68 francs (1.07 dollars), taxes included, but could not sell gasoline for more than 5.61 francs (1.03 dollars).

Four service stations at Arzano in Britanny, northwest France, were reported closed late Thursday.

Bernard Calvet, vice-chairman of Shell France, said Thursday that the oil companies had agreed to the 25-centime untaxed profit margin in Corsica to "calm down the situation", but representatives of the oil companies warned that the measure would not be extended to the mainland.

OTTAWA (AUG. 16) - Overwhelmed by applications for immigrant visas, the Canadian Government has decided to delay consideration of most applications received this month and in September, officials said Thursday.

Canada originally planned to accept some 175,000 immigrants during the course of this year. But, so far, the number of acceptances has been running at an annual rate of more than 200,000, according to Immigration Ministry spokesman Ian Sadinsky.

He said Canadian diplomatic posts abroad had been instructed to limit the granting of visas to would-be immigrants.

Another ministry official, Gerry Maffre, said that with current staffing levels, officials hardly had time to issue tourist visas.

GENEVA (AUG. 17) - Red Cross workers began early Thursday interviewing Iranian prisoners of war held in camps within Iraq, in preparation for the release of some 1,000 Friday, an International Committee of the Red Cross spokesman said.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on Wednesday announced the return of Iranian prisoners of war as part of a sweeping peace pact with Teheran.

The interviews were to identify the prisoners and determine that they would be leaving for home voluntarily, the spokesman said.

The prisoners of war are to be transported by train from the camps to Baghdad, where they will be put on buses for Iran, the spokesman said.

The transfer of prisoners is occur under the supervision of the ICRC, at the request of Iraqi authorities.

The Red Cross pays regular visits to about 17,000 Iranian prisoners of war, but some estimates put the total number at closer to 30,000.

The ICRC said it planned to repatriate about 1,000 Iranian prisoners per day in the coming days. ICRC staff has been reinforced for the operation.

DANBURY, CT (AUG. 17) - A flaw in a mirror that has threatened the 1.5 billion dollar Hubble Space Telescope mission can be fixed in a space shuttle mission planned for 1993, a space official said Thursday.

Charles Pellerin, director of astrophysics with the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), told journalists, "The Hubble could actually be better that it could be now" after the shuttle mission.

Lew Allen, director of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, California, added: "The error that we discovered is one that leads to essentially pure spherical aberration, and that's relatively easy to correct."

Mr. Allen said the aberration had been caused by a 1.3 millimeter error in a measuring device used to grind mirrors.

All that needed to be done, according to Mr. Pellerin, was to replace Hubble's wide-field planetary camera during the planned 1993 space shuttle.

SEOUL (AUG. 17) - The South Korean government has rejected an investment plan by the Samsung Group to produce heavy construction vehicles and trucks in a technology link with Japan's Nissan Diesel.

The Trade and Industry Ministry said Thursday that the government had turned down the investment plan because the local market of such vehicles would become saturated around the time when Samsung starts production.

Samsung filed an application for a government permission for the plan in July. Vehicle production would have begun in March.

The ministry would consider the application again after next October.

Local press reports said the rejection of the plan was partly the result of hectic lobbying by the country's five existing automobile makers.

They reportedly shuddered when Samsung, one of the country's most powerful business conglomerates, announced the plan that they belived was a prelude for Samsung to produce passenger cars.

P.T. Indonesia Toray Synthetics (ITS), established in 1971, will soon start constructing a facility with a monthly production capacity of 840 tons of polyester filament to come on line in March 1992.

With the added capacity, ITS's monthly production capacity will be expanded to 1,170 tons to meet a growing demand in the Indonesian fiber and textile industries, Toray said.

ITS also produces 1,650 tons of polyester staple and 850 tons of nylon filament per month, Toray said.

KUALA LUMPUR (AUG. 16) - U.S. Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter called for broad support Thursday to pressure the European Economic Community (EEC) to abandon its policy of farm subsidies.

"We don't see any redeeming quality in subsidies," Mr. Yeutter told a news conference, adding that distortions in agricultural trade were "enormously damaging to a country like Malaysia, which is export dependent."

"You simply can't compete with the treasuries of the United States, the EEC and Japan, which have a 100-billion-dollar war chest," he said a day after talks with Malaysian officials.

Mr. Yeutter said the only way to correct distortions in agricultural trade was to generate broad international support for reforms.

He said Washington was asking the Association of Southeast Asian Nations (ASEAN) and other countries to join it in pressing vigorously for agricultural trade reforms.

ASEAN groups Brunei, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore and Thailand.

The issue is part of the Uruguay Round of multi-lateral negotiations under the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT), which is scheduled to be completed by December but is now stalled by differences over the elimination of farm subsidies.

Mr. Yeutter, who later left for Hong Kong to continue a four-nation Asian tour that also covered Thailand and Japan, said various countries would hold bilateral talks to help bring the Uruguay Round to a successful conclusion.

Malaysian Primary Industries Minister Lim Keng Yaik told Mr. Yeutter Wednesday that the United States should not compromise with other countries on a North-North basis, leaving developing countries in the lurch.

Mr. Yeutter also said the United States would not abandon its export enhancement programme introduced in 1986 to counter the EEC's export subsidies on agricultural produce.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) - Capital spending by Japanese corporations in plants and equipment will grow by 16.4 percent on a construction basis in fiscal 1990 compared to a year earlier, the Nihon Keizai Shimbun said Thursday.

A survey by the financial daily said the corporations' capital spending plans for the fiscal year ending in March showed no signs of waning.

It would be third consecutive year-to-year double digit increase, the newspaper said.

The survey was based on the private sector's revisions of capital outlay plans originally made in February 1990, the daily said, adding that 1,280 companies had responded to its questionnaire.

But behind the capital spending boom, it warned, was a worsening manpower shortage.

Japanese companies are more interested in investing in labor saving efforts than in production expansion, the Nihon Keizai said.

Although the survey was conducted before Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and the subsequent stock market plunge, there are few signs of panic among corporate leaders, the report said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) - Iraq's foreign minister said his country had no intention of starting a war with the United States or Saudi Arabia, but warned that a humiliating defeat was in store for the United States if it launched a conventional war against Iraq.

Tarek Aziz, in an interview with ABC television broadcast late Wednesday, also said his country was ready to talk with the United States or Saudi Arabia without preconditions -- but accused Washington of spurning such talks.

"Iraq is not going to initiate a war," he said. "It's up to the American government.

"If they have come to initiate a war here, I think they will be sorry for that, because they will lose that war. And they will be defeated and that defeat will lead to a great humiliation to your country, which we wouldn't like," he said.

Mr. Aziz added that as a superpower with nuclear weapons, the United States could "erase Iraq from the surface of this globe."

"If they decide to do that we leave it to God to punish," he said. "But if they decide to use normal means of warfare they will lose."

Recalling that Iraq had fought an eight-year war against Iran, he said the Iraqis would withstand an international embargo as well as win a conventional war with the United States.

Mr. Aziz complained that the United States had spurned efforts by private U.S. citizens and by the Iraqi ambassador in Washington to initiate talks on the crisis, which erupted when Iraqi troops invaded Kuwait August 2.

"We don't have any preconditions to start a dialogue with the United States," he said.

"If they want to talk to us in a civilized, respectable manner, we are ready," he said.

Mr. Aziz defended Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, arguing that the oil-rich emirate was part of Iraq until 1913 when the British "imposed a phoney regime of a handful of corrupt sheiks on it and created a separate entity."

Asked what could justify an invasion after 70 years, the Iraqi foreign minister charged that Kuwait and the United States were engaged in a conspiracy to destabilize and impoverish Iraq by producing more oil than their OPEC quota.

"They flooded the market with a glut of oil. They brought down the prices from 18 dollars a barrel to almost 11 dollars a barrel. And that is a conspiracy! That's a war...

"War can be done by arms, war can be done by economy," he said. "So we reached the conclusion that this handful of sheiks, corrupt sheiks, selfish sheiks, wanted to destroy this nation."

He denied reports that Iraqi troops had engaged in rape, pillage and wholesale robbery, blaming people already living in Kuwait.

The New York Times reported earlier this week that Iraqi troops hauled off three to four billion dollars in gold bullion, hard currency and goods from Kuwait to Baghdad after the invasion.

Regarding Iraq's refusal to allow foreigners to leave Kuwait or Iraq, he said it was a "temporary precautionary measure" and pledged that "they will be safe and no harm will affect them."

Mr. Aziz said the government might respond positively to requests to leave in "humantarian cases" such as 10-year-old Penelope Nabokov, of Albany, California. She was allowed to leave this week after being detained in Kuwait and taken to Baghdad with other foreigners caught by the invasion.

The foreign minister also promised to look into the case of a family with a six-year-old daughter and a six-month-old baby in need of medical care for a hernia.

SUVA (AUG. 16) - Fiji's Reserve (central) Bank has authorized Pakistan's government-owned Habib Bank to operate here, officials said.

Hari Pal Singh, the Reserve Bank's deputy governor, said Habib would open branches in Suva and two other cities in November.

Irshad Chaudhry, Habib's international vice-president, and regional manager Rana Rasheed are currently in Suva to sign the arrangement.

Mr. Rasheed said the Habib bank, which has also applied to operate in New Zealand, has 70 per cent of the market in Pakistan and offices in the Middle East, the United States, Europe and Asia, including in India and Malaysia and, most recently, in Sydney to help its expansion in the Pacific region.

India's Bank of Baroda is the only Asian bank currently operating here after the Hongkong Shanghai Banking Group withdrew in 1988.

Australia's Westpac Banking Corp., which bought out the Hongkong Shanghai Group, and the Australia New Zealand Banking Group (ANZ), which in February purchased the Bank of New Zealand's interests, also operate here.

Mohammed Akbar, Pakistan's honorary consul in Suva, said Habib's entry underscored the warm ties between the two countries.

Pakistan has recently offered military training to and granted study scholarships to Fiji.

TUNIS (AUG. 16) - PLO leader Yasser Arafat has proposed that the countries of the Maghreb -- Libya, Algeria, Tunisia and Morocco -- undertake a mediating role in the current Gulf crisis, Western diplomatic sources said here Thursday.

The four states, according to Mr. Arafat, are well-placed to resolve the bitter standoff between Iraq and the West because they are not directly implicated in the conflict.

Mr. Arafat met Wednesday with Libyan leader Colonel Moamer Kadhafi and Tunisian President Zine al-Abdiin bin Ali and is planning to visit Algeria and Morocco as well.

The Palestinian news agency WAFA reported here that Mr. Arafat, chairman of the Palestine Liberation Organization, has sent an urgent message to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein on implementing an Arab solution to the crisis, which was sparked by Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

The Iraqi move has led to a huge Western military buildup in the Gulf, notably in Saudi Arabia, and has caused deep splits in the Arab world.

Morocco at last week's emergency Arab summit voted in favor of a resolution condemning the Iraqi invasion and agreed to provide troops to a pan-Arab force to defend Saudi Arabia against a possible attack by Iraq.

Libya voted against the resolution, Algeria abstained and Tunisia refused to attend the summit, charging that it had been ill-prepared.

RIYADH (AUG. 16) - An American and his daughter were slain Tuesday during a police shootout with a drug trafficker who had taken them hostage, the Saudi Press Agency (SPA) reported Thursday, quoting a Saudi spokesman.

The drug trafficker, pursued by police in Riyadh, seized an American family and the two victims, not yet identified, were killed in a shootout, the spokesman said. The drug trafficker survived and was arrested, the spokesman said.

BERLIN (AUG. 16) - The president of East Germany's Social Democratic Party, Wolfgang Thierse, said the SPD should pull out of the government coalition because Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere had become too unpredictable.

"I can't imagine how we're going to keep on working with this prime minister, whose reactions are getting more and more unpredictable," he said in a radio interview.

He said the SPD parliamentary group would decide whether to quit the government or not. Given that the parliament is in recess for vacation, that will take a few days, he said.

On Wednesday, Mr. de Maziere sacked Finance Minister Walter Romberg (SPD) and Economy Minister Gerhard Pohl (a Christian Democrat) and accepted the resignations of two other cabinet members, who had no party affiliation.

The SPD now has five ministers in the government: Markus Reider at foreign affairs, Frank Terpe at research and technology, Sybille Reider at commerce and tourism, Regine Hildebrandt at labor and Emil Schell at the post office.

NAIROBI (AUG. 16) - Tropical rainforests are vanishing at an alarming rate, according to visiting United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (Fao) Director-General Edouard Saouma.

The 1970s saw 94,000 square kilometres of rainforest destroyed globally but since 1980 a total of 168,000 square kilometres of the forests have been felled, Saouma announced here.

''We have to face the grim truth that the rate of tropical deforestation has been severely underestimated. Every year, the deforested area grew faster in Africa with 1.7 per cent followed by Asia with 1.4 per cent,'' said Saouma.

Scientists fear the felling of tropical rainforests could lead to a worsening of the global warming phenomenon known as the ''Greenhouse Effect'', heralding potentially-damaging shifts in world climate.

''I am alarmed at the unprecedented speed by which many of the poor countries are losing their natural wealth,'' said Saouma, adding: ''... these countries are irretrievably sacrificing their heritage.''

Saouma urged international support for a global convention on preserving and managing the tropical rainforests. He is due to suggest the parley at an upcoming Fao meeting scheduled for September 24-28.

TEHERAN (AUG. 16) - Iran on Thursday prepared to welcome its prisoners of war held in Iraq as newspapers here described Wednesday's Iraqi peace overture as a major political and military triumph for Teheran.

A 100-member relief team was sent to the western provice of Bakhtaran to receive a first contingent of POWs expected to be freed by Iraq on Friday and taken over land to the Iranian border regions of Qasr-e-Shirin and Khosrawi, the official news agency IRNA reported here.

The International Committee of the Red Cross announced in Geneva that it was capable of transporting 1,000 Iranian POWs to the border on Friday, half the number promised by Iraq for the first contingent.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, in a dramatic overture to Iran, announced Wednesday that he would withdraw Iraqi troops from Iranian territory seized in the Gulf conflict and begin releasing prisoners of war.

He also bowed to an Iranian demand that a disputed 1975 border accord apply to the Shatt-al-Arab waterway, by terms of which Iran and Iraq will share sovereignty over the strategic river.

Iraq abrogated the agreement in 1980 and fought an eight-year war with Iran to back its demand for complete control over the Shatt-al-Arab.

The government here has yet to respond officially to Mr. Hussein's offer, as a letter addressed to Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani has not been delivered by formal channels.

But both Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati and newspapers here have hailed the Iraqi turnaround as a major victory.

"Iraqi goodwill will certainly beget Iranian goodwill, as Teheran firmly believes in reciprocating gestures of goodwill," said the English-language Teheran Times.

"Iran and Iraq share many common interests in the region," the paper added. Gulf analysts saw Mr. Hussein's move as a bid to woo Iranian backing in his current test-of-wills with the United States, sparked by the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Iran has condemned the invasion and has said it backs United Nations sanctions against Baghdad.

"By drawing a clear-cut line between regional issues and Iran's national interests, the political leaders of this nation should not allow the country to get involved in a crisis that might prove detrimental to our own national interest and security," the Times added.

Another paper, Kayhan, greeted the Iraqi move with "deep satisfaction" but warned that relations with Iraq should only be considered after the withdrawal of U.S. and British forces from the Gulf.

"When that is accomplished, dealing with Iraq can take place in an atmosphere of calm in the community of neighbors," according to Kayhan.

"The Americans must go and her allies should persuade her to do so before she drags the world into turmoil with vastly unpredictable consequences."

The United States and Britain and several other Western nations have bolstered their air and naval presence in the Gulf to enforce U.N. sanctions against Iraq and to defend Saudi Arabia.

MANILA (AUG. 16) - It will take up to five years to rebuild the areas damaged by the July earthquake that ravaged the Philippines' main island of Luzon, an aide of President Corazon Aquino said here Thursday.

Presidential assistant Jose de Jesus said the earthquake damaged about 11.5 billion pesos (475.2 million dollars) worth of properties, adding that government workers were repairing some areas damaged by the quake.

The more lengthy phase of "reconstruction and development" in other severely damaged areas will take about one to five years, he said.

Mr. de Jesus said efforts will be concentrated in the next five months on priority projects that include the repair of damaged roads, bridges, irrigation systems, and telecommunication and power facilities.

He said the government will still have to decide whether to relocate or reconstruct the whole northern city of Dagupan which sank by about one meter (yard). Experts say the city was built on an unstable and sandy area.

The government has not yet identified a relocation site for Dagupan since it was still awaiting the recommendations of geological experts assigned to survey the area, Mr. de Jesus added.

Meanwhile, the U.S. Embassy here said Monday that Washington donated 20 million dollars to help Manila in its earthquake rehabilitation program.

U.S. ambassador Nicholas Platt said the money will primarily be used to rebuild more than 250 primary schools, an embassy statement said.

The July 16 earthquake left more than 2,000 people dead or missing, and thousands of others homeless.

SEOUL (AUG. 16) - South Korea is gearing up for the concluding negotiations of the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade talks, eager to make sure that its case will he heard by the developed world, a senior official said here Thursday.

The government has ordered all ministries affected by the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade negotiations, which resume at the end of August, to prepare arguments to back up government positions, the official said.

Agricultural questions, especially the politically volatile issue of beef, are Seoul's main worries.

Beef-exporting countries such as the United States, Australia and New Zealand have complained to GATT and put pressure on South Korea to liberalize the beef market.

Seoul insists that opening the beef market further would be detrimental to its cattle farmers, most of whom own just a few head of cattle.

A senior official at the Economic Planning Board (EPB) said Seoul would try to get a grace period "of at least 10 years" before fully liberalizing the market on beef.

A grace period will also be sought on liberalizing rice, a staple here, the official said.

But a Western diplomat said South Korea would not be able to get the grace period it wants on beef.

"If that's what they think, they should never have signed a piece of paper that says they would liberalize the market by 1997," the diplomat said, referring to a bilateral agreement signed with the United States earlier this year.

South Korea nonetheless is planning to make its case when the 15 negotiating groups of the Uruguay Round, which will discuss specific issues, reconvene in Geneva for their final month-long talks.

From October 1 on, the negotiations will be conducted on a global basis before the Uruguay Round is concluded in December.

"Up to October 1, there's room left for separate negotiations," the EPB official said.

South Korea, like many developing countries in the region, was not altogether pleased with the results of the GATT Trade Negotiation Committee conference in July.

On the agricultural issue, Seoul can count on backing from Japan, which holds nearly identical views.

"They are singing from the same page of the hymnbook -- backing high-support prices," said the diplomat.

TEHERAN (AUG. 16) - Iranian President Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani Thursday stressed that peace between Iran and Iraq was a separate issue from the current Gulf crisis and renewed a demand for an Iraqi military withdrawal from Kuwait.

Mr. Rafsanjani, according to the Iranian news agency IRNA, made the remarks in a telephone conversation with Turkish President Turgut Ozal.

Iraq on Wednesday offered to accept Iranian terms for a formal settlement of the Iran-Iraq war.

DUBAI, UNITED ARAB EMIRATES (AUG. 16) - The port of Dubai has refused an Iraqi request for two freighters to load cargo here in defiance of a United Nations embargo, a port official said Thursday.

David Gibbons of Dubai's Port Rashid Authority said the Iraqi freighters, Al-Abid and Al-Baya, were anchored in the Gulf more than three miles (five kilometres) off the emirate.

"There has been a request on their behalf from Iraqi sources for them to load here but we have told them we have no space or labour available for working these ships at the moment," he said.

Mr. Gibbons declined to elaborate on the source of the request and said the rejection was not linked to U.N. sanctions imposed on Baghdad after the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait August 2.

"We're running a commercial port and we're not in a position to accept the ships," he said. "So it hasn't reached the stage where I have to ask the government here whether they can dock."

He said the two ships were "fairly small cargo vessels" waiting to load goods for Iraq. He could not specify the nature of the cargo.

The United States and Britain have said their navies would interdict any ships attempting to take goods to or from Iraq and Iraqi-controlled Kuwait.

Saudi Arabia on Monday turned away an Iraqi tanker from the Red Sea port of Yanbu.

LONDON (AUG. 16) - World rubber consumption in the first quarter of 1990 fell by 20,000 tons or 0.5 percent from the same period of 1989, to 3.97 million tons, the International Rubber Study Group said Thursday.

The fall was largely due to lower usage in the United States.

Natural rubber (NR) consumption fell by 10,000 tons (0.7 percent) to 1.33 million tons, as a decline in demand of some 40,000 tons or 16.4 percent in the United States was not sufficiently offset by small increases in France, West Germany, Africa, Japan and in producing countries in South-East Asia.

Synthetic rubber (SR) consumption also fell, by 10,000 tons or 0.4 per cent, to 2.63 million tons.

A 50,000 ton reduction of demand in the United States was not counterbalanced by increases in other countries, although the Soviet Union had an estimated increase of 30,000 tons.

The decline in U.S. demand was mainly the result of a slowdown in tyre sales, the Study Group said.

NR production fell by 20,000 tons or 1.6 percent to 1.25 million tons. Production increased in Thailand, India, China and some African countries but decreased in Malaysia.

SR production fell by 5,000 tons or 0.2 percent to 2.61 million tons, with a 40,000 ton decrease in U.S. production and small reductions in some Western European countries offset by small increases in Eastern Europe, Asia and Latin America.

World stocks of NR at the end of March 1990 had fallen to 1.41 million tons, 215,000 tons lower than at the end of March 1989, while those of SR were 110,000 tons lower at 1.52 million tons.

MANILA (AUG. 16) - Hundreds of Filipino workers who fled the Gulf area arrived here Thursday on flights from Jordan and confirmed reports about rape and other atrocities allegedly committed by Palestinian volunteers in the Iraqi Army.

The estimated 700 workers came in aboard two Philippine Airlines planes sent by the government to evacuate thousands of Filipinos stranded in the Gulf region since Iraq's invasion and annexation of Kuwait earlier this month.

A 35-year-old woman employed as a seamstress said she was raped at gunpoint at her flat's kitchen by Palestinian soldiers who had broken into homes in Kuwait.

''They did not undress me. They simply asked me to take off my underwear. I couldn't do anything. The gun was pointed at me,'' the woman told reporters at Manila airport.

She said three soldiers took turns abusing her. Afterwards she was allowed to escape and cross the border with Jordan.

Her revelation was the first official confirmation of reports that many Filipino women workers were among those allegedly raped by the invading Iraqi soldiers.

The woman said her other companions in the same flat suffered the same fate at the hands of troops who threatened to kill them if they refused.

JAKARTA (AUG. 16) - President Suharto on Wednesday ruled out changing the Indonesian political system or returning to liberal democracy but promised more tolerance towards differences of opinion.

In his state of the nation address, Mr. Suharto said reformation and modernisation of Indonesian political life had started in the late 1960s under his New Order administration.

The series of policies adopted to regulate the political system since then "have put political life in order, so that now we have three socio-political forces," he said in his address to mark Indonesia's 45th independence anniversary on August 17.

He said parliamentary or liberal democracy adopted in the 1950s had disappointing results as governments toppled one after another in quick succession.

The "Guided Democracy" initiated by Indonesia's first president, Sukarno, in 1959-65 was equally dissapointing, he said, adding that it culminated in an aborted coup attempt by the now-defunct Communist Party of Indonesia (PKI).

Under Mr. Suharto, the government has limited the number of political parties to three since 1972, and required that all three pledge allegiance to Pancasila, the state ideology stipulating belief in one God, humanitarianism, national unity, democracy through concensus, and social justice.

"Past ways of managing the political and economic life were apparently unable to secure national stability and economic growth ... We are developing our own society in accordance with our own (Pancasila) model," he said.

Mr. Suharto, 68, rose to power in 1967 after leading the army mobilised to quash the communist coup attempt. He has since been re-elected five times unopposed to rule this archipelago nation of 184 million people.

The president said with Pancasila now deeply embedded in the country's political life, everyone and every group "must feel comfortable."

"There have been moments when we have had to worry about differences of opinion, namely at times when our society has had different ideologies.

"If we are now still worried about the diversity of opinions, this does not only mean that we have doubts about the strength of Pancasila, but it can also hamper the growth of Pancasila itself," he said.

AMMAN (AUG. 16) - Three Americans, two men and a woman, Thursday reached Amman safely by car from Baghdad, the U.S. embasssy said here.

But the embassy would provide no other details of their arrival, which came shortly after a French woman also made it to the Jordanian capital from Baghdad by road.

Thousands of other Westerners remain both in Iraq and in Iraqi-controlled Kuwait, although small groups have recently managed to reach either Saudi Arabia or Jordan.

Informed sources here have said the Jordanian-Iraqi border has been closed to North Americans and Western Europeans wanting to leave Iraq but remains open to Africans, Asians, Latin Americans and East bloc nationals.

The restrictions were imposed in the wake of international condemnation and sanctions against Iraq for its August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

HANOI (AUG. 16) - A joint team of U.S. and Vietnamese experts has found the remains of 20 people believed to be U.S. soldiers missing in action (MIAs) during the Vietnam war, a government speration said here Thursday.

"Since the beginning of this operation, on August 6, 70 bodies have been exhumed of which 20, according to U.S. experts, could be those of MIAs," the foreign ministry spokesman said.

A fifth U.S. team arrived in Vietnam Wednesday to join the current search operation, the eleventh of its kind since 1988, the spokesman said.

The new team would be working in Nghe Tinh province south of Hanoi, he said.

Search operations began in September 1988, 13 months after the visit to Hanoi of General John Vessey, former president Ronald Reagan's special envoy with responsibility for MIAs.

According to the Pentagon, 2,353 U.S. soldiers disappeared during the war: 1,719 in Vietnam, 545 in Laos, 83 in Cambodia and six in China.

According to U.S. sources, about 60 of the total 250 bodies so far exhumed have been identified as those of U.S. soldiers.

JAKARTA (AUG. 16) - Indonesia Thursday appeared ready to reject a Saudi Arabian plan to request troops to assist the Gulf kingdom against a possible threat from Iraq, the official Antara news agency said.

Indonesia would only send troops as part of a United Nations peace-keeping force, Antara quoted Armed Forces Chief General Try Sutrisno as saying.

"Indonesia remains consistent in pursuing an active and independent foreign policy and stays neutral and impartial (in any conflict)," Gen. Try said, commenting on reports that Saudi's King Fahd was sending an envoy to ask Jakarta for troops to help guard the holy cities of Mecca and Medina.

Saudi Ambassador to Indonesia Talaat Amin Hamdi said Wednesday that the envoy, Deputy Foreign Minister Sheikh Abdul Aziz Thannayan, was to arrive in Jakarta late Thursday after a similar mission in Kuala Lumpur.

Antara also quoted Indonesian State Secretary Murdiono and Foreign Minister Ali Alatas as saying that Indonesia has had no tradition of sending its troops to side with any one party in an international conflict.

Indonesia had only sent its troops abroad at the request of the United Nations to join international peace keeping forces, Mr. Alatas said.

Indonesia, the world's biggest Moslem nation, has kept a neutral stance on the Gulf crisis, falling short of condemning the August 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and reluctantly joined the U.N. mandated trade embargo against Iraq.

Parliamentary Speaker Kharis Suhud however took a stronger stance Wednesday condemning the invasion and said that the action violated the norms of international laws.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) - Japanese executives, eager to do more business in Vietnam, are pinning their hopes on a visit there this weekend by a potential Liberal Democratic Party (LDP) leader.

Michio Watanabe is to visit Cambodia and Vietnam in an attempt to boost progress on the Cambodian conflict and Tokyo's relations with Hanoi.

He will arrive in Cambodia from Thailand on Saturday and will proceed to Vietnam and is later expected in Thailand and Indonesia on his week-long trip.

Although Japan is now Vietnam's second largest trading partner, after the Soviet Union, two-way trade last year totalled just 519 million dollars because of outstanding differences over the Cambodian civil war.

However, in the five months to May, bilateral trade increased sharply.

Industry statistics showed Japanese exports up 85 percent from the same period last year at 13.5 billion yen (90 million dollars), while imports doubled to hit 29.5 billion yen (196 million dollars).

Tokyo recognised the resistance coalition fighting the Phnom Penh government installed by Vietnam when it invaded the country in December, 1978.

Watanabe, a senior ruling party deputy who has been tipped as an eventual party leader and Japanese prime minister, went to Vietnam in May and met Vietnamese leaders, including Prime Minister Do Muoi.

In an interview published Thursday in the Japan Times, Watanabe said he believed "Moscow's influences on Vietnam, both military and economic, have been largely reduced because of its domestic reform movement."

"Vietnamese leaders told me they wanted no more wars, stressed the need of more economic assistance and wished to be allowed to join the world community to achieve reconstruction of their poverty-stricken nation," he said.

Japan, like the United States, has worked to isolate Vietnam in recent years, banning all economic assistance since its invasion of Cambodia.

However, relations between Vietnam and the United States have improved recently and U.S. Secretary of State James Baker's said last month that Washington would no longer recognise the Cambodian resistance coalition at the United Nations.

Japanese firms see these as encouraging signs as they launch a major offensive on Vietnam's potential market of 65 million people.

Vietnam is "the last remaining Southeast Asian market of the future with abundant natural resources and a cheap labor force," one Japanese industrial source said.

Japanese executives view Vietnam as a better potential market than the Soviet Union because of its geographical situation and its natural resources, particularly coal, oil, wood and agricultural produce.

Crude oil accounts for 60 percent of Japan's imports from Vietnam, while major exports include electrical appliances, autos, motorcycles and textiles.

In 1989, Japan imported 27,000 barrels of oil a day from Vietnam, an increase of 300 percent from the previous year and 70 percent of the country's total output, according to Japanese statistics.

Mitsubishi Corp., the main importer of Vietnam's oil, recently applied to open representative offices in Hanoi and Ho Chi Minh City this year.

Mitsui and Nissho-Iwai, Japan's second and sixth largest trading houses respectively, have already opened offices in Vietnam. Mitsubishi plans to invest in major projects, including exploring new oilfields.

Meiwa trading house, a subsidiary of Mitsubishi, is currently holding talks with Hanoi on an agreement to export Vietnamese rice to China, Southeast Asia and Latin America. Meiwa already exports 40,000 to 60,000 tons of Vietnamese anthracite a year to Japan, South Korea and Southeast Asia.

Toyomenka Kaisha is currently building a glue factory in Vietnam, while Daimaru Kogyo Ltd., part of the giant Daimaru retail group, was involved in building an animal feed factory, which is to open at the end of August and will export its products to Japan.

MOSCOW (AUG. 16) - Crack police squads ended two separate hostage-taking incidents in Soviet jails Wednesday, killing four prisoners in the process, according to media reports here Thursday.

Police and KGB officers ended a five-day siege in a prison in Sukhumi, in the southern Georgian republic, by rushing two prisoners as they tried to board a minibus with two hostages.

The hostages and some security officers were wounded in the firefight, while the two prisoners later died of their wounds, according to the Interfax news agency.

Police forces then stormed the detention centre which had been taken over by 75 inmates on Saturday after they had seized two prison guards and taken their weapons.

Meanwhile, in the central Russian city of Tula, armed police Wednesday rushed two prisoners who had taken several sales assistants hostage at a prison shop, killing both men, Tass news agency reported.

The hostages were not hurt.

LONDON (AUG. 16) - Average earnings in Britain rose ten percent in the year to June and the number of jobless increased for the fourth month in a row, according to figures released here Thursday, prompting official calls for wage restraint.

The employment ministry said that the increase in earnings, up from a 9.75 percent year on year rise in May and the first time the annual increase had reached double figures since May 1982 threatened to push up unemployment.

The warning came as jobless figures published Thursday showed that the number of unemployed had risen by 10,900 in July over the June level to 1.629 million, although the unemployment rate was unchanged at 5.7 percent.

Both the rise in average earnings and the jobless figures were worse than market forecasts, which had expected a 9.75 percent earnings rise, the same level as in May, and a boost of between 7,000 and 8,000 in the number of unemployed.

"Job creation has slowed," Under Secretary of State for Employment Robert Jackson said after the release of the figures. "Pay negotiators should remember that unrealistic settlements put people's jobs at risk and can also destroy the chances for future jobs growth."

The Treasury echoed this view, saying that the increase in the number of jobless marked a slowdown in the economy and also calling for wage restraint. "Excessive wage growth means fewer jobs," a Treasury spokesman said.

Other figures released Thursday showed that productivity rose 2.8 percent in the year to June, against 2.5 percent in the year to May. The Treasury said that the public sector showed a three billion pound (5.6 billion dollars) surplus in July, more than double market forecasts of a surplus of 1.4 billion pounds (2.6 billion dollars).

The July surplus included 1.3 billion pounds (2.4 billion dollars) in income from privatizations, in particular the second stage of staggered payment for shares in regional water companies.

But the good July figure represented "no change in fortunes for public finances," warned Simon Briscoe, an economist with Midland Montagu. "The higher receipts seem due to a change in the seasonal pattern of company tax payments" and this was a temporary factor which would be counterbalanced in coming months, he added.

Over the first four months of the financial year which began in April, the public sector deficit - central government, local government and services, and state-owned enterprise - has reached 3.1 billion pounds (5.8 billion dollars), against 1.5 billion (2.8 billion dollars) in the same period last year.

The figures have been undermined by non-payment or late payment of a controversial new local tax, the poll tax, with local authorities being forced to take out loans to fill the gap. The July figures show no improvement in this respect, Briscoe said.

TEL AVIV (AUG. 16) - A 19-year-old West German tourist who arrived this week in Israel came better prepared than most of the country's 4.5 million population.

A picture in the mass circulation Yediot Aharanot showed the young man complete with the gas mask he had brought with him from Germany ''just so my mother doesn't worry''.

His mother no doubt shares the fear of many Israelis that Saddam Hussein will soon fulfill his threat of April 1990 ''to scorch half of Israel'' with missiles tipped with deadly chemical weapons.

Recent weeks have seen Israelis have been buying German Draeger gasmasks in unprecedented quantities. Customers stand three deep at the counter of a Tel Aviv store specialising in the sale of safety equipment and clamour for protection kits to kit out all the family.

This can be an expensive business, but as one customer put it: ''how can you put a price on life? I'm buying four sets of gas masks and protective clothing for my entire family. Instead of going on holiday this year, we will have protection.''

But senior Army officers and government ministers say there is no need. ''Many people have panicked and are rushing to buy equipment for which there is no justification,'' said one senior officer. ''Home Guard storerooms have enough equipment for everyone.''

HERZOGENAURACH, WEST GERMANY (AUG. 16) - West German sports footwear maker Puma warned Thursday it was expecting to make a loss of 3.6 million Deutsche marks (2.25 million dollars) this year.

The increase of the loss over last year's consolidated deficit of 2.6 million marks (1.6 million dollars), was the result of a fire at a Philippines subsidiary last month, Puma said in a letter to shareholders. About a million pairs of shoes were lost in the fire, it said.

Puma had received orders up 25.2 percent at 223.6 million Deutsche marks (139.7 million dollars) in the first half of 1990, but had been unable to fill many of them because of the Philippines fire.

This led to an 8.8 percent fall in consolidated sales in the first half to 261.6 million marks (163.5 million dollars).

JOHANNESBURG (AUG. 16) - Exiled former South African newspaper editor Donald Woods Thursday returned back to the country he fled 12 years ago, saying he was not bitter about being away from the country so long.

At a media conference at Jan Smuts airport here, Mr. Woods said he always intended to concentrate on "who killed Steve Biko" when he returned to South Africa but felt people should heed black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela's call to build a new future and rather than rake over the past.

Mr. Woods fled South Africa on December 31 1977, barely three months after the death of his close friend Steve Biko in detention. At the time of his escape, he was banned by the government and could not work as the editor of the Daily Dispatch in the eastern port city of East London.

The friendship between Mr. Biko, a leading Black Consciousness (BC) activist in the Eastern Cape province, and Mr. Woods was the subject of a film "Cry Freedom" which was immediately banned by the South African government on release in 1988 but unbanned last year.

Mr. Woods and his family were the targets of a concerted harrassment campaign before they fled the country. In one incident, T-shirts impregnated with poison was sent to his children and the family received several death threats.

CAIRO (AUG 16) - Egyptian authorities prevented an Iraqi cargo ship from using the Suez Canal on grounds that the vessel had failed to pay 12,000 dollars in transit fees, press reports said here Thursday.

The Zein al-Qaws arrived at Port Said on Tuesday with a cargo of food, the reports said, without naming the origin of the shipment.

An official with the Suez Canal Authority on Tuesday said Egypt, despite

United Nations sanctions against Iraq, could not prevent Iraqi ships from using the Canal simply because it opposed Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait.

He explained that Egypt was committed to freedom of navigation in the Canal under terms of the 1888 Constantinople accord.

MOSCOW (AUG. 16) - The normalization of Iraqi-Iranian relations and the application of U.N. resolutions will contribute to resolving the Gulf crisis, deputy Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander Belonogov said Thursday, according to Tass.

At a meeting with the Iranian Ambassador to Moscow,Naser Heirany, Mr. Belonogov said, "The application of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598 and the resolution of outstanding issues between Iraq and Iran represent an important step toward strengthening stability in the region."

The resolution, accepted by Baghdad on its unanimous approval in July 1987 and endorsed by Teheran a year later, called for a cease-fire, the repatriation of all prisoners of war, the withdrawal of forces to internationally recognized borders and the creation of a United Nations observer force.

LAGOS (AUG. 16) - Nigeria's military government is to appoint civilian deputies this month to assist military governors in all 21 states of the federation, President Ibrahim Babangida said in an interview published here Thursday.

The scheme is part of administrative changes being worked out by the government for a transition to civilian rule, expected to culminate with the military handing over power to civilians on October 1, 1992, Mr.

Babangida told the independent Tribune newspaper.

"We are coming out with a lot of innovations where (military) governors would be having less to do with actual governance", the president said.

He recalled that in 1978, under the regime of retired General Olusegun Obasanjo, "we had the (military) administrators and vice chairmen of the state executive councils", adding, " We probably will come out with similar arrangement so that there is gradual disengagement" of the military from politics.

Military administrators handed over power to elected politicians on October 1, 1979. Four years later the military seized power, and in August 1985, the present regime took power after a coup.

DHAKA (AUG. 16) - Thousands of people joined an opposition street rally in central Dhaka Thursday calling for the resignation of the government of Bangladesh President Hussain Muhammad Ershad and fresh general elections.

Chanting crowds accused the eight-year old government of corruption and economic mismanagement.

At least 25,000 people attended the rally called by the opposition Awami League to mark the anniversary of the assasination of the party's founder Sheikh Mujibur Rahman in a military coup in 1975.

''The government has broken all previous records of corruption and has no right to stay in power,'' said Sheikh Hasina Wazed, daughter and political heir of the murdered leader.

Sheikh Hasina declared her party would boycott next year's presidential election, as it would surely be rigged. She called for Ershad's resignation and polls under a caretaker government.

KHARTOUM (AUG. 16) - The Sudanese military government Thursday said its talks with the International Monetary Fund over economic reforms being sought by the Imf were deadlocked, with Khartoum resisting the Imf proposals as unacceptable.

Finance Minister Abdel Rahim Hamdi said the two sides ''reached the deadlock after the fund put forward a number of tough economic measures to be implemented before mid-September''.

The minister pointed to the demand by the Imf to devalue the pound from 12.10 to 25 pounds to the dollar, something which he said was unacceptable to Khartoum. The measures would only lead to price hikes, something which the locals would not be able to afford.

He said the Imf threatened to declare Sudan a ''non-cooperating country in case the measures were not implemented'' and that the Imf was pressing Khartoum immediately to pay 20 million dollars and 135 million dollars by the end of the current fiscal year in June 1991.

Sudan, one of the poorest countries in the world, has an external debt of 13 billion dollars, mostly owed to Western financial institutions.

Hamdi said despite the costly civil war in the south of the country and an international economic blockade against the Sudan ''we have already prepared ourselves to rely on our national resources by adopting a self-reliance polic''.

PARIS (AUG. 16) - Some 50 Albanian refugees who camped out in the centre of Paris overnight in a bid to emigrate to the United States were told by U.S. consular officials Thursday that only those with relatives there were eligible for visas.

Consular officials said they did not know how many of the 543 Albanians who arrived in France a month ago after holing up in foreign embassies in Tirana wanted to leave for the United States.

The U.S. embassy was closed Wednesday for the Roman Catholic Assumption Day holiday when Albanians from a refugee centre at Emance near Paris gathered outside to ask to be allowed to emigrate to the United States.

Two consular officials Thursday explained immigration procedures to representatives of the refugees who had camped out overnight in the Place Madeleine square, they said.

They told the Albanians to submit their requests to one of three private charities designated to act as intermediaries and explain immigration procedures.

The French Solidarity Ministry, responsible for the refugees' welfare, said Wednesday the Albanians were confused by the lengthy and complex immigration procedures.

The diplomats advised the many Albanians who have expressed the wish to emigrate to the United States, but do not have relatives in the United States, to apply to remain in France.

HAMBURG (AUGUST 16) - The 15th World Cancer Congress Thursday opened here with West German Parliament President Rita Suessmuth saying an early diagnosis of cancer may save the life of patients.

The former health minister said in the opening speech that one third of all cancer cases could be healed if an early diagnosis was made and another third would not get cancer if an early check-up was made.

In West Germany, only 11 per cent of the men and 30 per cent of the women make use of free check-ups, Suesmuth added.

About 10,000 cancer experts will take part in the seven-day-long congress, which is organised by the International Union Against Cancer and the West German Cancer Society.

Japan and the United States are represented by about 1,000 research specialists, the Soviet Union by more than 300.

PARIS (AUG. 16) - Oil prices rose sharply Thursday, after news that Saudi Arabia was to reduce deliveries to Japan, as hopes faded of a rapid OPEC meeting to raise output quotas to compensate for lost Iraqi and Kuwaiti supplies.

In London, Brent North Sea crude for October delivery opened at 26.45 dollars a barrel, against 25.12 dollars at Wednesday's close, and had risen to 26.80 dollars by mid-session.

The Japanese ministry of international trade and industry said that Saudi Arabia had told five Japanese oil companies it was cutting crude exports to Japan by 16 per cent from next month.

The move by Japan's second largest oil supplier came as a surprise and was expected to directly reduce imports by 40,000 barrels a day, officials said.

But they said the decision could involve up to 100,000 barrels a day as the cutback is being imposed on major oil companies in the United States and Europe which also export to Japan.

One trader said Saudi Arabia wanted to compensate the countries most affected by a halt to Kuwaiti and Iraqi exports due to international sanctions following the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, such as India, Pakistan, Brazil and perhaps Turkey.

Another European analyst said that Riyadh was seeking to find oil to deliver to the three European refineries of Kuwait Petroleum International (KPI), which normally buys 400,000 barrels of Kuwaiti crude a day.

A KPI spokesman had said in London Monday that they were negotiating with Saudi Arabia.

Meanwhile efforts by Venezuela and Saudi Arabia to arrange a rapid Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries meeting to agree an output increase to compensate for the four million barrels a day being lost to the market due to an embargo on Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil, looked likely to fail.

ALEXANDRIA (AUG. 16) - Egyptian President Hosny Mubarak Thursday said here he opposed a U.S. plan to topple his Iraqi counterpart Saddam Hussein after a possible Iraqi pullout from Kuwait.

Mubarak told the U.S. television network Cnn that trying to remove Hussein after an Iraqi withdrawal from Kuwait and the restauration of the Kuwaiti regime was unacceptable.

''We differ with the Americans'' in this case because it would mean interference in Iraq's internal affairs, he said.

United States President George Bush recently said his administration would try to topple Saddam because his troops occupied Kuwait on August 2 and in order to prevent other Iraqi ''aggressions''. American troops were being dispatched to neighbouring Saudi Arabia.

Mubarak told Cnn that Egypt would send about 2,000 troops to Saudi Arabia in order to help prevent a possible Iraqi attack against the kingdom. More would be dispatched if needed.

Syria will send troops to Saudi Arabia ''in one or two days'' and Moroccan soldiers will also be stationed there.

Asked whether war might occur in the Gulf, Mubarak said: ''I do not like war by nature as a former military man during the October War (between Arab states and Israel in 1973).''

''I hope that Saddam Hussein will respond to peace proposals and avoid a disaster that might take place,'' he added.

GENEVA, UNITED NATIONS (AUG. 16) - Amnesty International expressed concern Thursday over the fate of Iraqi political prisoners, including critics of the Saddam Hussein regime arrested in Kuwait after the invasion two weeks ago.

Many people were jailed in Iraq for involvement in non-violent political activities, Amnesty representative Mel James told the U.N. sub-commission on human rights.

"Amnesty International is seriously concerned about the fate of Iraqi exiles, many of whom aere known to be non-violent critics of the government, who have been arrested in Kuwait in recent weeks", she added. Iraq invaded its tiny oil-rich neighbour August 2.

"In that country, any public statement considered 'insulting' to the authorities can lead to imprisonment or execution", she said of Iraq. "Hundreds of people have been arrested, for example, for refusing to join the ruling Ba'ath Party, or just on suspicion of holding views critical of the government." Meanwhile "The families of prisoners of conscience in Iraq live in perpetual fear for their lives".

Worldwide, at least 1,500 political prisoners remain jailed in more than 70 countries, Amnesty said, adding "we believe thousands more are in prison, often on trumped up charges, when all they have acutally done is voice unpopular views." Singling out some of the worst offenders, in addition to Iraq, the representative cited China, Cuba, Malawi, Sudan, Syria, Turkey, and Vietnam.

In China "torture and unfair trials are commonplace and many are held without charge or trial". Among the hundreds of political prisoners believed by Amnesty to be held there were people detained for participating in the pro-democracy movement of the late 1970s.

Also under arrest, according to Amnesty, were people seeking freedom of religion, those picked up while demonstrating peacefully for Tibetan independence, and others who took part in the pro-democracy demonstrations of June 1989.

In Cuba, at least 80 dissidents had been jailed since early 1989, 50 of whom were still in prison.

Turning to Africa, Amnesty said hundreds, possibly thousands, of prisoners of conscience had been imprisoned in Malawi since that country became independent 25 years ago. In Sudan, more than 250 political prisoners had been jailed, but not charged, since a coup last June.

In Syria, where torture of prisoners of conscience was "routine", at least 300 people were imprisoned without having been indicted or sentenced. Torture was also commonplace in Turkey and some political prisoners were condemned after unfair trials, the human rights watchdog said.

Constitutional amendments and legislative changes announced last year marked a positive step, but had not brought an end to the arrest and imprisonment of non-violent dissidents, Amnesty said.

In Vietnam, despite reforms and changes in government policy, authorities were continuing to jail people for endangering state security, a very loosely-defined charge, Amnesty said.

NABLUS (AUG. 16) - A leaflet signed by anonymous ''National Figures of Palestine'' was circulated Thursday in the Israeli-occupied territories, criticising Iraq's August 2 invasion of Kuwait and ''the conquest of countries by force.''

It was the first public condemnation of Baghdad in the name of Palestinians in the occupied territories since Iraqi troops invaded and annexed Kuwait earlier this month.

However, the leaflet supported Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's plan for a withdrawal of all occupying forces in the Middle East.

It condemned the ''Saudi-Egyptian-Moroccan connection which serves as a fig-leaf for the strengthening of American imperialist interests in the area.''

Also on Thursday, some 300 demonstrators in the West Bank town of Nablus staged a pro-Saddam rally chanting, ''We are with you till victory''.

Israeli troops, who have been given orders to use force to break up such rallies, used tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse the demonstrators. At least one Palestininian was arrested when demonstrators hurled bottles and stoness.

LONDON (AUG. 16) - Royal Insurance, a leading British insurance company, announced Thursday that it had a pre-tax loss of 65 million pounds (123 million dollars) in the first half of the year, compared with a 119-million-pound profit for the same period last year.

The company blamed the poor performance on bad weather at the start of the year (storms in Europe and floods in Australia), which cost it 169 million pounds in the first half, against 47 million for such phenomena in the first six months of 1989.

Other factors included a greater number of robberies and an increase in claims in the auto sector, it said.

The loss exceeded the 40 to 60 million pounds expected by analysts.

After allowance for taxes, minority holdings and dividend payments, the total loss for the first half was 100 million pounds, contributing to a drop in shareholders' equity (capital plus reserves) to 2.19 billion pounds at the end of June, against 2.52 billion a year earlier.

However, the interim dividend was increased by 4.7 percent to 11.25 pence per share, against 10.75 for the year-earlier period. Net assets per share fell from 519 to 447 pence.

HARARA (AUG. 16) - The Pan Africanist Congress (Pac) Thursday accused its rival, the African National Congress (Anc), of betraying the fight against South Africa's apartheid policy of racial segregation by conducting talks with the Pretoria government.

The Pac, in an interview with Harare's Herald newspaper, condemned the Anc's suspension of violence, as announced by Anc vice President Nelson Mandela, and its peace talks with the Pretoria government.

''The Anc has dumped Africa and the international community and left the Pac holding the baby,'' said Joe Mkhwanazi, Pac administrative secretary, told the paper.

By signing the Pretoria minute in which the Anc agreed to suspend its armed struggle, Mkhwanazi said the Anc had given away too much and had allowed de Klerk to emerge as the victor.

''People at home were not consulted by the Anc and that is why there is all this violence,'' said Mkhwanazi in reference to the current township wars. ''It is because the people do not want the current trend of events sweeping South Africa''.

Mkhwanazi alleged that ''the Anc has joined the ranks of the oppressors ... We fear this is going to divide Africa and the supporters of the struggle. The people have been betrayed, not only the suffering masses in South Africa but also those in our support, particularly the frontline states.''

AMMAN (AUG. 16) - A delegation of three European Community foreign ministers held talks here Thursday and expressed hope that a political solution could be reached to end the Gulf crisis through an implementation of Security Council resolutions.

Gianni de Michelis, heading the Ec "troika", told a press conference that the group ''feels there is small but existing room and space for political action and dialogue within the framework of the implementation of Security Council resolutions 661 and 660''.

Speaking after talks with Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan, de Michelis said the Ec believed in the need for all governments to implement a U.N embargo against Iraq, but expressed understanding of Jordan's position.

''The group fully understands the specific Jordanian siuation and the economic and political implications of Jordan's implementation of an embargo against Iraq,'' de Michelis said.

He said the community was ''prepared to offer all political and financial assistance to Jordan in the event of its implementation of the embargo''.

He pointed out that the troika received a detailed memorandum explaining the results of a Jordanian embargo, and the government's consultations with the Security Council to redress the losses that may be incurred by the Jordanian economy.

He said Amman was consulting with the U.N. on provisions exempting some countries from an international embargo based on the size of the damage involved or offers financial compensation for losses.

Official sources said Jordanian Finance Minister Basel Jardaneh submitted a detailed report to the U.S. administration Thursday on damage involved in a possible Jordanian embargo on Iraq.

The sources said the government estimated the direct damage to the economy at 1.2 billion dollars a year.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 16) - East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere Thursday made clear he was ruling out any quick unification move with West Germany as his coalition looked set to break up.

He said there could be no unification before regional elections were held on October 14, creating local government ''laender'' (federal states) to match those in West Germany's federal system.

The statement appeared to take the wind out of the sails of speculation in Bonn that the East German premier would opt for rapid unification, now that his grand coalition looked in shreds.

Four months after the government - the first to be freely-elected in East Germany - took office, top Social Democratic Party (Spd) leaders warned that the Spd could quit.

The warnings came a day after de Maiziere, who like Bonn Chancellor Helmut Kohl is of the Christian Democratic Union (Cdu), dismissed three cabinent members, including two posted by the Spd.

On Thursday de Maiziere urged the Spd not to quit the government, saying that ''whoever leaves the coalition now is ducking his national responsibility''.

LAGOS (AUG. 16) - Nigeria will abide by the OPEC quota agreement reached last month at a conference in Geneva, President Ibrahim Babangida stated here Thursday.

He made the statement in meeting with the Venezuelan minister of external affairs, Reinaldo Figueredo Planchart, an official source said.

OPEC (the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries) must respond collectively to the Gulf crisis to ensure the survival of the 13-member oil organization, he said, adding that it should avoid a situation that could result in unilateral action by any OPEC member.

The minister, who delivered, a special message from Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez to the Nigerian leader, said his country wanted OPEC to hold a meeting soon to discuss oil quotas and the Gulf crisis, said the source.

Venezuela wished to avoid having any OPEC member take unilateral action about quotas, the source quoted him as saying.

He said he had visited Saudi Arabia, Iran, Indonesia and Algeria to discuss the same issue.

Although the contents of President Perez's message were not disclosed, reliable sources said that Venezuela was campaigning for an increase in OPEC production quotas.

LONDON (AUG. 16) - Britain's official export credit insurer, ECGD, said Thursday it had agreed to support a medium-term loan to Mongolia for the first time ever.

The loan is a 5-million-pound (9.4-million-dollar) general-purpose line of credit provided by Midland Bank to the State Bank of the Mongolian People's MANAMA (AUG. 16) - The loyalty of the powerful Iraqi army will be put to the test following President Saddam Hussein's virtual capitulation to Iran over the terms of the Gulf War, analysts here said Thursday.

As a huge U.S.-led multinational force continued to gather in Saudi Arabia following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait, Mr. Hussein, in a surprise announcement Wednesday, said that he would accept the 1975 Algiers accord with Iran.

The 1975 agreement, which split the strategic Shatt-al-Arab waterway between the two nations, was one of the pretexts for the eight-year Gulf War and had been dismissed previously by Mr. Hussein as a "piece of paper."

After Iran and Iraq signed a cease-fire two years ago, Mr. Hussein told his army: "It was Iraq that made peace, and not the U.N. ... It was you who decided to make peace because you won the war."

But Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati, reacting to the Iraqi concession Wednesday, described it as Iran's "biggest victory in the history of the Islamic republic."

Mr. Hussein has also pledged, without demanding anything in return, to give back 2,600 square kilometers (1,000 square miles) of Iranian territory seized by Iraq during the war.

What the Iraqi army stands to gain is the return from Iran of 70,000 captured Iraqi soldiers, as well as use of deep-water ports and oil terminals in occupied Kuwait, out of range of Iranian artillery.

But diplomatic sources here say the offers from the civilian government in Baghdad are likely to go down badly with the army.

"I don't think Iraqi troops can try anything. But one can't rule out some kind of reaction among senior officers, people who believed in the mission the regime gave them and who saw thousands of their men killed or mutilated in a conflict that in the end served no purpose," one envoy commented.

Iraqi soldiers have already been deserting in occupied Kuwait, according to Kuwaitis and expatriates who managed to flee in the two weeks since the Iraqi invasion.

LONDON (AUG. 16) - British inflation will stabilise and could even drop if sterling remains strong at its present level, benefitting from its petro-currency status, the Bank of England said Thursday.

But it added in its quarterly bulletin that despite help from sterling, a policy of "appropriate" interest rates remains essential, reaffirming its support for high rates.

The increase in oil prices due to the current Gulf crisis helps increase inflation, which amounted to 9.8 per cent in June year-on-year, but at the same time it is favourable to sterling as a petro-currency. The currency also benefits from added confidence connected with its future entry into the exchange stabilisation mechanism of the European Monetary System.

The central bank noted that sterling has risen by an average of eight per cent against other major currencies since April.

The bank also said that the drop in exports and rise in imports resulting from high sterling could force British firms to follow foreign prices and push a drive for greater competitiveness - something that would also tend to reduce inflation.

But the article also warned that excess wage increases would cause inflation to increase. Statistics released Thursday show that average wage increases were at 10 percent year-on-year at the end of June, the first time in eight years they have been in two figures.

BERLIN (AUG. 16) EFE - The president of the East German Social Democrats (SPD) Thursday threatened to encourage his party to leave the fragile governing coalition following the firing of two cabinet ministers who backed the SPD.

The party president, Wolfgang Thierse, said he thought it improbable that his party could continue working effectively within the coalition government since East German Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere was making "increasingly enterprising" decisions.

On Wednesday, de Maiziere sacked Finance Minister Walter Romberg, a Social Democrat, and Agriculture Minister Peter Pollack, an independent closely linked to the SPD.

De Maiziere also accepted the resignations of Economy Minister Gerhard Pohl, a Christian Democrat, and Justice Minister Kurt Wuensche, who had failed to throw off the stigma of having served in the communist government of ousted president Erich Honecker.

The cabinet shake-up came amid mounting criticism of the government's handling of the economic merger with West Germany six weeks ago, which has set off massive unemployment and economic hardship for many East Germans.

The firing of Romberg and Pollack leaves the SPD with only five cabinet ministers.

But other parties within the coalition have reacted positively to the cabinet shuffle.

Liberal Party spokesman Wold Oehme said the prime minister's decision was the right one even though it +came too late+.

And the spokesman for the German Social Democratic Union (SDU), the most conservative member of the East German coalition government, termed the sackings very necessary.

SDU president Hans-Joachim Walthers said the four ministers who left the cabinet Wednesday no longer had the support of the East German people or their cabinet colleagues.

Walthers added that there were still some ministers in the cabinet who should be forced to leave their posts.

ROME (AUG. 16) EFE - A European Community delegation left Rome for Jordan Thursday for two days of talks with Arab leaders to discuss the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait two weeks ago.

The delegation, led by Italian Foreign Minister Gianni de Michelis, is to meet with Jordan's Crown Prince Hassan in Amman later Thursday.

King Hussein of Jordan is in the United States for talks Thursday with President George Bush, who is to pressure the king to comply with a United Nations embargo against Iraq and occupied Kuwait.

The EC delegation, which includes Irish Foreign Minister Gerald Collins and the Deputy Foreign Minister of Luxembourg, Jacques Wohlfart, will then leave for the Red Sea port of Jeddah to meet with Saudi King Fahd.

On Friday, the group will visit Alexandria to consult with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak.

The EC has formally condemned the Iraqi invasion, called for the immediate withdrawal of troops from Kuwait, and approved an economic embargo against both Iraq and Kuwait.

More than 7,000 citizens from EC countries have been stranded in the two countries for two weeks.

The group intends to return to Rome Friday evening.

MADRID (AUG. 16) EFE - Drugs squad officers have seized 26 kg of pure cocaine worth around dlrs 30 million at street prices, after arresting two Colombians, Spanish police reported Thursday.

Police said they arrested the two Monday after a two-month investigation. They later found the cocaine hidden in a car parked in a garage at a Madrid shopping center.

Police said the cocaine, which had come from Colombia, was enough to produce 2.5 million doses worth about three billion pesetas.

ROME (AUG. 16) EFE - Two Italian Navy corvettes set off for the eastern Mediterranean from Sicily Thursday to replace U.S. Navy ships sent to the Persian Gulf, officials said.

The warships will be joined in the next few days by two frigates and a supply ship to take up patrols previously carried out by their U.S. NATO allies.

The ships could later be dispatched to the Gulf if requested by the Western European Union meeting in Paris Tuesday.

The corvettes, each armed with a 76 mm gun, anti-aircraft missiles and torpedoes, are due to take up station off the Turkish coast within 48 hours.-EFE.

MADRID (AUG. 16) EFE - Spain's budget deficit calculated on a cash basis for the first seven months of 1990 shrank 42.7 percent to 522 billion pesetas (dlrs 5.22 billion) compared to the same period last year, the Economy Ministry reported Thursday.

According to the Ministry, the deficit decrease was due to the government's tight rein on spending, which was 6.27 trillion pesetas (dlrs 62.7 billion) during the first seven months of 1990, rising only 6.9 percent compared to year-earlier levels.

Revenues during the first seven months of the year totalled 5.75 trillion pesetas (dlrs 57.5 billion), growing 15.8 percent over the same period last year, the Ministry reported.

During the month of July Spain posted a surplus of 233.7 billion pestas (dlrs 2.34 billion), with revenue rising 17.8 per cent over the July, 1989 figure to 1.25 trillion pesetas (dlrs 12.5 billion), on the back of increased income tax revenues.-EFE

BOGOTA (AUG. 16) - Colombian police and Army troops found two large cocaine processing laboratories hidden on rural estates, but did not seize any drugs or make any arrests, officials said Thursday.

The security forces found 150 oil drums with ether and acetone residues, as well as microwave ovens and paper, all believed to have been used to produce cocaine from raw coca leaves, according to the officials.

However, no cocaine was found at the two labs constructed on the La Patio and California estates in Doradal, 200 km northwest of the capital. Police said they were searching for the owners of the estates.

President Cesar Gaviria, sworn in earlier this month, has vowed to continue the crackdown on the drug trade initiated by his Liberal colleague and predecessor, ex-president Virgilio Barco.

LUANDA (AUG. 17) EFE - More than 10,000 people died of hunger in the Angolan coastal province of Benguela in the first seven months of this year, Western diplomats said Thursday.

The deaths resulted from a drought which has ravaged the province for the last three years, causing malnutrition and consequent epidemics of infectious diseases such as tuberculosis.

British ambassador John Funn, West German ambassador Hans Freundt and French ambassador Stanislas Fillol said 10,083 people had died in the province from January to July.

They visited the province, located some 400 km south of Luanda, with United Nations officials last weekend.

The Angolan government last week requested U.N. help in obtaining emergency assistance to alleviate the effects of the drought afflicting central and southern Angola.

A 15-year-old war by U.S.-backed UNITA guerrillas against the leftist government has also cut agricultural production in the drought-stricken zone.

COLOMBO (AUG. 16) XINHUA - THE UNITED NATIONS SANCTIONS AGAINST IRAQ WILL CREATE AN ACUTE ECONOMIC PROBLEM TO SRI LANKA AT THIS TIME WHEN IT HAS TO CONTEND WITH TERRORIST THREATS IN THE COUNTRY, SAID A PRESS RELEASE ISSUED BY THE FOREIGN MINISTRY TODAY.

THE SRI LANKAN GOVERNMENT HAS INSTRUCTED ITS PERMANENT REPRESENTATIVE IN THE U.N. TO APPROACH THE SECRETARY-GENERAL AND THE SECURITY COUNCIL IN CONSULTATION WITH OTHER DEVELOPING COUNTRIES SIMILARLY AFFECTED TO WORK OUT A SUITABLE SOLUTION ON THE ISSUE, THE RELEASE SAID.

THE U.N. SECURITY COUNCIL ADOPTED RESOLUTION 661 ON AUGUST 6 WHICH CALLS ON ALL U.N. MEMBER STATES TO PREVENT THE EXPORT AND IMPORT OF COMMODITIES TO AND FROM IRAQ AND KUWAIT.

TEA IS SRI LANKA'S MAIN EXPORT COMMODITY TO IRAQ, WHICH ACCOUNTS FOR ABOUT 20 PERCENT OF THE COUNTRY'S TOTAL TEA EXPORTS.

ANY STOPPAGE OF TEA EXPORT TO IRAQ WILL CAUSE A CONSIDERABLE DROP IN SRI LANKA'S EXPORT EARNINGS, THE PRESS RELEASE SAID.

THE RELEASE NOTED, "IT IS UNDERSTOOD THAT A NUMBER OF COUNTRIES ARE SIMILARLY PLACED AND EFFORTS ARE BEING MADE TO PRESENT SRI LANKA'S DIFFICULT POSITION TO THE SECURITY COUNCIL."

LIMA (AUG. 16) XINHUA - UNITED NATIONS SECRETARY-GENERAL JAVIER PEREZ DE CUELLAR, VISITING IN PERU, OFFERED WEDNESDAY TO "IMMEDIATELY CONTACT THE HEADS OF STATE AND THE HIGHEST OFFICIALS OF THE EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY TO SOLICIT THE SHIPMENT OF FOOD AND RESOURCES FOR PERU'S SOCIAL WELFARE PROGRAM."

DURING A MEETING AT THE GOVERNMENT PALACE WITH PERU'S PREMIER, JUAN CARLOS HURTADO MILLER, PEREZ DE CUELLAR PROMISED TO INTERCEDE BEFORE THE INTERNATIONAL COMMUNITY TO DRUM UP MORE FOOD AND ECONOMIC AID FOR THE SOUTH AMERICAN COUNTRY.

"I WILL MAKE AN EFFORT TO VERY RAPIDLY CHANNEL TO PERU THE SURPLUS CEREALS OF SOME COUNTRIES IN THE WORLD, GIVEN THAT THE UNITED STATES SUSPENDED THE SALE OF RICE TO ITS MAJOR BUYER, IRAQ, IN VIEW OF THE BREAK IN TRADE RELATIONS BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES, AND A SIMILAR THING IS HAPPENING TO GREAT SUPPLIES OF MILK IN THE EUROPEAN ECONOMIC COMMUNITY," THE SECRETARY GENERAL EXPLAINED.

PERUVIAN-BORN PEREZ DE CUELLAR IS IN PERU FOR A FIRST-HAND LOOK AT THE SOCIAL WELFARE MEASURES OF THE NEW PERUVIAN GOVERNMENT, AND TO ASSESS THE NATION'S MOST URGENT NEEDS. SINCE THE LAST HALF OF 1989, PERU HAS BEEN SUFFERING SEVERE DROUGHTS IN SOME PARTS OF THE COUNTRY, CAUSING AGRICULTURAL PRODUCTION TO PLUMMET BY 25 PERCENT IN COMPARISON WITH THE SAME PERIOD OF 1988.

PEREZ DE CUELLAR ARRIVED IN PERU AUGUST 14 FOR A TWO-DAY OFFICIAL VISIT. HE IS SCHEDULED TO THEN VISIT CHILE AND COLOMBIA.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) XINHUA - CARBON DIOXIDE, THE MOST COMMON OF THE SO-CALLED GREENHOUSE GASES, IS ACCUMULATING FASTER THAN EVER, A U.S. GOVERNMENT AGENCY REPORTED TODAY.

THE CONCENTRATION OF CARBON DIOXIDE IN THE ATMOSPHERE INCREASED AT AN AVERAGE OF 1.71 PARTS PER MILLION OVER THE LAST FOUR YEARS, THE NATIONAL OCEANIC AND ATMOSPHERIC ADMINISTRATION (NOAA) SAID.

THAT IS HIGHER THAN THE 1.5 PARTS PER MILLION RISE REPORTED IN MUCH OF THE 1980S. AND IN THE 1960S THE INCREASE WAS REPORTED AT ONLY 0.7 PARTS PER MILLION ANNUALLY.

GLOBAL CONCENTRATIONS OF CARBON DIOXIDE HAVE INCREASED BY ABOUT 25 PERCENT SINCE THE MID-1980S, TO JUST OVER 350 PARTS PER MILLION, SAID NOAA, WHOSE LABORATORY IN COLORADO IS MONITORING THE CLIMATIC AND ATMOSPHERIC CHANGE.

THE EMISSION OF CARBON DIOXIDE FROM BURNING FOSSIL FUEL, FOREST DESTRUCTION AND SOME NATURAL SOURCES IS BELIEVED TO CAUSE GLOBAL WARMING BECAUSE THE GAS PREVENTS THE HEAT FROM ESCAPING THE EARTH THE WAY THE GREENHOUSE DOES.

MOSCOW (AUG. 16) KYODO - PRIME MINISTERS FROM THE SOVIET REPUBLICS OF RUSSIA AND LITHUANIA SIGNED AN AGREEMENT WEDNESDAY TO ESTABLISH DIRECT TRADE AND ECONOMIC RELATIONS BETWEEN THEIR TWO REPUBLICS AND THUS CIRCUMVENT CENTRAL GOVERNMENT CONTROL.

IT IS LITHUANIA'S FIRST TRADE AGREEMENT WITH A REPUBLIC OUTSIDE OF THE BALTIC REGION AND, ACCORDING TO LITHUANIAN SOURCES, WILL COVER A ONE-YEAR PERIOD FOR 1991.

THE AGREEMENT WAS SIGNED WEDNESDAY BY LITHUANIA'S KAZIMIERA PRUNSKIENE AND RUSSIA'S IVAN SILAEV.

THE CONTENTS OF THE TRADE AND ECONOMIC ACCORD WILL BE DISCUSSED AND SIGNED IN ABOUT TWO MONTHS BY DELEGATIONS FROM THE TWO REPUBLICS. THE ECONOMIC COOPERATION PACT IS ALSO EXPECTED TO LEAD TO A POLITICAL AGREEMENT BETWEEN THE REPUBLICS.

LITHUANIAN PRESIDENT VYTAUTAS LANDSBERGIS HAD INDICATED IN JUNE THAT HIS REPUBLIC WANTED TO TRADE WITH OTHER MEMBERS OF THE SOVIET UNION BECAUSE IT WAS UNHAPPY WITH THE WAY THE KREMLIN HAD BEEN MANAGING TRADE BETWEEN THE REPUBLICS.

LITHUANIAN PRIME MINISTER PRUNSKIENE TOLD REPORTERS AFTER WEDNESDAY'S SIGNING THAT THE MAIN TOPIC OF DISCUSSION IN THE AGREEMENT WILL BE FUEL.

SOVIET PRESIDENT MIKHAIL GORBACHEV SHARPLY CURTAILED SUPPLIES OF CRUDE OIL AND NATURAL GAS TO LITHUANIA IN APRIL AFTER VILNIUS REFUSED TO SCRAP ITS DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE FROM THE SOVIET UNION.

LITHUANIA PROCLAIMED ITS INDEPENDENCE FROM THE SOVIET UNION ON MARCH 11, BUT SUSPENDED ITS DECLARATION IN JUNE TO INITIATE SOVEREIGNTY TALKS WITH MOSCOW.

THE RUSSIAN FEDERATION, LED BY RADICAL REFORMER BORIS YELTSIN, DECLARED IN JUNE THAT ITS LAWS TOOK PRECEDENCE OVER THE CENTRAL GOVERNMENT'S, AND RECENTLY DECLARED INVALID ANY CENTRAL GOVERNMENT CONTRACTS TO SELL OFF THE REPUBLIC'S NATURAL RESOURCES.

SINGAPORE (AUG. 16) KYODO - SANYO SECURITIES CO. OF JAPAN HAS BEEN AUTHORIZED BY SINGAPORE FINANCIAL AUTHORITIES TO CONDUCT STOCKBROKING BUSINESS IN SINGAPORE, A SENIOR COMPANY OFFICIAL SAID THURSDAY.

THIS INCREASES THE NUMBER OF JAPANESE SECURITIES HOUSES ENGAGED IN STOCKBROKING IN SINGAPORE TO 15.

HIDEYO TANAKA, PRESIDENT OF SINGAPORE-BASED SANYO MERCHANT BANK, SAID HIS COMPANY RECEIVED OFFICIAL APPROVAL TO UPGRADE ITS REPRESENTATIVE OFFICE IN SINGAPORE TO A MERCHANT BANK IN MAY, BUT IT WAS ONLY LAST FRIDAY THAT IT OBTAINED A DEALING LICENSE TO DO STOCKBROKING.

WITHOUT THE STATUS OF A ''MERCHANT BANK,'' REPRESENTATIVE OFFICES OF FOREIGN SECURITIES HOUSES ARE ONLY ALLOWED TO COLLECT INFORMATION.

CURRENTLY, THERE ARE SEVEN REPRESENTATIVE OFFICES OF JAPANESE SECURITIES HOUSES IN SINGAPORE, WITH MANY OF THEM PLANNING TO UPGRADE INTO MERCHANT BANKS TO ENGAGE IN ACTIVITIES SUCH AS CORPORATE FINANCING, INVESTMENT

MANAGEMENT AND FINANCING, MONEY MARKET TRANSACTIONS, AND STOCKBROKING.

OBSERVING THAT JAPANESE INTEREST IN THE REGION'S STOCK MARKETS HAS BEEN GROWING STRONGER IN THE PAST EIGHT MONTHS, TANAKA SAID THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SINGAPORE BRANCH WILL EXTEND TO NEIGHBORING COUNTRIES SUCH AS MALAYSIA, INDONESIA AND THAILAND.

HE SAID JAPANESE INVESTORS ARE NOW SHIFTING THEIR INTEREST FROM THE U.S. AND EUROPEAN MARKETS TO THIS REGION WHICH HAS THE HIGHEST ECONOMIC GROWTH IN THE WORLD.

BUT TANAKA SAID THE SMALL CAPITALIZATION OF THE REGION'S STOCK MARKETS -- ABOUT 126 BILLION DOLLARS -- MAKES IT DIFFICULT FOR JAPANESE INVESTORS TO PLACE LARGE BUY ORDERS.

BESIDES JAPANESE BROKERAGE HOUSES, SOME JAPANESE BANKS, SUCH AS BANK OF TOKYO AND INDUSTRIAL BANK OF JAPAN, HAVE ALSO ESTABLISHED MERCHANT BANKING SUBSIDIARIES HERE TO ENGAGE IN STOCKBROKING. IN JAPAN, BANKS ARE NOT ALLOWED TO ENGAGE IN STOCKBROKING.

JAPANESE BANKS AND BROKERAGE FIRMS OPERATING HERE MAINLY TRY TO GET JAPANESE INVESTORS TO TRADE IN LOCAL SHARES AND ALSO TO GET LOCAL INVESTORS TO BUY SHARES IN JAPAN. BUT ALL TRANSACTIONS IN LOCAL SHARES ARE CARRIED OUT INDIRECTLY THOUGH BROKERAGE FIRMS -- MOST OF THEM LOCAL -- WHICH ARE MEMBERS OF THE STOCK EXCHANGE OF SINGAPORE.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) KYODO - THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY (MITI) WILL BEGIN BASIC RESEARCH NEXT YEAR ON A PHOTOVOLTAIC POWER SYSTEM IN SPACE THAT WILL ENABLE THE SUN'S RAYS TO BE CAPTURED AND SENT BACK TO THE EARTH, MINISTRY OFFICIALS SAID.

SOLAR POWER UNITS STATIONED IN SPACE WOULD BE MORE EFFICIENT THAN EARTH-BASED PHOTOVOLTAIC POWER SYSTEMS, THE OFFICALS SAID. WHILE MUCH OF THE SUN'S ENERGY IS FILTERED OUT BY THE EARTH'S ATMOSPHERE AND CLOUDY WEATHER, THESE CONDITIONS DO NOT EXIST IN SPACE, THEY ADDED.

MITI HAS COMMISSIONED THE NEW ENERGY DEVELOPMENT ORGANIZATION (NEDO) TO HEAD UP A TEAM OF EXPERTS TO BEGIN RESEARCH AND GATHER INFORMATION, AS PART OF ITS ALTERNATIVE ENERGY PROGRAM TO REDUCE INCREASING CARBON GAS EMISSIONS WHICH ARE KNOWN TO DAMAGE THE ENVIRONMENT, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

NEDO IS A GOVERNMENT ORGANIZATION WHICH HEADS A NATIONAL PROJECT TO DEVELOP ALTERNATIVE AND CLEAN ENERGY SOURCES. AT PRESENT, IT CONDUCTS RESEARCH IN COOPERATION WITH JAPANESE INDUSTRY ON SOLAR POWER, WINDPOWER AND NUCLEAR FUSION.

THE PROJECT ENVISIONS A PHOTOVALTAIC POWER GENERATOR EQUIPPED WITH A SOLAR PANEL UNIT IN GEOSTATIONARY ORBIT AROUND THE EARTH. A PANEL UNIT 5 TO 10 KILOMTERS SQUARE WOULD BE NEEDED TO GENERATE FIVE MILLION KILOWATTS, OR EQUIVALENT TO OUTPUT OF SOME FIVE NUCLEAR POWER STATIONS, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

EQUIPMENT AND SOLAR PANELS WOULD BE LIFTED INTO SPACE BY ROCKET AND THEN ASSEMBLED. ENERGY CAPTURED BY THE SOLAR PANEL UNIT WOULD BE SENT BY MICROWAVE SIGNALS OR LASER TO AN EARTH-BASED POWER RECEIVER STATION.

THE OFFICIAL SAID THE RESULTS OF THE NEW PROJECT AND CURRENT NUCLEAR FUSION RESEARCH ARE EXPECTED TO BE PUT INTO PRATICAL USE SOMETIME BETWEEN 2020 AND 2040.

MANILA (AUG. 16) KYODO - THE PHILIPPINE GOVERNMENT WILL LIFT AN EIGHT-YEAR BAN ON ENTRY OF SOVIET SHIPS AT A SHIPYARD NEAR THE U.S. NAVAL BASE AT SUBIC BAY, JUSTICE SECRETARY FRANKLIN DRILON SAID THURSDAY.

HE SAID THE GOVERNMENT HOPES THE MOVE WILL GENERATE 20 MILLION DOLLARS IN EXTRA INCOME A YEAR.

DRILON IS HEAD OF THE CABINET GROUP ON NATIONAL SECURITY WHICH DECIDED TO LIFT THE BAN. HE SAID THE MOVE WAS MADE TO GENERATE MUCH-NEEDED EMPLOYMENT AND FOREIGN EXCHANGE. DRILON ADDED THE U.S. HAD FAILED ON ITS PROMISE TO GIVE WORK ORDERS TO THE PHILIPPINE SHIPYARD AND ENGINEERING CORPORATION (PHILSECO).

THE ENTRY OF VESSELS FROM THE SOVIET UNION AND OTHER SOCIALIST COUNTRIES TO THE PHILSECO SHIPYARD WAS RESTRICTED IN 1982 UPON THE REQUEST OF THE U.S. THE SHIPYARD IS LOCATED NEAR THE SUBIC NAVAL BASE, ABOUT 80 KILOMETERS NORTHWEST OF MANILA.

GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS SAID PHILSECO CONCEDED TO THE REQUEST AFTER THE U.S. PROMISED TO GIVE JOB ORDERS TO THE SHIPYARD TO KEEP IT ECONOMICALLY VIABLE.

BOTH THE SOVIET AND U.S. EMBASSIES REFUSED TO COMMENT ON THE MOVE, SAYING THEY HAVE NOT RECEIVED INFORMATION ON THE CABINET DECISION.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) KYODO - THE AGENCY OF NATURAL RESOURCES AND ENERGY WILL LOWER THE CRUDE OIL RESERVE LEVEL REQUIRED OF OIL COMPANIES AND ASK JAPANESE REFINERS TO BOOST PRODUCTION, AGENCY OFFICIALS SAID THURSDAY.

THE AGENCY WILL ALSO SUSPEND THE PLANNED INCREASE IN THE GOVERNMENT'S OIL RESERVES TO SECURE A STABLE SUPPLY OF CRUDE OIL ON THE DOMESTIC MARKET, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

THE MEASURES ARE THE AGENCY'S RESPONSE TO THE GROWING PROSPECT OF AN OIL CRUNCH IN THE WAKE OF IRAQ'S INVASION OF KUWAIT AND THE CONSEQUENT INTERNATIONAL EMBARGO ON IRAQI EXPORTS, THEY SAID.

JAPANESE OIL COMPANIES ARE REQUIRED TO STOCKPILE AT LEAST 82 DAYS SUPPLY OF CRUDE OIL.

THE AGENCY WILL ALLOW THEM TO LOWER THAT LEVEL IF THE WORLD OIL MARKET BECOMES SO TIGHT THAT JAPANESE FIRMS CAN NO LONGER SECURE NECESSARY SUPPLIES WITHOUT BUYING OIL AT UNREASONABLY HIGH SPOT PRICES, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

''SUCH A SITUATION, HOWEVER, IS UNLIKELY TO OCCUR UNTIL OCTOBER AT THE EALIEST SINCE JAPANESE OIL COMPANIES HAVE ALREADY SECURED SUPPLIES FOR AUGUST AND SEPTEMBER,'' SAID NAOKI KURODA, DIRECTOR GENERAL OF THE AGENCY'S PETROLEUM DEPARTMENT.

THE AGENCY WILL ALSO ASK JAPANESE OIL REFINERS TO BOOST PRODUCTION BY 3.6 MILLION KILOLITERS TO COMPENSATE FOR THE LOSS OF OIL PRODUCT IMPORTS FROM IRAQ AND KUWAIT.

THE AMOUNT IS EQUIVALENT TO 2 PERCENT OF ANNUAL PRODUCTION, THE OFFICIALS SAID.

JAPAN IMPORTS 49.39 MILLION KILOLITERS OF OIL PRODUCTS, OR 23 PERCENT OF DOMESTIC CONSUMPTION.

KUWAIT IS THE SECOND LARGEST OIL PRODUCT SUPPLIER FOLLOWING SAUDI ARABIA, SUPPLYING 14.0 PERCENT OF JAPAN'S NEEDS.

THE OFFICIALS SAID IT WOULD BE DIFFICULT FOR OIL REFINERS TO FIND ALTERNATE SUPPLIERS BECAUSE SUPPLY VOLUME IS LIMITED AND OIL PRODUCT STANDARDS VARY FROM COUNTRY TO COUNTRY.

JAPANESE OIL REFINERS HAVE ASKED THE GOVERNMENT TO EXPAND QUOTAS FOR OIL REFINING TO COPE WITH POTENTIAL SUPPLY SHORTAGES.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS ALSO DECIDED TO POSTPONE THE PLANNED INCREASE IN THE NATIONAL RESERVES FOR THE TIME BEING, THEY SAID.

''BUT WE ARE NOT YET CONSIDERING CANCELING THE THREE-MILLION KILOLITER INCREASE IN THE RESERVE PLANNED FOR FISCAL 1990,'' KURODA SAID.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) KYODO - THE MINISTRY OF INTERNATIONAL TRADE AND INDUSTRY PLANS TO REQUEST A TOTAL OF 7.15 BILLION YEN IN THE FISCAL 1991 BUDGET TO DEVELOP NEW TECHNOLOGIES TO PRESERVE THE ENVIRONMENT, OFFICIALS SAID THURSDAY.

THE FIGURE REPRESENTS A FUNDING INCREASE OF ABOUT 18 PERCENT YEAR-ON-YEAR.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES WILL INCLUDE METAL-RECYCLING AND GENERATION OF HYDROGEN BY USING MICROORGANISMS, THEY SAID.

THE OFFICIALS SAID METAL-RECYCLING TECHNOLOGY AIMS TO EXTRACT IRON AND OTHER METALS FROM SCRAPS OF IRON AND OTHER METAL ALLOYS, BY DECOMPOSITION. THE NEW TECHNOLOGY WILL BE DEVELOPED UNDER A 10-YEAR PLAN, AND 100 MILLION YEN WILL BE SOUGHT FOR THE FIRST YEAR.

A PROJECT TO DEVELOP TECHNOLOGY TO GENERATE HYDROGEN USING MICROORGANISMS AIMS TO SECURE POLLUTION-FREE ENERGY. MITI IS EXPECTED TO SEEK 50 MILLION YEN FOR THIS IN FISCAL 1991.

MITI WILL CONSIDER HAVING THE RESEARCH INSTITUTE OF INNOVATIVE TECHNOLOGY FOR THE EARTH HOLD SEMINARS OVERSEAS AND INVITE FOREIGN RESEARCHERS TO JOIN RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT PROJECTS. THE INSTITUTE WAS ESTABLISHED, MAINLY BY MITI, IN KYOTO IN JULY.

TOKYO (AUG. 16) KYODO - JAPANESE SHIPYARDS HAVE FARED WELL AMID AN INFLUX OF SHIPBUILDING ORDERS, BUT ARE ANXIOUS ABOUT TENSION IN THE GULF AREA AFTER IRAQ'S INVASION OF KUWAIT, SHIPYARD OFFICIALS SAID THURSDAY.

THE OFFICIALS SAID SOARING CRUDE OIL PRICES AFTER THE AUGUST 2 INVASION HAVE RAISED FEARS ABOUT INFLATION. IN FACT, SHIPBUILDING NEGOTIATIONS BETWEEN JAPANESE YARDS AND FOREIGN SHIPPING FIRMS FOR DELIVERY FROM 1993 HAVE BEEN VIRTUALLY SUSPENDED, THE SHIPBUILDERS' ASSOCIATION OF JAPAN SAID.

JAPANESE SHIPYARDS ARE BOOKED UP TO TWO YEARS AHEAD, AND MOST ORDERS ARE

FOR 200,000-DEADWEIGHT CRUDE OIL TANKERS, OR LARGER. THE YARDS FEAR GULF DEVELOPMENTS MAY CAUSE ADVERSE EFFECTS, OFFICIALS SAID.

MITSUBISHI HEAVY INDUSTRIES LTD., JAPAN'S TOP SHIPBUILDING COMPANY, WON AN ORDER IN MAY FROM KUWAIT FOR TWO LARGE 78,000 CUBIC-METERS CAPACITY LIQUEFIED PETROLEUM GAS (LPG) TANKERS, WORTH ABOUT 10 BILLION YEN EACH. BOTH SHIPS WERE SET FOR DELIVERY IN THE FIRST HALF OF 1993.

WHEN THE CONTRACT WAS CONCLUDED, THE KUWAIT COMPANY PAID ABOUT 20 PERCENT OF THE TANKERS' PRICE. THE NEXT PAYMENT IS DUE WHEN CONSTRUCTION WORK ON BOTH TANKERS GETS UNDERWAY IN THE LATTER HALF OF 1991. MITSUBISHI OFFICIALS SAID THE PROBLEM IS WHETHER THE KUWAIT COMPANY WILL MAKE PAYMENTS THEN. THE OFFICIALS SAID THEY WILL WAIT AND WATCH DEVELOPMENTS IN THE GULF CRISIS.

A KUWAIT FIRM ORDERED A SMALL LPG TANKER FROM A MEDIUM-SIZE JAPANESE YARD FOR DELIVERY IN 1992. THIS DEAL WILL BE AFFECTED MOST BY THE GULF TENSION THE SHIPBUILDERS ASSOCIATION OF JAPAN SAID.

U.S. stocks in London are little changed to slightly lower in afternoon trading. The dollar is mixed in London. of FRUIT OF THE LOOM stock to an investor group for $43 million. ... SUN MICROSYSTEMS has entered into a cross-licensing agreement with IBM. ... BANK OF NEW YORK's plan to acquire NORTHEAST BANCORP was rejected by the Fed. ... FORD MOTOR COMPANY is idling two car- assembly plants and extending a shut down at a third in the face of sagging sales.

WHAT'S AHEAD:

At 10 a.m. EDT, the LABOR DEPARTMENT releases real earnings for July. ... The COMMERCE DEPARTMENT is scheduled to release a report on the competitiveness of the U.S. telecommunications industry at 11 a.m. EDT.

FROM THE BULLS:

"We're watching for moments to get into the high-quality growth stocks we like," says ANDREW RILEY, portfolio strategist at YAMAICHI INTERNATIONAL. "I think Hussein will end up backing out, and that will eventually be very good for financial markets. The potential for a real positive surprise is out there." (Reuters, 8/15)

"The market is just marking time because many investors are cautious and frightened by the Mideast crisis," says money manager NORMAN YU of Newport Beach, Calif. "I feel we have seen the lows for the market. What we're seeing now is a lessening of selling pressure and an increase in accumulation. ... I don't think we're in a bear market even though some of the broad indicators are in downtrends. ... I expect the Dow to rally and top 3250 before year-end." ("Investor's Daily", 8/16)

FROM THE BEARS:

"Despite what we interpret as bullish signals, we are not ready to get back into the market and will remain only 20% invested in stocks," says MICHAEL BURKE, editor of "Investors Intelligence" investment newsletter. ("USA Today", 8/16)

STOCK MARKET:

"No one is making any big moves, because right now there are too many unknowns," says SID DORR, head of institutional trading at CHARLES SCHWAB. "There's plenty of cash on the sidelines that's not tempted to come back into the market." (Reuters, 8/15)

"This is not an environment where one could be very aggressive," says SURESH BHIRUD, chief investment strategist at OPPENHEIMER & CO. ("The Washington Post", 8/16)

"You've got an extraordinarily indecisive group of investors and with good reason," says JACK CONLON, head of stock trading at ROTHSCHILD INC. He sees the past three days of rising stock prices, no matter how modest, as a "mild victory for the bulls." He expects a short- term rally to carry the Dow back up to 2850 before it heads back down. ("USA Today", 8/16)

"A hypothesis would be that if this situation cleared up in this Middle East, the market probably would have a rather dramatic upside move, probably 75 or 150 points," says DENNIS KELLY, vice president of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT. "Then I think what would happen is that reality would set in and we would have to really start dealing with the financial underpinnings of this economy." He says if he had new investment money coming in now, he probably would commit 20-to-25 percent to "a good quality portfolio and scale it depending on the course of events in the next couple of weeks." (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 8/16)

"In all [Wednesday] was a dull day," says ROBERT STOVALL, president of STOVALL/TWENTY-FIRST ADVISERS INC. "A day filled with a lot of offsets: The dollar ended higher, which bodes well for United States exports in the future. Crude oil prices rose, but oil stocks fell because of profit taking." (NYT, 8/16)

STOCK TIPS:

DENNIS KELLY, vice president of JANNEY MONTGOMERY SCOTT, acknowledges that he is "very defensive" in investment choices these days. Having said that he likes PEPSICO, GTE, AT&T, H.J. HEINZ, HERSHEY, PACIFIC TELESIS, and SCHERING PLOUGH. (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/15)

Iraq's invasion of Kuwait may have slowed a slide in defense stocks, but "USA Today" reports this morning that analysts warn the antidote won't last long. "All this is doing is delaying the agony," says JOHN SIMON of SEIDLER AMDEC SECURITIES, an extreme bear on defense stocks. "We are still buddies with the Russians and there is still going to be a reduction in defense spending," says GARY REICH of SHEARSON LEHMAN. MICHAEL LaTRONICA of LABE SIMPSON & CO. agrees the industry is in for hard times, but says, "I don't see a cliff that we're about to fall off." He says there will be "pockets of opportunity" in defense stocks over the next year or so. ("USA Today", 8/16)

"We're not recommending any defense stocks at all at this time," says analyst PHIL FRIEDMAN of PAINEWEBBER GROUP INC. GREG McCRICKARD, vice president at T. ROWE PRICE ASSOCIATES INC., says, "This is an opportunity to sell into strength before the [defense] stocks drop even lower." ("Investor's Daily", 8/16)

CHARLES WOLF, an analyst with FIRST BOSTON, has a buy recommendation on BUSINESSLAND INC. He says, "I see quite a bit of value there" in case of a takeover, and he believes that the company could look appealing to a systems integrator. Even without a potential takeover, he says, "It's come down so far I don't see any downside. If they come close to breaking even in the September quarter, I think the stock will go up, maybe not a lot, but even from $3 to $6 would be pretty good." DOUG van DORSTEN, an analyst with SHEARSON LEHMAN BROTHERS, disagrees, "Based on its valuation, it's a pretty cheap company now. ... I suppose you could buy stock down here, but it's real risky. If things work out for them, the stock could double or triple in value, but you'd have some sleepless nights in the meantime." (NYT, 8/16)

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 16) MCS -- A SAMPLING OF TODAY'S COMMENTARY COMPILED BY MARKET CONSENSUS SURVEYS, INC. IN TWO SECTIONS (1) STOCKS (2) MONEY & ECONOMY.

MONEY & CREDIT:

"The dollar will keep moving lower to about 1.500 marks and 1.23 Swiss francs," says CHARLES WHEELER, vice president at SWISS VOLKSBANK. "The July CPI is not relevant now since oil prices have jumped because of the Mideast crisis." (Reuters, 8/15)

"I think there is still a lot more downside risk" to the dollar, says DAVID GILMORE, currency analyst for McCARTHY, CRISANTI & MAFFEI. "I think the economic fundamentals in the States are so weak that the markets around the world are looking to sell the unit. You can't keep selling it day after day, however, and I think we are at some temporary support here and we might see it bounce back a little bit. week." He sees a short-term bottom around 1.55 for the mark and 156.50 for the yen. But he expects the yen to "break under 140, probably in the next month or, so and dollar-marks should go down in the 1.35-1.40 area." (CNBC "Market Wrap-Up", 8/15)

"The best thing that could happen now for the United States is a falling dollar that would work against recession by improving exports and reducing imports," says GEOFFREY BELL of the New York company bearing his name. ("The Washington Post", 8/16)

"The [gold] market was due for a setback, following the recent steep gains " says WILLIAM O'NEILL of MERRILL LYNCH. "But the bull trend is still very much in tact." (Reuters, 8/15)

CHARLES LEIBERMAN of MANUFACTURERS HANOVER SECURITIES says the Fed is "really torn" between wanting to ease credit because of a slowing economy and not spur inflation in the face of rising oil prices. But he believes the Fed "will ultimately come down with the conclusion that it's the recession that's the cancer and the inflation that is the ingrown toenail." In that case, he says, there is no choice but to treat the cancer with lower interest rates. (CNBC "Market Wrap- Up", 8/15)

In the credit markets, news on the Middle East still seems to be taking the priority over data about the health of the U.S. economy. "That's the tail that's wagging the dog," says WARD McCARTHY, managing director at STONE & McCARTHY RESEARCH ASSOCIATES INC. "The market is wrestling between a picture that seems attractive outside of Middle East events and saber rattling." He says evidence of economic weakness and expectations for lower U.S. rates are a plus for Treasuries. McCarthy predicts that the Fed will ease. "At the [FOMC] meeting the choices are going to be lower rates or recession." (Reuters, 8/15)

"Persian Gulf uncertainties have left [bond yields and other] interest rates at levels that are steep relative to tangible fundamentals," observes JOHN LONSKI, senior economist at MOODY'S. "Slower economic growth is likely. Unless the Mideast crisis is resolved, at some point, oil prices will be pushed lower by a sagging world economy. A major bond rally could then emerge. Rising interest rates in a softening economy may be signaling a future bond rally." ("Investor's Daily", 8/16)

"The bond market is on a teeter-totter," says ROBERTA OLSON, fixed- income portfolio manager at BANC ONE ASSET MANAGEMENT CORP. "One minute it's focusing on political developments, the next on what's going on in our economy." (WSJ, 8/16)

"Factors probably outside our control or our ability to predict will keep bouncing the [bond] market around. It's just random events," says GILBERT CLARK, senior vice president at DAIWA SECURITIES AMERICA INC. (Reuters, 8/15)

Wednesday "was a volatile day of trading" in the bond market, says KEVIN FLANAGAN, money market analyst at DEAN WITTER REYNOLDS INC. "Investors are groping for some direction. Everybody is trying to figure out where the economy is heading. Some say we're in a recession right now, others say we'll have a recession in a month or two and others believe we aren't in a recession and won't have a recession." For investors, he says "there is still a lot of confusion." (WSJ, 8/16)

THE ECONOMY:

"The U.S. economy is bad, but may not be as bad as everyone keeps moaning and groaning about," says ERIK LEHTIS, a New York currency trader for France's CREDIT AGRICOLE. (WSJ, 8/16)

The NATIONAL FEDERATION OF INDEPENDENT BUSINESS reports that the proportion of business managers predicting a downturn in the economy rose to 22% in the third-quarter, compared to 14% in the second- quarter. "It tells us the negative news that's been hitting Wall Street and the economists over the past six months is really beginning to hit home," says TERRY HILL, a spokesman for the federation. "I would interpret this [report] as a reflection of the very slow growth in the economy," says LYLE GRAMLEY, chief economist for the MORTGAGE BANKERS ASSOCIATION OF AMERICA. "If you look at the economic numbers as they've been coming in recently, they've been quite soft. They don't suggest to me that we're in a recession, but that we're very close to a recession." ("The Washington Post", 8/16)

Yesterday's COMMERCE DEPARTMENT report that inventories fell 0.4% prompts SUNG WON SOHN, chief economist at NORWEST CORP., to say, "Businesses are lean and mean" in preparation for an economic slowdown. ("USA Today", 8/16)

Business sales rose 1% in June according to the COMMERCE DEPARTMENT. "It's modest growth," says MICHAEL EVANS, head of EVANS ECONOMICS INC., a Washington forecasting firm, "not very exciting, but not recession numbers." (NYT, 8/16)

"When you put motor vehicles to one side, the industrial economy keeps crawling upward," says ROBERT DEDERICK, chief economist at NORTHERN TRUST CO. in Chicago. (WSJ, 8/16)

NEW ORLEANS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Brock Exploration Corp. (PSE: BKE), a New Orleans-based independent oil and gas producer, has reported net income for the first quarter ended June 30 of $81 thousand or $.02 per share from revenues of $2.9 million.

These results compare with net income of $209 thousand or $.05 per share from revenues of $2.4 million for the same quarter last year.

Attributing to the reduction of net earnings was approximately $138 thousand of expenses due to well stimulation work in progress in the Austin Chalk area and recording abandonment expenses of $375 thousand to retire properties not contributing to profits.

The company did receive $509 thousand in non-recoupable take-or-pay settlements this quarter, a portion of the anticipated amount for fiscal 1991.

The company also has reduced long-term debt by $708 thousand since March 31, 1990.

BOSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Logitech Inc., market leader in input technology, today announced a significant addition to its ScanMan(R) line of hand-held scanners, ScanMan Model 256, scheduled to ship in October at a suggested retail price of $499 for the PC version and $599 for the Micro Channel version. The gray-scale scanner includes Logitech designed Ansel(TM) Image Editing Software, a high-performance scanning and editing software application featuring 256 gray-level image manipulation and designed specifically to run under Microsoft(R) Windows(TM) 3.0.

ScanMan Model 256 is positioned as an ideal hand-held scanner for Windows users who desire the ability to produce high-quality output by capturing and editing gray-scale images, as well as the ability to scan full pages by "stitching" multiple scans.

The ScanMan Model 256 hardware is designed and manufactured entirely by Logitech and is the first hand-held scanner to be designed and manufactured in the United States. Logitech's ScanMan Model 256 carries a lifetime hardware warranty and features several proprietary analog and digital chips created to enhance hardware-to-software communication which more closely simulate how the human eye perceives the spectrum of gray scales. Logitech has patents pending on the ScanMan Model 256's image enhancement techniques.

"This combination of powerful hardware and sophisticated scanning software brings a new level of credibility to hand-held scanners," says Peter Phillips, product marketing manager. "ScanMan Model 256 is a serious desktop tool appropriate for a broad range of desktop publishing and image publishing needs. Over the past few years, we've seen amazing advances in hand-held scanning technology culminating in ScanMan Model 256. This product proves the validity of the hand-held scanning solution for beginning to professional users. With ScanMan Model 256, we've mastered these challenges and created a powerful product that will effectively complement our existing family of ScanMan hand-held scanners."

Headquartered in Fremont, Calif., Logitech designs, manufactures, and markets desktop tools -- hardware and software products that enhance individual productivity and creativity. With manufacturing facilities in Fremont; Cork, Ireland; and Hsinchu, Taiwan; and sales offices in major U.S. and European cities, the company is an acknowledged international market leader in input device technology.

LAS VEGAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - American Pacific Corp. (NASDAQ: APFC; PSE: APFP) announced today that its principal subsidiary, Western Electrochemical Co. (WECCO) of Cedar City, Utah, one of America's two producers of ammonium perchlorate, had successfully completed all qualification testing for the use of WECCO's ammonium perchlorate in the Redesigned Solid Rocket Motors manufactured for NASA's space shuttle program by Thiokol Corp.

The final qualification event was the successful static test firing on Aug. 15, 1990 of a full-scale solid rocket motor at Thiokol's Northern Utah operations. The motor tested contained approximately 1.1 million pounds of propellant including 800,000 pounds of ammonium perchlorate.

This major milestone marks the culmination of WECCO's success in designing and bringing its ammonium perchlorate plant into full production in less than one year and the subsequent testing and qualification of its product for widespread use in the nation's space and defense systems. Since initial production in July, 1989, WECCO has produced in excess of 20 million pounds of ammonium perchlorate for these programs.

American Pacific's principal business activities consist of the production of ammonium perchlorate, the oxidizer utilized in composite solid rocket propellants employed by a large number of space and military systems. Through direct and indirect subsidiaries, the company is engaged in the manufacture of chlorate and perlorate chemicals, the design and manufacture of electrolytic systems and electrodes, the design and manufacture of pollution control systems, and industrial real estate development.

DALLAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Southland Corporation today announced that its previously announced exchange offers have been extended to expire at midnight, New York time, on Aug. 23, 1990, unless further extended. The company also announced that Ito-Yokado Co., Ltd., Seven-Eleven Japan Co., Ltd., and Southland have mutually agreed to extend the termination date of their previously announced stock purchase agreement to Sept. 15, 1990.

In addition, Southland announced that its senior bank lenders have approved an amendment to the credit agreement that is necessary for the consummation of the company's exchange offers and stock purchase agreement.

As of midnight on August 15, the following securities had been tendered: 13-1/2 percent senior extendible reset notes -- 74.7 percent, or $394,149,138 principal amount ($292,428,319 by guarantee); 15-3/4 percent senior subordinated notes -- 67.5 percent, or $236,371,986 principal amount ($87,986,986 by guarantee); 16-1/2 percent senior subordinated discount notes -- 28.2 percent, or $113,324,000 principal amount ($58,021,000 by guarantee); 16-3/4 percent subordinated debentures -- 42.5 percent, or $212,406,757 principal amount ($59,403,757 by guarantee); 18 percent junior subordinated discount debentures -- 42.8 percent, or $31,334,000 principal amount ($15,924,000 by guarantee); and 15 percent cumulative exchangeable preferred stock -- 83.5 percent, or 11,529,953 shares (5,214,886 by guarantee).

Clark Matthews, Southland's chief financial officer, said, "We are extremely pleased at the number of securities tendered into our restructuring plan thus far. We believe that this high level of initial participation reflects the merits of the plan, and we continue to look forward to completing a successful restructuring."

Under the exchange offers, Southland bondholders and preferred stockholders are being offered new debt securities and approximately 25 percent of newly issued Southland common stock. Existing stockholders would retain approximately 5 percent of the company's common stock, and, following consummation of the exchange offers, Ito-Yokado and Seven-Eleven Japan would purchase 70 percent of the common stock for $430 million in cash.

In addition, Southland announced that the special meeting for holders of its preferred stock was adjourned to 10:00 p.m. Dallas time on Aug. 23, 1990, at 2711 North Haskell Avenue, Southland's headquarters in Dallas. Recordholders of preferred stock as of the close of business on July 13, 1990, will be eligible to vote at the meeting in person or by proxy. If the exchange offers are extended again, the company intends to further postpone or adjourn the special meeting so that it will occur on the expiration date of the exchange offers.

This announcement does not constitute an offer to sell or to buy any security or the solicitation of any consents or proxies, which offers and consent or proxy solicitation shall only be made by means of a proxy statement/prospectus.

LAFAYETTE, LA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Exploration Company of Louisiana, Inc. (NASDAQ: XCOL), today announced results for the three and six months ended June 30, 1990. Gross revenues were US$5,661,000 and $8,112,000, respectively, as compared to $2,037,000 and $4,244,000, respectively, for the corresponding periods a year ago.

Revenues from oil and gas for the three months and six months ended June 30, 1990, increased to $1,426,000 and $3,363,000, respectively, in 1990 from $975,000 and $2,081,000, respectively, in 1989.

The increase in oil and gas revenues for the three months and six months ended June 30, 1990, reflects the net effects of higher production volumes and relatively stable prices in the 1990 periods.

During the second quarter of 1990, the company recognized a gain of $3,940,000 as a result of the series of merger and asset sale transactions which resulted in the company's 42 percent ownership of XCL Sunrise, Inc., a company publicly traded on the Official List of the International Stock Exchange, London.

The company's net income for the three months and six months ended June 30 1990, was $1,047,000 and $1,295,000, respectively, as compared to $195,000 and $748,000 for the same periods last year, reflecting the net effect of the higher revenues, including the gain, offset by higher costs incurred because of the company's increased production and exploration activity during 1990.

Marsden W. Miller Jr., chairman, stated, "The recently completed acquisition of the increased interests in the Berry R Cox field in South Texas, which we now operate, significantly increased our reserves in all categories, including a doubling of the company's proved reserves. This acquisition was financed by using part of the proceeds from the sale in July of $50,000,000, net of costs, of preferred stock and warrants to investors in the U.K.

"We believe that the Cox field has enormous potential. Therefore, in addition to the acquisition interests, the company has recently leased in excess of 8,000 additional acres adjacent to the field and has commenced drilling a well on part of the new acreage."

Miller further commented, "The increased revenues from the Cox field, combined with the production revenues from development wells drilled in Texas and Louisiana, should positively impact the third and fourth quarter results. Also, with XCL Sunrise, Inc., now fully operational and starting to market our gas, we hope to realize higher prices in the coming quarters."

The Exploration Company of Louisiana, Inc., is an oil and gas exploration and production company with offices in Lafayette. The company's common shares are traded on NASDAQ (trading symbol - XCOL) and The Stock Exchange in London and the company's convertible preferred shares and warrants to purchase common shares are traded on The Stock Exchange in London.

CAMARILLO, CALIF. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Siemens Solar Industries announced today that it will establish a new multimillion dollar production facility in Vancouver, Wash., to meet growing market demand for the company's solar products.

This expansion by America's leading manufacturer of photovoltaic solar electric products will create about 100 new jobs in Vancouver and increase the company's production capacity by 50 percent. The company is headquartered in Camarillo, Calif., where it employs more than 500 people.

Dr. Charles Gay, president of Siemens Solar Industries, said the expansion is good news for Vancouver, the solar industry and the company's position in a global marketplace.

"Our expansion into Vancouver is possible because of the high- tech talent who call the area home." Gay said. "It also underlines the growth of the solar industry throughout the U.S. and around the world. And because we export more than 75 percent of what we make, such growth contributes positively to our country's balance of trade."

Siemens Solar Industries is a world leader in the development and manufacture of both single crystal and thin film photovoltaic solar electric products. Its extensive market network spans over 100 countries. The company's products provide power for a wide range of industrial uses, such as telecommunications, and power for remote homes and recreational settings. Such products are particularly important in meeting the diverse needs for power sources in developing nations around the world. Hundreds of thousands of independent solar electric systems, for example provide power for on- site water pumping, medical refrigeration, home and classroom lighting and other basic power needs.

Growing consumer demand in the United States for economical solar lighting is also driving the company's growth, another reason for the Vancouver expansion. This year the company introduced a consumer line of yard and garden lights under the theme "Outdoor Lighting Powered By the Sun." Market success is measured by the availability of these products (under the ARCO Solar brand name) in all 800 SEARS Stores across the country, as well as True Value, ACE Hardware and other major retail outlets.

This consumer product introduction is supported by the largest national print advertising campaign ever undertaken by a manufacturer of photovoltaic products. It also features the first national television campaign for solar electric products.

Siemens Solar Industries, formerly ARCO Solar, pioneered the use of largescale photovoltaic systems, including the design and installation of the largest photovoltaic power stations in the world, located in Calif.

Statement of Congressman Norm Dicks: "The technical advances that have been made in solar electric power development in recent years offer great promise for a broad range of commercial applications. As the market for photovoltaic energy expands, and as the cost of photovoltaic cells declines, I am please that this Siemens Solar Industries facility in our state will be at the cutting edge of an emerging technology. This is an important development for the Clark County area, as the industrial growth is creating a high-tech corridor from Vancouver through Beaverton. These are future-oriented jobs in a future-oriented industry."

Statement of Senator Brock Adams: "I'm glad to see Siemens Solar Industries moving into Vancouver. The move should create about 100 new, high-tech jobs in an area I support: alternative energy development. Developing solar energy is particularly critical now that the world is again falling prey to volatility in the international oil market."

Statement of Congresswoman Jolene Unsoeld: "On behalf of Clark County, I welcome Siemens Solar; America needs more renewable energy and Southwest Washington needs more high- tech manufacturing jobs.

ANCHORAGE, AK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - General Communication Inc. (GCI) (NASDAQ: GNCMA) today reported a consolidated net income for the second quarter of 1990 totaling $196,000, or one cent per share. This compares with second-quarter 1989 net income of $40,000.

Net income for the six-month period ended June 30 totaled $574,000, or four cents per share, compared with $472,000 during the same period of 1989, or three cents per share.

Year-to-date revenues through June 1990 totaled $31,173,000, a 26-percent increase over 1989 revenues of $24,654,000. Revenues for the second quarter of 1990 totaled $15,202,000, a 20-percent increase over second-quarter 1989 revenues of $12,716,000.

Operating income through June 1990 totaled $2,055,000, as compared to 1989 operating income of $3,018,000. Operating income for the second quarter of 1990 totaled $959,000, as compared to second-quarter 1989 operating income of $1,574,000.

Jack Hughes, GCI's senior vice president for marketing and sales, attributed the substantial improvement in revenues and net income to additional contribution resulting from increases in minutes of traffic carried and growth in private line operations, additional revenues associated with operating agreements with other common carriers, and additional revenues associated with the equipment sales and service operations of the company's wholly owned subsidiary, Transalaska Network Systems Inc.

Operating income decreased in 1990 as compared to 1989 as a result of increases in operating costs attributed to network expansion efforts and transmission revenue growth, and additional legal and regulatory costs associated with the company's effort to gain authority to provide intrastate services.

GCI, an Alaskan-owned and operated long distance telephone carrier, has more than 80,000 customers throughout Alaska.

ANAHEIM, CA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Odetics Broadcast Division has sold four Odetics Broadcast Cart Machines and one Odetics News Control Terminal to ScanSat Broadcasting Ltd.

A Swedish company that is based in London, ScanSat was formed as an answer to previous laws forbidding transmission of commercial television from Scandinavian countries. Although those laws are currently being relaxed, ScanSat's business is strong and the company is in an expansion period.

The Odetics equipment is being used as part of ScanSat's satellite uplink of both programs and commercials for transmission in Sweden, Denmark, and Norway. Of the four cart machines purchased by ScanSat, two are TCS2000s and two are TCS90s. They also purchased an Odetics News Control Terminal.

ScanSat's programming is transmitted as the subscription movie channel, TV1000, and the general entertainment channel, TV3. The latter channel's programming is transmitted with subtitles in three languages - Swedish, Danish, and Norwegian - within the data signal vertical interval. The receiving network centers select the appropriate language for their viewing audience.

According to Norman Keers, technical operations manager, this method of transmission in multiple languages from a single output signal requires very flexible broadcast cart software.

Using a Connoley computerized control and scheduling system, ScanSat distributes both programs and promotions between the four Odetics Broadcast Cart machines. The flexibility of Odetics' software allows the Connoley system to look at the four cart machines as one unit.

"The database management features of Odetics Broadcast Cart Machines fit our philosophy of automation perfectly," explains Keers. "Using Odetics equipment allows us to go to complete automation. And when we increase the number of channels or languages we offer, the Odetics system can be easily expanded to meet our needs. It does not make sense to duplicate our equipment when we add a new service, but with other broadcast cart systems that is what we would have to do."

Celebrating its 20th year, Anaheim-based Odetics (AMEX: OB, OA) is a leading manufacturer of large library management video cart systems. There are more than 100 Odetics large library management cart machines playing directly to air throughout the world.

CHICAGO (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Navistar International Corporation (NYSE: NAV) today reported net income of $6 million for the third quarter of fiscal 1990 ended July 31. After dividends on the Series G preferred stock, income per common share was breakeven for the quarter. For the comparable period in fiscal 1989, Navistar reported net income of $28 million, or $.08 cents per common share.

Consolidated sales and revenues of Navistar's manufacturing and finance operations for the third quarter of 1990 totalled $972 million, a decline from $1,083 million reported for the comparable quarter in 1989.

James C. Cotting, chairman and chief executive officer, said continuing weak industry-wide retail demand for medium and heavy trucks was the primary factor which reduced Navistar's sales and income for the third quarter of 1990 below the results for the comparable 1989 quarter.

Industry retail sales of medium and heavy trucks in North America in the third quarter of 1990 totalled 74,400 units, a 14 percent decline from 86,900 for the same quarter last year. Navistar reported its retail sales of International medium and heavy trucks totalled 20,300 units during the third quarter, compared with 23,800 units during the same period in 1989. The company said its shipments of mid-range diesel engines to original equipment manufacturers in the third quarter of 1990 increased approximately 4 percent above last year. Service parts sales were 12 percent higher.

For the first nine months of 1990, Navistar reported a net loss of $4 million, or $.10 per common share. Consolidated sales and revenues totalled $2,883 million. For the first nine months of 1989, Navistar reported net income of $100 million, or $.31 per common share, from consolidated sales and revenues of $3,230 million.

In order to balance production with retail demand, Navistar's assembly operations in its Springfield, Ohio and Chatham, Ontario plants were suspended for five days beginning on Aug. 13. Chatham operations will be suspended for an additional ten days in September and Springfield's medium truck assembly line will be shutdown for five days in October. Also, schedules at the Chatham plant will be reduced from 45 to 38 trucks per day beginning on Sept. 3.

Navistar is the leading producer of medium and heavy trucks in North America and a worldwide leader in mid-range diesel engine production.

GOTEBORG, SWEDEN (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - SKF (NASDAQ: SKFRY), the world's largest manufacturer of bearings, today announced it has decided to construct a completely new factory for the manufacture of wheel bearings, so called hub units. The factory is to be built in Glasgow, Ky., where SKF has operated a factory for some time. The entire project is estimated to cost almost half a billion Swedish kronor.

The investment is seen as a major attempt by SKF to increase the production capacity on the American continent. Approximately 80 percent of SKF's sales in the United States today are manufactured inside the country. The rest is imported from various SKF companies throughout the world, mainly Europe.

At present, SKF's largest hub unit manufacturing units are situated in Italy and France.

The new U.S. factory will begin production in June 1992. A special team of American and European technicians has been formed to plan the project. An extensive training program has just got under way at the SKF factories in Europe where technicians from the United States are receiving instruction and training.

A hub unit is a wheel bearing solution in which all functions are built into one compact unit. The bearings are sealed and lubricated to last the lifetime of the car. SKF has major orders on hand from the American car industry. This includes fitting the new model series of Chrysler's Van cars with SKF hub units.

NOTE: At Aug. 15, 1990, one U.S. dollar equaled 5.7590 Swedish Kronor.

DALLAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Babbage's, Inc. (NASDAQ: BBGS), the nation's leading chain of consumer software specialty stores, today reported a 48 percent increase in sales to $25,042,000 for the second quarter of fiscal 1991 ended August 4, 1990, compared with $16,902,000 for the same quarter last year. Net loss for the quarter was $427,000, or $.08 per share, compared to a net loss of $493,000, or $.09 per share, reported for the same period last year.

For the six months ended Aug. 4, 1990, sales increased 43 percent to $50,378,000 from $35,286,000 for the first half of last year. The company reported a net loss of $395,000, or $.08 per share, compared to a net loss of $30,000, or $.01 per share, for the same period last year.

"Comparable-store sales for the second quarter were up 25 percent, the largest quarterly increase in the last two years," said James B. McCurry, chairman of the board. "Sales of video game system hardware and continuing growth in sales of video game software added significantly to our sales growth. Improved sales of software for IBM- compatible computers also contributed to the increase."

The lower net loss for the quarter resulted from effective expense control programs and higher sales, which offset the impact on gross margin of the continuing change in the sales mix toward lower-margin products. As a result of the change in sales mix, the company's gross margin was 29.1 percent for the second quarter, compared with 32.6 percent a year ago.

As of Aug. 16, 1990, Babbage's, Inc., operated 170 company-owned stores in 30 states, including four new units opened during the quarter. Virtually all of the company's stores are located in major regional shopping malls.

SAN ANTONIO, TX (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Titan Holdings, Inc., a San Antonio based insurance holding company and a stockholder of Quest Medical Inc. announced today that it has submitted a proposal to the board of directors of Quest Medical, Inc., a Dallas based company, for the merger of Titan with and into Quest Medical, Inc.

In the merger, each share of Titan would be converted into shares of common stock of Quest at a conversion rate calculated by using 105 percent of the book value per common share for Quest.

The new shares to be issued to the Titan shareholders will be valued at a premium to existing Quest book value and at an estimated 60 percent premium over the existing market price for Quest's common stock.

At June 30, 1990, Titan had 120,750 shares of common stock outstanding and an unaudited book value of $236 per share and Quest had an unaudited book value at March 31, 1990 of $2.75 per share.

Based on the foregoing, Quest would issue 9,860,667 shares (representing approximately 63.5 percent of the resulting total number of shares of Quest to be outstanding after the merger) to Titan stockholders in the merger.

Titan Holdings is a privately held insurance holding company with equity of approximately $28.5 million and total assets of $80 million. It provides property and casualty insurance to approximately 1,000 small to medium size public entities throughout the United States.

The proposal states that the merger would be subject, among other conditions, to the execution of a definitive agreement, approval by the stockholders of Quest and satisfaction of all legal and regulatory requirements. The proposal states that the Titan offer expires on Aug. 22, 1990.

ST. PAUL, MINN. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - ZEOS International, Ltd. (NASDAQ/NMS: ZEOS) today announced it has signed a patent cross-license agreement with International Business Machines (NYSE: IBM).

The agreement grants each company a non-exclusive license which covers patents having an effective filing date prior to Jan. 1, 1995. The license covers IBM and ZEOS patents relating to computers, peripherals, communication and networking products as well as other advanced computer technologies.

According to ZEOS representatives, the company has been conducting discussions with IBM concerning the licensing of patents since early 1988. ZEOS has been accruing for a potential payment to IBM and the accrual is consistent with the agreement signed and thus will have no impact to previously reported earnings. Any future payments will be determined by product mix, patents used by the company and patents of the company's used by IBM.

According to Rick Apple, ZEOS director of marketing, "We look forward to future product developments based on our new access to IBM's portfolio of approximately 10,000 patents. We view this agreement as a technology partnership which should work to the benefit of both parties."

Details of the agreement were not released.

ZEOS International, Ltd., manufactures and markets, direct to end users, ISA and EISA (Industry and Extended Industry Standard Architecture) personal computer systems and workstations based on the Intel 80386 and 80486 microprocessor world wide under the ZEOS name. SANTA BARBARA, CA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Inamed Corp. (NASDAQ: IMDC, Pacific: INA), a medical and surgical device company that develops and markets silicone-based products to specialty medical markets, headquartered here, today reported record sales for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990. The company has reported record sales for the 18th consecutive quarter.

The company's sales increased 43 percent to $10,129,441 in the second quarter of 1990 from $7,091,113 in the second quarter of 1989. Second quarter net income of $535,888, or $.07 per share, represents an increase of 29 percent over a net income of $414,496, or $.06 per share, reported in the same quarter of 1989. The second quarter of 1990 was the highest reported net income for a single quarter in the company's history.

For the first six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported net income of $656,036, or $.08 per share, on record sales of $17,843,038, as compared to net income of $928,173, or $.13 per share, on sales of $12,850,451 in the prior year period. This represents a 39 percent increase in six-month sales.

"Expanded production and marketing in both the United States and Europe during the past 12 months, coupled with management's ability to anticipate the demands of the market, have had and will continue to have a highly positive impact on the company's sales growth," said Donald K. McGhan, Inamed president and chief executive officer. "Although certain short-term factors such as costs associated with expansion in Europe may inhibit optimization of earnings growth during the next three-to-six months, we do expect these factors to be temporary. We therefore anticipate accelerated profitability beginning in early 1991."

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Allegheny International, Inc. (AI), (NYSE: AG) and its debtor subsidiaries, including Chemetron Corporation, announced today that AI's Joint Stock Plan of Reorganization as modified (the "Modified Plan") was not consummated yesterday, as had been scheduled. The Plan was not consummated because of advice received on Tuesday from AI's special regulatory counsel that AI is required to obtain approval, necessary to consummate its Plan from a federal governmental agency due to a license held by Chemetron.

The modifications to the Joint Stock Plan of Reorganization pursuant to the order of the Bankruptcy Court which approved the modifications expired yesterday. However, the Board of Directors of AI voted to request the Bankruptcy Court to extend the period in which parties may file appeals to its Joint Stock Plan from Aug. 24, 1990 to Sept. 7, 1990. AI Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Oliver S. Travers said that this extension will permit time for AI and Japonica to review the regulatory requirements and formulate a joint approach which would be embodied in a revised stipulation among AI, Japonica and AI's constituencies that will permit consummation of a consensual modified plan.

Mr. Travers further said that both AI and Japonica had been working together around-the-clock in the effort to consummate the plan yesterday and that he was confident this spirit of cooperation would continue.

JACKSON, MI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Households today are loaded with expensive electronic appliances such as computers and home audio equipment that still face an old enemy: lightning strikes. An estimated 60 to 80 percent of all electronic equipment failures are due to power surges, primarily from lightning strikes, according to Consumers Power Company.

As a service to customers, the utility is alerting people to the availability of new, sophisticated surge protectors which will keep appliances safe from the worst lightning strikes. Manufactured by Panamax the new surge protectors come with a lifetime guarantee against a loss of electronic equipment or manufacturing defect.

"Every year in Michigan there are an estimated 30 to 40 lightning strikes per square mile. One hit could destroy thousands of dollars worth of equipment that is not properly protected," said James M. Schrandt, the utility's industrial marketing director. "These protectors provide instantaneous response time and assured protection of valuable equipment," he noted. "The Panamax surge protectors are of the highest quality, offering a level of protection not available in other brands," Schrandt added.

Prices for Panamax surge protectors range from $64 to $99. Consumers Power customers interested in ordering protectors or finding out more information can call toll free 1-800-686-4328.

CHICAGO (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Quixote Corp. (NASDAQ: QUIX) announced today record sales for both its fiscal year and for the quarter ending June 30, 1990. It also announced that it was treating its wholly owned subsidiary, Source Scientific Systems, Inc., a manufacturer of medical diagnostic equipment, as a discontinued operation.

For the fiscal year ending June 30, 1990, sales from continuing operations were $65,775,000, a 17 percent increase over sales of $56,178,000 for fiscal 1989. Earnings from continuing operations were $5,039,000, or a record 68 cents per share, compared to $3,133,000, or 41 cents per share, for the year earlier. This is a 66 percent increase in earnings per share on continuing operations. The company took a loss provision of $5,400,000 against future losses on the operations and the disposition of Source Scientific. The net loss for the fiscal year, including the results of the discontinued operations and the loss provision, was $3,675,000, or 50 cents per share, compared to net earnings of $2,158,000, or 28 cents per share, for the previous year. The Company believes that the $5,400,000 loss provision is adequate to cover any future losses from the operations and the disposition of Source Scientific.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, sales increased to $25,464,000, up 68 percent from $15,202,000 for the same quarter a year earlier. Net earnings from continuing operations were $1,752,000, or 24 cents per share compared to $1,390,000, or 18 cents per share, for the previous year. This is a 33 percent increase in earnings per share. Including the loss from discontinued operations, most of which was taken in the fourth quarter, the net loss for the fourth quarter was $4,567,000, or 62 cents per share, compared to earnings of $890,000, or 12 cents per share, for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

"With our reacquisition of Disctronics Manufacturing, Inc. and the acquisition by our Stenograph Corp. of BaronData Systems during the paast fiscal year, Quixote Corp. has demonstrated its commitment to increasing its position of leadership in specialized industries," stated Philip E. Rollhaus, president of Quixote Corp. "With the strong showing of Energy Absorption Systems, Inc., our three major subsidiaries collectely produced record sales and profits for the year," he added, "and we expect them to continue to grow in the years ahead."

"While Quixote has invested many millions of dollars over the past four years in supporting, and in developing new products for, Source Scientific Systems, Inc., it appears that the remaining expenditures needed to achieve profitability for this medical instrumentation company would be best undertaken by a larger company already involved in medical diagnostics," Rollhaus continued. "With this in mind, we have decided to divest this subsidiary and its newly introduced products in this fiscal year and concentrate on our three largest, and profitable, businesses. Towards this end, we have retained an investment banker to advise us on the most advantageous way to transfer Source Scientific Systems, Inc. out of Quixote Corp.," Rollhaus concluded.

Quixote Corp. is a diversified technology company composed of Energy Abosorption Systems, Inc., the world's leading manufacturer of a wide range of highway crash cushions, devices that save lives on the world's highways; Stenograph Corp., the world's leading manufacturer of shorthand machines and computer systems for the court reporting profession; and Disc Manufacturing Inc.,the largest independent manufacturer of compact discs (CDs), videodiscs and CD-ROMs in the United States. Quixote Corp. is a also founding shareholder of Neophore Technologies Inc., which is developing a unique, patented approach to providing an advanced drug delivery system as well as a substitute for donated human whole blood.

AUSTIN, TX (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Motorola's (NYSE: MOT) Microprocessor Products Group today announced that it intends to manufacture and market the MC68HC56 (HC56) and MC68HC57 (HC57) data link controller (DLC) integrated circuits developed by Delco Electronics Corp. These devices act as an interface and line driver between a microcontroller and a serial data bus. The part was designed in response to the Society of Automotive Engineers' (SAE) J1850 standard developed to create common automotive on-board emissions diagnostic and communications standards starting in 1994 model year.

"The HC56 and HC57 are two automotive serial bus products Motorola will provide to the industry that meet the SAE J1850 standard," said Gary Daniels, vice president and general manager of Motorola's Microcontroller Division. "We will continue to work with key customers on products and standards that benefit the industry."

The HC56 provides a direct interface to the parallel bus of the Motorola 68HC11 and 68332 microcontrollers. The HC57 provides a direct connection to the serial peripheral interface found on the 68HC11 and the 68332. The HC56 and HC57 will be available in general sample quantities 2Q 1991. Production volume is expected for 2Q 1992. Both devices will be available in a 28 pin PLCC package.

As America's largest supplier of semiconductors, Motorola has a balanced portfolio of over 50,000 devices. Motorola's Microprocessor Products Group (Austin) has established industry standard architectures including the 68HC05, 68HC11 and 68300 families of digital signal processors; and the CSIC (customer specified integrated circuit) design methodology.

WICHITA, KN (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE) has asked the United States District Court in Wichita to issue a preliminary injunction that would prevent Kansas City Power & Light Company (NYSE: KLT) from continuing its demand for a stockholder list and a special meeting of stockholders in regards to KCPL's tender offer for all of KG&E's stock. KG&E also has asked for a preliminary injunction against KCPL's publication of misleading information concerning the special stockholders meeting and the legality of its tender offer.

Following KCPL's unsolicited tender offer of July 23 to purchase all of KG&E's stock, Heywood H. Davis, purporting to own 100 shares of KG&E common stock, demanded that KG&E provide a list of stockholders for KCPL's use. KCPL also requested KG&E to call a special stockholder meeting to act on authorizing KCPL to vote shares acquired by KCPL.

On July 31 in U.S. District Court in Wichita, KG&E challenged the legality of the demands.

KG&E reported today it has amended its suit against Davis and KCPL saying that because the Kansas City utility's actions violate Kansas law, the federal Public Utility Holding Company Act and Securities and Exchange Commission rules and regulations, the court should stop KCPL from "further facilitating, conducting, pursuing or consummating the tender offer."

KG&E asks the court to rule that its stockholder list not be provided to Davis as demanded; that the requested special meeting of stockholders not be called; and that the KCPL tender offer be declared unlawful under the federal Public Utility Holding Company Act.

KG&E contends that Davis is acting as an agent of KCPL attempting to accomplish for KCPL what the utility is prohibited by Kansas law from doing for itself.

Also, KCPL has failed to file as required by Kansas law a proper "acquiring person statement" in connection with its request for a special meeting of shareholders.

KG&E also claims that KCPL's newspaper ads on Aug. 13 and 14 included false and misleading information and constitute an improper proxy solicitation under the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

BURLINGTON, NC (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. (NASDAQ: EDIT) announced today that it has received 510(k) pre-market clearance from the U.S. Food and Drug Administration for its new EZ-Screen: hCG Test for determining pregnancy in humans. The Company will begin marketing the new pregnancy test immediately to a defined segment of the vast pregnancy testing market.

James D. Skinner, EDI President and Chief Executive Officer, said, "We are pleased to announce the introduction of the EZ-Screen: hCG Pregnancy Test specifically designed to address the pregnancy testing needs of the high-volume, price conscious segment of the clinical pregnancy testing market.

"The new pregnancy test, utilizing the company's proprietary and patented Quik-Card technology, offers the first ever pregnancy test capable of providing up to six individual pregnancy tests on the same device. This unique product configuration offers high-volume customers a significant cost savings advantage because multiple tests can be conducted on a single Quik-Card."

Mr. Skinner added: "We are targeting this new pregnancy test towards large hospitals, clinics and group OB/GYN practitioners - a market segment we estimate to be in excess of $20 million annually - that require industry standards for sensitivity, specificity, accuracy and ease of use, but at the most effective cost per test. The new EZ-Screen: hCG Pregnancy Test fulfills all of these needs.

"This new pregnancy test expands the company's product offering in the human clinical diagnostics market. Direct sales activities will begin immediately through our own existing national sales force.

The EDI strategy is to provide a broad line of diagnostic products in several niche markets using the patented QUIK-CARD technology. The new EZ-Screen: hCG Pregnancy Test is an integral part of this strategy and is directed towards the $7.0 billion human diagnostics market."

Environmental Diagnostics, Inc. develops and manufactures human clinical and agricultural diagnostics specifically designed for on-site testing by non-technical personnel.

The company's Conventional Biodiagnostic Products are used by government agencies, researchers, clinical testing laboratories, and other companies for clinical and veterinary testing. The Company's EZ-Screen products provide the accuracy of laboaratory results in minutes.

FORT LAUDERDALE, FLA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - CarePlus, Inc. (NASDAQ: CPLS) today announced that they have received an accelerated repayment of the balance of the approximately $3 million advanced to Professional Care, Inc. (AMEX: PCE) in 1987. The advances were made in connection with the proposed acquisition of Professional Care by CarePlus, and although the acquisition was terminated in 1987, Professional Care has been making regular payments with interest to CarePlus for over two years.

"This accelerated repayment marks the severance of any ties, financial or otherwise, between CarePlus and Professional Care," remarked Bob L. Wood, chairman and CEO of CarePlus.

In an unrelated matter, CarePlus has appointed Ernst & Young as its new auditors, replacing BDO/Seidman in that role.

CarePlus is a national provider of high-tech infusion therapy, treating patients requiring chemotherapy, nutritional feeding through either a vein or a tube, intravenous (I.V.) antibiotic therapy, pain treatment, fluid administration, and other home infusion therapies.

MILFORD, OHIO (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Structural Dynamics Research Corporation (NASDAQ: SDRC) announced a major contract to supply its software to the General Electric Aerospace Group. SDRC's I-DEAS software was selected as the standard for mechanical automation at GE Aerospace, and will be used for the design, drafting, and analysis of their products. SDRC estimates the value of the multi-year contract to be in excess of $4 million.

In 1989, GE Aerospace committed to a program to substantially improve engineering productivity. They established the Engineering Process Improvement Program (EPIP) with representatives from all departments within GE Aerospace. After an extensive evaluation of software products from numerous vendors, they determined that SDRC's software would best meet their mechanical design requirements.

"We are extremely pleased that GE Aerospace has selected I-DEAS software as their standard for mechanical design automation," said Ronald J. Friedsam, SDRC chairman and chief executive officer. "Today's aerospace market is extremely competitive. GE Aerospace required software with substantial depth and breadth of functionality to address their complex engineering needs. In addition, they wanted to work with a software supplier who had the financial strength, and commitment to R&D that are critical for the future success of their system. Overall, SDRC provided the best solution."

SDRC's I-DEAS software addresses the product development activities of the design engineering organization by providing integrated systems for solid modeling, finite element modeling and analysis, computer-aided testing, drafting and manufacturing. SDRC currently has over 23,600 I-DEAS licenses installed at more than 4,300 customer sites worldwide.

SDRC is a leading international supplier of mechanical computer- aided engineering software and engineering services used by automotive, aerospace, and industrial manufacturers for the design, analysis and testing of sophisticated mechanical products. The company's products and services significantly reduce product development time and cost and result in superior quality products by enabling customers to optimize product designs prior to production. SDRC employs more than 900 people in 36 offices in 12 countries throughout North America, Europe and the Far East.

DALLAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - International Telecharge, Inc. (AMEX: ITI) today announced the appointment of Robert E. Lund as president and chief executive officer.

His appointment was announced by Chairman Allan L. Rayfield. Lund will assume the duties of chief executive officer from Rayfield and the duties of president from Edmund F. Tagg. The appointment will take effect on Sept. 4, 1990.

In the announcement, Rayfield stated: "We are excited to acquire the talents of Bob Lund. His extensive experience in the technology and processing industry will provide ITI the transaction-based knowledge necessary to compete in this rapidly changing industry."

Lund will be leaving his current position as president of EDS' Payment Services Division, a national transaction operation, to assume his new duties at ITI. Prior to his most recent tenure with EDS, he was a principal in MTECH, which was acquired by EDS from MCORP in 1988. Before joining MTECH, Lund had been with EDS in various marketing, sales and management positions within that company's financial division.

Lund expressed his enthusiasm about joining ITI, stating: "I am excited about the opportunities that exist at ITI. This is a company that is a leader in the OSP industry, and has the capacity to carry those leadership qualities into the emerging transaction-based markets."

This appointment is the continuation of ITI's management transition that commenced in April. At that time, Tagg indicated his intention to leave the company to pursue other interests. With Lund's appointment, Tagg will proceed with those plans, although he has agreed to continue in a consultant role to assist in the transition and complete some important special projects.

Also in the announcement, Rayfield said that Lund's assumption of the operational management of the company will free him to concentrate on new market opportunities and the development of the long-term strategic direction of ITI.

ITI, headquartered in Dallas, is a leading national telecommunications supplier of network-based operator and information services, primarily to hotels, hospitals, payphone owners and other interexchange carriers.

CHARLOTTE, NC (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Royal Insurance reported a pre-tax statutory loss of $44.2 million for the first half of 1990, compared to a net loss of $15.2 million for the same period in 1989. After federal income taxes, a net loss of $39.2 million was posted compared to a $24.9 million loss for the first half of 1989. Written premiums decreased 4.2 percent to $1.1 billion. The underwriting loss rose to $265.5 million from 1989's first half loss of $201.8 million, and the combined ratio before dividends worsened to 123.9 from 117.2. Pre-tax investment income, excluding capital gains and losses, increased 11.2 percent to $170.3 million.

Chairman and Chief Executive Officer William E. Buckley said the company's disappointing performance was due mainly to the extremely poor results in the commercial insurance sector, which includes multi-peril, workers' compensation and commericial auto. "Long term, we remain confident that we have the strategies in place to return Royal to profitability," Buckley said. "These strategies are already showing results, but in a soft market it will take some time for the benefits to be reflected in our financial performance."

At the same time, in London, England, the parent company, Royal Insurance Holdings plc, announced its worldwide results for the first half of 1990. Total written premiums increased by $164.3 million to $3.27 billion. The worldwide underwriting loss was $572.4 million, compared to $208.2 million for the same 1989 period, while investment income increased by $32.8 million to $440.1 million. A pre-tax loss of $107.7 million compared to a profit of $202.1 million for the first six months of 1989 and the net after-tax loss totaled $76.4 million versus a $139.9 million profit for the previous period.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Pan American World Airways today announced its improved "WorldPass 1991" frequent flyer program, that will allow members to combine mileage for award redemption for up to three years, an increase over the previous two-year limit.

Under the new program, for example, beginning Jan. 1, 1991, WorldPass members can accumulate mileage for one calendar year and redeem awards anytime through the end of 1993. Members have the option of combining mileage earned in 1991 with that earned subsequently in 1992 and 1993, for a total of three years worth of mileage accumulation.

"We've always believed that our WorldPass program is the richest frequent traveler program in the industry, and now with the addition of one more year to combine mileage for awards, we have enhanced the program still further," said John Bloodworth, vice president advertising and marketing programs at Pan Am.

In addition, Pan Am said that, unlike other carriers, it will not increase the mileage levels needed for award travel or the number of blackout dates in the 1991 program. WorldPass members will have the option to waive award travel blackout dates by doubling the number of miles needed to redeem an award.

The program also includes a rollover option for WorldPass 1989/90 members. In order for unredeemed 1989/90 miles to be rolled over into the 1991 program, members may either fly 6,000 actual miles on Pan Am between Oct.

1 and Dec. 31, 1990, or fly 10,000 actual miles on Pan Am between Oct. 1, 1990 and March 31, 1991.

WorldPass 1991 travel partners will be announced later in the year.

BALTIMORE (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - MNC Financial Inc. (NYSE: MNC) today announced that it has received commitments for a $750 million, 18-month revolving credit facility from a bank syndicate led by Morgan Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

The new facility provides for an initial availability of up to $600 million and will increase to $750 million by January 1991, upon achieving certain planned financial initiatives. The facility, which is subject to certain conditions and the completion of definitive documentation, will provide support for MNC's short-term funding requirements, including commercial paper and variable rate renewable notes.

The company also said that it is exploring the sale of certain non-core, non-bank assets and business units. Investment bankers are assisting MNC in this effort, which primarily involves the three components of MNC Credit Corp, in the MNC Affiliates Group. These are the MNC Commercial Division, the MNC Leasing Division, and LeaseFirst. All are national market, non-bank subsidiaries with combined assets of approximately $1.2 billion and a total of about 300 employees.

In commenting on these developments, Alan P. Hoblitzell Jr., MNC chairman of the board and chief executive officer, said, "We are pleased that the credit facility led by Morgan Guaranty was well received by the participating institutions."

MNC Financial is a $27-plus billion-asset diversified financial services company which delivers a broad range of commercial and consumer banking products in the Baltimore/Washington common market, and in the mid-Atlantic states. In addition, MNC is the largest national marketer of endorsed affinity group credit cards, apioneer in asset securitization and sales, and a leader in national consumer finance products. PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Philip W. Koebig III has been named executive vice president of Constitution Bank according to an announcement made today by the bank's President and Chief Executive Officer Robert Mazzei.

"In his new position," Mazzei said, "Phil will work with me on new product development and the bank's expansion program into Philadelphia's suburbs. He will also be responsible for the development of a new, multiple-branch community banking system in Southern New Jersey similar to Marine National Bank which he headed from 1981 to 1988." The new bank is expected to be in operation by the end of 1991 at which time Koebig will become its president and chief executive officer.

"Constitution's board of directors believes that growth is the result of having talented people," according to James W. McStravick, Constitution Bank's chairman of the board. "Phil Koebig," he continued, "is uniquely qualified to support our commitment to one-on-one banking and help create a strong branch network to deliver it. The buyout's of local banks in South Jersey by large national institutions did not necessarily result in better service to customers and those customers want a return to the traditional banking and personalized service which has always been Phil's trademark and Constitution Bank's philosophy."

Koebig added, "Constitution Bank's leadership has created the kind of dynamic atmosphere that encourages its clients to grow and its officers to find a way to help them do it. I'm excited about bringing one-on-one community banking back home to Southern New Jersey."

Because of its impressive growth and its high ratings within the financial community, Constitution is considered a leader among the area's young banks. The four-year-old bank reported assets of more than $145 million in the second quarter of 1990. The bank's center city Philadelphia offices specialize in addressing the banking needs of the small- and medium-sized businesses, professionals and entrepreneurial ventures which larger banks have found unprofitable.

Before joining Constitution, Koebig had been executive vice president of the 130-branch Chemical Bank New Jersey NA and was responsible for retail banking, consumer and community lending and private banking as well as marketing, planning and retail training. He had moved to Chemical's Morristown office when the bank took over Horizon Bank's $800 million subsidiary Marine National Bank in New Jersey's Cape May, Atlantic, Ocean and Monmouth counties. He has also been affiliated with The National Bank of New Jersey, Hudson United Bank and Midlantic National Bank.

Koebig is a member of the New Jersey Bankers Association and served on the Federal Reserve Relations Committee for District 3-Philadelphia. He is a graduate of Dartmouth College and earned a masters degree in business administration at Rutgers. He is also a graduate of Bankers Business Development Institute and Stonier Graduate School of Banking.

CLARK, N.J. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Michael W. Cox, president and CEO, Q-Med, Inc. (NASDAQ: QEKG) announced today that the company had completed the sale of the Heart Map technology developed by its subsidiary to Neurotechnology, S.A., Montpellier, France for $1.5 million and other valuable considerations. The sale does not affect Q- Med's continuing business selling its Monitor One, vision ekg and nDx medical instrumentation.

Cox stated that in addition to the sale, a Q-Med subsidiary will be a 40 percent joint venture partner with Neurotechnology to exclusively market and sell the Heart Map products and services in North America.

Cox stated that this transaction is very favorable to the company. Neurotechnology is well capitalized and has a competent technical staff to complete the Heart Map project within 2 to 3 years. The Heart Map analyzer is capable of detecting the presence of heart disease non-invasively and will be more sensitive than a "stress test", which has a present market of approximately $300 million per year in the United States.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Sir Gordon White, chairman of Hanson Industries, the U.S. arm of Hanson PLC (NYSE: HAN) said today that Hanson's wholly owned business unit, Gold Fields Mining Corporation, has announced an increase of 1.47 million ounces in its proven and probable gold reserves since July 1, 1989. Gold Fields Mining's demonstrated reserves now amount to 7.41 million ounces of gold contained in 186.7 million tons of ore. The increase in ounces represents an increase of 24.7 percent over the previous year's proven and probable gold reserves of 5.94 million ounces.

In addition to these reserves Gold Fields Mining has an additional 5.26 million ounces of resources for a total remaining resource of 12.67 million ounces of gold, an increase of 11.6 percent over the previous year.

Gold Fields Mining currently has mining activities at its Mesquite Mine in Imperial County, Calif. and at its Chimney Creek Mine in Humboldt County, Nev. Production from these two mines for the 12 months period ended June 30, 1990 was approximately 420,000 ounces. In addition, Gold Fields is continuing to pursue an aggressive exploration program for gold in the United States, Canada and Chile.

Hanson also owns 49 percent of Newmont Mining Corporation, whose proven and probable gold reserves currently total 20.7 million ounces. Sir Gordon stated, "Hanson is committed to continued exploration and development at Gold Fields Mining, and we are pleased to see that our investment in this area is having such fine results."

Hanson acquired Gold Fields Mining and its share in Newmont Mining as part of its August 1989 acquisition of Consolidated Gold Fields.

Hanson PLC is a British-American industrial management corporation. In the U.S., Hanson Industries' operations include SCM Chemicals, Peabody Holding Company, Jacuzzi Whirlpool Bath and Spa Products, Grove Crane, Ames Tools, Universal Gym, Endicott Johnson and Frye Footwear, Hanson Lighting Group, Kaiser Cement, Weber Aircraft, Farberware Cookware, and Gold Fields Mining among others.

In the United Kingdom, Hanson's holdings include Imperial Tobacco, Ever Ready Batteries, ARC Aggregates, London Brick, Butterley Brick, and Smith Meters.

BOSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Fairway Capital Corporation of Providence, R.I., has been licensed by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) as a small business investment company (SBIC).

Located at 285 Governor St., the company will provide capital for small companies in Rhode Island. The president of Fairway Capital Corporation is Paul Anjoorian.

SBICs are privately owned and operated investment firms which provide venture capital to small businesses for growth or expansion. The SBICs are licensed and regulated by the SBA and are eligible to receive some funding from the federal government.

In making the announcement, SBA New England Regional Administrator Mary Brennan Lukens said that "the SBIC program fills a real need for entrepreneurs who have ideas but have difficulty finding financing for their ventures. The fairway Captial Corporation will generate growth of new and existing small businesses in Rhode Island and, as a result, will create more revenue and jobs."

Lukens also said, "Creation of the new SBIC reflects President Bush's interest in small business and is in line with the president's overall economic program of utilizing federal funds and resources to create jobs and stimulate local economies. "

An SBIC's major function is to make investment by supplying equity capital and long-term venture loans to small companies which meet the investment criteria of the SBICs.

SBICs finance small firms in several ways: by straight long-term loans; by equity-type investments; or by financings with combined features of both equity investments and loans. Terms of the financing are negotiated between the small firm and the SBIC.

An SBIC may obtain partial ownership of a small business through equity-type investment, but it is prohibited from taking a controlling interest. Many SBICs also provide business management aid to the companies they finance.

Region I, one of ten SBA regions, is responsible for assisting, counseling and championing small business in Connecticut, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, and Vermont.

Created by Congress in 1953, SBA's mission is to help people get into business, help them stay in business, help small firms win federal procurement contracts, help victims of natural disasters, and act as a strong advocate for small business.

COLUMBUS, OHIO (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Huntington Bancshares Incorporated (NASDAQ: HBAN) today announced that it has received all necessary approvals for its acquisitions of First Home Federal Savings and Loan Association (NASDAQ: FSEB), (Sebring, Fla). The shareholders of First Home Federal overwhelmingly approved (83.3 percent of 83.7 percent shares represented) a proposal to merge with Huntington at a special meeting of shareholders held Aug. 7. Approval has also been received from the Federal Reserve Board and the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS). Consummation of the merger is expected to take place in late September.

"We are very pleased to have all approvals in place so that we may proceed with the acquisition of this fine company," stated Frank Wobst, chairman and chief executive officer of Huntington Bancshares Incorporated. "In conjunction with the acquisition, the OTC also approved the opening of a branch office in Naples which we plan to accomplish before the end of this year. The office will offer private banking services complementary to our existing trust operation in Naples."

First Home Federal has $208 million in assets and operates eight banking offices in south-central Florida. Huntington Bancshares Incorporated is an $11.7 billion regional bank holding company headquartered in Columbus, Ohio. The company's banking subsidiaries operate 253 offices in Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Pennsylvania and West Virginia. In addition Huntington's mortgage, trust, investment banking and automobile finance subsidiaries manage 32 offices in the six states mentioned as well as Florida, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Massachusetts, New Jersey, Rhode Island and Virginia.

BLOOMINGTON, MN (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Discus Corporation (NASDAQ: DISC) a Bloomington, Minn., restaurant company today reported sales of $3,984,731 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to sales of $4,126,865 for the second quarter of 1989. Discus lost $94,219 or $.05 per share for the second quarter of 1990 compared to a profit of $39,339 or $.02 during the second quarter of 1989.

Mike Platt, Discus president, said that "Second quarter results were a serious disappointment, reflecting a slight softening of sales combined with increases in payroll and other restaurant operating costs.

"Payroll increases were primarily due to the implementation of a major new employee training/re-training program designed to improve our customer service levels. We believe this program is critical to help us compete effectively in the increasingly competitive restaurant industry.

"However, we were disappointed that the short-term cost impact was greater than anticipated. In future months," said Platt, "we believe training expenditures will be reduced without harm to the effectiveness of the program."

In response to these second quarter results, and with the objective of strengthening the company's financial position and tightening internal control and communications, a number of organizational changes were implemented at the end of the quarter. Two positions, vice president of operations and corporate training manager, were eliminated.

The company's three area managers were each given broader supervisory responsibility and now report directly to the president. Other reductions in corporate general and administrative expense have been implemented which should have a significant effect on future profitability.

The company also recently entered into a joint venture involving the operation of a Khan's Mongolian Barbecue Restaurant in its Roseville, Minn., property that previously housed its terminated Brick Oven Beanery concept.

Khan's is a unique oriental dinner-house concept, with its original unit located in the Dinkytown area of Minneapolis. The company is a limited partner, and is not directly involved in operation of the restaurant. The restaurant opened in June 1990, and has received favorable reviews and initial customer acceptance.

Discus Corporation operates nine Fuddruckers restaurants: three in Minneapolis/St. Paul; three in Milwaukee, Wis.; two in St. Louis, Mo.; and one in Omaha, Neb. The Company's stock is traded over-the-counter under the symbol DISC.

GAITHERSBURG, MD. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Oncor, Inc. (NASDAQ: ONCR), today announced record revenues for the second quarter and six months. "Our sales are rising steadily, and at the same time our losses are diminishing. We see this positive trend continuing and hope to achieve break-even operations by the fourth quarter of this year," said Stephen Turner, Oncor's chairman and chief executive officer.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, Oncor had record revenues of $928,968, a 50 percent increase when compared with revenues of $621,487 for the same three month period a year ago. The net loss for the quarter decreased 63 percent to $(299,045), or $(.04) per share, versus a net loss of $(488,495), or $(.09) per share in the comparable 1989 quarter.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were a record $1,613,402 compared with $1,339,550 for the same six month period last year. The net loss for the six months decreased to $(775,327), or $(.11) per share, versus a net loss of $(854,506), or $(.16) per share in the first half of 1989.

Commenting on the company's performance, Turner stated, "We are currently in production and shipping several new DNA-based diagnostic test systems which are fueling our growth. These include Oncor's FDA approved B/T Gene Rearrangement Test System used in the diagnosis of leukemia and lymphoma, our one-day In-Situ Chromosome Analysis Test System for use in screening common chromosomal abnormalities such as Down Syndrome, and our Human Papillomavirus (HPV) Analysis System for detecting cervical cancer in women. These tests are in addition to increased sales of the more than 80 DNA/RNA probes and reagents that we are currently manufacturing and marketing."

MIAMI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - In an effort to expand its reach to both business and leisure travelers, Eastern Express will become the only commuter airline offering flights between Miami and Nassau.

Effective Oct. 15, travelers can choose from three daily non-stop flights each way in the early morning, mid-afternoon and early evening. In an additional break with standard commuter airline practice, Eastern Express' Miami-Nassau service will accommodate passengers on spacious 35-passenger Saab 340 aircraft, which include a flight attendant, snack and beverage service, lavatory, and both overhead and underseat storage areas.

"The addition of this service to our schedule is a direct and immediate response to local market demand," said Jack Robinson, president and chief executive officer of Eastern Express, who was also recently named Eastern Airlines' vice president of corporate development. "By offering three flights evenly spread throughout the day, our intent is to extend convenience to both vacationers and those conducting business in both Nassau and South Florida."

Although Eastern Express has a long and solid history of presence in Florida and the Bahamas, this will be its first service to Nassau. Other Bahamas destinations with daily Eastern Express departures from Miami include: Freeport, Treasure Cay, Governor's Harbour, and Rock Sound.

As the largest commuter airline serving Miami, Eastern Express operates approximately 100 daily flights to 11 cities in Florida and the Bahamas, and is planning a major expansion of its Florida service in the near future.

COLUMBUS, OH (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Public Utilities Commission of Ohio (PUCO) today ruled on Ohio Edison's (NYSE: OEC) request to increase rates, granting an 8.5 percent increase over current company revenues, or an increase of $142,376,000.

Ohio Edison had requested an increase of approximately $216,000,000. The rates authorized today by the commission include, for the first time, the costs of the Beaver Valley 2 nuclear plant.

In making rulings in rate cases, the commission is required by law to authorize rates which are fair and reasonable to customers, while at the same time, allowing the company the opportunity to meet expenses, pay interest on debts, and provide a reasonable return to stockholders. The PUCO set an 11.20 percent rate of return in today's decision.

The typical Ohio Edison residential customer using 500 kWh per month, currently pays approximately $57.23 per month for electric service. With today's increase, it is estimated that the customer would pay approximately $62.38 per month.

The commission determined that Ohio Edison has a 22.85 percent reserve margin, which is the amount of generating capacity above what is needed to meet customer peak demand.

Although PUCO guidelines established in a 1987 opinion define a benchmark reserve margin of 20 percent, the commission did not make any adjustment to the revenue requirement in this case because there is only a slight deviation from the 20 percent benchmark and because Ohio Edison's reserve margin is expected to drop below 20 percent after 1991.

The commission approved the establishment of a seasonal rate structure. The summer billing months will be June through September and winter billing months will be October through May, with a slightly higher rate during the summer billing period. The commission noted that although seasonal rates are new to Ohio Edison, they are in effect at six other major Ohio electric utility companies.

The PUCO rejected nearly $2,938,750 in advertising costs, including the costs of advertisements featuring Cleveland Browns' quarterback Bernie Kosar, as well as costs for employee memberships and club expenses, agreeing with the Office of Consumers' Counsel that ratepayers should not bear these costs.

Underscoring the importance of environmental considerations, the commission ordered that the distribution of pollution control costs be commensurate with the consumption of electricity and noted that conservation and demand-side management will be major factors in determining the rate of return in future cases.

BLACKWOOD, N.J. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Robert G. Wallace, president of Drug Screening Systems, Inc., (NASDAQ: DRUG) today announced the development and completion of a new product which utilizes state of the art technology for the detection of drugs of abuse in urine. The new product, which is currently in production, is being marketed for pre-employment screening under the name of MACH IV. Due to its increased sensitivity, greater ease of use and reliability, MACH IV is felt to be superior to any screening product on the market today.

Drug Screening Systems' new urine assay screen allows for an easy interpretation of positive and negative specimen determinations for drugs of abuse. Only small amounts of urine (five drops) are required and no chemical reagents need be added. These tests have been shown to be easier to perform and, more importantly, simpler to interpret than the color and points obtained with the prior tests. The costs will be comparable or less than our former assays.

In May 1989 the company signed an exclusive sales and distribution agreement with BPS Guard Services, a subsidiary of Borg Warner Corporation (Wells Fargo Guard Services is a subsidiary of BPS). The company has recently shipped its new MACH IV product to over 100 Wells Fargo offices throughout the United States.

Bob Wallace also announced that Drug Screening Systems, Inc. is currently negotiating a private placement to provide additional working capital to expand its production facility to meet the anticipated demands for its new products.

STERLING, VA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Star Technologies, Inc. (NASDAQ: STRR) has announced the appointment of Frederick W. Garry to the company's board of directors. The announcement was made today by Robert C. Compton Star's chairman, president and CEO, at the company's annual shareholders' meeting.

Compton said Garry has been appointed to a one-year term, to be elected to a three-year term by shareholders at the 1991 annual shareholders meeting.

"We are very pleased that Fred has joined Star's board of directors," said Compton. "He brings extensive experience in engineering and technology, as well as a wealth of operational and financial management experience. In addition, the company will greatly benefit from his extensive product and application knowledge of the aerospace industry, a key market for all of Star's products."

"Star Technologies has a reputation as a quality manufacturer," said Garry. "I look forward to working with Star's management to build a profitable technology company focused on providing leading-edge, cost-effective solutions to users in the high-performance computing community."

Currently, Garry is a private consultant to technology companies and a director for universities and associations. In 1989, he retired from the General Electric Company, after more than 30 years with GE in various engineering and manufacturing management positions. Most recently he served nine years as GE's corporate vice president of engineering and manufacturing. In this position, Garry emphasized GE's Total Cost Productivity program and the impact of design engineering on all elements of product costs.

Prior to his executive staff position at GE, Garry spent six years at Rohr Industries, as president, chairman and CEO. At Rohr, Garry completed programs that had been part of a diversification drive, and then refocused the company back into its core business as an aerospace components manufacturer.

Garry also spent 23 of his years with GE in various aircraft jet engine engineering design and project management positions, including vice president of Technology Division at GE's Aircraft Engine Group. During this period, Garry played a significant role in a number of key aircraft engine development programs for military, commercial airline and business aircraft. In 1989, Garry was inducted into GE's Propulsion Hall of Fame in recognition for his contributions to the development of the gas turbine engine.

Garry also serves as a director for various universities and associations. He is a member of the National Academy of Engineering and represents the National Academy of Engineering and the National Academy of Sciences as the director of the Beckman Center in Irvine, Calif. He also received a Commendation from U.S. President Gerald Ford for services to minorities. Garry holds a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering and an honorary doctorate in engineering from the Rose-Hulman Institute of Technology.

AMSTERDAM, THE NETHERLANDS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Wolters Kluwer N.V. today issued the following:

Last April, ODH and Wolters Kluwer announced their intention to transfer five printing companies from Wolters Kluwer to ODH. The agreement was signed yesterday.

It concerns Salland Offset/De Lange van Leer, Wolters-Noordhoff Grafische Bedrijven, Reprohuis Wageningen, Mediaware and Publipartners. Total sales were Dfl. 85 million in 1989; the companies have over 500 employees. The companies now form part of ODH Communication Group Holding, whose shares are held by ODH Financial Markets, both Dutch- based. The letter also holds other stakes in the communication industry. ODH group sales will now be Dfl. 225 million and the number of employees is 800.

This divestment is in line with the strategy of Wolters Kluwer to concentrate on its core activities: information, education and scientific publishing, professional training and Dutch-language trade publishing.

DANBURY, CT (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Union Carbide Industrial Gases Inc. (UCIG) today reported that new cost-saving technologies for producing nitrogen and oxygen for industrial users worldwide are making dramatic inroads in the marketplace.

Contracts awarded to UCIG for nitrogen and oxygen supplied by these systems totalled 32 in the first six months of 1990 as compared to five contracts in the first half of 1989. Total gas volume for the 32 contract amounts to 300 tons per day.

The new technologies are membrane and vacuum pressure swing absorption (VPSA) air separation systems. Built on the customer's site, these systems are operated by UCIG to provide a dedicated supply of product to meet the particular quantity and purity requirements of the customer - and at a much lower cost than traditional delivered product.

UCIG's newly elected president, E.G. Hotard, reports cost savings of 20 to 50 percent as being typical for uses of nitrogen and oxygen produced by these systems.

"By producing the gases at the customer's site, we avoid the major capital outlay and distribution costs associated with supplying product from a large regional cryogenic air separation and liquefaction plant," Hotard said. "With savings of that magnitude for the customer, we expect and even greater number of contracts in the second half of 1990."

"These new technologies are not only having a positive impact on our customers' business," said Hotard, "they are also significant to us. Half of the volume for 1990 contracts represents new business for UCIG as opposed to conversion from traditional bulk liquid supply. It's becoming quite evident that these new air separation technologies will enable significant growth in the worldwide nitrogen and oxygen markets."

Hotard further noted that UCIG had doubled then redoubled its manufacturing capacity for membrane materials in the past two years, in anticipation of the growing trend toward membrane systems.

Industries benefiting from the membrane and VPSA supply technologies include heat treating, food processing, chemical processing, petrochemical refining, primary metals and pulp and paper.

Union Carbide Industrial Gases, through its Linde division, is the largest industrial gases supplier in the United States; and, with sales of $2.38 billion last year, is one of the three largest suppliers in the world.

OAKBROOK TERRACE, IL (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Telesphere Communication Inc. (AMEX: TSP), a full service long distance telephone company and a provider of enhanced telecommunications services, announced today that, for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, the company had net income of $688,000 on revenue of $62.4 million. Though lower than first quarter results, net income was substantially ahead of the $90,000 reported for the second quarter of 1989. Revenues were up 41 percent from $44.2 million reported a year ago. Net income was equal to $.03 per share on a primary basis on weighted average shares of 30,100,998, and $.03 per share on a fully diluted basis on weighted average shares of 52,562,727.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, net income of $2.0 million on revenues of $128.4 million was equal to $.09 per share on a primary basis on weighted average shares of 28,886,710; and $.06 per share on a fully diluted basis on weighted average shares of 53,035,121.

Commenting on the second quarter, Harry R. Thompson, chairman of Telesphere, said, "Our results were modest, due to less 900 growth than expected as a result of local carrier billing restrictions for certain programs, network services pricing, and the delayed migration of NTS traffic to our network. The quarter did in many ways set the stage for the balance of the year. Newly introduced programs, such as pay phone services, 800 services, enhanced 900 services, and carrier services, and the conversion of NTS terminating traffic to the Telesphere network, began to contribute additional minutes in July. Initial benefits from the conversion of NTS's originating traffic over the next 60 days, and our new utilization of NTS operators, should be reflected in the third quarter performance."

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Alcoa (NYSE: AA) CEO Paul H. O'Neill today refuted statements issued by the National Wildlife Federation (NWF) about Alcoa and said the company "resents" the Federation's attack on Alcoa's integrity.

O'Neill said that the statement today by NWF President Jay Hair is a "malicious, deliberate misrepresentation." He added that "Mr. Hair's statement says that aluminum oxide is on the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) toxic inventory list. That is not so. Mr. Hair knows it is not so. Further, Mr. Hair implies that Alcoa used what he calls 'creative accounting' to change its reports (to the EPA). That is not so. Mr. Hair knows it is not so.

"Integrity is a key value for Alcoa. Mr. Hair's statements about Alcoa are a scurrilous attack on our integrity and we resent it. It is unfortunate that Mr. Hair would choose to misrepresent the facts in order to call attention to his organization and the critical issues regarding the environment," O'Neill said.

"Those interested in the facts can call the EPA and ask them if aluminum oxide used for making aluminum is on their toxic inventory list. They will tell you no. You can draw your own conclusions about the reliability and truthfulness of Mr. Hair and his statements."

JAMESTOWN, NY (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Frank T. Costanzo, chief executive officer of Electronic Technology Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: ETEK; BSE: ETE) and Herbert Bell, chief executive officer of Advanced Printed Circuit Technology II, Inc., a privately held concern located in Tempe, Ariz., disclosed that the two companies had entered into an agreement in principle calling for the acquisition by ETEK of 100 percent of the outstanding stock of Advanced Printed Circuit II, Inc. (ACT II) for $4.5 million, of which $1.0 million is to be paid upon closing, an additional $2.0 million is to be paid prior to the close of calendar 1990 and the balance in subsequent annual installments, subject to ACT II meeting certain earnings criteria, but in no event later than October 1996. The proposed acquisition is scheduled to close on or before Aug. 30, 1990.

Costanzo commented that he was very pleased about the acquisition as it will afford ETEK new and unique capabilities to present to its clients. Costanzo said, "ACT II is a national leader in the manufacture of printed circuit boards utilizing the Tin/Nickel process. With its addition to the ETEK Group, we are now able to offer all of our current customers leading edge capabilities in the manufacture of these circuits."

Curt B. Westrom, chief financial officer of Electronic Technology Group, Inc., indicated that the anticipated initial annual sales of ACT II to be approximately $11 million. This would more than double ETEK's current annual sales which were approximately $7 million for the fiscal year ended July 31, 1990. Westrom expressed the belief, predicated upon no significant recessionary impact upon the electronics industry, that ACT II's acquisition could add as much as $.38 per share to ETEK's consolidated earnings for its next fiscal year.

Herb Bell, chief executive officer of ACT II, expressed pleasure at the sale of ACT II to an aggressive, rising company in the competitive electronic market. Dennis Opheim, president and chief operating officer of Advanced Printed Circuit Technology II, Inc. stated that he, too, was enthused by such sale and looked forward to assisting ETEK in building ACT II to a new and expanded operating level.

Edmond Lonergan, president of ETEK, commented that the addition of ACT II would bring ETEK new customers, none of which are presently being served by other ETEK companies. Lonergan said, "The location of ACT II in the Southwestern United States opens up this area to our sales efforts. In addition, ACT II's involvement in both communications and computers will synergistically assist ETEK's growth in these fields." Lonergan indicated that ETEK had no present intention of changing any personnel at ACT II's Tempe facility following its acquisition by ETEK, and that the product and sales efforts will remain the same.

CHICAGO (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - United Airlines said today its application for a new route between Washington, D.C.'s Dulles International Airport and Manchester, England is receiving strong civic support in the Washington, D.C. area.

Four major entities - the Metropolitan Washington Airports Authority, the Washington Airports Task Force, the Commonwealth of Virginia and the State of West Virginia - all have filed with the U.S. Department of Transportation (DOT) to intervene in the U.S.-U.K. Regional Airport Service Proceeding in support of United.

"We are pleased to be entering this important route proceeding with the backing of such prominent government and aviation bodies from the Washington, D.C. area," said Stephen M. Wolf, chairman and president.

"We believe we are succeeding in our efforts in Europe to blend successfully traditional European quality of service with American skills. Our initial surveys of our new European services to Frankfurt and Paris are highly encouraging. Manchester would be an important addition to our expanding European presence," Wolf said. On June 29, 1990, the United States and the United Kingdom reached agreement to open new air routes between the two countries.

United is the only U.S. carrier seeking service to the developing European hub in Manchester, England from Washington, D.C., the nation's capital, where United has rapidly developed a significant U.S. hub. United proposes daily flights using Boeing 767 aircraft configured for three-class service.

The agreement provides for two new routes to airports in the United Kingdom other than London for U.S. carriers in exchange for an additional United Kingdom carrier on the Boston-London route and two other routes from regional U.K. airports to the U.S.

All carriers will submit their written exhibits to the administrative law judge by Aug. 29. An oral hearing is scheduled for October. The law judge is expected to announce his recommendations by Dec. 14 as to which two U.S. carriers and cities should receive authority to serve Manchester.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Nycal Corporation (NASDAQ-NMS: NYCL) today announced it has signed a letter of intent with Airship Industries Limited ("Airship") with a view to arrangements being made which could lead to Nycal acquiring more than 50 percent of Airship's share capital. Airship is the world's largest designer, manufacturer and distributor of airships.

The proposals contemplate a rights issue of preferred convertible redeemable shares to raise $7.13 million which issue would be underwritten by interests associated with Nycal. Contemporaneously, there would be a further rights issue of ordinary shares for the purpose of repaying Airship's indebtedness to Bond Corporation Holdings Limited ("Bond") and its subsidiaries, amounting to approximately $66.5 million. It is anticipated that subsidiaries of Bond, which currently hold approximately 47 percent of the issued share capital of Airship, will be diluted as a result of the above to approximately 40 percent.

In addition, the proposals would entail Nycal making a secured loan to Airship of $4.28 million for working capital purposes.

The proposals will require clearance by the Panel on Take-Overs and Mergers in the United Kingdom. That clearance will entail, inter alia, full information being provided to shareholders, an independent shareholder vote and a recommendation from independent financial advisors to Airship. In view of the above, Airship has requested the Australian Stock Exchange suspend the listing of its shares pending a further announcement.

Nycal Corporation is a U.S. holding company with mining and energy resources, insurance and industrial interests.

ATLANTA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - AmeriHealth Inc. (AMEX: AHH), the Richmond-based hospital management company, today reported net income of $75,000 on operating revenues of $16,229,000 for the second quarter ended June 30 compared to a net income of $276,000 on operating revenues of $15,603,000 for the comparable quarter in 1989.

On a per-share basis, after deducting the accrual of dividend and accretion requirements for holders of the company's Series B Preferred Stock, the company reported a net loss of $.05 per common share for the second quarter of 1990 compared to a net income of $.01 per common share for the first quarter of 1989.

For the first six months of 1990, the company reported net income of $192,000 on operating revenues of $31,368,000 compared to a net loss of $628,000 on operating revenues of $30,233,000 for the comparable period in 1989.

On a per-share basis, after deducting the accrual of dividend and accretion requirements for holders of the company's Series B Preferred Stock, the company reported a net loss of $.08 per common share for the first six months of 1990 compared to a net loss of $.29 per common share for the first six months of 1989.

Operating results for the second quarter and for the first six months of 1990 and 1989 include a benefit from the reduction of income taxes arising from the carryforward of operating losses of $.01 and $.02 per common share respectively in 1990, and $.03 and $.03 per common share respectively in 1989, reported as extraordinary items.

Operating results for the first six months of 1989 also include a charge against earnings of $.24 per common share, relating to the cumulative effect on years prior to 1989 of a change in accounting for physician recruitment expenditures.

William G. White, president and CEO of AmeriHealth, commenting on the second quarter financial results, said: "While we continue to be pleased with the company's continued profitability from operations and increased revenues in the second quarter of 1990, our operating results continue to be at levels less than expected. Stronger initiatives will be exerted to improve operations further in the third and fourth quarters."

Founded in 1983, AmeriHealth Inc. now owns and/or manages six hospitals and other health care facilities in Alabama, Georgia, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.

FISH CAMP, CA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The new Marriott's Tenaya Lodge at Yosemite, which opened in June, is fully operational despite the fires in Yosemite National Park, according to an announcement by David Souther, general manager of the 242-room luxury resort.

In addition to the status of the hotel, Souther reports that two of Yosemite's most popular visitor draws, the Yosemite Sugar Pine Railroad and Bass Lake, are both "normal and operating on schedule" and that the resort's primary access, Highway 41, is "completely open all the way from Fresno."

"The U.S. Park Service had indicated that Highway 41 will be opened all the way to the (Yosemite) Valley floor on Friday (Aug. 17)," added Souther.

Throughout the summer and fall, the Railroad, just a mile from the property, operates the Logger Steam Train which takes visitors on a scenic four-mile ride on a restored section of track used from 1899 until 1931 by one of Central California's most noted logging operations. The train passes such colorful points of interest as Horse Shoe Curve, Honey Hill Junction and Lewis Creek Canyon. The Railroad station also features the Thornberry Mountain museum, housed in an 1856 log cabin, and a gift shop.

Bass Lake, which is 14 miles south of the property, offers watersports and boat rentals; nearby is golf and hiking. Horseback riding through the Sierra National Forest is offered at the Yosemite Pack Station, only a mile from Marriott's Tenaya Lodge.

In its entirety, Marriott's Tenaya Lodge features 242 deluxe accommodations, an outdoor pool and an indoor lap pool, whirlpools, an aerobic center and fitness salon, massage and separate men's and women's sauna and steam rooms. The property also offers fine dining and entertainment and a design and decor scheme that includes handcrafted furniture, slate floors, exposed thick wood beams and a three-story atrium lobby and fireplace.

For further information on availability, rates and packages, contact Marriott's Tenaya Lodge at Yosemite; 1122 Highway 41; Fish Camp, CA 93623; direct 800-635-5807 or toll-free in the United States and Canada through Marriott's Worldwide Reservations, 800-228-9290.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - GSE, who developed the Video Addressing System and RAPID time-code now a VHS standard, is on course to becoming market leader in consumer video post-production equipment. GSE is introducing its revolutionary compact video editor at Photokina, Europe's largest audio/video technology fair, Cologne, Oct. 3-9.

The MPE 100S is a stand-alone, desktop, post-production console. It combines a digital video editor (the first multi-compatible consumer editor featuring both the VITC SMPTE Time Code and GSE's own "RAPID" Time Code which allows overwriting of tapes and coding of prerecorded tapes), with computerized edit listing capabilities, a titler and a video soundtrack mixer.

The unit is compatible with VHS, 8 mm, Super VHS and Hi8, and adapts to virtually all consumer VCR's and camcorders. Previously this number of features was not available in a single compact unit.

The hardware includes two CPU's and a brand-new, highly advanced digital video chip developed in Europe. An exchangeable "smart-card" contains the software, allowing future upgrades and features without the purchase of new hardware.

The same smart-card also provides the menu-driven, inter-active self-teaching system. The MPE 100S uses a normal TV screen and, for titles and text, a computer key board, and has a RS232 computer interface.

The MPE-100S is extremely user-friendly, allows exact to plus/minus one frame editing, superimposing of text, and memorizes particular color demands from scene to scene.

The editor automatically balances sound levels for background music, dubbing or commentary through a programmable 3 channel stereo audio mixer. A video movie of near-professional quality can now be produced by camcorder users.

GSE's European OEM partners, Blaupunkt, Bosch-Bauer and Grundig, have placed orders for fall delivery which will absorb GSE's first production run.

WHITE PLAINS, N.Y. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Charles A. Phillips, who worked a decade for the Maxwell House Coffee Company before leading General Foods businesses on four continents, is returning to Maxwell House as its president.

"Maxwell House is on the move, and the movement will continue with Chuck Phillips," said Richard P. Mayer, president of General Foods USA, in announcing the appointment, Phillips was named to succeed Raymond G. Viault, who was named chief executive officer of Jacobs Suchard.

"We are fortunate to be able to call upon Chuck Phillips for this assignment," Mayer said. "He has the talents, experience and commitment to provide the strong leadership needed for Maxwell House to build upon its recent successes."

Introducing innovative products and improving existing ones, Maxwell House was the only major coffee company to increase its market share last year. "More new products are in the offing and the emphasis on quality will continue strong," Phillips said.

Phillips, 45, joined General Foods in 1969 as a senior cost analyst for the Post division in Kankakee, Ill., and the following year moved here where he advanced through financial and marketing positions in Post and Pet Foods and became a senior product manager in Maxwell House in 1974. Over the next decade, he served in several marketing and planning positions in Maxwell House and became marketing and development manager in 1983.

In 1984, he joined General Foods International, moving first to Brussels as strategic planning director for GF Europe, then to Spain in 1986 as general manager of Saimaza, General Foods' coffee company in Spain, and back here in 1989 as president for Latin America and Eastern Europe, Middle East and Africa.

Phillips is a native of Dallas and holds B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from Texas Tech University.

DETROIT (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Detroit Edison (NYSE: DTE) today announced record July industrial electricity sales of 1.6 billion kilowatthours (kWh), up 0.4 percent compared with the same period in 1989.

The increase was due, in part, to a 2-percent increase in sales to steel customers, the first monthly year-to-year increase in steel sales since January 1989.

July residential sales of 1 billion kWh were down 5.4 percent from a year ago, largely the result of cooler weather and a decrease in air-conditioning use.

Commercial sales of 776 million kWh last month were down 0.5 percent from a year ago, also reflecting the cooler summer weather. The drop ended a 10-month string of consecutive monthly commercial sales records.

Despite industrial sales gains, total sales for July were 3.6 billion kWh, down 2.1 percent from a year ago as a result of lower sales to commercial and residential customers.

The Persian Gulf crisis is not expected to impact Detroit Edison sales over the next several months, according to Saad Zara, Detroit Edison corporate economist.

"We may begin to see a shift in consumer sentiment toward lower spending, but typically there is a lapse of several months before it actually impacts electricity production and sales," Zara said.

He added that a quick settlement in the Middle East would result in minimal impact to Detroit Edison sales.

DETROIT (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Federal Screw Works (OTC: FSCR) reported net earnings for the year ended June 30, 1990, of $2,187,000, or $1.85 per share, on sales of $64,387,000. For the year ended June 30, 1989, the company reported net earnings of $3,502,000, or $2.90 per share, on sales of $73,147,000.

Net earnings for the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1990, were $868,000, or $0.74 per share, on sales of $18,790,000. In the fourth quarter ended June 30, 1989, the company reported net earnings of $1,232,000, or $1.02 per share, on sales of $18,166,000.

Sales for the fiscal year, while off 12 percent from last year's record sales, were still the second highest in the company's history. The company experienced very severe reductions in demand from its principal automotive customers in the four months from November 1989 to February 1990, as inventories of unsold cars were reduced. Sales in the final quarter were quite strong.

KING OF PRUSSIA, PA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The SFT U.S. Government Series was once again ranked number one in Monday's Wall Street Journal by Lipper Analytical Services.

This marks the third time the series, which has placed in the top ten all year, delivered the best return in the nation. The current annual rate of return is 10.80 percent.

For those who may not remember, the prospectus states that at least 65 percent of a government series will be backed by government securities. In reality, the SFT U.S. Government Series is 96 percent government-backed.

SFT Inc. (OTC) invests the bulk of its U.S. Government Series in Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) certificates. GNMA certificates, backed by the U.S. government, guarantee interest and principal payments to the bond holder.

According to SFT Vice President Andy Groshans, SFT Inc.'s U.S. Government Series, which has quadrupled its assets to well over $34 million in the past year, will continue to produce high returns.

"Given current economic conditions, we feel this fund will hold the same performance results for the rest of the year," said Groshans.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - In a move intended to stimulate the traditionally weak fall travel period, Pan American World Airways today announced reductions of up to 35 percent on its fares to the Caribbean.

Pan Am's "Caribbean Fall Sale" applies to travel from New York, Los Angeles, Miami and Washington to eighteen destinations in the Caribbean, including Barbados, St. Maarten, Montego Bay and the U.S. Virgin Islands. In addition, Pan Am will offer the special fare to Aruba and Curacao when it commences service to those islands on Oct. 28.

Included in the offer is a one-way fare of $89, based on a round- trip purchase, between New York and Bermuda, Nassau, San Juan or Freeport.

The fares apply for Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday travel between Sept. 5 and Dec. 16, 1990. Slightly higher fares are available for weekend travel. All tickets must be purchased by Aug. 29 and all travel must be completed by Dec. 16, 1990. Tickets are non-refundable and holiday blackouts apply.

The Caribbean fare reductions follow similar reductions in Pan Am's domestic markets announced earlier this week.

MINNEAPOLIS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Norstan, Inc. (NASDAQ: NRRD) today announced the results of its first quarter ended July 28, 1990.

Net income increased 28.5 percent to $555,000 or $.16 per share for the three months ended July 28, 1990, as compared to $432,000 or $.14 per share for the similar period last year. Operating income increased 18.3 percent to $1,200,000 for the quarter as compared to $1,014,000 last year. Revenues for the quarter increased 8.4 percent to $28,566,000 compared to $26,349,000 last year.

The improvements in net income and operating income in the first quarter of 1991 as compared to last year result primarily from increased sales volume and operating results from the company's Central Region. As previously announced, the company has also recently entered into two new business partnerships. These relationships are with ROLM for the refurbishment and sale of secondary market equipment and with US Sprint for the sale of long-distance services.

Sales of US Sprint long-distance services began May 1, 1990. The number of customers contracting for long-distance services is in line with the company's expectations. The Norstan/ROLM alliance became effective July 1 and the company is satisfied with its preliminary efforts. Both of these business partnerships have been well received in the marketplace and Norstan anticipates even greater returns as their customers become more aware of these products and services.

Due to the provision for loss recorded in the fourth quarter of 1990 related to Norstan's investment in New Summit, Inc. (NSI), no dividend and interest income related to this investment was recorded in the first quarter of this fiscal year. Net income for the first quarter of last year included $67,000, or $.02 per share, of dividend and interest income from the company's investment in NSI. Management of the company is continuing its efforts to maximize the ultimate recovery of its investment in NSI.

Norstan, Inc., based in Maple Grove, Minn., is a multi-product communications services company that sells, installs, services and supports business telephone systems. The company has 1,200 employees in 21 cities throughout the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Iowa, Ohio, Kentucky, Arizona and New Mexico.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Regal International Inc. (NYSE: RGL) today announced the successful restructuring of substantially all of its debt as part of an extensive refinancing program. The refinancing commenced in February 1990 with the infusion of $0.5 million in working capital by Zurich Corp., followed by Zurich's buyout of the company's defaulted primary bank debt of approximately $2.15 million for $1.85 million in July 1990. Subsequently, Zurich exercised an option to purchase 12 million shares of Regal common stock by converting approximately $2 million in debt into equity and the payment of approximately $1 million in cash.

Under a settlement reached today between certain directors and noteholders and the company, all debt held by the above parties, in the approximate principal amount of $4,304,000 will be paid in full over a one year term. This obligation will take the form of new Regal notes collateralized by a second lien on Regal's principal assets. Accrued and unpaid interest of approximately $993,000 will be waived. Regal will issue warrants to purchase 1,435,000 shares of its comon stock exercisable over a one year period at an exercise price of 1 cent per share. The warrant holders have the right to require Regal to repurchase, and Regal has the right to reacquire the warrants at a price approximately equal to one-half the interest that has been forgiven.

The company's board unanimously voted for the settlement and to end all litigation between the company and directors, Beinhocker, Plunkett and Watts and their affiliates. An involuntary bankruptcy petition filed July 1990, will be dismissed by the petitioning creditors. This litigation is fully discussed in Regal's proxy statement dated Aug. 2, 1990. The settling directors, their affiliates and assignees, have agreed not to enter, participate in, or initiate a hostile proxy contest for a period of five years.

Ruben Aragon, Regal's chairman, said this was a very favorable development as it ends the internal disputes that have affected the company for some time and allows management to fully devote its energies towards operations in an economic environment that is very positive for the company's products. Aragon said that the company's operations have significantly turned around and for the first time in eight years the company has produced two consecutive profitable quarters with continued profitability expected. In addition, said Aragon, the Environmental Protection Agency litigation settlement and the proposed restructuring make it possible for Regal to have a new beginning. Aragon said that Zurich has agreed to assist Regal in financing the restructured debt.

MANHASSET, N.Y. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Oncogene Science, Inc. (NASDAQ: ONCS), today announced revenues of $1,414,844 for the third quarter ending June 30, 1990, an increase of 14 percent from the $1,246,413 reported for the third quarter last year. The company had a net loss of $608,251, or $(.07) per share, compared to a net loss of $666,447, or $(.07) per share, for the same period last year. For the nine months ended June 30, 1990, the company had a net loss of $1,744,186 on operating revenues of $3,933,901 compared to a net loss of $1,751,731 on operating revenues of $3,521,088 for the same period a year ago.

Commenting on the third quarter results, Gary E. Frashier, president and chief executive officer, said "The increase in revenue is primarily a result of increased sales of our research products. These product sales were approximately $429,000, for the quarter representing an increase of 91 percent over the same quarter of the previous year. The quarter's results reflect the company's continuing investment in the development and marketing of our research product line and, to a lesser extent, in the further development of the company's proprietary Transforming Growth Factor Beta-3 (TGF Beta-3) programs and its GEMS(SM) therapeutic drug discovery technology.

Oncogene Science, Inc., using proprietary oncogene-related and growth factor technologies, is in the business of developing biopharmaceutical products for the research, diagnosis and treatment of cancer and other cell control-linked diseases.

DENVER (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Continental Airlines, the Colorado Tourism Board and Colorado Ski Country USA today announced a joint marketing effort designed to significantly boost Colorado ski visits this season.

Among the programs that will be used to attract more skiers are specially priced vacation packages, an early-season "learn to ski" program, off-peak pricing for cost-conscious skiers and additional flights to Colorado resorts by Continental Express.

Continental also will promote Colorado ski areas in "Snoshow" presentations in 19 cities this fall, and will offer a special "winter stop-over" program for business travelers flying through Denver.

Announcement of the joint marketing program was made by John Nelson, Continental's executive vice president of marketing; Dan Goodyear, a member of the state tourism board, and Janie McCullough, marketing director for Ski Country.

"Colorado is blessed with the world's best champagne powder," Nelson said. "As a team, we intend to back up that fantastic resource with the most competitive air travel, lodging and ski-lift packages in the world -- making Colorado's 1990-91 ski season a sure winner."

Continental, the tourism board and Ski Country held a series of discussions over the spring and summer in which resorts, ski corporations and the airline agreed to significantly reduce prices in order to assemble the most attractive ski-vacation packages in the industry.

The state tourism board has designated Continental as "the Official Airline of Colorado" in recognition of its efforts to promote Colorado tourism.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Pfizer Inc (NYSE: PFE) learned today that the Missouri Court of Appeals has affirmed the summary dismissal of a case involving a Bjork-Shiley heart valve that has been functioning without incident. The Missouri appellate court joins the U.S. Courts of Appeals for the Third, Fourth, and Eighth Circuits, which have previously affirmed summary dismissals of such cases.

The Missouri court of appeals held that the plaintiff "is unable to allege and maintain a claim for relief for strict liability failure to warn, because his prosthetic heart valves have not failed or malfunctioned." The court also ruled that "product malfunction or failure is an essential element of a claim for negligent failure to warn."

Steven C. Kany, Pfizer senior assistant general counsel, said, "Pfizer is encouraged by the significant number of favorable court rulings in cases where the plaintiffs have a functioning Shiley valve and claim only that they are concerned about a possible failure at some unknown future time. To date, 38 such cases have been dismissed. Of these, 22 were summarily dismissed by court order upon motion by Shiley, with four affirmed on appeal. The remaining 26 cases were dismissed voluntarily by the plaintiffs."

Kany noted that "there are pending in Missouri six cases involving 17 plaintiffs with functioning valves. The decision of the Missouri Court of Appeals, and that of the Eighth Circuit in a federal case brought in Missouri, establish precedent which we believe will result in the dismissal of the remaining cases in Missouri."

Kany said, "Pfizer will continue to defend vigorously all cases involving functioning valves."

DALLAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Dresser Industries Inc. (NYSE: DI) announced today that its Board of Directors has declared a dividend distribution of one new preferred stock purchase right on each outstanding share of its common stock. At the same time, the Board has authorized the redemption of the old preferred stock purchase rights which were issued April 29, 1986. The redemption price of $0.025 per old right (which redemption price reflects an adjustment for the 2-for-1 split authorized by the Board on Aug. 16, 1990) will be paid to stockholders of record on Oct. 3, 1990. The new rights dividend distribution will be made to stockholders of record on Oct. 3, 1990, and the rights will expire 10 years later unless redeemed at an earlier date.

John J. Murphy, Dresser chairman and president, said that the Board has concluded that there is a continuing need for the protection which a rights plan affords stockholders, and that the new rights plan provides greater flexibility to the Board in protecting the interests of stockholders.

Murphy noted that the market price for the company's common stock has, at times, approached the $60 exercise price of the old rights. Accordingly, the Board of Directors has authorized the new rights with an exercise price of $90.00 per right, which, after taking into account the 2-for-1 split, represents a more appropriate relationship to the long-term value of the company's common stock.

The Board may redeem the new rights for 1 cent per right prior to the tenth day after 15 percent or more of the company's voting stock has been acquired by a person or group. Such period may be extended by the Board.

The new rights will generally not be exercisable until 10 days after a person or group acquires 15 percent or more of Dresser common stock or 10 days after a person or group commences or announces an intent to commence a tender or exchange offer which, if successful, would result in the offeror owning 30 percent or more of the stock. These periods may be extended by the Board. Once exercisable, each new right would entitle its holder to buy 1/100th of a share of Dresser Series A Junior Preferred Stock at an exercise price of $90.00.

If Dresser were acquired in a merger or other business combination transaction not approved by the Corporation's Continuing Directors, each new right then exercisable would entitle its holder to buy that number of shares of the surviving company's common stock which has a market value equal to twice the new right's exercise price. In addition, if a person or group were to acquire 15 percent or more of Dresser's common stock (unless pursuant to a transaction approved by the Continuing Directors), each new right would entitle all rightsholders, other than the 15 percent stockholder, to purchase that number of preferred shares having a market value equal to twice the new rights' exercise price.

Details of the new Rights Plan will be outlined in a letter to be mailed to stockholders.

Headquartered in Dallas, Dresser is a major supplier of highly engineered products and services primarily utilized in energy-related activities throughout the world.

SEATTLE (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Scientists at the Boeing Defense & Space Group have received an $864,000 contract from NASA to further study gardening in space, the company announced today. The company's Aerospace & Electronics Division will design an experiment to fly aboard a space shuttle by 1993 that should lead to a better understanding of how plants can be grown in space -- either aboard spacecraft or at a lunar or Mars colony. The experiment design work will be done at the Boeing Space Center in Kent, Wash.

"Growing plants in space is difficult because there is no gravity to influence plant growth and control water flow," according to Mel Oleson, one of the scientists who will be working on the project. "Water must be contained in a space environment or it will form into globules and float away," he said.

"One means of controlling water may be through use of permeable or semi-permeable membranes as a rooting substrate."

The theory is that nutrient-laden water can be pumped through the membranes, keeping the water contained, while plant roots located on the membrane surface draw off the solution that they need for growth, according to Oleson. As part of the experiment, photographs and samples will be taken of the nutrient-flow process in space to see if the "weightless" fluids and membranes behave in space the way that Earth-based experiments predict they will.

Oleson and others at the Boeing Space Center have been studying the use of hydroponics, the growing of plants in a nutrient solution without the use of soil, as part of Boeing's preparation for manned exploration of our solar system.

Plants would be essential aboard long-duration space flights --- to Mars for instance --- as a means of replenishing a spacecraft's oxygen supply, to consume unwanted carbon dioxide, to purify water, and to provide a renewable food source for astronauts.

DALLAS, (AUG. 15) PR NEWSWIRE - Toreador Royalty (NASDAQ: TRGL) reported a loss of $33,404 for the second quarter of 1990 equal to $0.007 per share in comparison with a loss of $91,558 or $0.021 per share for the second quarter of 1989.

Second quarter revenues were $242,950 in 1990, a 23.3 percent gain as compared with $197,214 in 1989. The majority of the increase was represented by the sale of 20,000 units of the company's holding in the Permian Basin Royalty Trust for a net gain of $92,072, partially offset by reduced distributions from Grantor Trusts and lower gas volumes and prices.

Cost and expenses were $276,354 in 1990, down from $330,532 in 1989, due primarily to lower general and administrative expenses, which were $236,001 in 1990 vs. $290,979 in 1989. The decline in general and administrative expenses in 1990 was due primarily to the absence of a severance payment totaling $87,500 made to a company officer in 1989.

Cash flow from operations was a negative $4,635 for the second quarter of 1990 vs. a negative cash flow of $63,179 for the same period of 1989. However, excluding the one time $87,500 employment contract payment, cash flow for the second quarter of 1989 would have been positive.

Toreador owns in excess of 500,000 net mineral acres located primarily in the Texas Panhandle and Northwest Texas. In addition, the company owns working and royalty interests in Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana.

DALLAS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Dresser Industries Inc. (NYSE: DI) today reported higher sales and earnings for the third quarter and nine months ended July 31 than it had a year earlier, declared a regular quarterly dividend, and announced a two-for-one split of the company's common stock.

The Board of Directors declared a quarterly dividend of 27.5 cents per share payable Sept. 20, 1990 to shareholders of record Sept. 4, 1990. The Board also approved a two-for-one split in the form of a distribution of one additional share of common stock for each share outstanding to shareholders of record, also as of Sept. 4, 1990. The 27.5 cent dividend is to be paid to shareholders on a pre-split basis. It is anticipated that quarterly dividends paid subsequently to the effective date of the split will be at a rate of $0.15 per share.

For the third quarter of fiscal 1990, Dresser had net earnings of $47.5 million or 70 cents per share, up from $42.4 million or 62 cents per share a year earlier primarily as a result of stronger market conditions for oilfield products and services. For the nine months ended July 31, net earnings were $110.5 million or $1.63 per share and compared to $102.1 million or $1.51 per share during the corresponding period of fiscal 1989.

Sales revenues of $1.18 billion for the third quarter and $3.11 billion for the nine months compared to $1 billion and $2.87 billion, respectively a year earlier.

At July 31, the company's backlog of unfilled orders had increased 20 percent to $3.21 billion from $2.68 billion at the same 1989 date. Downstream equipment and engineering services account for $2.96 billion, which compared to $2.46 billion a year earlier.

BOULDER, CO. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Hauser Chemical Research Inc.

(NASDAQ: HAUS) today announced results for fiscal 1990. Revenues for the fiscal year ended April 30, 1990, were up $860,000, or 39.6 percent, to a new high of $3,031,326 compared to $2,171,636 in the prior fiscal year. It was the fourth straight year of increases in revenues in excess of 35 percent for Hauser Chemical Research.

The company experienced its greatest growth during the fourth quarter when revenues reached $1,107,691 compared to $1,923,635 for the first three quarters of fiscal 1990. The strong increase in the fourth quarter was due to $430,738 in revenues from the newly acquired (Jan. 1, 1990) Hauser Laboratories and to new business with Bristol-Myers Squibb and Cambridge BioScience.

Hauser ended the year, however, with a net loss of $127,504 or 4 cents per share compared to a net profit of $80,215 or 3 cents per share in fiscal 1989. The net loss at year end was due to the recognition of losses sustained in natural product processing as a result of contaminated process chemicals received from a supplier. The company has filed a claim against the supplier for $188,000 in out-of-pocket costs and lost revenues. Because the claim was unresolved at year end, Hauser was required to recognize the costs of the contamination. Had full recovery of this claim been received by Hauser, the company would have shown a net profit for the fiscal year.

"Efforts during the year were directed at bringing on line Hauser's new vanilla extract and products for Bristol-Myers Squibb and Cambridge BioScience," said Dr. Dean Stull, chairman and CEO of Hauser Chemical Research, "We began to see those efforts pay off in the fourth quarter, and we expect the first quarter of fiscal 1991 to reflect a continuation of the strong fourth quarter results." Dr. Stull also pointed out that when an agreement is reached on the claim against the supplier, cost reimbursements will be booked to fiscal 1991. "During the year we have built solid relationships with top quality companies, such as Bristol-Myers and Fries & Fries, that represent a variety of product areas. With these relationships in place, 1991 looks very bright for the company," Stull said.

Hauser Chemical Research is a chemical and engineering technology company encompassing chemical research and chemical analysis, engineering services petroleum testing, and isolation and purification of high-value products and chemicals from natural sources. It is one of only a few companies nationwide applying chemical process technologies to the broader field of biotechnology with a special emphasis on natural products. Hauser Chemical Research has developed proprietary chemical technologies that enable it to isolate and purify extracts and natural compounds at a high-quality level and a lower cost than competing technologies. The company processes materials for clients producing pharmaceuticals, cosmetics, nutrients, and other high-value products. Its service and research activities encompass the general field of organic and inorganic chemistry with special expertise in process and product development, synthesis, surface modification, chemcial analysis, environmental analysis industrial problem solving, product formulation, material testing, engineering services, and forensic investigations.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Regal International Inc. (NYSE: RGL) today reported an operating profit of $212,000 and a net income of $9,000 for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990. This is the first time that the company has reported two consecutive profitable quarters in over seven years. For the first six months of 1990, the net income of $375,000 is 2.6 cents per share on 14,524,000 shares outstanding. This compares with a net loss of $671,000 for the same quarter last year and a loss of $1,242,000 for the first six months of last year. Ruben Aragon, Regal's chairman, stated that the $1.5 million turnaround in earnings for the first six months is attributable to increased sales of the company's core products, better pricing, reduction in administrative costs, decreased selling expenses, and management's cost containment efforts.

Revenues from continuing operations for the second quarter of 1990 of $2,438,000 were $181,000 higher that the same period of 1989. Increased revenues in oilfield and marine products were recorded as well as continued improvement in highway products revenues.

The company expects continued improvement and management thinks that the recent price increases caused by the Middle East situation will positively affect the company for the remainder of the year. Additionally, this week the company will be closing its settlement of all litigation with the Environmental Protection Agency which had adversely effected the company's financing prospects. This settlement, which will be primarily funded by the company's insurance companies, completely releases the company from all actual and contingent liabilities related to this EPA litigation.

ROCKWOOD, PA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Rockwood Holding Co. today reported results for the three-month and six-months periods ended June 30, 1990.

As reported in its Form 10-Q filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission for the six months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported a consolidated net loss of $1,422,000, or $0.36 per share, vs. a net loss of $7,202,000, or $1.79 per share, for the corresponding period last year. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the company reported a consolidated net loss of $1,074,000, or $0.27 per share, compared with a net loss of $4,787,000, or $1.18 per share, for the second quarter of 1989.

As previously announced, Rockwood Holding Co. and Constance Foster, insurance commissioner of Pennsylvania, jointly submitted to the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania a Petition and Plan for the Rehabilitation of Rockwood Insurance Co. (RIC), on July 20, 1990. In response to the Petition for Rehabilitation, RIC was ordered into Rehabilitation by the Commonwealth Court of Pennsylvania on July 27, 1990. As a result of the Order of Rehabilitation, the company has recorded losses from RIC under "discontinued insurance operations in rehabilitation" in its consolidated financial statements.

The company recognized in the first six months of 1990 a loss from discontinued insurance operations in rehabilitation of $1,398,000 or $0.35 per share, vs. a loss of $7,174,000, or $1.78 per share, for the corresponding period last year. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the company recognized a loss from discontinued insurance operations in rehabilitation of $1,086,000, or $0.27 per share, compared with a loss of $4,717,000, or $1.16 per share, from discountinued insurance operations in rehabilitation for the second quarter of 1989.

The company recognized a loss from continuing operations of $24,000, or $0.01 per share, for the first half of 1990, vs. a loss from continuing operations of $246,000, or $0.06 per share, for the corresponding period last year. For the three months ended June 30, 1990, the company recognized income from continuing operations of $12,000, or $0.00 per share, compared with a loss of $72,000, or $0.02 per share, from continuing operations for the second quarter of 1989.

Revenues from continuing operations for the first six months of 1990 were $99,000 compared to revenues from continuing operations of $101,000 for the first half of 1989. Revenues from continuing operations for the three months ended June 30, 1990, were $61,000 vs. revenues from continuing operations of $46,000 for the second quarter of 1989.

Rockwood Insurance Company of Indiana (RIND), a wholly owned subsidiary of RIC, is not affected by the Order of Rehabilitation. RIND will continue to transact business under the direction of its current management.

RIND recently reported in statutory financial statements filed with the Indiana and Pennsylvania Insurance Departments for the six months ended June 30, 1990, statutory net income before federal income taxes of $2,120,810, vs. statutory net income before federal income taxes of $1,477,014 for the corresponding period last year.

RIND is a party to a tax sharing agreement with RIC and Rockwood Holding Co., effective Jan. 1, 1990, under which members of the group will reimburse RIC for federal income tax net operating loss carryforwards used by each company, and previously generated by RIC. RIND has recorded a federal tax expense of $721,075 in its statutory financial statements for the period ended June 30, 1990, which is payable to RIC under the tax sharing agreement. There was no federal income tax expense recorded by RIND for the corresponding period of 1989.

RIND's statutory net income after taxes for the six months ended June 30, 1990, was $1,399,735, vs. statutory net income after taxes of $1,477,014 for the corresponding period last year.

RIND's statutory surplus as regards policyholders was $11,911,297, at June 30, 1990, compared to $10,594,829 at Dec. 31, 1989.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - II-VI Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: IIVI) today reported earnings for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

Net earnings for the period were $1,004,000 ($0.38 per share) on revenues of $15,057,000. These results compare with net earnings of $1,670,000 ($0.63 per share) on revenues of $13,894,000 in fiscal 1989. Bookings for the current year increased 5 percent to $15,035,000 vs. $14,330,000 a year ago.

A number of factors affected results for the current fiscal period. While II-VI experienced lower orders and shipments to the military and domestic commercial markets compared to the previous year, especially in the second half of the fiscal year, increased sales to international, industrial laser original equipment manufacturers (OEMs) resulted in a net increase in revenues for the fiscal year. Lower sales of high margin infrared materials to the military market, however, contributed to lower gross margins. In addition, the withdrawal of a major competitor in the infrared materials market has softened the price of zinc selenide while its remaining inventories are being depleted. Finally, although the Singapore facility operated above breakeven in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, the start-up of that operation reduced full year earnings by approximately $0.12 per share.

For the three months ended June 30, 1990, II-VI reported net earnings of $150,000 ($0.06 per share) on revenues of $3,656,000. This compares with net earnings of $388,000 ($0.15 per share) on revenues of $3,599,000 for the same quarter last year. Bookings in the current quarter decreased 3 percent to $3,327,000 vs. $3,412,000 in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

Revenues in the current quarter as compared to last year's fourth quarter continued to reflect lower domestic shipments with declines coming primarily from the military and medical laser OEM markets. Lower gross margins in the infrared materials area, increased corporate overhead and lower net interest income were the primary contributors to lower earnings for the quarter compared to the same period last year.

Headquartered in Saxonburg, Pa., II-VI Inc. designs, manufactures and markets optical and electro-optical components and materials for precision use in infrared devices. The company's products are used in high-power lasers for industrial processing, lasers for surgery and other medical applications and military sensing systems.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Seals and Crofts, whose tight harmonies and airy melodies produced a series of Top 40 hits in the 1970s, will reunite in New York on Wednesday, Aug. 22, to help celebrate the presentation of the 1990 Albert Schweitzer Humanitarian Award.

The musical duo is currently working on a new album. Several new songs will be presented when Prince Alfred of Liechtenstein, a descendent of the Hapsburg royal family and founder of the Vienna Academy for the Study of the Future, receives the 1990 Schweitzer Award at St. Bartholomew's Church.

The award, which has been presented in recent years to such figures as His Holiness The Dalai Lama, South African Archbishop Desmond Tutu and Costa Rican President Oscar Arias Sanchez, will honor Prince Alfred's work in founding the Vienna Academy, a private, postgraduate institute that uses an interdisciplinary environment to develop innovative approaches to international problems.

Given by the Human Behavior Foundation, the award presentation will lead off a two-day international conference on Dr. Albert Schweitzer at the United Nations, scheduled for Aug. 23 and 24.

"Prince Alfred, because of the creativity and energy with which he is approaching the problems of our rapidly changing world, represents a new model for humanitarian action," said Dr. Albert Crum, chairman of the Human Behavior Foundation, which supports organizations that work towards human betterment and understanding.

Jimmy Seals and Dash Crofts, who are known as Seals and Crofts, are perhaps best known for their hit songs "Summer Breeze" and "Diamond Girl."

The ceremony begins at 7 p.m., and attendance is free. St. Bartholomew's Church is located at 109 East 50th Street.

DEERFIELD BEACH, FLA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - CheckRobot Inc. (NASDAQ: CKRB) announced today that it has entered into a credit facility for $2.5 million which will be funded through OmniCorp Holdings, Inc., a New York-based investment and financial services group and a subsidiary of CheckRobot's largest stockholder OmniCorp International BV.

The credit facility matures in May 1992. Repayment to OmniCorp is secured by the assets and properties of CheckRobot including the company's holdings in Advanced Promotional Technologies, Inc. In consideration for extending the loan, OmniCorp received five-year warrants to purchase 1,000,000 shares of common stock at an exercise price of $2.50 per share and five-year warrants to purchase 2,500,000 shares of common stock at an exercise price of $1.00 per share. CheckRobot is also exploring additional financing possibilities.

As a result of the funding, OmniCorp beneficially owns 55 percent of the common stock of CheckRobot. CheckRobot has elected four additional directors designated by OmniCorp giving OmniCorp majority representation on its board with six out of a total of eleven members.

CheckRobot, a leading developer and marketer of automated checkout machines (ACMs)(R) for supermarkets and other retail outlets, plans to use the loan proceeds for production and increased rollout of its systems.

Using enhanced laser bar-code scanners and a proprietary merchandise security system, the ACM improves customer service and profitability for the supermarket industry by allowing shoppers to quickly scan and check out merchandise before paying centrally located cashiers.

OmniCorp is a subsidiary of Omni Holding AG, a Swiss listed investment and financial services group headed by Swiss investor Werner K. Rey. Omni's investment portfolio includes such diverse companies as the Switzerland-based Adia S.A, and in the U.S., Norment Industries, a manufacturer of high technology systems, Com Systems Inc., a regional long distance carrier, and American Health Services Corp., a developer of medical diagnostic imaging centers.

ROMULUS, MI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Kelsey-Hayes Group is setting into motion a plan aimed at solidifying and expanding its position as the world leader in the production of anti-lock braking systems (ABS) and other advanced automotive components.

The company is expanding its research and development operation, more than doubling capacity at one of two plants producing its new EBC-IV(TM) four-wheel ABS and beginning a search process that will ultimately bring on board approximately 60 engineering and technical support personnel.

According to an independent research report published by a leading industry publication, the Kelsey-Hayes Group held a 55.3-percent share of the 1989 ABS worldwide market. The company sold 2.8 million sets in 1989 and projects sales of 3.8 million sets for 1990. R&D Facility Expansion

The $1.65 million expansion that will double the size of the company's Research and Development Center located in Ann Arbor, Mich., is scheduled to be completed by spring 1991. The expansion will be the first since the construction of the center in 1969.

The expansion will triple the size of the current electronic and software development laboratory and allow installation of a vehicle chassis dynamometer room, several large environmental chambers, and additional lab capabilities that will shorten cycle development time of advanced traction control and ABS systems.

According to Robert W. Sullivan, vice president, Research and Development, the expansion is an outgrowth of the company's commitment to advanced systems.

The sixty additional engineers and technical support staff personnel will largely support the increased operations at both the R&D facility and the group's engineering department located at the company's headquarters in Romulus. Part of the new technical staff will be dedicated to strengthening Kelsey-Hayes Group engineering capabilities in Europe and the Asia-Pacific region. Fenton Expansion

GUADALAJARA, Jalisco (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Comcel, a multi-national consortium of companies that includes BellSouth Corp. (NYSE: BLS), has begun providing cellular telephone service in Guadalajara and the western region of Mexico.

It is the first time cellular service has been available in the region, which includes the states of Jalisco, Nayarit, Michoacan and Colima. Comcel expects to spend more than US $100 million to develop the system and anticipates having more than 265,000 customers by the end of the 20-year license.

The BellSouth consortium is the first of the seven consortiums awarded licenses by the Mexican government earlier this year to initiate service in its operating territory. BellSouth helped establish the new company, built the new cellular network and started providing service in less than 60 days.

"One word explains how we got the system up and running so quickly: experience," said Charles B. Coe, president of BellSouth International. "With over 500,000 cellular customers worldwide, BellSouth knows how to build, operate and manage cellular systems."

BellSouth has a 28 percent interest in Comcel. Other companies in the consortium include Racal plc; Sociedad Industrial Hermes, a Mexican steel manufacturer; Fabricas del Calzado Canada, the largest producer of shoes in Mexico; and several other Mexico-based companies.

PONTIAC, MI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - First Federal Savings Bank and Trust (FFSBT) announced today that it has agreed to accept $3.5 million in settlement of all claims against Lawyers Title Insurance Company (LTIC) which had insured FFSBT on a fraudulent $6.5 million loan.

As part of the settlement, LTIC has agreed to dismiss all claims against the bank and its officers. The announcement was made by Leo D. Ottoni, FFSBT and parent First Federal Bancorp (AMEX: FFS) (FFB) president and CEO. The $3.5 million recovered from LTIC exceeds by $500,000 the remaining principal amount of the loan that had not yet been recovered.

"This settlement allows us to fulfill a promise we originally made to our shareholders that FFSBT would recover the full amount of this loan," Ottoni said. "That promise has now been kept."

"We are delighted to bring this matter to a final close," Ottoni said. FFSBT had countersued LTIC to force it to honor its insurance policy to FFSBT against fraud on the loan. FFSBT had already recovered $3.5 million from an insurance company in which part of the loan proceeds had been invested.

Henry Leo Ewald, of Farmington Hills, Mich., subsequently pleaded guilty in Federal Court that he obtained the loan based on forged documents showing he owned a Westland apartment complex. LTIC had tried to deny its title insurance coverage on the loan.

FFSBT, headquartered in Pontiac, is the fifth largest thrift institution in Michigan. FFSBT has 28 branches in six southeastern Michigan counties and employs approximately 400 people. Citizens Federal Savings Bank (CFSB) has four branches in Jacksonville, Fla.

Both FFSBT and CFSB are members of the Federal Home Loan Bank System and their deposits are insured up to the applicable limits by the FDIC. FFB had total assets of $1.4 billion as of March 31, 1990.

ALLENTOWN, PA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Penn Treaty American Corp. (NASDAQ: PTAC) today elaborated on its reported earnings for the second quarter and the six months ended June 30, 1990, of $.42 and $.87 per share respectively.

Although such earnings were up from $.40 and $.82 per share, respectively, over the prior year, the company stated that they are nevertheless somewhat disappointing as they reflect a slight decrease from first quarter earnings of $.45 and are below published estimates by security analysts who follow the company. The company explained that the results for the second quarter continue to reflect an increase in the loss ratio and additional reserving primarily attributable to the company's Medicare Supplement products sold in Florida at the end of 1989 and the first quarter of 1990. Irving Levit, president of the company stated: "In response to competitive conditions in the State of Florida, in August of 1989 and again in December of 1989, the company introduced new Medicare Supplement products in Florida. In hindsight, these new products were underpriced. In response, the company implemented several measures early in 1990 which reduced the proportion of Medicare Supplement business written relative to new long term care business, which has been and continues to be the company's primary focus. In addition, the company obtained a rate increase from the State of Florida late in July 1990 for such products and for a new Medicare Supplement product. The new rate increases are in the process of being implemented and their effects have not yet been felt, however, we believe they will serve to alleviate this problem. Management remains optimistic about the company's continued expansion and growth and confident about the company's year end results."

Penn Treaty American Corp., through its wholly owned direct and indirect subsidiaries, Penn Treaty Life Insurance Co., Network America Life Insurance Co. and Cher-Britt Service Co., is primarily engaged in the underwriting, marketing and sale of individual fixed defined benefit accident and health insurance policies covering principally long-term skilled, intermediate and custodial nursing home care and home health care as well as Medicare Supplement policies. The company is currently licensed to conduct business in 43 states and the District of Columbia.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Exxon Corporation (NYSE: XON) announced today that it has filed a petition in the United States Tax Court challenging a claim by the Internal Revenue Service for additional federal income taxes in the amount of $6.5 billion for the years 1980-1982.

The key issue underlying the $6.5 billion claim for additional taxes arises from an IRS interpretation contending that Exxon should have sold Saudi Arabian crude oil at higher prices than it did, and therefore should pay additional taxes of $1.5 billion.

The tax period under question followed the Iranian Revolution and was marked by high demand for crude oil, escalating prices and by efforts of Saudi Arabia to moderate prices.

"Exxon believes that the IRS action is totally unwarranted," said Lawrence G. Rawl, chairman and chief executive officer of Exxon Corporation. "The timing of this issue is particularly ironic," continued Rawl, "as we are currently experiencing the type of disruptive environment that occurred during 1979-1982. Today, oil companies are being asked to moderate prices by the U.S. government.

"During the 1979-82 period, the U.S. government went to great lengths to persuade Saudi Arabia to moderate its crude prices. During that time frame, we complied with the Saudi Arabian crude oil purchase condition requiring us to sell Saudi crude oil at prices established by the Saudi Arabian Government which were lower than those of other producers.

"Now, the IRS is in effect asserting that we should have ignored that directive, an action that would have generally resulted in consumers paying higher prices."

"The IRS claim regarding the Saudi Arabian oil pricing adjustment defies all reason and logic," said William D. O'Brien, vice president and general tax counsel for Exxon.

"The IRS completely ignores that Saudi Arabia's policy of price moderation in the late 1970s and early 1980s required Exxon to buy and sell Saudi crude oil at the same prices established by the Saudi Arabian government.

"As we have pointed out to the IRS, over and over again, the Saudi Arabian Government would have reduced its supplies to us if we had violated their directive to sell at the lower prices. Saudi Arabia's moderating influence on worldwide petroleum prices was encouraged and supported not only by the U.S. government but by many other governments in the world as well," stated O'Brien.

VAN NUYS, CALIF. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Electro Rent Corp. (NASDAQ: ELRC) today announced operating results for the fourth quarter and fiscal year ended May 31, 1990. On a per share basis, net income for the quarter was unchanged from the prior year while for the year as a whole it was modestly below the fiscal 1989 level.

Net income for the quarter totaled $1,846,000, equal to 44 cents per share compared with $1,833,000 or 44 cents per share a year ago. Fourth quarter revenues were $26,721,000, as against $28,616,000 in the prior year quarter.

For the year, net income was $7,027,000, equal to $1.68 per share versus $7,936,000 or $1.74 per share in fiscal 1989. Revenues for fiscal 1990 were $107,552,000, compared with $114,504,000 last year.

There were 4,192,000 average shares outstanding in the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990 and 4,189,000 in the fiscal 1989 period. Average shares outstanding in fiscal 1990 were 4,192,000, compared with 4,574,000 in fiscal 1989.

Daniel Greenberg, chairman and chief executive officer, stated: "We were pleased to be able to report earnings per share which were very similar to those of fiscal 1989. Industry conditions were soft and uncertain. As anticipated, we achieved some improvement in rental revenues while leases remain unchanged. However, the year was atypical in that for the first time in years used equipment sales declined sharply, reflecting uncertainties related to defense spending.

"However, we were successful in conserving our assets, keeping expenses under tight rein and employing our strong cash flow to make appropriate equipment purchases and reduce debt. In spite of lower revenues in the fourth quarter, profits were comparable to the prior year's due to continued successful cost reductions, and we expect further benefits from these efforts in the current fiscal year.

"Our financial strength represents a solid platform for our future growth. In this regard, workstations and personal computers represent an exciting opportunity for the company. We must expand our product lines and customer base, cultivate more rapidly growing markets and invest our money where the action is and will be. In this way, we can build a larger, more broadly-based and even stronger company."

#90228p6327 08/16/1990 ~PR Newswire

WICHITA, KS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE) today asked the Kansas Corporation Commission to reject the application of Kansas City Power & Light Company (KCP&L)(NYSE: KLT) for approval of KCP&L's acquisition of all classes of the capital stock of KG&E and to deny KCP&L's motion for an expedited hearing and order from the Commission.

In support of its motion to reject the KCP&L filing with the Kansas Corporation Commission, Kansas Gas and Electric Company cited several reasons why the KCP&L request to acquire KG&E shares and merge the two firms should be rejected, including: 1) its view the tender offer is unlawful under the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935; 2) the lack of consent by KG&E's board of directors to the filing of KCP&L's application or to the acquisition of KG&E's facilities by KCP&L, in that public policy does not permit the use of Kansas Corporation Commission approval to facilitate the hostile takeover of one public utility by another; and 3) the highly conditional nature of the tender offer, which makes it "virtually impossible" that KCP&L will soon, if ever, acquire KG&E under the terms and conditions set forth in the application to the KCC.

KG&E's filing with the Commission noted that, while KCP&L appears to be exempt from all the provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company Act of 1935, except Section 9 (a) (2), that section, in KG&E's opinion, makes KCP&L's tender offer unlawful. KG&E said it has filed a motion for a preliminary injunction on this ground in the United States District Court for the District of Kansas. KG&E has also moved the court for an order requesting the Securities and Exchange Commission to file a friend of the court brief.

Section 9 (a) (2) of the Holding Company Act makes it unlawful for any person to acquire five percent or more of the voting securities of one public utility company absent prior approval by the SEC if that person already owns five percent or more of the voting securities of another public utility company.

Since KCP&L did not, at the time it commenced its tender offer on July 23, 1990, seek SEC approval or condition its tender offer on obtaining such approval, KG&E believes its application before the Kansas Corporation Commission should not be allowed to proceed. KG&E said that violation of the Act "is per se detrimental to the public interest and the interest of investors and consumers."

KG&E also said in its filing that the so-called "minimum condition" of the KCP&L tender offer requires that at least 90 percent of the total number of KG&E's shares be tendered.

"In view of the inadequacy of KCP&L's offer and the virtual impossibility of achieving a 90 percent level in the case of a stock as widely held as KG&E's, the minimum condition virtually assures that the tender offer will not be successful," KG&E said.

NESS ZIONA, ISRAEL (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - InterPharm (NASDAQ: IPLLF) today reported net sales of $4,723,084 and net income of $305,704 for the second quarter of 1990. Sales increased by 13 percent and earnings per share increased from 2 cents per share during the second quarter of last year to 5 cents per share during the past quarter.

Net sales for the six months ending June 30, 1990, rose 20.9 percent to $9,444,225, compared with $7,812,758 during the same period in 1989. The accumulated loss for the first six months of 1990 was $95,869 or 2 cents per share, compared with a net income of $235,955 or 4 cents per share for the six months of 1989.

"We improved our second quarter financial results by improving our productivity and by reducing our cost of production for Frone, beta native interferon", said Dr. Yoram Karmon, president and chief executive officer.

Frone, the company's principal product, registered sales of $3.3 million, up 27 percent from $2.6 million recorded during the second quarter of 1989. However continued penetration of the recombinant human growth hormone (hGH) resulted in a drop of natural hGH sales from $1.4 million last year to $1.1 million this quarter.

With the ongoing expansion of the scientific staff and continued construction of the recombinant cytokines pilot plant, during the past three months, InterPharm's R&D expenditures rose to $1,158,711, up 51 percent from $767,061 spent during the corresponding quarter of 1989. "Our focus continues to be the preparation of our recombinant beta interferon for registration and clinical trials worldwide," said Karmon.

HIGHLAND PARK, MI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - It happened again. After independent testing in which 100 Americans who would consider buying Japanese cars overwhelmingly picked Chrysler products over Honda models, new head-to-head tests were held pitting Chrysler products against Toyota models. And Chrysler products won hands down again ... by an even wider margin.

The results of the tests are being made public in new television and print advertising in the "Advantage: Chrysler" campaign. "This proves even more convincingly that when consumers really compare, our cars are every bit as good as Japanese cars," said John Damoose, Vice President - Marketing for Chrysler Corporation. "We knew it. Our research showed it. Now consumers are saying it."

The latest tests were a direct comparison of the Dodge Shadow/Plymouth

Sundance against a Toyota Tercel Deluxe, and of the Dodge Spirit/Plymouth Acclaim against a Toyota Camry LE.

An independent testing firm asked two groups of 100 American import intenders to evaluate the vehicles. The consumers who participated were not the same people who participated in the earlier tests against Honda models.

Shadow/Sundance were chosen superior to Tercel by an overwhelming 91 to nine count. Of the 100 people who compared Spirit/Acclaim with the Camry, 80 picked the Chrysler products best overall.

Participants in the direct comparison were owners of GM and Ford products, clearly intending an import for their next purchase. They were asked to evaluate the cars but were not told that Chrysler was the test sponsor.

They rode in and drove the cars over a 2.4-mile test route, a mix of freeway and city streets and different road surfaces. They made 33 separate comparisons overall.

Chrysler is scheduling two 30-second TV commercials, which began Wednesday and continue through August on all major networks and cable, and print advertising that begins Monday, Aug. 20, in a wide range of national magazines.

One commercial covers Dodge Shadow/Plymouth Sundance and re-enacts the testing as an announcer explains the tests and gives the results. It closes with the line: "The cars that beat Honda Civic now beat Toyota. Who's next?" The other covers Dodge Spirit/Plymouth Acclaim in a similar manner and closes with the lines: "Can America build better cars than Japan? Check it out."

RESEARCH TRIANGLE PARK, NC (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - California has become the fifth state to reach an agreement with Glaxo Inc. that will make the pharmaceutical company's products available to the state's Medicaid program at substantial savings.

"We're obviously pleased that we will be able to expand the availability of Glaxo products to Medicaid patients in California," said Charles A.

Sanders, M.D., chief executive officer of the North Carolina-based Glaxo. "This is a very significant step forward in our effort to help assure equal access to medicines for all patients based on their treatment needs, rather than the method of payment."

In 1989 California's Medicaid program, called Medi-Cal, spent more than $450 million on prescription drugs. Sanders said that in addition to benefiting Medi-Cal patients, the agreement announced today would help the state deal with rising health care costs.

Among the medicines the arrangement makes available to Medi-Cal patients is Zantac (ranitidine), an anti-ulcer medication that is the world's best-selling drug.

The agreement follows similar arrangements between Glaxo and Medicaid programs in Texas, North Carolina, Utah and Idaho. The company has proposed the arrangments to state Medicaid programs across the country.

In an attempt to control costs, some states currently limit reimbursement to those drugs on a prescribed list, called a formulary, which is determined partly on the basis of price. Under Glaxo's plan, Medicaid programs that provide equal access to the company's products would be eligible for the discounts.

The plan offers Glaxo products to the states on terms comparable to those the company makes to other customers that do not take actual possession of the products.

"Like the rest of the nation, we're concerned about the escalating costs of health care. Our agreement with California addresses that concern in a way that benefits the patient as well," Sanders said. He added that therapy decisions based primarily on cost have been shown to lead to less effective treatment and thus add to Medicaid expenses.

"We've often said that pricing policies shouldn't determine how doctors conduct their practices," he added. "We are hopeful that this agreement will build momentum that will lead to all states allowing all pharmaceutical products on their formularies."

UPPER DARBY, PA. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Bell Savings Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: BSBX), the holding company parent of Bell Savings Bank PaSA, announced today a loss of $10.9 million for the fourth fiscal quarter of 1990 and $23.3 million for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990.

An earlier statement released by the company on July 10, 1990, reported the anticipated losses.

The loss of $10.9 million, or $4.36 per share for the fourth fiscal quarter of 1990 is compared to net income of $701,000, or $.28 per share for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

The loss of $23.3 million, or $9.33 per share for fiscal 1990, is compared to net income of $4.4 million, or $1.74 per share for fiscal 1989.

The fourth quarter loss is primarily the result of a $12.6 million addition to loan and real estate loss reserves and increases in non-accruing assets. Of the $12.6 million addition to loss reserves, $4.3 million was charged to loan loss allowances with $8.3 million relating to real estate operations charged to other operating income. The $12.6 million addition brings the balance of total loss allowances to $26.4 million or 33 percent of non-performing assets at June 30, 1990.

"A significant decline in the real estate market, coupled with more stringent regulatory procedures has resulted in substantial increases in loss provisions," asserted J.M. Gross, chairman and chief executive officer of Bell Savings Holdings Inc. "Accordingly, we have taken significant steps to increase our collection efforts."

"Each piece of real estate is unique and requires its own solution. After careful evaluation, our asset recovery team prepares a detailed action plan outlining appropriate steps to be taken with respect to each classified loan," explained Nathaniel D. Gross, president of Bell Savings Holdings Inc. "As you would expect, finding a viable solution for each loan takes time."

According to Bell's business plan, the company is no longer originating higher risk loans such as real estate investments and land loans. By placing an emphasis on residential mortgage and consumer loan originations the bank plans to restructure its balance sheet to facilitate its transformation, over time, into a more bank-like community-oriented institution.

"Our goal is to become a dominant force in the retail banking industry," said Dennis J. O'Malley, senior vice president of Retail Banking. "Moving the loan-making decisions back to the branch level is part of our plan to gradually transform each branch into an autonomous entity, well equipped to provide the services and responsiveness our customers need."

On July 27, 1990, Bell submitted its capital plan to the Office of Thrift Supervision outlining steps to bring it into fully phased in capital compliance by 1994, as stipulated by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery and Enforcement Act of 1989. At June 30, 1990, the company did not meet the risk-based capital requirement by $13.5 million, but exceeded both the tangible and core capital requirements.

MIDLAND, MI (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Dow Chemical Company's (NYSE: DOW) office paper recycling program, now in its fourth month of operation at the company's Midland corporate headquarters and manufacturing facility is conserving annually an estimated 81,000 cubic feet of landfill space, saving 17,000 trees and 4,100,000 kwh of energy.

Under the program, called "PRO" -- Paper Recovery Operation -- each office or workstation is equipped with two waste containers so that employees can separate recyclable paper from the rest of their garbage. The program, which was in the planning stages for two years, began operation April 25 and is one of the first of its kind launched by an American company.

Approximately 96 percent of Dow's 8,600 Midland employees are currently participating in the program. As of Aug. 11, they have recycled 330,730 pounds of office paper. In addition, office paper recycling programs are now under way at several other Dow locations throughout the United States and Canada.

"We are delighted with the response of our people," said Jack J. Giampalmi program director. "Dow people are finding paper recycling easier than they thought. It doesn't interrupt their work schedule and they feel good about doing something positive for the environment."

In the PRO program, most types of office paper, including letterhead, colored paper, newsletters, computer paper, copy machine paper and even facsimile paper are recyclable. Each area has a designated "recycle coordinator" who is responsible for explaining the program to employees in his or her work area. A recent study showed that contaminants constitute only 0.7 percent of the material placed in PRO receptacles, considered exceptionally high quality for post-consumer waste.

The recyclable material sorted by Dow employees is picked up daily by a local recycling company, Brady Recycling. After shredding, compacting and baling the material, Brady sells it to about 20 secondary fiber mills throughout the Midwest. The mills convert it into rolls of paper which are sold to paper processors who manufacture it into a wide variety of paper products, including facial tissues and toilet paper, paper towels, greeting cards, fast food bags and specialty gift boxes.

Dow is doing its part in helping create a demand for recycled paper by purchasing recycled stock for use in company letterhead, business cards, copier paper and publications. For example, for the first time ever, the company's Annual Report for stockholders this year is printed entirely on recycled paper.

"An important component of our PRO program is not only encouraging our people to recycle, but also to use less paper," said Giampalmi. "About 40 percent of the waste we send to landfills in Michigan is paper. By using less paper and recycling what we do use, we're saving the company money and doing our part to ease the state's solid waste problem."

VALLEY FORGE, PA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Worlco Data Systems Inc. (NASDAQ: WDSI) today reported revenues of $3.4 million for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990, compared to $3.0 million for the same quarter last year.

The company reported a net loss of $395,146 or 13 cents a share vs. a net loss of $41,457 or 1 cent a share for the same period in the prior year.

Turnkey systems revenues decreased 42 percent or $412,000 from the same period in the prior year due to the de-emphasis of turnkey systems sales by the company. Data services revenues increased 38 percent or $783,000 over the same period last year due in part to the acquisition of the Grenier Corp. in the third quarter of the 1990 fiscal year. Losses are, in large part, due to the integration of that business. The company said it intends to continue its growth in data services and expects to return to profitability in the current fiscal year.

On July 15, 1990, the company reported a planned infusion of $750,000 by Grumman Hill Investments II L.P. That transaction has been completed.

Worlco Data Systems provides data processing services for the direct marketing and publishing industries.

WICHITA, KS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Kansas Gas and Electric Company (NYSE: KGE) today requested the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) to allow it to intervene as an interested party and to reject the application by Kansas City Power & Light (KCP&L) for approval of its attempt to acquire KG&E through a tender offer for all outstanding shares of KG&E's common and preferred stock.

Kansas Gas and Electric also requested FERC to reject KCP&L's motion for expedited approval and waiver of evidentiary hearing on the proposed merger.

In its filing with FERC, KG&E cited a number of reasons why KCP&L's application should be rejected. KG&E noted that its board of directors has not consented to the filing of KCP&L's application or the acquisition of KG&E's facilities by KCP&L and that Section 203 of the Federal Power Act was never intended to facilitate the hostile takeover of one public utility by another.

KG&E also said that KCP&L's stock tender offer is subject to a number of "significant and fundamental conditions which make it virtually impossible for KCP&L actually to acquire KG&E under the terms and conditions set forth in the Application." In addition, KG&E described KCP&L's application to FERC as "deficient" under FERC regulations.

KG&E said that KCP&L's attempt to acquire KG&E should not be aided or facilitated in any way by FERC and noted that merging utilities seeking approval from FERC have, until now, reached agreement on all aspects of the merger before submitting to FERC an application that has their joint support.

"Certainly, there is no apparent authority under Section 203 for the Commission to issue substantive orders, or even to establish a proceeding to consider a deficient application, in the absence of an agreement between both sides" to a merger, KG&E said.

Kansas Gas and Electric also said in its filing with FERC that, while contemplated operating benefits from a KCP&L/KG&E merger were not well defined in KCP&L's application, "KCP&L's decision to acquire KG&E by hostile means disrupts all possibilities of further coordination between the two companies during the hostile takeover period and forces both companies to incur millions of dollars for commitment fees, other costs and disbursements for bankers, lawyers and financial consultants."

KG&E believes that KCP&L has incurred or committed to costs and expenses of over $10 million to its hostile tender offer, and KG&E has currently expended or committed to costs and expenses of at least $4.5 million in connection with the tender offer.

UPPER SADDLE RIVER, N.J. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Western Union Corporation (NYSE: WU) announced today that it has obtained the required approvals of all classes of Western Union shareholders for the reclassifcation of Western Union Class A senior preferred shares and Class B convertible preferred shares into common shares. Shareholders voted on this and other agenda items at the company's 1990 stockholders' meeting, which was re-convened and concluded today in Montvale, N.J.

The reclassification of preferred shares into common shares is a key component of Western Union's proposed recapitalization plan. That plan also includes an exchange offer, in which Western Union is proposing to issue new notes and common shares in exchange for up to $530 million of its presently outstanding 19-1/4 percent senior secured notes and 16 percent notes. The company announced yesterday that it has extended the period of its exchange offer to 12 midnight on Monday, Aug. 20, 1990.

FALLS CHURCH, VA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - QuesTech, Inc. (NASDAQ-NMS: QTEC) reported revenues of $12.7 million for the second quarter of 1990, a 7 percent decrease over revenues of $13.7 million for the same quarter last year.

The decrease in revenues was offset by an 8 percent reduction in operating costs, causing net profit to rise, to $84,600, which is a 367 percent increase over the profit of $18,100 posted for the same quarter in 1989. No gain or loss was recognized from discontinued operations during the second quarter. A net profit in the amount of $143,200 was posted for the six months ended June 30, 1990, a significant improvement from the (restated) loss in the amount of $715,800, for the same period last year. The turnaround in financial results can be characterized by a staff reduction of approximately 200 employees, and a restructured employee benefit program.

Commenting on these operating results, President and Chief Executive Officer Vincent L. Salvatori said: "Our profitability has improved as a result of our concerted efforts to scale back our overhead costs in order to gain an edge over our competition and with the increased success we are enjoying winning competitive procurements. With a cost structure adapted to the size of our business, we have been able to run our operations more efficiently and optimize the financial performance of our contracts, particularly time-and-materials contracts."

Net earnings per share improved by 54 cents from a loss of 45 cents per share for the same quarter in 1989, to a profit of 9 cents per share for the quarter just ended.

QuesTech, Inc., is a diversified, high technology company, providing scientific, engineering, and management services, primarily to clients in the fields of national security, aerospace and industrial modernization.

OVERLAND PARK, KS (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Amerifax, Inc. (NASDAQ: AFAX, AFAXU and AFAXW), a development stage "rebiller" of telecommunication services, today reported as expected a net loss for the second quarter and six months ended June 30, 1990.

Operating revenues reached $533,112 for the second quarter of 1990 compared to $3,501 for the second quarter of 1989. Operating revenues for the current period were up 190 percent from operating revenues of $282,746 recorded in 1990's opening quarter. The net loss for the quarter was $153,295, or $.03 per share, as compared to a net loss of $137,443, or $.06 per share for the second quarter of 1989. Operating and selling expenses totaled $736,898 in the current period versus $156,076 a year ago. Amerifax realized other income of $50,491 in the second quarter compared to $15,132 a year earlier.

The weighted average number of common shares outstanding for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990, was 5,370,000 versus 2,224,945 for 1989's comparable period.

For the six months ended June 30, 1990, operating revenues totaled $815,857 as compared to $4,972 for the comparable period of the prior year. The net loss was $397,401, or $0.07 per share, as compared to a net loss of $258,875, or $.15 per share, for 1989's first six months. At June 30, 1990, Amerifax provided service to 171 customers as compared with 97 customers at March 31, 1990. (Operating results for the quarter and year-to-date are not comparable to results for the same periods in 1989, due to the company's continuing developmental status).

Amerifax, intent on broadening its base of operations and national presence, has continued to receive state regulatory approvals allowing the company to provide intrastate long distance services. As of June 30, 1990 Amerifax has been authorized to provide intrastate service in 21 states. Moreover, six additional applications are now pending and other applications are being prepared which are consistent with state filing requirements in the remaining jurisdictions. The company is presently authorized to provide interstate service on a nation-wide basis.

Based on a consultant study completed in June 1990, which the company commissioned, the board of directors approved a revised business plan on July 9, 1990. Particular emphasis was placed on a commitment to a full-time internal sales staff. The increased sales staff will be directed to midwestern markets near its corporate offices to enable co-ordination of Amerifax management resources and necessary training. Accordingly, as of Aug. 13, 1990, Amerifax has hired 3 sales personnel on a full-time basis, supplemented by approximately 35 independent contractors which continue to add customers in areas throughout the country. Moreover, Amerifax has grown to 7 administrative staff to provide a full range of customer service and administrative functions necessary for an ever-increasing customer base. The board of directors, in concert with the consultant study, requested a full analysis, with subsequent modifications already put in place, in its long distance carrier and billing agreements to further guarantee Amerifax's ability to be competitive in the telecommunications industry.

On June 25, 1990, the Securities and Exchange Commission declared effective the company's registration under Section 12(G) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, of the company's units, common stock, redeemable Class A warrants and redeemable Class B warrants.

Amerifax provides telecommunications services for companies and individuals on a membership basis. As a "rebiller" of telecommunications services, Amerifax is a non-facilities-based long distance provider, which acquires such services for its members by contracting directly with a major provider of telecommunications services. Amerifax provides a wide variety of telecommunications services to its members, including low cost "800" service, reduced phone card rate, account codes, "one plus" dialing, international calling, and six second interval billing.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Shell Oil Co. said today that a National Wildlife Federation emissions study released today included out-of-date data involving the company's Norco, La., manufacturing complex. Shell's current 1989 SARA Title III data, filed with the Environmental Protection Agency in early July, reflect substantial reductions from the quantities reported by NWF.

The NWF study, released at a press conference in Washington, included a listing of 1988 emissions data for Shell's Norco complex.

Shell announced on July 24 an 89 percent reduction nationwide in its 1989 total estimated hazardous SARA Title III releases. The company's Norco complex reported at the same time that total releases were reduced 97 percent, from 156 million pounds in 1988 to approximately 5 million pounds in 1989.

"Our current emissions release data demonstrate Shell's commitment to continuous improvement in our environmental performance, and our goal to reduce waste generation and off-site disposal wherever we conduct business " the company said.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Amid concerns of an economic slowdown and tightened lending, a new award program from KPMG Peat Marwick, the international accounting and consulting firm, is providing growing companies with the opportunity to help themselves.

Called the Carolinas Enterprise Initiative (CEI), the program is modeled after a successful program launched by Peat Marwick in England. It is the only one of its kind in North and South Carolina. The program provides $10,000 worth of business consulting services to small- and middle-market companies judged to have come up with the best plans to grow their businesses. The selection was based on plans describing a company's intent to increase sales by 25 percent and/or add 20 full-time positions in a 12-month period.

"Peat Marwick initiated this program because it recognized that middle market companies are one of the mainstays of the U.S. economy," said Gary Keefe, national director of the firm's middle market practice.

"The CEI program helps smaller businesses succeed by adopting or refining many of the technologies used by bigger companies, in such areas as business planning."

According to Grant Webb, partner in charge of the firm's middle market practice for the Carolinas Business Unit, "The Carolinas are business growth and development oriented. And, as a employer and business in the Carolinas, Peat Marwick recognizes the importance of helping smaller businesses succeed."

The 1989 CEI award winners were Lifejack, Inc., a Charlotte-based manufacturer of fire service equipment and a pioneer in the challenging area of high-rise building fire rescue; Sterilizer Technologies Corporation, a Greensboro-based company that develops and sells sterilizers to hospitals, biological laboratories, and the private industry; Da Vinci Systems Corporation, a Raleigh-based software development company that creates business automation and productivity tools using computers and networks; Check Protect Systems, a South Carolina-based company that provides check recovery services to multi-state and national retail companies; and, Innoland, Inc., a Charlotte-based toy company that develops, buys patent assignments or gains exclusive distribution rights for new toys, games and premiums.

Bob Simms, marketing vice president of Innoland, Inc., said, "We used a portion of the $10,000 of consulting services to write and implement a computer program for processing our largest toy shipment in company history. This enhancement, in addition to other improvements we have made since receiving these consulting services, will make the company's operations more efficient."

Over 450 companies were involved with CEI and over 50 business plans were reviewed by the judges. A business planning workshop, open to both participants and interested individuals, was added to the program as a means of upgrading the quality and fueling interest in submitting a business plan to CEI.

KPMG Peat Marwick provides accounting and auditing, tax, and management consulting services to leading business organizations, governmental and private institutions, and individuals through 132 offices in the United States. It is the U.S. national practice of KPMG, which has operations in 117 countries and posted 1989 revenues of $4.3 billion.

MANCHESTER, N.H. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Ted C. Feigenbaum today was named president and chief executive officer of New Hampshire Yankee, operator of Seabrook Station, effective Oct. 1.

Feigenbaum, presently New Hampshire Yankee's senior vice president and chief operating officer, will replace Edward A. Brown, who is retiring.

Upon recommendation of Seabrook Station's joint-owners, the board of directors of Public Service of New Hampshire (NYSE: PNH) (PSNH) elected Feigenbaum to his new post during its regular meeting. New Hampshire Yankee is a division of PSNH.

"Ted Feigenbaum has the full confidence and backing of all of Seabrook Station's joint-owner utility companies, as well as my total support," said Brown, 60, who is retiring after six years at New Hampshire Yankee. "Ted is an extremely talented and capable leader."

Feigenbaum said he is looking forward to assuming his duties and he praised Brown for his efforts in getting Seabrook Station licensed and operating.

"Seabrook Station is one of the finest power plants in the world in terms of quality construction and quality staff," Feigenbaum said. "Ed Brown deserves tremendous credit for making Seabrook Station a reality. I'm looking forward to building upon Ed's commitment to excellence and quality in the years ahead."

Seabrook Station, which received its federal license in March, is in the final few days of its startup testing program. The plant is operating at 100 percent power, producing 1,150 megawatts of electricity -- enough to supply one million homes.

Feigenbaum, 40, joined New Hampshire Yankee in 1984. He was named senior vice president and chief operating officer in July 1989. Previously, he served as vice president of engineering, licensing and quality programs.

SHELTON, CONN. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Forschner Group, Inc. (NASDAQ: FSNR), today expressed concern about the continued weakening of the dollar against the Swiss franc and stated that if the exchange ratio remains at or near present levels Forschner's earnings for 1990 may be substantially lower than those reported in 1989.

In July, Forschner reported revenues of $10.7 million for the third quarter of 1990 and net income for the quarter of $502,000. At that time the firm cautioned that although these figures represented increases over comparable 1989 periods, they should not be taken as indicative of performance for the second half. At that time Forschner stressed that the great preponderance of its products are imported from Switzerland and that the continued weakening of the dollar, despite a hedging program, could adversely affect earnings for 1989.

Forschner noted that since July the dollar has continued to fall. The company also pointed out that, in light of Forschner's significantly reduced hedging position for 1991, the negative impact of the dollar's weakness would be proportionately greater for that year than for 1990.

Forschner is the exclusive United States marketer of Victorinox Original Swiss Army Knives and Victorinox cutlery, other high-quality, Swiss-made products bearing the Swiss Army Brands label, and other imported cutlery for professional and consumer use.

TULSA, OK (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Vantage Point Energy Inc. announced today a net loss for the second quarter of 1990 of $183,058 ($.13 per share) on revenues of $1,317,011. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, the net loss was $99,879 ($.10 per share) on revenues of $2,161,412.

As was previously announced, on May 1, 1990, the company completed the exchange agreement with Sceptre Resources Limited whereby it acquired all of Sceptre's U.S. oil and gas assets. These assets were owned by various wholly owned subsidiaries of Sceptre, which are referred to as the Oakwood Entities. In addition, the company's predecessor, ZG Energy Corp., was merged into Vantage Point.

When comparing the 1990 financial results to 1989, it should be noted that since voting control of the company was acquired by Sceptre, the transactions have been treated as a purchase of ZG by Sceptre and the Oakwood entities. Therefore, the financial results for periods prior to May 1, 1990 include only the activities of the Oakwood Entities, whereas the results from May 1, 1990 through June 30, 1990 include the financial results of the combined entities.

S. Lee Crawley, president, said, "Although we were pleased to complete this very important transaction on May 1, the company's results for the quarter and the six months have been below our expectations. This has been primarily due to the depressed U.S. gas markets and a substantial decline in oil prices during the second quarter.

Crawley added, "Recently, however, there has been a substantial increase in the price of oil due to the OPEC pricing meeting and the political instability in the Middle East. I expect oil prices to remain higher than second quarter levels and am hopeful that they will lead to higher gas prices. I remain cautiously optimistic that gas is the "fuel of the future" and it will certainly be a key to the company's profitability relative to our recent transaction."

Vantage Point Energy, Inc. is a financially oriented, independent oil and gas company headquartered in Tulsa. Its business involves the acquisition development and production of oil and gas. It also manages properties for other companies and institutions. The company's business plan is to grow through the acquisition of properties and/or companies in exchange for cash and/or securities while continuing to operate and develop existing oil and gas properties.

There are two basic differences between the Oakwood Entities and the company. First, the Oakwood Entities were wholly owned subsidiaries of Sceptre which provided many corporate services, including financing, without charge; whereas Vantage Point is an autonomous, publicly held entity which provides for all of its own corporate services. Second, the ZG Energy properties are principally company-operated, while the Oakwood properties are primarily nonoperated.

ST. PAUL, MINN. (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Medical Devices, Inc. (NASDAQ: MDEV) today reported net sales of $6,310,000 for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1990, up modestly from $6,063,000 in fiscal 1989. Net income came to $239,000 or $.12 per share in fiscal 1990, down from $603,000 or $.29 per share a year ago.

The company attributed its lower earnings to weakness in its core TENS business reflecting increasingly competitive conditions and below- plan orders from national customers, delays in introducing new rehabilitation products, and manufacturing inefficiencies associated with new product start-ups earlier in the year.

Dean A. Enrooth, Medical Devices' president and chief executive officer, said, "Our disappointing performance largely reflects poor execution of our basic business strategy of diversifying into the rapidly growing rehabilitation market and reducing our reliance on the mature pain management field. We remain fully confident in this strategy and have implemented a wide range of corrective measures aimed at strengthening our operations and business execution."

These actions, Enrooth continued, enabled the company to post significantly improved results in the fourth quarter with sales of $1,828,000 and earnings of $136,000 or $.07 per share. The fourth quarter improvement reflected in part a good contribution from new rehabilitation products and a return to normal manufacturing productivity.

Enrooth said Medical Devices should continue to benefit from these factors in fiscal 1991, which is expected to be a year of improved sales and earnings.

Medical Devices is a leading designer and manufacturer of electromedical rehabilitation and pain management products. The company's common stock is traded on the national over-the-counter market under the NASDAQ symbol MDEV.

BEAVERTON, OR (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - The Pentagon's Defense Advanced Research Projects Agency (DARPA) confirmed today that it intends to award a prestigious research contract to a subsidiary of Tektronix Inc. (NYSE:

TEK) for development of a new high-definition television display technology, Tektronix said.

Tektronix Federal Systems Inc., a Tek subsidiary, will administer the contract. Terms of the contract were not disclosed by DARPA. The federal contract will help fund development of a promising flat-panel display system for high-definition television (HDTV) called TekVision.

The research is being conducted by Tektronix Laboratories. The contract named Tom Buzak, manager of Tek Labs' Advanced Display Technology Group, as the principal scientist. Potential applications for TekVision include high-resolution data displays for the military and large, wall-size video screens for the commercial market.

"It is the only technology that appears to be economically scaleable to wall-size flat-panel displays," said Tom Long, vice president and general manager of the Technology Group. Tek Labs has developed a seven-inch-diagonal-screen feasability model which displays images of 300 x 300 dots, Long said.

The system is based on a technology Tek calls Plasma-Addressed Liquid Crystal, or PALC. Rather than relying on the use of thousands of transistors to create high-resolution images, TekVision uses ionized gas, or plasma, to control the image.

TUSTIN, CA (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Everett L. Hodges, president and chief executive officer of Petrominerals Corp. (NASDAQ: PTRO) today announced that the company reported a second quarter loss of $109,000 or ($.01) per share, as compared with a loss of $41,000 or ($.00) for the same period in 1989. During the second quarter, the company experienced a decrease in oil production, with volumes down approximately 14 percent. In addition, the average price of crude decreased 23 percent to $10.59 per barrel, when compared to the average crude price of $12.98 per barrel, for the second quarter of 1989. General and administrative costs were also up 20 percent due to certain legal and consulting fees relating to the review and analysis of on-going business opportunities and the litigation with McFarland Energy Inc. (NASDAQ: MCFE)

Due to the current situation in the Middle East, crude prices have risen dramatically since mid July, with the company realizing an increase of approximately $8.50 per barrel for its heavy crude. If the price of crude stabilizes at the current level, the company's total revenues will be significantly impacted during the third quarter of 1990.

Revenues for the three months ended June 30, 1990 were $1,602,000 as compared with $1,667,000 for the same period in 1989. For the six months ended June 30, 1990, revenues were $3,426,000 as compared with $3,133,000, for the same period in 1989.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) PR NEWSWIRE - Pennzoil Co. (NYSE: PZL) has received a request for additional information from the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act relating to Pennzoil's previously announced intention to purchase additional shares of Chevron Corp. from time to time. Such a request has the effect of extending the waiting period applicable to Pennzoil's notification filing under the HSR Act until 20 days after the requested data is submitted to the FTC.

In December 1989, Pennzoil announced that it had purchased, as a long-term investment, 31,524,500 shares of Chevron, or approximately 8.8 percent of the outstanding shares, using approximately $2.120 billion of the $2.6 billion of net settlement proceeds it received from Texaco in 1988. In July 1990, Pennzoil announced its intention, dependent upon prevailing market prices, to purchase additional Chevron shares from time to time with remaining portions of the Texaco net settlement proceeds. Pennzoil stated that additional purchases would be limited so that its total holdings would not equal or exceed 10 percent of the total number of Chevron shares outstanding.

Pennzoil expects to provide the FTC with the requested material as promptly as practicable. In addition, in response to a related inquiry, Pennzoil is also providing information to the FTC relating to Pennzoil's reliance on the investment exemption under the HSR Act in connection with its purchase of 31,524,500 shares of Chevron in 1989.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Washington is moving to fill the gap caused by the loss of Iraqi and Kuwaiti oil imports. Energy Secretary James Watkins says increased Alaskan oil production and conservation efforts by utilities, as well as average Americans, could yield 550-thousand extra barrels of oil a day within six months. Watkins says the government also will conserve by buying more ''gasohol.''

Meanwhile, U-S industry sources say Saudi Arabia will substantially cut deliveries to American oil companies and other large customers next month in a move that could eventually affect prices. The relocated Saudi oil reportedly will be sent to European refineries owned by Kuwait, which has been unable to export oil since its occupation by Iraq. Saudi Arabia is the largest foreign supplier of crude oil to the United States... accounting for about 19 percent of U-S oil imports.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Iran was reported privately elated with the surprise olive branch offered by longtime rival Iraq, which is increasingly fenced in by U.S. troops along the Saudi border and an international armada in the Persian Gulf.

The peace package proposed Wednesday would resolve most of the disputes between the two Persian Gulf neighbors remaining from the bloody eight-year war that was suspended by a cease-fire in 1988.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein said it would prevent Western ''evil forces'' from capitalizing on tension between Iraq and Iran.

The Iraqi leader's offer, broadcast on state-run Baghdad radio, includes an exchange of prisoners, a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from occupied Iranian territory, and an offer to surrender to Iranian demands to share a disputed strategic waterway.

Saddam said if Iran agreed with his four-point plan, Iraqi troops would start leaving occupied Iranian border territory within 48 hours.

Iranian officials were reported to be privately ''overjoyed'' with Baghdad's proposal, according to an unidentified Arab diplomat, but withheld a formal response until the arrival of an Iraqi delegation in Tehran.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said the offer was received ''with optimism'' and state-run Tehran radio said it was tantamount to capitulation by Baghdad on Iran's former demands.

Iran's spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei, however, deplored the presence of Western forces in the Persian Gulf region. He said Iraq's invasion of Kuwait Aug. 2 resembled the recent U.S. invasions of Grenada and Panama.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Morteza Sarmadi told Tehran radio that Iran heard the Iraqi offer ''through the mass media.''

Tehran was glad Baghdad had ''finally accepted'' the 1975 border accord between the two countries and this would ''lead to the re-establishment of a durable and honorable peace in the region'' after eight years of war, Sarmadi said.

President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani met with Iran's Supreme National Security Council in Tehran to discuss the latest Iraqi move although Tehran radio quoted Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati as saying the Iraqi president's letter had not reached Tehran by late Wednesday.

Velayati said Iran was prepared to receive an Iraqi delegation in Tehran after the Iranian government examined the Iraqi president's letter. He said Iraq's acceptance of the 1975 accord was the Islamic republic's greatest victory.

President Bush, asked as he was traveling to his summer house in Kennebunkport, Maine, about Iraq's overture to Iran, said: ''It does not appear to have any impact on Kuwait, does not deal with his invasion, does not deal with our objectives. It appears to be another effort to separate the Arab countries and create a diversion.''

The Iraqi proposal came as Baghdad faces international economic and military pressure in response to its invasion and occupation of Kuwait. Iraqi troops later massed on the Kuwaiti-Saudi border, prompting the deployment of U.S. and Egyptian troops in Saudi Arabia.

The United States also has announced it would intercept any ships trying to reach Iraq amid an embargo against Baghdad. Some members of the U.N. Security Council have opposed Washington's de facto naval blockade.

Under Saddam's plan, Iraq would accept Iran's proposal for an exchange of some 70,000 Iraqi and 30,000 Iranian prisoners of war still in captivity two years after both sides agreed to the U.N.-brokered cease-fire.

As a gesture of good will, ''We will withdraw all our troops that face you along the border starting Friday August 17,'' Saddam said.

''Everything (Iran) wanted was realized and nothing has remained but to exchange documents from a position overlooking new life,'' Saddam said, according to the official Iraqi News Agency.

He said peace with Iran would stop the West playing Iraq off against Iran and that Iraqi troops would be able to concentrate their attention ''in the field of the great duel'' in Saudi Arabia.

''(Improved Iran-Iraq ties) will open the way for serious interaction with all (Moslem) believers for confronting evil forces which are after harming Moslems and the Arab nation,'' Saddam said.

In Iran, Tehran Radio said Iraq offered to withdraw its troops from hundreds of square miles of Iranian territory along the center of the Iran-Iraq front. The land was captured during the last stages of fighting.

It also said Iraq offered an immediate start to the exchange of POWs by land over the 750-mile-long land border, as well as joint sovereignty over the strategic Shatt al Arab waterway in the northern Persian Gulf.

WELLINGTON, NEW ZEALAND (AUG. 16) UPI - A Japanese climber was rescued Thursday after surviving five days of blizzard conditions on a North Island mountain where six soldiers froze to death this week.

Joji Iwama, 27, who said he had listened apprehensively on a portable radio to details of the soldiers' deaths and his own stalled rescue efforts, was found while inching down Mount Ruapehu, 200 miles north of Wellington.

Iwama, a restaurant worker in Auckland, climbed Ruapehu Aug. 8 and was last seen Saturday digging a snow cave to escape a blizzard.

He said after his rescue that he had planned to walk down the mountain Saturday but lost his way in the freezing conditions.

''There was a white-out and terrible freezing conditions 20 or 35 minutes after I left the snow cave,'' Iwama said. ''I couldn't locate where I was walking and I decided to dig another snow cave.''

Iwama said he carried a small radio and heard of the deaths of the six soldiers who failed to survive the same blizzard while on a training mission just a few hundred yards away.

He said he also heard details of how the weather conditions were hampering efforts to locate him.

''I really became scared and wanted to listen to every broadcast to hear how my resuce attempts were getting on,'' he said.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Around the world... around the clock... U-P-I brings you the latest news.

When Jordan's King Hussein meets with President Bush today in Maine, he'll be carrying a secret message from Iraq's President Saddam Hussein. The Jordanian king and Bush are to meet for about two hours of talks that might help resolve the nearly two-week-old crisis in the Persian Gulf.

Saddam Hussein also is making peace overtures to his long-time rival, Iran. His plan proposed yesterday calls for an exchange of prisoners and a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from occupied Iranian territory. The peace package would resolve most of the disputes remaining from Iraq's eight-year war with Iran.

Some 23-thousand firefighters aided by U-S Army troops are battling dozens of wildfires still burning in seven Western states. But there is some good news on the wildfire front. California's Yosemite National Park- closed because of wildfires- partially re-opens this weekend.

South Africa's law and order minister is appealing for calm in the black townships east of Johannesburg where 143 people have been killed in three days of factional fighting. The government minister called on black leaders to ''use their influence to stop this UNnecessary killing and violence.''

Engineers at Cape Canaveral, Florida, are working to make up lost time and keep the shuttle Discovery on track for blastoff October 5th. The shuttle is tentatively scheduled to be hauled from its hangar to a rocket assembly building one week from tomorrow. Discovery is to carry the European Ulysses solar probe into space.

(AUG. 16) UPI - In this record season of no-hitters, the hurler who put the mark in the book avoided comparisons to great pitchers.

''I'm just Terry Mulholland,'' the Philadelphia pitcher said after helping the Phillies to a 6-0 victory over the San Francisco Giants.

''I'm not Nolan Ryan and I'm certainly not knocking on the door for the Cy Young award this year,'' he said. ''I'll just take this game and enjoy it.''

Mulholland improved to 7-6 this season and to only 14-21 for his major league career, which started in 1986 with the team he limited to no hits Wednesday.

The left-hander was traded to Philadelphia with Dennis Cook and Charlie Hayes June 18, 1989, for reliever Steve Bedrosian. In his 29-game career with the Giants, Mulholland went 3-10. He is 11-11 since joining the Phillies.

''The only advantage is I know what they hit and don't hit because I spent three years with them (Giants),'' Mulholland said. ''I feel like every time I go out against them I have an advantage.''

Mulholland, whose best previous performance was a two-hitter against San Francisco Aug. 19, 1989, joined pitchers like Ryan, Dave Stewart and Fernando Valenzuela on this season's eight-game no-hitter list.

''It was a great experience,'' said the 6-foot-3, 27-year-old. ''I can't describe what was going through my mind when Charlie (Hayes, third baseman) snared that line drive. It was like a ton of bricks was lifted off my shoulders.''

Hayes caught pinch-hitter Gary Carter's line drive for the final out. But it was Hayes who committed a seventh-inning throwing error that cost Mulholland a perfect game. Rick Parker, who reached on the error, was wiped out when Dave Anderson hit into a double play.

Mulholland said he was not concerned about the loss of the perfect game.

''It never entered my mind,'' he said. ''I was just looking at the guy I'm going to face next. It's nice if you get it but if you don't, you've got the next best thing.''

Mulholland uses a variety of pitches, mixing speeds and location. Wednesday night it was the combination of a nasty slider, fastball and changeup that confused the Giants' hitters.

''He threw a lot of cutters,'' Giants first baseman Will Clark said. ''We had 10 hard outs right at people. Not only did he throw a great game, but he had a lot of luck too.''

The no-hitter was the seventh by a Phillies' pitcher. Rick Wise was the last Phillie to throw a no-hitter, beating Cincinnati 4-0 June 23, 1971.

Elsewhere in the National League, Cincinnati edged St. Louis 3-1 in 12 innings, Houston beat Chicago 8-4 in 10 innings, Los Angeles clipped the New York Mets 3-2, Atlanta routed Pittsburgh 8-1 and Montreal outlasted San Diego 5-3 in 17 innings.

In the American League, it was: Oakland 6, Boston 2; Cleveland 5, Minnesota 4; Milwaukee 7, Detroit 3; Chicago 4, Toronto 3; Texas 2, Kansas City 1; Seattle 2, Baltimore 0 and California 8, New York 1.

-- AROUND THE NL --

Reds 3, Cardinals 1, 12 innings

At St. Louis, Herm Winningham's third triple of the game tied a modern NL record and scored Glenn Braggs with two outs in the 12th inning. Braggs, pinch-hitting for winning pitcher Rob Dibble, 5-3, reached on a single and Winningham tripled to score Braggs. Tom Neidenfuer, 0-6, suffered the loss. Terry Layana pitched the 12th to earn his second save.

Astros 8, Cubs 4, 10 innings

At Chicago, Craig Biggio went 4-for-5, including the tie-breaking single in Houston's four-run 10th inning, and Rafael Ramirez capped the burst with a three-run double. Jeff Pico, 4-3, was the loser. Dave Smith, 3-4, was the winner.

Dodgers 3, Mets 2

At New York, Kal Daniels hit a three-run homer to power Los Angeles. Daniels connected off Sid Fernandez, 8-9, rallying the Dodgers from a one-run deficit. Mike Morgan, 10-11, allowed six hits over seven innings. Jay Howell gained his 10th save.

Braves 8, Pirates 1

At Pittsburgh, Rookie Dave Justice collected three RBI, including his ninth homer in 10 games and three pitchers combined on a four-hitter. Justice has 19 RBI in his last 10 games. Tony Castillo, 3-1, allowed one run and and one hit in five innings. Neal Heaton, 10-8, suffered his six straight loss.

Expos 5, Padres 3, 17 innings

At San Diego, Benito Santiago's two-out throwing error allowed Andres Galarraga to score the go-ahead run in the 17th inning, lifting the Expos to victory in the longest game of the season. The win was Montreal's seventh straight victory. Bill Sampen, 10-4, allowed only one hit over five innings for the win.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - The city is investigating allegations that Rikers Island prison guards bent on revenge systematically beat inmates after a riot at the city jail.

Board of Correction Chairman Robert Kasanof announced the ''intensive'' investigation Wednesday based on information that prisoners sustained ''systematic clubbing'' after the Tuesday melee was quelled.

The riot capped a two-day blockade of Rikers Island by guards angered by an attack on a fellow officer by three prisoners last week. Inmates were locked in their cells during the walkout and rioted once they were let out.

Authorities said at least 162 people were taken to hospitals, about 30 of them correction officers, some of whom had been stabbed. None was in critical condition.

Meanwhile, the inmate who reportedly initiated Tuesday's riot allegedly pulled a homemade knife on guards escorting him out of a mess hall Wednesday and was critically injured in the struggle, said Department of Correction spokeswoman Ruby Ryles.

The inmate, Anthony Mitchell, 27, was identified in The New York Times Thursday as an instigator of Tuesday's riot.

The Association of Legal Aid Attorneys reported the ''secret mass beating'' of inmates at the prison's North Facility late Tuesday, hours after officers tear-gassed prisoners who had barricaded themselves in their cells.

''Angry corrections officers reportedly raided several dormitories of inmates who had not been involved in the revolt, marched them to the lower lobby and beat the inmates' heads against the walls,'' the association said in a statement.

''Following the assault, the walls were covered with the inmates' blood,'' the release said.

The attorney's group said the beatings were retaliatory and resulted from ''the city's capitulation to jail guards'' in order to get them to call off their blockade.

Kasanof said although the evidence he received was not conclusive, it pointed to correction officers as the perpetrators of the clubbings.

''I have ordered an intensive investigation into a number of head injuries sustained by prisoners after order was restored,'' he said.

Kasanof said the directives resulting from an agreement ending the guards' blockade ''must not be taken as a signal for retaliatory action'' against prisoners.

The head of the guard's union, Phil Seelig, and City Correction Commissioner Allyn Sielaff both denied that retaliatory beatings took place.

Seelig accused Kasanof and others with focusing on prisoners' rights at the expense of officers who feel ''handcuffed'' when confronted with violent inmates.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Showers soaked the southern third of the nation Thursday from Nevada to Florida, deluging cities near Las Vegas with flash floods, while thunderstorms roamed the Plains and haze covered parts of New England.

A new round of thunderstorms blew through the Southern Plains, dumping heavy rain over western Texas, eastern New Mexico and northern Arkansas, the National Weather Service said.

A flash flood watch was posted for storm-weary southern New Mexico as a persistent upper-level disturbance moved through the region. Harrison, Ark., received more than 3 inches of rain, causing some minor street flooding.

Flash floods washed through southern Nevada early Thursday, and more than an inch of rain fell in 10 minutes in Logan, the NWS said. Heavy rains were reported in a six-city area about 40 miles northeast of Las Vegas.

Thunderstorms died across most of Arizona, decreasing the threat of flash flooding but leaving gulleys and roadway dips filled with water after two days of downpours that overwhelmed storm drains.

More than 30 people were evacuated Wednesday from Glendale, west of Phoenix, after a motel and nearby homes were flooded with up to 5 feet of water.

Scattered thunderstorms dumped light rain Thursday in a 120-mile-wide area from Sheridan Lake, Colo., to Page City, Kan. Powerful storms in Colorado Wednesday produced small hail and up to 2 inches of rain, flooding roads.

Skies were variably cloudy Thursday across much of the South, with morning lows in the 70s. A band of scattered showers stretched from Little Rock, Ark., to just west of Memphis, Tenn.

Showers drifted over the Florida Keys and along the state's lower Atlantic Coast. Thunderstorms that caused flooding in North Carolina dissipated during the early morning hours.

Hazy skies covered parts of Vermont and New Hampshire overnight, but skies were clear across most of New England. Temperatures slipped into the middle 50s and relative humidity remained above 80 percent from Maine to Connecticut.

Mostly fair skies were reported overnight in Maryland, West Virginia, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, but morning fog was reported near Philadelphia. Lows ranged in the 50s and 60s through much of the Middle Atlantic region.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Proclaiming victory for their nation, Iranian newspapers Thursday praised Iraqi President Saddam Hussein for his overture to settle the conflict between the two longtime foes, but berated U.S intervention in the region.

''Congratulations on the great victory to the Iranian revolutionary nation '' the Persian language Jomhuri Eslamis said in its main headline. The English Tehran Times called the initiative by Saddam to his Persian Gulf war foe ''a courageous move.''

Saddam's surprise peace package unveiled Wednesday included an exchange of prisoners, a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from occupied Iranian territory and surrender to Iranian demands to share a disputed strategic waterway.

As a gesture of goodwill, Saddam said Iraq would withdraw troops along the Iranian-Iraqi border beginning Friday, a move that would provide Saddam with more forces for a possible showdown along his border with Saudi Arabia, where tens of thousands of U.S. and British forces have been deployed.

Egyptian and Moroccan troops also have been stationed on Saudi soil and a Syrian contigent is expected to join in the creation of a pan-Arab force in the region.

Saddam said he hoped Persian Iran could cooperate with its former Arab Moslem foe to fight the forces of evil in the region, an apparent reference to Western forces deployed in the gulf and in Saudi Arabia. Two years ago, the U.N. brokered a cease-fire between the two nations after eight years of war.

Iran interpreted the Iraqi inititiative as tantamount to capitulation by Baghdad on its former demands, according to Tehran Radio. Iraqi and Iranian officials still must confer on the proposal.

''Now in this very sensitive juncture with a lasting peace just round the corner, it is hoped that the responsible officials and policymakers of the nation will adopt a most suitable approach to the current crisis of the region,'' the Tehran Times said Thursday, as quoted by the Islamic Republic News Agency.

While the English daily Kayhan International said the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait was unacceptable, it also raised anti-American sentiments, charging the United States with fomenting tension between Iraq and Iran and attempting to orchestrate the latest developments in the current crisis.

Kayhan criticized the U.S. presence in the region as a pretext to dictate oil pricing policy and blasted Saudi Arabia's decision to allow deployment of foreign troops on Saudi soil. Saudi Arabia is home to Islam's two holiest cities, Mecca and Medina.

''The Americans must go and her allies must persuade her to do so before she drags the world into turmoil with vastly unpredictable consequences,'' the newspaper said. ''When that is accomplished dealing with Iraq can take place in an atmosphere of calm in the community of neighbors.''

Asked about Iraq's overture to Iran, President Bush said the proposal did not seem to have any impact on the Iraqi-Kuwait conflict and appeared ''to be another effort to separate the Arab countries and create a diversion.''

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA (AUG. 16) UPI - Spear-wielding mobs attacked passengers of a train and clashes erupted elsewhere in the black township of Soweto Thursday, killing at least three people amid spreading factional fighting that has left more than 145 dead in three days.

Another 55 people were wounded, 15 seriously, in the morning clashes which were the first in Soweto since fighting erupted in three townships east of Johannesburg, Police spokesman Capt. Joseph Ngobeni said.

At least two people were stabbed to death and a third found burned near the railway station, where witnesses reported an angry crowd of up to 400, armed spears, sticks and some firearms, launched an assault at dawn, he said.

Witnesses said the attackers began dragging passengers off before police arrived. Several ambulances ferried away the injured, they said.

By mid-morning, rival mobs massed near a hostel, but witnesses said police fired tear gas and separated the two factions. The witnesees described the situation as tense.

Some 100 hostel dwellers, described by other residents as members of the Zulu movement Inkatha, massed outside the hostel. Police separated them from a rival crowd of about 300 residents - many armed with knives, axes and forks. A civic leader said local residents were demanding police disarm the alleged Inkatha members.

The factional violence spread to Soweto after three days of pitched battles in three townships east of Johannesburg where 143 people were killed and more than 320 wounded in one of the worst explosions of internecine strife in years.

Police described the running battles through hostels and squatter settlements that began Monday as a tribal conflict between Zulus and Xhosas. But officials of the African National Congress blamed the bloodshed on their arch-rivals, the exclusively Zulu movement Inkatha of Mangosuthu Buthelezi.

No incidents were immediately reported in the townships where the violence erupted Monday.

MOSCOW (AUG. 16) UPI - President Mikhail Gorbachev will interrupt his vacation and return to the capital for talks with Boris Yeltsin on the nation's troubled economy, the official news agency Tass said Thursday.

Yeltsin, leader of the huge Russian republic, returned from a trip around Russia Wednesday for the talks.

Gorbachev and Yeltsin agreed Aug. 1 to join forces to work out a plan for moving the Soviet Union toward a market economy, based on Yeltsin's bold 500-day economic plan for his republic.

The news agency Tass said that Gorbachev was expected to return to Moscow in the next several days to participate in the talks on the economy.

MOSCOW (AUG. 16) UPI - Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has restored Soviet citizenship to Nobel laureate Alexander Solzhenitsyn and 22 other writers, scientists and intellectuals exiled for their political beliefs, an aide to the president said Thursday.

Acting press secretary Valentin Kulikov confirmed reports that Gorbachev's blanket decree Wednesday included Solzhenitsyn, the bearded Russian nationalist author who was kicked out of his country in 1974 and now lives on an 80-acre estate in Cavendish, Vt.

''This document cancels 21 decrees by the U.S.S.R. Supreme Soviet presidium,'' Kulikov told the official Tass news agency. ''Soviet citizenship has been restored to 23 representatives of the artistic and scientific intelligentsia.''

Kulikov specifically cited Solzhenitsyn as well as well-known writers Vasili Aksyonov, Vladimir Voinovich, Georgi Vladimov and Lev Kopelev, physicist Yuri Orlov, chess player Viktor Korchnoi and economist Valeri Chalidze.

Tass did not mention any names or quote Gorbachev's decree directly Wednesday in a brief report on the order, saying only that it covered an unspecific number of people exiled between 1966 and 1988, but officials said the order almost certainly covered Solzhenitsyn.

Kulikov did not cite Josef Brodsky, the dissident poet who left the Soviet Union in 1972 and received the Nobel Prize for Literature three years ago.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Yuri Gremitskikh said Wednesday that he believed the decree applied to Brodsky.

Solzhenitsyn, 71, won the Nobel Prize for Literature in 1970 for his epic ''The Gulag Archipelago,'' a multi-volume indictment of Josef Stalin's prison camps. He was exiled in 1974.

Kulikov said the presidential decree took effect with its signing, allows the exiles to return to the Soviet Union whenever they want and instructs the Foreign Ministry ''to facilitate, according to their wishes, the issuing of passports of citizens of the U.S.S.R.''

(AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq's foreign minister says his country is willing to start a dialogue with the United States on the Persian Gulf crisis. But Tarek Aziz said that Washington must talk ''in a civilized respectable manner.'' In Kennebunkport, Maine, President Bush meets today with Jordan's King Hussein for talks that could have a major impact on the crisis. Hussein reportedly is bringing a Jordanian-Iraqi proposal for a settlement.

A possible breakthrough is reported in the hostage situation in Lebanon. A Pro-Syrian Lebanese newspaper quotes well-informed diplomatic sources as saying positive developments will occur in the ''coming few days.'' The paper says the release of Swiss national Elio Erriquez marked the start of a ''staged process'' to free Western hostages in Lebanon. A British Embassy source says the report canNOT be confirmed.

More people were killed today in black factional fighting in South Africa that has now spread to the huge Soweto township near Johannesburg. Police say spear-wielding mobs attacked passengers on a train, killing at least two people. Witnesses say the situation is tense. (AUG. 16) UPI - Stock prices on the Tokyo Stock Exchange closed lower Thursday amid futures-linked selling and profit taking following Wednesday's monumental 5.4 percent rise.

The blue-chip Nikkei Average of 225 selected issues, which surged 1,439.59 points Wednesday, fell 562.68 points or 2 percent to 27,549.44.

The Nikkei's fall was less severe for the broader-based Tokyo Stock Exchange Price Index, which fell 32.13 points, or 1.5 percent, to 2,067.36. TOPIX, which measures all shares on the exchange, gained 79.16 points Wednesday.

Declines outpaced advances 618 to 283, while 166 issues remained unchanged.

Volume remained light as an estimated 300 million shares changed hands, compared with 459 million shares Wednesday.

Analysts said the correction had been expected, as factors such as uncertainty about the Middle East conflict and fundamental weakness have not changed.

Market watchers blamed the drop on profit-taking and arbitrage selling as major market players stood back to await Middle East developments.

Brokers said the optimism about a resolution of the Middle East crisis evaporated with reports of Iraq's bid to make peace with Iran and tough words from President Bush.

The market interpreted Iraq's move as strengthening the hand of its dictator, Saddam Hussein.

But underlying the Middle East worries were intrinsic weaknesses in the Tokyo market, analysts said.

While oil-supply worries are receding, interest-rate fears are not, brokers said.

Arbitrage selling of the Nikkei-linked shares drove some investors to smaller stocks, analysts said.

While large-capital stocks such as Sony, Hitachi and Toshiba fell, smaller retailers, electronic game-makers and consumer-goods issues fared well.

Elsewhere in Asia, stock prices on the Hong Kong Stock Exchange posted moderate gains in light trading as investors searched for bargains at lower levels.

The market's leading barometer, the Hang Seng Index, which surged 110.74 points Wednesday, added another 5.02 points to 3,183.29.

Among the narrower indexes, financials lost 9.17 points, utilities added 36.94, industrials slipped 6.04 and properties inched up 14.13 points.

An estimated 1.06 billion shares changed hands, compared with 1.43 billion shares Wednesday.

At the sound of the opening bell, strong profit-taking sliced more than 38 points off the market in early action, but some bargain-hunting took hold around midday, erasing most of the early losses.

In Singapore, stocks finished mixed in moderate trading on the Singapore Stock Exchange amid some profit taking and renewed concern over the Middle East crisis.

The key Straits Times Industrial Index, which climbed 35.68 points Wednesday, eased 1.04 points to 1,329.36. The narrower All Singapore Index rose 0.19 point to 382.16.

An estimated 71.1 million shares chnaged hands, compared with 85 million shares Wednesday.

Analysts said investors who were optimistic Wednesday that tensions in the Middle East were easing returned to their cautious stance.

On the trading floor, Perlis Plant paced the advancing issues followed by Sungei Way and Shell.

Magnum Corp. led the declining issues followed by GB Holdings and Golden Plus.

Elsewhere around the region, in Bangkok, stock prices climbed more than 2 percent on the Stock Exchnage of Thailand.

The Stock Exchange of Thailand, or SET, Index closed surged 24.55 points to 934.13.

An estimated 4.1 billion shares changed hands, almost 2 billion shares more than Wednesday's volume.

Advances hammered declines, 141 to 44.

The best-performing sectors were banking, commerce, industry and textile.

In Seoul, stock prices on the Korea Stock Exchnage closed lower in modest trading.

The Korean Composite Stock Price Index fell 7.27 points to 625.03.

Declines outpaced advances 551 to 159, while 149 issues remained unchanged.

Analysts said prices eased as local institutional investors actively stepped into the market to reverse the market's recent bearish mood.

In Australia, stock prices on the Sydney Sharemarket closed lower in moderate trading amid some profit taking in the gold sector and the renewed selling in Tokyo.

The All Ordinaries index, which eased 1.0 point Wednesday, slipped 4.1 points to 1,558.9. The All Industrials index rose 2.1 points to 2,338.0 and the All Resources index fell 8.0 points to 953.8.

A weaker gold price triggered modest profit taking in the gold miners. Placer Pacific eased 8 cents to $3.60, Homestake Mining eased 3 cents to $1.50, Newmont slipped 2 cents to $1.18, Kidston lost 7 cents to $2.78 and WMC Mining lost 8 cents to $5.48.

Oil issues ended mixed in line with a weaker oil price. BHP fell 10 cents to $11.10 while Santos Oil rose 3 cents to $4.93.

Elsewhere, there was some scattered buying in the industrials in the wake of rumors that the Australian government was about to ease local interest rates.

In the banks, NAB lost 2 cents to $6.70 and ANZ Bank fell 3 cents to $4.64.

(AUG. 16) UPI - More than 4,500 foreigners including two Americans crossed into Jordan Thursday from Iraq, Jordanian sources said, and Iraq made good on its peace overture to Iran by offering to release 2,000 Iranian prisoners a day.

The two Americans who arrived were the first U.S. citizens to cross into Jordan from Iraq since a group of 11 Americans - diplomats, their dependents and a 10-year-old girl - arrived in the Jordanian capital of Amman Saturday after being turned back at the border twice.

Three Britons and a French citizen also were among the 4,500 foreigners who crossed into Jordan, the sources said. It was not clear how the foreigners left Iraq or under what terms.

Iraqi officials have said thousands of foreigners in Iraq were ''safe and secure'' and their departures had been delayed as a precautionary measure.

Tens of thousands of foreigners, including some 3,000 Americans, remain trapped in Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait. Arab nationals have found it easier to leave Iraq.

The exodus was reported as the Iraqi News Agency said Iraq would release on a daily basis 2,000 Iranians captured during the eight-year war with Iraq that ended in 1988, as the focus of the Persian Gulf crisis shifted to a potentially pivotal meeting between President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein in Maine.

As Iraq continued its peace overture to old foe Iran, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz said his nation is willing to discuss with the United States a settlement to the Persian Gulf crisis without conditions but accused Washington of repeatedly rejecting Baghdad's overtures.

Aziz also issued a warning to the United States during an interview Wednesday on the ABC News program ''Nightline'' in the Iraqi capital.

"If they want to talk to us in a civilized respectable manner, we are ready,'' Aziz said. But if war breaks out, he said, ''The American government will lose that war and it will be humiliated. We don't want to see America humiliated. We don't want to fight the Americans. We don't want to kill the Americans.''

Aziz said Iraq's offer to start a direct dialogue with the United States without conditions has been rejected by Washington several times. The State Department had no immediate comment on Aziz's contention.

Earlier Wednesday, White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the United States was not looking to make any deals with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Instead, Fitzwater said Washington wanted the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all Iraqi troops that invaded Kuwait Aug. 2 in a land and oil dispute.

President Bush said Wednesday in an address to some 2,000 Pentagon employees, ''No one should doubt (the United States') staying power or determination'' in its efforts to defend Saudi Arabia and restore to power Kuwait's ousted leadership.

As U.S. and Iraqi leaders expressed their resolve, Washington continued to expand its military might in the region in response to Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and its massing of troops on the Saudi border. Saudi Arabia is one of the United States' biggest oil suppliers.

The Pentagon said it is sending radar-evading F-117 ''stealth'' fighter-bombers to the Middle East, first used in combat during the U.S. invasion of Panama in December.

The Bush administration also was considering mobilizing the reserves to help fill in for troops going to Saudi Arabia, and a fourth aircraft carrier, the USS John F. Kennedy, left port for the Middle East. The United States has sent 55 warships to the region as part of an international naval force.

The Pentagon said 45,000 heavily armed Marines were arriving in Saudi Arabia to confront Iraq in Operation Desert Shield, joining 26,000 U.S. troops already in the oil-rich kingdom. The overseas buildup is the United States' biggest since the Vietnam War.

On the diplomatic front, Jordan's King Hussein was in the United States for a meeting Thursday with Bush at the president's vacation home in Maine. Hussein brought with him a Jordanian-Iraqi plan for solving the gulf crisis.

An Arab diplomat said the plan called for an international conference to settle the gulf dispute, provided no more troops are sent into the area.

Jordan, as Iraq's only route to bypassing an U.N.-mandated trade embargo, has been thrust into the middle of the crisis. Jordan is permitting its Red Sea port of Aqaba to allow in limited shipments of food and other material, which is then sent to Iraq over land.

Sources said shipping into the port had diminished Wednesday and there was no new cargo to unload.

INVERNESS, FL (AUG. 16) UPI - A prisoner has sued his jailers for more than $50,000, saying they discriminated against him by separating him from the gay lover he was arrested with.

Charles L. Miller, 23, of Crystal River, filed a handwritten lawsuit Tuesday saying that he and his 19-year-old best friend and lover were harassed and discriminated against at the Citrus County Jail because they are homosexuals.

Sheriff's Cpl. Diane Merceus, a jailer, is named in the lawsuit as a co-defendant with the Citrus County Jail and the Citrus County Sheriff's Office.

In a telephone call Wednesday to the Tampa Tribune, Miller said he and his lover, whose identity was not released, were singled out because of their sexual preference.

''They know me and him are gay and they're just doing this out of the evil in their hearts because they have the power,'' Miller said.

Miller and the other inmate were arrested Aug. 1 in a car that was reported stolen, according to sheriff's records. Miller is charged with grand theft of an automobile, his friend with being a fugitive from burglary and drug charges.

Miller said he thinks authorities are worried the two would have sex if they were allowed to be together.

''How can they jump to the conclusion that just because we're gay we're going to have sex together?'' he asked. ''We know the rules. We respect the rules of the institution.''

Jail Administrator Roberta Moffatt said inmates are not allowed to receive messages except through the mail, nor did she know know Miller had been permitted to telephone the newspaper. She refused to allow the second inmate to be interviewed.

PITTSBURGH (AUG. 16) UPI - After a 2 1/2 year struggle to emerge from bankruptcy, Allegheny International Inc. will have to wait a little longer for its new owner to assume control.

Japonica Partners, an investment group based in New York and Rhode Island, was scheduled to take over the troubled appliance maker Wednesday but the deal was delayed until Sept. 7. AI management confirmed the delay but gave no details.

A lawyer involved in the bankrtupcy court proceedings said the arrangement hit a snag when AI failed to obtain approval from the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for a license transfer.

Robert Sable, an attorney for AI's committee of unsecured creditors, said AI needed the NRC's permission to transfer control of its former Chemetron subsidiary.

''The change in control of the license needs NRC approval or there could be all kinds of sanctions,'' he said.

Chemetron obtained a license in the 1960s for one of its facilities to manufacture a product that used a radioactive substance. The facility has since been sold.

But ''once you have that license, there are certain reporting requirements and certain clean-up requirements,'' Sable said. He said the NRC typically takes two weeks to process such requests.

Japonica will own about 90 percent of stock in AI when it emerges from Chapter 11 bankruptcy protection. The company's name will be changed to Sunbeam/Oster Companies and its headquarters will be kept in Pittsburgh.

To complete the acquisition, Japonica must provide $110 million in cash or a bank letter of credit to cover working capital and administrative costs, along with $97 million the group says already has been promised by its chief backers - Steinhardt Partners and Mutual Shares - to help pay bank and trade creditor claims.

Japonica also must pay a maximum of $94.9 million to exercise a so-called put agreement with creditors and shareholders. The investors have said there will be no problem obtaining financial commitments to finance the takeover.

The group, led by former Goldman Sachs & Co. investment bankers Paul Kazarian and Michael Lederman, already has spent $125 million to buy claims against AI and will use $270 million in AI's cash to complete the transaction.

Creditors and shareholders will be paid primarily in new stock and warrants. However, the put agreement requires Japonica to repurchase those securities, as well as AI's current stock, from anyone who wants to sell within 45 days.

(AUG. 16) UPI - The Labor Department says consumer prices rose four-tenths of one percent in July, with housing and food costs contributing to the jump. Housing rose nine-tenths of one percent- the same as June- and food prices gained four-tenths of one percent, the second straight monthly increase. Energy costs eased a bit, falling seven-tenths of one percent in July. However, higher August prices are expected because of the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait. For the first seven months of 1990, inflation is running at an annual rate of five-point-eight percent.

Bad news for the building and real estate industries this morning. The Commerce Department reports new housing starts fell by two-point-six percent in July. The figures have dropped for six months in a row and are at their lowest level since the 1982 recession, highlighting a struggling domestic economy. Only the western states experienced an increase in new housing starts last month.

President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein meet at the president's vacation home in Kennebunkport, Maine, this afternoon to discuss the Persian Gulf crisis. The Bush adminstration is taking a low-key attitude about the meeting, but it's clear the talks may have an important impact on the crisis. Hussein is believed to be carrying a Jordanian-Iraqi peace plan.

Iranian newspapers are proclaiming victory over Baghdad, one day after Iraqi President Saddam Hussein made a peace offering to settle more than a decade of hostilities. Saddam says Iraqi troops will begin pulling away from border positions tomorrow and indicated there will be a prisoner exchange. The Iranian papers also criticize American intervention in the Middle East.

(AUG. 16) UPI - A pro-Syrian Lebanese newspaper is quoting well-informed diplomatic sources as saying the Persian Gulf crisis has renewed efforts to free the Western hostages being held in Lebanon. The report says a ''staged process'' will lead an imminent breakthrough in the hostage situation during the next few days. A Swiss hostage was released earlier this week.

The U-N Food and Agriculture Organization does NOT have good news about the world's tropical forests. In a report released in Kenya yesterday, the organization says tropical forests are disappearing twice as fast as estimated 10 years ago. In 1980, 37-thousand square miles of tropical forest land was deforested. 10 years later, 66-thousand square miles were felled- an area the size of Oklahoma.

A Japanese climber was rescued today from a mountain north of Wellington, New Zealand, after surviving five days of blizzard conditions. Earlier this week, six soldiers froze to death on the North Island mountain. 27-year-old Jojo Iwama says he listened with fear to reports of the soldiers' deaths and stalled rescue efforts to find him. Iwama says he tried to climb down the mountain Saturday, but was hampered by weather conditions.

CAIRO, EGYPT (AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq allowed more than 4,500 foreigners, including two Americans, to cross its border into Jordan Thursday and extended its peace overture to former enemy Iran by offering to repatriate 2,000 Iranian prisoners a day.

As Jordan's King Hussein prepared to meet with President Bush on the Middle East situation, Western diplomats monitoring the Persian Gulf crisis raised doubts about reports of a possible assassination attempt on Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The reports, which the diplomats could not confirm, were carried by Egypt's semi-official Middle East New Agency and quoted Egyptian workers returning home from Iraq.

''People returning back home from Iraq via Jordan talked about wide-scale arrests of military people and civilians in Iraq which took place Wednesday,'' MENA said, ''and said the arrests included tens of officers of various ranks particularly smaller ranks, in what apparently is believed to be part of an assassination attempt against Saddam at the hands of poeple close to Saddam.''

The report comes amid a propoganda war between Iraq and Egypt, which has been consistantly assailing Saddam and his role in the Arab world. Egypt Thursday deployed a second contingent of troops to stand alongside U.S. military forces in Saudi Arabia to deter further Iraqi aggression.

The two Americans who arrived in Jordan were the first U.S. citizens to cross into Jordan from Iraq since a group of 11 Americans arrived in the Jordanian capital of Amman Saturday after being turned back at the border twice.

The estimated 4,700 foreigners who crossed into Jordan Thursday were mostly Egyptians but three Britons and a French citizen were among them, Jordanian sources said.

Iraqi officials have said tens of thousands of foreigners, including about 3,000 Americans, in Iraq and Iraq-occupied Kuwait were ''safe and secure'' and their departures had been delayed as a precautionary measure.

The focus of the crisis created by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion and annexation of Kuwait, meanwhile, shifted to a potentially pivotal meeting between President Bush and King Hussein in Maine.

Jordanian officials say Hussein is carrying a peace initiative that he drafted jointly this week with Saddam. CBS news quoted Jordanian sources as saying Saddam is proposing that U.S. troops levels in Saudi Arabia be frozen and that an international conference be convened to consider terms for withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait.

But White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the administration had no indication of what, if any, message Hussein may have.

Jordan, as Iraq's only route to bypassing an U.N. trade embargo, has been thrust into the middle of the crisis. Jordan is permitting its Red Sea port of Aqaba to allow in limited shipments of food and other material, which is then sent to Iraq over land.

Iraq has begun wooing non-Arab Iran in an effort to seek new alliances amid a tighting trade embargo and U.S.-led military buildup and it stepped up its anti-American rhetoric Thursday hours after Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz said his nation is willing to discuss a settlement with the United States.

In an interview with ABC from Baghdad, Aziz said Iraq's offer to start a direct dialogue with Washington without conditions had been rejected several times. The Bush administration has consistently said it wanted the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all Iraqi troops in Kuwait.

''If they want to talk to us in a civilized respectable manner, we are ready,'' Aziz said. But if war breaks out, he said, ''the American government will lose that war and it will be humiliated. We don't want to see America humiliated. We don't want to fight the Americans. We don't want to kill the Americans.''

Bush has ordered tens of thousands of U.S. troops into Saudi Arabia last week to counter any further Iraqi aggression in the oil-rich region. Saudi Arabia is one of the United States' biggest oil suppliers.

Egypt deployed a second detachment of troops to Saudi Arabia Thursday but it was not clear how many Egyptian soldiers were involved, Egypt's Middle East News Agency reported. Quoting an Egyptian Defense Ministry source the Asharq al Awsat reported the troop level of Egyptian forces could reach 50,000.

Moroccan troops also have been deployed in Saudi Arabia and Syrian officials are organizing a contingent to participate in an Arab force created by the Arab League to protect the region from Iraqi aggression.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - New housing construction plunged 2.6 percent in July, for the sixth consecutive monthly drop, to the lowest level since the 1982 recession, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

''It looks like we're going to have housing leading the economy into recession,'' said David Seiders, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

Only the western states experienced an increase in housing starts in July.

Despite lower mortgage rates last month, consumers steered clear of the housing market because of the possibility of losing their jobs in the weakening economy, analysts said.

Blaming the careening housing construction figures on ''underlying weakness in buyer demand,'' Seiders predicted the United States will be mired in a recession from October to March.

The Commerce Department said applications for new housing permits also fell 2.6 percent last month in another wave of bad news for the battered building and real estate industries.

The last time new housing construction fell for six straight months was from June 1981 to November 1981, also during the worst recession since the Great Depression of the 1930s, a government spokesman said.

July's annual rate of 1.148 million housing starts was the weakest showing since 1.148 million in September 1982, according to data compiled by the department's Census Bureau.

''It's pretty much in the doldrums. It's pretty much broad based. The whole housing sector is weak,'' said Robert Rosenblatt, an economist at the Mortgage Bankers Association, who also forsees a recession.

Single-family housing construction slid 1.4 percent in July, while construction of apartment building with two, three and four units tumbled by 13.5 percent and construction of apartment buildings with more than five units dropped 5.4 percent.

''The multi-family side is (already) in deep recession,'' Seiders said. ''On the single-family side we see this gradual erosion, but it hasn't fallen off the cliff yet.''

By region, new housing construction fell 5.3 percent in July in the Northeast, declined 5.5 percent in the Midwest, plunged 6.7 percent in the South, but increased 8.1 percent in the West.

In June, total housing starts fell a revised 2.2 percent after dipping 0.8 percent in May. The last monthly advance, in January, was attributed to unseasonably warm weather across the nation.

The Commerce Department also said that new housing construction permits were up a revised 4 percent in June after falling 3.8 percent in May.

MEMPHIS, TN (AUG. 16) UPI - Hundreds of red roses covered the grave of Elvis Presley Thursday - the 13th anniversary of his death - while more than 8,000 fans paid tribute with a candlelight vigil that lasted almost until dawn.

Graceland officials said the estimated 8,000 fans who began the vigil at 10 p.m. Wednesday and continued until near first light was the largest crowd since the 10,000-plus who took part on the 10th anniversary of the death of the ''King of Rock 'n' Roll.''

The vigil was the highlight of Elvis International Tribute Week. Thousands of Elvis fans flock to Memphis each year to commemorate Presley's death on Aug. 16, 1977, at 42.

Presley collapsed in an upstairs bedroom of the pink marble home. Although his death was attributed to heart failure, the autopsy report, which has never been released, reportedly showed drugs in his system.

Bill Rowe, of Dayton, Ohio, was the first fan in line for the vigil, getting in line at 8 a.m. Wednesday to be the first to follow Elvis's aunt Lois Black, and four of her friends up the walkway at Graceland to Meditation Gardens.

''It's a chance for everybody to show the world he hasn't been forgotten '' Rowe said.

Presley has been far from forgotten.

A never-before-released recording by Presley is included on an RCA release this week - ''Elvis: The Great Performances.'' One of the releases is ''My Happines,'' one of two songs from the 1953 recording Elvis made for his mother at Sun Studio.

The recording was missing for years before resurfacing two years ago in the hands of retired Florida pilot Ed Leek, who had received it from Elvis.

Sue Fakes, of Calgary, Alberta, said Elvis is her inspiration.

''Elvis is No. 1 in my life,'' Fakes said. ''He's been there for me since I was 8 years old, pulled me through good times and bad times. He's an inspiration. He was such a humanitarian and his music was great, too.''

Such are the sentiments of most Elvis fans - from the sequined-costumed impersonators to the 8-year-old members of Elvis's youngest fan club.

Among those taking part in the activities Wednesday was Kim Epperley of Roanoke, Va., who has in her yard a miniature Graceland where Presley croons and gyrates every evening. The exhibit comes complete with an audience of 30 Barbie dolls and a backup band, all stuffed inside a 3-foot-tall coliseum dubbed Presley Hall.

Epperly said part of her was in Roanoke - where about 100 people made their annual pilgrimage to her front yard for Roanoke's version of the vigil.

''People don't really know what the Elvis fans are about,'' Epperly said. ''They call us nuts. We're not nuts. We're just trying to carry on what Elvis did and that was to make people happy.

''Elvis affects all kinds of people,'' said Epperley, her voice sounding a little sadder as she talked about his death. ''When he passed away, you just never had thought about Elvis leaving us. You just assumed he would grow old with you.''

Although many Memphians complain about the Elvis fanatics who invade their city each August, Memory Lane Inn manager Bruce Harrison says he loves Elvis and his fans.

Fans fill up the motel just down the street from Graceland each year, taking advantage of 24-hour-a-day Elvis programming, the guitar-shaped pool and pictures of Elvis in each room.

''Elvis fans don't steal,'' Harrison said. ''They've turned me into an Elvis fan. You never get tired of Elvis standing behind this desk. I was lukewarm about Elvis before but I've even gone home and dreamed about him.''

BAALBECK, LEBANON (AUG. 16) UPI - A Lebanese magazine reported Thursday a preliminary breakthrough in negotiations over Western hostages in Lebanon but a pro-Iranian leader later ruled out freedom for the six abducted Americans.

''I exclude the release of any of the U.S. hostages because of the aggressive policy adopted by the United States in the region and its intervention in the gulf against the Moslems,'' said Seyyed Hussein Musawi leader of the Iranian-backed Islamic Amal movement, at his residence in Baalbeck, an ancient city 50 miles east of Beirut.

The pro-Syrian publication As-Safir, quoting well-informed diplomatic sources, said ''positive developments concerning the destiny of Western captives kidnapped in Lebanon will occu crisis in the Persian Gulf had revived efforts to release 14 Western hostages, including six Americans, held in Lebanon by pro-Iranian Shiite Moslems.

''Clandestine contacts have been conducted involving concerned countries, notably Tehran, as well as Lebanese and Palestinian parties,'' the pro-Syrian As-Safir said.

The newspaper said the release of Swiss national Elio Erriquez this week ''constituted the beginning of a staged process (to free the hostages) that will be concluded by the end of this year.''

''We have no knowledge of any breakthrough,'' a British embassy source told United Press International. ''Therefore, we cannot confirm the report by As-Safir.''

Erriquez was released along with Swiss colleague Emmanuel Christen within four days, reducing to 14 the number of Western captives in the war-ravaged nation.

But the release of the two Swiss nationals, believed held by followers of Palestinian extremist leader Sabri Al Banna, widely known as Abu Nidal, were released after Switzerland paid an estimated $3 million ransom.

The fate of the Western hostages has been caught up with the recent developments in the gulf, brought to brink of war by Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait and the United State's subsequent deployment of troops to the region.

Islamic Jihad, a shadowy pro-Iranian group that took responsiblity for kidnapping Americans Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland, had demanded the release of 16 Moslem Shiites serving prison terms in Kuwait for their involvement in bombing attacks. Iraq took the Shiites from the prison when it invaded Kuwait city, but there fate is not known.

Observers have speculated Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will use the 16 Shiites as leverage in any negotiations with the United States. He may also free the convicted men in order to demonstrate his good intentions to Iran, which is believed to control the Shiite groups that are holding the Western hostages in Lebanon.

Saddam made peace overtures to Iran Wednesday, urging the Iranians to lay aside the bitter 1980-1988 Iran-Iraq war and join forces against the United States.

''A way to prove his (Saddam's) good intention is by setting free those people who confrontated the United States's influence in the region,'' Musawi said of the 16 prisoners, who were found guilty of bombing Western embassies.

''We doubt that Saddam Hussein can make such a move (to free the prisoners) because he fears the Americans,'' he added.

The United States had applauded Kuwait for keeping the 16 Shiites behind bars, even though their release may have meant freedom for the two Americans.

Another Lebanese newspaper, the conservative Al Liwaa daily, reported Tuesday that four Belgian hostages, believed held by Abu Nidal's Fatah Revolutionary Council, would be released this week as a result of a deal between Belgium and the kidnappers.

''We have no comment on the report,'' said council spokesman Walid Khaled. ''Things have not been finalized yet.''

The four Belgians, a husband and wife and their two teenage children, disappeared in 1987, reportedly when they were cruising in a pleasure boat in the Mediterranean.

The Belgians have not been counted with the 14 other Western hostages because the council is believed funded by Libya, not Iran.

IRVING, TX (AUG. 16) UPI - Former All-Pro running back Tony Dorsett has taken his first major step toward an NFL comeback with a workout for Cowboys Director of Pro Personnel John Wooten at the Cowboys headquarters.

Dorsett, 36, who finished his 12-year career with the Denver Broncos, says its the first time he has done any kind of sprint work or hard cuts since he seriously injured his left knee in a non-contact drill in last summer, during Broncos training camp.

Dorsett initiated the workout to see if there is any point in pursuing a comeback with the Cowboys or another NFL team.

''The main concern is whether or not I can play again. From today, I feel I can,'' Dorsett said after Wednesday's workout.

Dorsett had 11 seasons with Dallas (1977-87) and became the team's all-time leading rusher with just over 12,036 yards. He is the NFL's No. 2 all-time leading rusher with 12,739 yards.

He and Wooten were pleased with the workout and Dorsett's rehabilitated knee. He underwent major reconstructive surgery after the injury which prompted his retirement six months ago.

Wooten will recommend to Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson that running backs coach Joe Brodsky work with Dorsett when the team returns from California next week. If the Cowboys have no interest in Dorsett, another NFL team probably will at least look at him, Wooten said.

WITH U.S. FORCES IN SAUDI ARABIA (AUG. 16) UPI - A U.S. military field hospital set up on the sands of this desert kingdom is prepared to treat American casualties if Iraqi forces employ chemical warfare.

Air Force Maj. Rich Williams, the hospital commander, said Thursday any injured soldiers would go to a decontamination unit in the hospital complex where gas would be washed from their bodies before they were treated.

The first U.S. field hospital in the kingdom resembles the M.A.S.H. unit in the movie and the television series of the same name.

In the largest U.S. military deployment since the Vietnam War, a tent city to house a fighter wing took shape near the hospital.

Complete with air conditioning and the 50-bed hospital, the tents will house at least 1,100 men and women of the 1st Tactical Fighter Wing from Langley Air Force Base in Virginia.

Host Saudi forces cleared two elementary schools so American personnel would have air conditioned places to sleep and rest.

''This is an awesome airlift,'' said Col. John McBroom, the wing commander as the desert base took shape. ''You don't get them any bigger than this.''

The heat was so intense that troops putting up tents could work only 20 minutes at a stretch before resting and drinking water. They are told to drink a quart of water an hour.

''I just got kind of nauseous and weak,'' said an airman from Sarasota, Fla., who was treated at the hospital for heat stress, ''but I'll get back at it. That's what we're here for.''

The airman said he had been slinging a sledgehammer and had failed to take enough breaks.

The colonel added, ''Ninety-five percent of them will go so hard at it, even in this heat, that you have to pull them back.''

Air Force officials said about 15 cases of minor heat stress a day require treatment.

Although U.S. forces are told to drink six gallons of water a day, some of those interviewed said they are finding it difficult to adjust to the desert heat.

''We'll never get used to it,'' an Air Force captain said. ''All we can do is drink and drink and complain a bit.''

U.S. Air Force crew chiefs told American reporters Thursday that Iraqi jet pilots have several times retreated after weapons systems aboard American jets locked onto their planes.

''They don't want to play with us,'' one said. ''If I were in a Mirage and an F-15 locked onto me, I'd get out of there fast too.''

McBroom refused to confirm the reports and said he has told his pilots not to discuss encounters with Iraqi jets.

''I'm not going to get into our encounters,'' he said. But he did say he considered U.S. air power here far superior to Iraq's.

''We're not over here to go to war,'' said the wing commander. ''We're over here to keep the peace. We will not start a war but we will finish one quickly in the air.''

Another officer and several crew chiefs said weapons systems aboard U.S. F-15s have locked onto Iraqi jets several times during flight missions near the Kuwaiti-Saudi border.

''One of my pilots told me they turn and run as soon as the radar locks on '' one crew chief said.

Another said, ''There's been a little cat-and-mouse but when the weapons lock on, they're gone.''

When asked again later about the encounters reported by crew chiefs, McBroom said: ''All I'll do is remind you our radar can lock on at a pretty good range. Beyond that you'll have to ask the Iraqis.''

McBroom said the fighter unit felt somewhat vulnerable on the ground when his unit arrived last week but has coordinated missions with the Saudis and received powerful ground protection from other U.S. forces, including the massive Patriot ground to air missile systems.

American reporters visited the fighter wing Thursday morning at a Saudi air base where it has had few equipment problems associated with the heat. They said most planes are kept outdoors because their electronic systems can be temporarily affected when going from a cool to hot environment.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Two Americans are among about 45-hundred foreigners who made it out of Iraq today. Jordanian sources reported that the 45-hundred foreigners crossed the border from Iraq into Jordan today and that the group also included three Britons and a French citizen. The Americans are the first to make it out of Iraq since Saturday. It is NOT clear yet how the group managed to get out of Iraq.

In Baghdad, the Iraqi News Agency said Iraq would release daily two-thousand Iranians captured during the eight-year Persian Gulf War with Iran. The prisoner release proposal is a furthering of yesterday's peace overture to the Iranians... action that could free up thousands of Iraqi troops to move from the Iranian border to into Kuwait and along the border with Saudi Arabia.

The focus of the Persian Gulf crisis is moving to a wood-shingled house near the sea in Maine. President Bush meets over lunch today with King Hussein of Jordan, who reportedly is carrying a secret message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Bush is expected to seek Jordanian support for the U-N-declared economic boycott against Iraq. Iraqi goods have been moving through Jordan to Baghdad.

A pro-Syrian newspaper reports ''the beginning of a staged process'' leading to a break-through for Western hostages held captive in Lebanon. The paper quoted informed diplomatic sources as saying ''positive developments concerning the destiny of Western captives kidnapped in Lebanon will occur in the coming few days.'' But a British Embassy source told U-P-I that ''we have NO knowledge of any break-through'' and could NOT confirm the report.

(AUG. 16) UPI - The Labor Department says inflation at the consumer level jumped four-tenths of one percent as higher shelter and food costs offset a dramatic fall in energy prices. For the second month in a row, food prices gained four-tenths of one percent during July. Energy costs fell seven-tenths of one percent, with decreases in both household and motor fuels. But that's sure to be short-lived because gasoline prices rose in the wake of Iraq's invasion of Kuwait this month.

A companion report shows that real earnings for July rose three-tenths of one percent, NOT enough to beat the pace of rising prices. Weekly earnings have increased three-point-eight percent from year-ago levels.

There's NO sign of early recovery for the battered housing construction industry in a government report on new building during July. New housing construction plunged two-point-six percent, to an annual rate of one-pointMillion housing starts. It's the sixth consecutive monthly drop and the lowest level since the 1982 recession. Permits for new building also fell two-point-six percent. By region, new housing construction fell almost across-the-board. Only Western states had an increase during July.

An aide says Soviet President Gorbachev has restored Soviet citizenship to Nobel Prize-winning writer Alexander Solzhenitsyn, who now lives in Vermont. Solzhenitsyn was kicked out of the Soviet Union in 1974. The Soviet aide says Gorbachev issued a blanket decree that covered the writer and 22 other writers, scientists and intellectuals who were exiled because of their political beliefs.

CHICAGO (AUG. 16) UPI - Trading was choppy and grain and soybean futures were higher at midmorning Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

The market was supported by follow-through buying, but met resistance at the highs and gave up some of the gains.

November soybeans rallied to $6.30 per bushel, which was the high for the week. Commercial and professional buying of soybeans was attributed to light country movement and steady basis levels.

Traders were on both sides of the corn market.

Gains in both corn and soybeans were limited by forecasts for rain and warmer weather through the weekend in much of the Midwest. However, soybeans had underlying support from predictions by some private forecasters of frost in the northern portion of the Soybean Belt next week.

Wheat prices moved in a narrow range in relatively light activity.

South Korea and the Philippines bought a small quantity of wheat overnight otherwise the export market was quiet.

The midmorning prices:

Corn Sep 2.48 1/4 up 3/4; Dec 2.44 3/4 up 1/2; Mar 2.53 up 1/2.

Soybeans Aug 6.13 unch; Sep 6.16 up 3/4; Nov 6.28 up 1; Jan 6.39 3/4 up 1/4.

ATHENS, GREECE (AUG. 16) UPI - Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani assured neighboring Turkey that, despite a peace offer from Baghdad, Iran still believes Iraqi troops should pull out of Kuwait, Tehran radio reported Thursday.

The assurance came in a telephone conversation between Rafsanjani and Turkish President Turgut Ozal following reports that Iraq had accepted all of Iran's demands for a settlement of the Iran-Iraq conflict, a Tehran radio dispatch monitored in Athens said.

Turkey has found itself in a front-line position in international efforts to contain Iraqi ambitions in the region and put its air force on alert following reports of an Iraqi troop buildup along the 200-mile border between the two countries.

Tehran radio quoted Rafsanjani as saying: ''The matter of our peace with Iraq is separate'' from Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait. ''We still believe that Iraq must leave Kuwaiti soil so that necessary grounds are established for peace and calm in the region.''

Iraq and Iran fought each other in a bitter Persian Gulf war that lasted for eight years, ending with a cease-fire in August 1988. Iraqi President Saddam Hussein, in a desperate bid for Arab support in the gulf region after he was spurned by most of his Arab allies following the invasion of Kuwait, unveiled a surprise peace package Wednesday for Iran.

The proposal includes an exchange of prisoners, a withdrawal of Iraqi troops from occupied Iranian territory and surrender to Iranian demands to share a disputed strategic waterway.

Iranian newspapers Thursday praised Saddam for his overture to settle the conflict between the two longtime foes. The papers also berated U.S intervention in the region.

''Congratulations on the great victory to the Iranian revolutionary nation '' the Persian language Jomhuri Eslamis said in its main headline. The English Tehran Times called the initiative by Saddam to his Persian Gulf war foe ''a courageous move.''

As a gesture of good will, Saddam said Iraq would withdraw troops along the Iranian-Iraqi border beginning Friday, a move that would provide Saddam with more forces for a possible showdown along his border with Saudi Arabia, where tens of thousands of U.S. and British forces have been deployed.

Tehran radio said Thursday that representatives of the International Committee of the Red Cross visited Iranian prisoner-of-war camps in Iraq Thursday and were preparing to supervise the transfer home of the POWs.

The official Islamic Republic News Agency said there were 55,000 Iranian POWs in Iraq, but only 35,000 were registered with the ICRC. An estimated 70,000 Iraqi POWs are held in Iran.

Egyptian and Moroccan troops have been stationed on Saudi soil and a Syrian contingent is expected to join in the creation of a pan-Arab force in the region.

Saddam said he hoped Persian Iran could cooperate with Arab Moslem Iraq to fight the forces of evil in the region, an apparent reference to Western forces deployed in the gulf and in Saudi Arabia.

Iran interpreted the Iraqi initiative as tantamount to capitulation by Baghdad on its former demands, according to Tehran radio. Iraqi and Iranian officials still must confer on the proposal.

''Now in this very sensitive juncture with a lasting peace just round the corner, it is hoped that the responsible officials and policymakers of the nation will adopt a most suitable approach to the current crisis of the region,'' the Tehran Times said Thursday, as quoted by IRNA.

While the English daily Kayhan International said the Iraqi annexation of Kuwait was unacceptable, it also raised anti-American sentiments, charging the United States with fomenting tension between Iraq and Iran and attempting to orchestrate the latest developments in the current crisis.

Kayhan criticized the U.S. presence in the region as a pretext to dictate oil pricing policy and blasted Saudi Arabia's decision to allow deployment of foreign troops on Saudi soil. Saudi Arabia is home to Islam's two holiest cities, Mecca and Medina.

''The Americans must go and her allies must persuade her to do so before she drags the world into turmoil with vastly unpredictable consequences,'' the newspaper said. ''When that is accomplished dealing with Iraq can take place in an atmosphere of calm in the community of neighbors.''

(AUG. 16) UPI - Yosemite National Park, damaged by three fires that raged over 22,680 scenic acres in the past week, will reopen this weekend for the last two weeks of the summer tourism season.

The announcement came as 23,000 firefighters and several thousand soldiers fought to surround dozens of wildfires that have burned hundreds of thousands of acres of forests and rangeland in seven Western states.

Yosemite National Park Superintendent Michael V. Finley said State Route 120 into the park would reopen Friday at noon and State Route 140 into Yosemite would open Monday but some roads and trails would remain closed indefinitely because of continuing firefighting and the danger of falling trees.

One firefighter was killed this week when he was hit on the head by a falling tree limb.

Three lightning-sparked wildfires forced the closure of the 750,000-acre park for the first time ever Friday and the evacuation of about 10,000 visitors and campers.

With 20,000 daily visitors in Yosemite during the peak August tourism season, the Curry Co., a private firm with a government contract to operate the park and its concessions, estimated the closure cost it hundreds of thousands of dollars per day.

One of the three Yosemite blazes, the 695-acre T-4 fire in Aspen Valley, was contained Wednesday and officials predicted the two larger fires that forced the park's closure would be contained by the end of the week.

The A Rock fire, which burned 17,568 acres in Yosemite and neighboring Stanislaus National Forest after backfires were set Tuesday, was 80 percent contained, while the 4,400-acre Steamboat blaze was 60 percent contained and was expected to be surrounded by 6 p.m. Thursday. Some 2,830 firefighters battled the three Yosemite blazes.

Visitors with reservations to camp or use other lodging at Yosemite during the time the park was closed were advised to contact Yosemite Park and Curry Co.

One firefighter was hospitalized Wednesday with neck and back injuries after being hit by a tumbling boulder at the park. Fourteen other injuries - most of them minor - have been reported among firefighters during the weeklong battle.

''We still have fires in the park,'' said Betsy Klopin, a park spokeswoman. ''The crews are trying to get rid of all of the safety hazards (prior to the park reopening). They will still be putting out embers next week.''

The state Department of Forestry estimated the cost of fighting some 1,300

California wildfires since Aug. 3 at about $45 million, plus salaries.

''This is a very expensive siege,'' spokeswoman Karen Terrill said. ''The usual cost for an entire fire season is $35 million. It's getting more and more expensive to cover these areas as people build more and more homes in wooded areas. It means we have to hire more personnel to do the job.''

Crews got help Thursday from 800 U.S. soldiers flown to Northern California from Fort Carson, Colo. Ten percent of firefighters in Tehama County were out of service due to poison oak.

The largest of the Western fires, the 121,600-acre Campbell complex blaze, was 90 percent contained Thursday, with full containment expected by evening. The nearby Finley Lake blaze in the Lassen National Forest also was 90 percent contained on 22,980 acres.

There were 2,335 people working on the Campbell fire and 2,134 on the Finley Lakes fire.

A 24,200-acre fire in Sequoia National Forest was 75 percent contained, although officials said a possibility of thunderstorms and winds could pose problems for firefighters.

In Humboldt County, three fires burned 16,400 acres, but they were listed as 35, 80 and 100 percent contained respectively.

More than 1,200 troops from Fort Lewis, Wash., were to relieve exhausted firefighters battling wildfires in Oregon Thursday. Another 1,200 troopers from Fort Carson, Colo., were headed for California.

Wind gusts to 30 mph drove the Snowshoe Complex fire across 800 to 1,000 acres of the Malheur National Forest 15 miles southeast of Prarie City Tuesday night, to cover 12,000-plus acres, Keim said. The nearby Sheep Mountain Complex fire also jumped the lines, growing by almost 1,000 acres to a total of 10,500 acres.

Smaller fires also burned Wednesday in Arizona, Idaho, Wyoming, Montana and Washington.

MANILA, PHILIPPINES (AUG. 16) UPI - The United States granted a $20 million loan to the Philippines Thursday to help repair and rehabilitate roads, school buildings and other public structures damaged by the July 16 earthquake.

The U.S. Agency for International Development said the loan was contained in a memorandum of understanding signed by U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt and Public Works Secretary Fiorello Estuar.

A U.S. Embassy press release said the money will be used to repair and rehabilitate roads and bridges, school buildings, markets and other infrastructure.

''I understand that funds will be available for the reconstruction and rehabilitation for over 250 primary schools, and I am delighted that we are able to provide this timely assistance,'' Platt said.

The military Office of Civil Defense said about 1,666 people died in the temblor, which measured 7.7 on the Richter scale. Another 460 were listed as missing and presumed dead and 3,561 were injured.

Damage to private and public property was about $900 million in at least nine cities, 39 towns and 15 provinces, OCD said.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Western diplomats say they tend to disbelieve reports that Iraqi President Saddam Hussein was the target of a possible assassination attempt. Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency quoted Egyptians leaving Iraq. They said people close to Saddam were involved in the attempt and that wide-scale arrests were made in Iraq yesterday of military people and civilians.

Today, President Bush and Jordan's King Hussein discuss the Persian Gulf crisis at Bush's seaside home in Kennebunkport, Maine. Hussein has a secret message from Saddam. A network news report says it proposes a freeze on U-S troop levels in Saudi Arabia and an international conference to consider terms for Iraq's withdrawal from Kuwait.

Two Texas businessmen caught in Kuwait during the Iraqi invasion crossed the desert by car to make an early morning escape into Saudi Arabia. Officials say the men were in the Middle East representing Houston-based United Aerial Mapping and finalizing a deal with a Kuwaiti goverment ministry.

There was more violence today in a black area of South Africa. At least three people were killed when mobs attacked a train in Soweto near Johannesburg. Passengers were dragged from the train. Two people were reported stabbed to death and a third burned. Since Monday, factional fighting in South Africa has killed at least 145 people.

DANBURY, Conn. (AUG. 16) UPI - A panel of NASA investigators spent a second day Thursday trying to pinpoint the cause of the defect in the Hubble Space Telescope at the company where its faulty mirror was made a decade ago.

The panel arrived Wednesday at Hughes Danbury Optical Systems Inc., which was Perkin-Elmer Corp. when the flawed mirror for the $1.5 billion space telescope was built in 1981.

Lew Allen of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who is leading the investigators, planned to field questions from reporters at Hughes Danbury after completing discussions with company officials Thursday.

The investigators determined last week that the Hubble's blurred view of space may have been caused by a flaw in an instrument used to measure the observatory's mirror when it was being ground in 1981.

Preliminary results of tests conducted on a device at Hughes Danbury called a ''null corrector'' found a spacing in the instrument was off by about 1 millimeter off, which is about the diameter of a ball-point pen.

The discrepancy would explain the cause of a ''spherical aberration'' found in the mirror, NASA officials said. But the panel was withholding a definitive conclusion until the possibility of other problems was eliminated.

The long-awaited telescope, which was ferried into space in April, was expected to revolutionize astronomy by peering more deeply and with greater clarity into space than ever before.

Engineers, however, discovered that the telescope's supposedly perfect optical system was seriously flawed because the observatory's 94-inch mirror suffered from spherical aberration, meaning it was curved slightly incorrectly.

The telescope still can conduct valuable research and officials hope to correct the mirror problem by 1993, but the flaw seriously reduced the telescope's capabilities.

However, astronomers Monday released a picture of a star cluster they said demonstrated the telescope can take clearer pictures with the flaw than they had thought, and the images can be made sharper with computer enhancement.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Higher prices for food and shelter offset low July energy prices but consumer inflation still increased four-tenths of one percent for the month. Overall shelter costs gained nearly one percent, led by a one and one-half percent jump in renters' costs and a six-tenths of one percent gain in home-owner costs.

The Soviet news agency Tass says President Mikhail Gorbachev will interrupt his vacation to hold talks on the troubled Soviet economy. He will return to Moscow within a few days to meet with Boris Yeltsin, leader of the Russian republic. Gorbachev and Yeltsin have a goal of moving the Soviet Union to a market economy.

Fire investigators in Omaha, Nebraska, say a woman and two children were killed when an electrical malfunction triggered a fire that swept through their home today. A third child was critically injured. The blaze occurred hours after a three-year-old girl died in another Omaha fire from which six other children were rescued.

An Indianapolis teen-ager masquerading as a town marshal has been forced to turn in his badge. Officials say 19-year-old Jeffrey Rider completed paperwork from state officials to get a Wynndale municipal license plate and transfer his car's title to the town. SAN DIEGO (AUG. 16) UPI - Bumble Bee Seafoods Inc. said it will lay off 800 workers in its Puerto Rican cannery, in part because of the rising costs of producing dolphin-safe tuna.

The company said Wednesday it would cease production during the second shift at its facility in Mayaguez, P.R., the world's largest albacore cannery.

The plant will continue operation with its 1,000 remaining workers. Department of Labor officials will assist laid-off workers and a Job Center is being established to provide employment counseling at the site, Bumble Bee representatives said.

Bumble Bee, the third-largest U.S. tuna canner, announced along with other major tuna canners in April that it was phasing out tuna caught using fishing techniques that also caught dolphins.

That decision has meant higher costs of producing light-meat tuna at the Puerto Rican facility, a company spokesman said.

Michael D. McCulley, executive vice president of operations, said, ''In order to get dolphin-safe light meat tuna to Puerto Rico, we would have to choose one of two very expensive options.

''If we used fish caught in the Western Pacific where dolphin-safe fishing techniques are more readily available, we would have to ship the fish to Puerto Rico for processing at great expense,'' McCulley said.

''Alternatively, if we use fish caught in the Eastern Pacific, we would demand that fishermen employ dolphin-safe tactics, diminishing the catch rate and driving up the operating cost per ton,'' he said.

''Either choice would not permit Bumble Bee to be competitive with the light-meat alternatives available to consumers,'' he added.

The San Diego-based canner employs more than 2,700 people worldwide. The company will use facilities in Thailand and Santa Fe Springs, Calif. to process additional light-meat tuna.

LONDON (AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq ordered 4,000 Britons in Kuwait to assemble in a hotel for possible internment in Iraq, the British Foreign Office said Thursday, calling it a ''sinister development.'' Americans also were asked to gather at several hotels, U.S. officials said.

''We don't have reports that Americans are being rounded up,'' a State Department official said in Washington. ''The Americans have been asked to gather at several hotels by the Iraqis and we have been in touch with the Iraqis to find out why.''

Foreign Office Minister of State William Waldegrave said he believed the same request made to the Britons had been made of Americans in Kuwait, and ''perhaps some others.''

The Iraqi ambassador to London, Azmi Shariq al-Salihi, said the Britons would be tranported to Baghdad.

''They will be our guests in Baghdad and we will treat them very well. We will allow them to leave the country when the situation is improved and settled,'' he said.

Waldegrave charged the Iraqis with duplicity. ''I hope that these reports and the storm of protests which will break around the head of Iraq if she pursues any policy of interning people will make her draw back even at this late stage from any such policy, if that is what she contemplates.''

The order affects 4,000 Britons who were caught in Kuwait when Iraq invaded Aug. 2, said Foreign Office spokesman Ray Kyles. There are 2,500 Americans in the disputed territory. Diplomats are apparently exempt.

''The British Embassy in Kuwait has received an order from Iraq that all Britons in Kuwait should report to the Regency Palace Hotel in Kuwait City

'' Kyles said.

The order was read on the British Broadcasting Corporation's World Service which can be heard in Kuwait. Britons were urged to take food and clothes with them to the hotel.

Waldegrave called the Iraqi edict ''a grave and sinister development.''

''I fear that it is in preparation for moving these people somewhere else '' he said. ''I would like to express the anger of the British people if any such step is taken.''

Kyles said Britain would endeavor to comply with the order. British citizens numbering in ''the upper 600'' already are in Baghdad, according to the Foreign Office. An estimated 500 Americans are there.

The Iraqi order came hours after 112 British citizens were evacuated from Kuwait City to Baghdad in a convoy organized by the embassy and escorted by Iraqi soldiers.

A Foreign Office spokesman said they were mostly non-essential embassy employees and the spouses and children of those who were continuing to work. It was done to clear the decks at the embassy so that those who are left can work better than they might otherwise,'' a spokesman said.

Among the 112 evacuees were the families of 36 British servicemen who were rounded up and taken to Baghdad during Iraqi's initial invasion of Kuwait.

The soliders have since been held in a hotel. While they have not been allowed to leave the building, British officials have been able to see them each day.

The evacuees were expected to remain in Baghdad for the near term, the Foreign Office said.

Two Britons were among thousands of foreigners who were allowed to cross from Iraq into Jordan at the desert border post of Ruweished Thursday, the spokesman said.

The Iraqi ambassador to London, Azmi Shariq al-Salihi, said other Westernerns were being held in Baghdad for their own protection.

''It is difficult and unsafe for the foreigners to leave Iraq or Kuwait,'' he said. ''We want them to be safe. We don't want them to face any difficulties ... they are guests of the Iraqi people and the Iraqi government.

''Their situation, as you know, is critical because of the troops brought by the United States and the United Kingdom and others, and we want them to be safe. Once the situation is settled we will let them go.''

The United States and Britain have avoided saying their citizens who are trapped inside Iraq and Kuwait are hostages, fearful of jeopardizing their safety and of making them an issue in a peace settlement.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - While intense attention has focused on the plight of Americans stranded in Kuwait, many of the estimated 2,500 Kuwaitis stuck in the United States are facing a novel problem - no money.

The Kuwaitis, most of them students, come from a tiny but oil-rich country that ranks as one of the world's most prosperous: an average per capita income higher than the United States - $20,000 - with no income taxes and free education and health care.

The Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait by Iraqi forces changed all that.

President Bush froze all of Kuwait's estimated $50 billion in assets in the United States to keep it out of Iraq's clutches. At the same time, the Iraqis seized all funds in Kuwait's banks and declared the Kuwaiti dollar to be equal to the Iraqi dinar, effectively cutting Kuwaiti fortunes by 90 percent.

A Kuwaiti woman named Rola - she asked that her last name be kept private since her family remains in Kuwait - and a group of friends in Washington went to work almost immediately to set up a group they call ''Committee to Free Kuwait.'' Its real function is to act as a community relief center for the newly poor Kuwaitis in the United States.

''Because the invasion and the freeze on funds occurred at the beginning of the month,'' she said, ''most of the Kuwaitis couldn't pay their rent. Some landladies have been very understanding, but some Kuwaitis have had to move in with other families, six or seven to a small apartment.''

Others, she said, have been allowed to sleep on the floor of the main mosque in Washington until they can find other temporary quarters, or until their funds are unfrozen.

Some of the wealthy Kuwaitis had come to this country for medical treatment, she said, and now no longer have funds for the treatment and,

6,000 miles from their families, are stuck without money.

Kuwaiti authorities have approached the U.S. government asking that their now-impoverished citizens be given work permits so they can earn some money. Rola said, ''The State Department has been very sympathetic, but you know how slow bureaucracies operate.''

Hunger is not yet a problem, but the key word is ''yet.'' It is only a matter of time until the Kuwaiti community runs out of resources, committee members say.

Other Arab countries, notably Saudi Arabia and its ambassador, Prince Bandar bin Sultan, have helped out with money and by allowing Kuwaiti citizens to eat at the embassy cafeteria when it is open.

''So far,'' Rola said, ''it's manageable.''

The same problem on an institutional scale is faced by Kuwaiti organizations, including the embassy and KUNA, the Kuwaiti News Agency, with bureaus around the world, including Washington.

As the Emir of Kuwait fled to exile in Saudi Arabia on the night of the invasion, he issued a final order saying all government institutions outside Kuwait would be maintained and financed by funds available to the emir, presumably his family's massive private fortune.

Rafael Calis, KUNA bureau chief in Washington, said the agency, whose lines to its headquarters in Kuwait were cut immediately by the invading Iraqis, has used ingenuity and technological innovation to keep news and statements flowing.

At first, the agency operated by sending out its reports by fax to other news agencies in London and Washington.

Now the news agency, using funds available in London, is setting up a new satellite system to replace its severed communications web in Kuwait.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Much has been made of the searing heat that U.S. troops are enduring in the Saudi Arabian desert. But there is another hardship for many hard-bitten soldiers and Marines: no beer.

And they can forget about those Playmate of the month pictures.

''Absolutely prohibited,'' declared Air Force Maj. Lou Tiedemann, a spokesman for the U.S. Central Command at MacDill Air Force Base, Fla., responsible for handling U.S. military operations in the Persian Gulf.

The strict Islamic culture of Saudi Arabia presents the U.S. military with a unique challenge since the soldiers and Marines being sent there have been known to guzzle beer, hang pinups and ogle women.

''They better not this time,'' Tiedemann said. ''... The commander here has made that very clear.''

Tiedemann said the U.S. troops being sent to Saudi Arabia are briefed on the prohibitions of the country - ''no alcohol, no pornographic literature of any kind'' - both before they go over and when they get there.

In addition, they are given a briefing paper listing the prohibitions and the dos and don'ts of the Arab world, such as shaking hands often and never showing the bottom of one's feet, he said.

''We beat the theme that we are guests in the host country and that we need to respect their ways,'' Tiedemann said. ''For a lot of younger guys, it's hard to understand.''

Here is some of the advice given U.S. troops:

-Shake hands when you meet an Arab and also when you leave.

-Never expose the sole of your shoe or the bottom of your feet to an Arab; it's considered an insult.

-In conversation, generally take the lead from what the Arab brings up and do not ask questions about the women of an Arab family.

-Do not stare or strike up a conversation with Arab women in public.

Perhaps one of the more difficult cultural changes for most American military men to understand is this:

Touching and holding hands by members of the same sex in public in Saudi Arabia is acceptable and demonstrates friendship. But holding hands and kissing members of the opposite sex in public is considered in bad taste and could be considered obscene.

The troops were also told that Arabs tend to sit very close together and Americans, while they may find this uncomfortable, should not back away.

Also, Americans should accept food when its offered ''even if you don't want it,'' the guidance said, according to Tiedemann.

And then there are the hand gestures that can get people in big trouble right away.

''Hitting the right fist into the open palm of the left hand indicates obscenity or contempt,'' But ''placing the palm of the right hand on the chest when greeting another shows respect or thanks.''

The Western OK hand sign ''is the sign of the evil eye and is used only in conjunction with curses'' in the Arab world, Tiedemann said.

And lest anyone forgets: ''Stroking the mustache connected with an oath or promise indicates sincerity.''

Tiedemann said the Saudis had made no special requests of the U.S. military leadership and sought no restrictions against women soldiers, members of the Jewish faith or kinds of foodstuffs to be brought in.

ANGLETON, TX (AUG. 16) UPI - Someone's guilty conscience is paying off for Brazoria County.

An unidentified person this week mailed County Judge John Damon's office 40 $100 bills, along with an unsigned note saying, ''This more than repays what I owe the county.''

No one knows what the unidentified money-sender feels guilty about.

''We're $4,000 richer because of somebody's guilty conscience,'' Damon said Wednesday. ''It's pretty unusual for someone to send us money like this. Most of the time all we get are bills. I don't think we have any choice but to put it in our treasury.''

The money has been placed in a vault and the envelope turned over to the district attorney's office to be examined for fingerprints.

''I don't think there will be much of an investigation,'' Damon said. ''As far as I can tell, it's legal for people to send the county money.''

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 16) UPI - Investigators Thursday were trying to figure out how a fire started in the attic of the Rodin Museum, site of the largest collection of Rodin works in the Western Hemisphere.

The museum was closed at the time of the brief fire and there was no damage to the building or to the sculptures, said Sandra Horrocks, a spokeswoman for the Philadelphia Museum of Art, which runs the Rodin Museum.

The fire started in a piece of material left in the loft of the one-story museum.

Fire Lt. Jack Christmas said the fire started at 6:37 a.m. and was out six minutes later. Security guards reported the blaze.

''They don't know how it caught fire,'' Horrocks said. She would not say how many guards were on duty at the time for security reasons.

The museum houses the 128 sculptures and a few drawings by the French sculptor Francois Auguste Rodin (1840-1917), the largest collection of Rodin works outside of Paris.

The artist is perhaps best known for The Thinker, a statue of a pensive man with his chin on his hand and elbow on his knee.

INDIANAPOLIS (AUG. 16) UPI - The use of the commercial Channel One instructional television station in public schools, already outlawed in California, came under a legal cloud Thursday in Indiana when the state attorney general said it cannot be used without state approval.

Indiana Attorney General Linley E. Pearson said the commercial current events television program produced by Whittle Communications of Knoxville, Tenn., cannot be used on a regular basis as classroom instruction without approval by the State Board of Education.

"If approved by the local school board, commercial current events programming may be shown only during non-instructional periods of the day such as homeroom, lunch and study hall," Pearson's opinion said.

Channel One provides 12 minutes of current affairs plus two minutes of commercials. Whittle also makes available to school systems television equipment that allows them to provide many additional instructional programs.

Pearson quoted a March 23 opinion of the Louisiana attorney general in issuing his own opinion. His Louisiana counterpart said state law prohibited local school boards from adopting private, sponsored current events programs without approval of state education boards.

The Indiana opinion was in response to a query by Rep. Dale Grubb, D-Covingon, on behalf of Mary Ann Akers, publisher of the weekly Review Republican at Williamsport. Akers cited complaints from parents and teachers over its pending use at Seeger Memorial Junior-Senior High School.

"One of the things that was told to me was, in exchange for this two minutes, this company's willing to give us $30,000 worth of equipment. It appeared we were telling our kids we were selling the opportunity to a company to get a whack at our kids for $30,000 worth of equipment," Akers said.

Roy L. Stroud, superintendent of the Warren County school district, said he had not seen Pearson's opinion but had approved of the programming. "I approved it and the board was informed of it," he said. He said the board did not object and that Akers is "the only person that has registered any concern to me."

The effect of Pearson's opinion is unclear, said Jeff Zaring, board relations specialist for the state Department of Education. He said the board or the department may ask for a clarification because board does not normally approve or reject curriculum programs in local schools.

"We have rules and guidelines under which those are developed. If the local program is consistent with those rules and guidelines, it's approved. So the decision is made locally within the framework we provide." He said local schools may have to show that the programming is relevant to the subject matter being taught.

Whittle has colicited many Indiana school systems but it is not known how many have purchased his program. Those rejecting it cited the "captive audience" objection, the feeling that there are better alternatives or that the upscale jeans and athletic shoes advertised are beyond the means of many of their students.

Channel One is opposed by the National Association of State Boards of Education, the National Education Association and other national groups and has been controversial in North Carolina, California, and other states.

California last year outlawed Channel One on grounds the commercial time could not qualify as "instructional minutes" and that Whittle's monopoly within a school system interfered with freedom of choice of instructional information.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - New housing construction plunged 2.6 percent in July, for the sixth consecutive monthly drop, to the lowest level since the 1982 recession, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

''It looks like we're going to have housing leading the economy into recession,'' said David Seiders, chief economist for the National Association of Home Builders.

Only the western states experienced an increase in housing starts in July.

Despite lower mortgage rates last month, consumers steered clear of the housing market because of the possibility of losing their jobs in the weakening economy, analysts said.

Blaming the careening housing construction figures on ''underlying weakness in buyer demand,'' Seiders predicted the United States will be mired in a recession from October to March.

The Commerce Department said applications for new housing permits also fell 2.6 percent last month in another wave of bad news for the battered building and real estate industries.

''New construction and building permit levels in July are disturbing given that activity was down further and that the outlook has been clouded by the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait,'' economist Robert Sheehan said at the National Apartment Association.

''One has to expect that housing starts will contract further over the next few months as a result of higher interest rates and inflation caused by the sharp rise in oil prices,'' Sheehan said.

The last time new housing construction fell for six straight months was from June 1981 to November 1981, also during the worst recession since the Great Depression of the 1930s, a government spokesman said.

July's annual rate of 1.148 million housing starts was the weakest showing since 1.144 million in September 1982, according to data compiled by the department's Census Bureau.

''It's pretty much in the doldrums. It's pretty much broad based. The whole housing sector is weak,'' said Robert Rosenblatt, an economist at the Mortgage Bankers Association, who also forsees a recession.

Single-family housing construction slid 1.4 percent in July, while construction of apartment building with two, three and four units tumbled by 13.5 percent and construction of apartment buildings with more than five units dropped 5.4 percent.

''The multi-family side is (already) in deep recession,'' Seiders said. ''On the single-family side we see this gradual erosion, but it hasn't fallen off the cliff yet.''

By region, new housing construction fell 5.3 percent in July in the Northeast, declined 5.5 percent in the Midwest, plunged 6.7 percent in the South, but increased 8.1 percent in the West.

In June, total housing starts fell a revised 2.2 percent after dipping 0.8 percent in May. The last monthly advance, in January, was attributed to unseasonably warm weather across the nation.

The Commerce Department also said that new housing construction permits were up a revised 4 percent in June after falling 3.8 percent in May.

(AUG. 16) - UPI Market uncertainty over the Mideast crisis and whether the OPEC cartel would raise output to make up for embargoed Kuwaiti and Iraqi oil was driving oil prices up in early trading Thursday.

''The market is clearly focusing on OPEC and its plans or lack of plans for increasing production,'' said Robert Baker, senior energy analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

''General uncertainty in the Gulf region'' was driving prices upward, said Peter Beutel, vice president of Merrill Lynch Futures in New York.

In early afternoon trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for September delivery was up 64 cents over Wednesday's close to $27.10 a barrel.

Prompt delivery WTI was also being quoted at $27.10 a barrel for a gain of 60 cents on the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market.

September delivery unleaded gasoline had gained 2.40 cents a gallon on the Merc to 86.45 cents a gallon, while home heating oil added 2 cents to 74.85 cents a gallon.

On the European cash market, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude shipped mainly to the Far East - had risen 67 cents a barrel by midday to $23.17 a barrel.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent was being quoted at $26.29 a barrel, 70 cents higher than Tuesday.

An industry source in Tokyo said Saudi Arabia had notified five Japanese companies that it would cut its Japanese crude exports by 16 percent next month.

A similar Saudi notification was sent to major U.S. oil companies Thursday as part of a reallocation of Saudi exports that would send more crude to Kuwaiti-owned refineries in Europe to help offset crude lost by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

It was not clear why the Saudis were reallocating their exports other than to perhaps set the stage for an overall increase in exports by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

A senior executive of a major U.S. oil company believed the notification was ''merely operational'' and that the Saudis would eventually raise output as part of an overall OPEC increase.

''I do believe that all the members of OPEC would like to have a meeting on this and have an OPEC decision on how much they go up and when they go '' the executive said.

There was no indication from OPEC, however, if or when it would hold such an emergency meeting.

About 4 million barrels a day have been lost to world markets as a result of the United Nations embargo of Kuwait and Iraqi exports in the wake of the invasion.

Jordan's King Hussein was meeting with President Bush at his Kennebunkport Maine, vacation retreat amid a report by CBS News that he is carrying a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The possibility that the message might lead to a settlement of the crisis had dampened oil prices Wednesday.

But traders were discounting this possibility Thursday.

''I think we're deceiving ourselves if we expect a lot out of it,'' Beutel said.

''I'm not looking for anything to happen there,'' Baker echoed.

Nevertheless, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tarek Aziz said his nation is willing to discuss with Bush a settlement of the crisis without conditions, but accused Washington of repeatedly rejecting Iraqi overtures.

Western diplomats monitoring the crisis also doubted reports of a possible attempt to assssinate Saddam carried by Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Ninety-six areas - mostly cities - have smog levels above federal health standards, a slight decline from the 101 cities cited for violations last year, the Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday.

The EPA, updating its evaluation of the nation's air pollution problems with 1989 monitoring data, also reported that 41 areas exceeded federal limits for carbon monoxide, down three from last year.

EPA officials said the new violator lists indicate a small improvement nationwide, with a few major cities such as Phoenix, St. Louis and Salt Lake City coming into compliance with either the smog or carbon monoxide standard.

However, they said air pollution was still a pervasive health problem, with 133 million Americans living in smoggy areas and 78 million exposed to health-threatening carbon monoxide levels.

''These (violator) lists show conclusively the magnitude of the air pollution problems still remaining in this nation,'' said EPA Deputy Administrator Henry Habicht II.

Habicht called on Congress to pass pending clean air legislation that will toughen emission reduction requirements for cities not meeting federal air quality standards.

The bill requires all but the nine smoggiest cities nationwide to meet federal standards by 2000. Los Angeles, with by far the worst smog, would have until 2010, while a deadline of 2005 would be set for New York, Chicago, Philadelphia, Houston, Milwaukee, San Diego, Baltimore and Hartford.

The EPA violator lists determine which cities will be required to adopt emission control measures for industry, power plants, automobiles and other major sources of pollution.

Under clean air laws, the EPA is required to update and revise its violator lists each year after reviewing new monitoring data gathered the previous year.

For the 1990 lists, a city was placed on the smog list if it exceeded federal standards more than three times in the three-year period 1987-1989. The carbon monoxide list includes all areas exceeding federal limits twice or more in either 1988 or 1989.

The reduction in the 1990 ozone list was noteworthy in that the EPA last year added 28 cities as violators. The big jump was partly attributed to unusually hot and dry weather nationwide in the summer of 1988.

Industry officials had predicted a drop in violators with this year's EPA listings due to more moderate weather in the summer of 1989.

The EPA said eight cities came into compliance with smog standards last year and were removed from the violator list. They were Columbia, S.C., Jacksonville, Fla., Lafayette, Ind., Phoenix, Huntsville, Ala., Anderson, S.C., Tulsa, Okla., and Portland, Ore.

At the same time, three new areas were added to the smog list: Smyth County, Va., Evansville, Ind., and the Johnson City-Kingsport-Bristol area in Tennessee and Virginia.

For carbon monoxide, seven cities were removed from the EPA list: Manchester, N.H., Oklahoma City, Okla., St. Louis, Great Falls, Mont., Greeley, Colo., Salt Lake City and Yakima, Wash. Four cities were added: Syracuse, N.Y., Philadelphia, Duluth, Minn., and Stockton, Calif.

Most of the communities cited by the EPA are sizeable urban areas, but a few rural areas also are violators due to automobile congestion or because they are downwind of cities.

As in past years, Los Angeles led the nation in the severity of its smog problem, averaging 137 days a year in violation of the federal standard. It also had the highest average concentrations of ozone at .33 parts per million - three times higher than the federal standard of .12 parts per million.

Other heavily smoggy cities were Bakersfield, Calif., 44 days in violation; Fresno, Calif., 24 days; New York, 17 days; Sacramento, 16 days; Chicago, 13 days; Houston, 12 days; and San Diego, 12 days.

For carbon monoxide, Los Angeles was out of compliance an average of 71 days a year; Spokane, Wash., 37 days; Winnebago County, Wis., 32 days; the Stuebenville-Weirton area in Ohio and West Virginia, 31 days; New York, 26 days; Las Vegas, 26 days; and Sacramento, 18 days.

Smog is formed when volatile organic compound and nitrogen oxide emissions from cars and industry chemically react in the presence of sunlight. Smog irritates eyes and breathing passages and can seriously endanger those with respiratory illness.

Carbon monoxide is primarily emitted in automobile exhaust and can cause damage the heart and brain by reducing oxygen in the blood.

STOCKHOLM, SWEDEN (AUG. 16) UPI - Sweden's Supreme Court Thursday ruled against deporting a young Soviet hijacker to face trial in the Soviet Union.

The court said in a statement that Mikhail Mokretsov - who forced a Soviet civilian airliner on a domestic flight from Riga to Murmansk to fly to Sweden July 5 - would face trial in the Scandinavian country rather than the Soviet Union.

Despite that two other young Soviet hijackers were deported last month, the court said expulsion of Mokretsov, 18, would be contrary to Swedish law. The statement said the Supreme Court had taken into consideration a psychiatric evaluation ordered after Mokretsov tried to commit suicide following the deportation of the two other hijackers.

The Swedish government and the Supreme Court deemed in mid-July, that Dmitri Semyonov, 17, and Ukrainian Anatoly Mikhailenko, 19, could both be deported for trial in the Soviet Union after they hijacked aircraft to Sweden.

But in Thursday's decision the Supreme Court said a court psychiatrist found Mokretsov unfit to serve a prison sentence in a Soviet prison and that there was a danger he would attempt suicide again if expelled.

Sweden's Pilots Association said it was "shocked" at the decision. "It's deeply regrettable to let him stay. The decision will spread like a fire and more hijackers may now try to come to Sweden," said SPA President Kurt Ivarsson Thursday.

Mokretsov's lawyer Tomas Rothpfeffer said the young man was "extremely happy" after the decision was made to let him stay in Sweden. If convicted for hijacking in Sweden, Mokretsov faces a sentence of between two and ten years in prison and subsequent expulsion from Sweden.

"I think it was very unjust to expel the other two," Mokretsov said after the Supreme Court decision. "I understand that I have committed a serious crime and will be punished here in Sweden for it. But I'm very happy."

Soviet Embassy press attache Alexei Grushko said he hoped the Swedish government would overrule the Supreme Court decision. "He has committed a crime and must be punished in the Soviet Union," Grushko said. But Swedish governments are unable to override the Supreme Court, the highest judicial body in the country.

LONDON (AUG. 16) UPI - Stock prices closed lower in sluggish trading Thursday on the London International Stock Exchange with large investors still overawed by the Persian Gulf crisis.

The blue-chip Financial Times 100-stock index, which gained 5.3 points Wednesday, fell 18.5 points to 2,220.8. The narrower top 30 industrial average lost 23.3 points to 1,724.9

Volume amounted to around 375 million shares compared with 564 million shares changing hands Wednesday.

Analysts said volume remained sluggish as many investors shied away from the market ahead of the weekend.

Market watchers said the pattern of trading was following that of last week. As the weekend approached, investors were not willing to open any new positions, fearing adverse Middle East developments.

On the local economic front, the Department of Employment reported Britain's underlying annual rates of increase in average earnings rose to 10 percent in June from 9.75 percent in May.

Average earnings as a whole rose a seasonally adjusted 0.7 percent in June from May and were up 10.2 percent from June 1989.

Market forecasters predicted average earnings in June would rise by an annual rate of 9.8 percent against May's annual increase of 9.75 percent.

In a separate report, the Department of Employment reported Britain's unemployment was a seasonally adjusted 5.7 percent of the workforce in July, unchanged from June.

The rate in July was unchanged from both the revised and provisional rate for June, but down slightly from July 1989.

Among the day's most active issues, Reuters was the biggest loser of the day, tumbling $1.37 to $16.80 amid speculation of a sharp downgrading by a U.S. securities house.

Wellcome PLC fell 31 cents to $9.20 amid adverse press comment on its drug Retrovir and talk of positive results on a new AIDS treatment by rivals Johnson and Johnson.

The insurance sector was shaken by worse-than-expected half year results from Royal Insurance, which reported a loss $123.4 million for the half year.

Royal Insurance lost 25 cents to $4.78, General Accident slipped 12 cents to $8.98 and Prudential eased 8 cents to $3.92.

Elsewhere, Imperial Chemical Industries slipped 10 cents to $17.01.

Oil companies remained firm as the Middle East situation continued unsettled. Enterprise Oil gained 23 cents to $11.05 and London & Scottish Marine Oil gained 18 cents to $8.19.

Elsewhere in Europe, stock prices on the Frankfurt Stock Exchange closed lower in light trading.

The closely watched German Stock Index slipped 14.78 points to 1,727.48.

Traders said stocks eased amid a mild bout of profit taking following Wednesday 27.18 point advance.

(AUG. 16) UPI - British officials say Iraq told four-thousand Britons in Kuwait to gather at a hotel, possibly to be held in Baghdad. The British Foreign Office in London says the order affects four-thousand Britons caught in Kuwait when Iraq invaded two weeks ago today. The State Department says U-S citizens have been asked to gather at several hotels... but are NOT being rounded up. Both the United States and Great Britain have avoided saying their citizens trapped inside Iraq and Kuwait are hostages, for fear of jeopardizing their safety.

Economists are disappointed at consumer price figures released today. Prices in July rose four-tenths of one percent. Shelter and food were especially high. The figures are higher than were expected. Robert Dederick, chief economist of Northern Trust in Chicago, said the war on inflation- in his words- ''seems to be yielding very little fruit.''

A National Association of Home Builders economist is talking recession after reviewing a government report on July housing starts showing a two-point-six percent drop. Chief economist David Seiders says- ''It looks like we're going to have housing leading the economy into recession.'' He predicts the nation will be mired in recession from October through March.

CHICAGO (AUG. 16) UPI - The Chicago Mercantile Exchange said Thursday it will begin trading Sept. 25 futures and options based on the Nikkei 225 Japanese stock index, making it the first American futures exchange to trade contracts based on an overseas stock index.

Earlier this week, the Chicago Board of trade announced it will begin trading long-term Japanese government bond futures and options and Topix futures and options on Sept. 27.

The Merc owns exclusive rights to trade the Nikkei Stock Average futures and options on futures contracts in North America.

Leo Melamed, chairman of the CME's executive committee and special counsel to its board of governors, said the move will symbolize the globalization of the world's financial markets.

''The success of the Nikkei futures and options contracts on the Osaka Securities Exchange demonstrates how important these risk-management products have become to all the world's markets,'' Melamed said.

The CME signed an agreement on rights to the Nikkei 225 contracts in 1985 and won approval to trade them from the Commodity Futures Trading Commission in 1988.

The exchange delayed listing the contracts while the market for London- and New York-traded Japanese stocks developed, a spokesman said. More than 50 Japanese stocks are traded in London and a smaller number trade actively in New York.

The CME eventually hopes to list Nikkei 225 futures and options on Globex, the automated after-hours trading system being developed by the CME, the CBOT and Reuters Holdings PLC.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Yosemite National Park in California is to re-open tomorrow and tourists will be able to see the damage from three forest fires. The park was closed for the first time in its history last Friday. 10-thousand tourists had to be evacuated. The fires spread over 35 square miles. A firefighter was killed this week when a falling tree limb hit him on the head.

Through the night, thousands of Elvis Presley fans held a candlelight vigil at Presley's home in Memphis, Tennessee, to commemorate the 13th anniversary of the singer's death. The first in line was Bill Rowe of Dayton, Ohio, who had waited since 8 a-m yesterday until the vigil began last night. Presley was 42 when he died. His death was attributed to heart failure, but the autopsy report- which still is secret- reportedly showed drugs in his system.

A poll of 350 college students found actor Tom Cruise and actress Julia Roberts won praise as the top stars of this 1990's. But the mega-hit film ''Batman'' was among the movies students chose as the worst of the 1980's. The Movieline magazine poll shows the top male star category included River Phoenix, Alec Baldwin, Mel Gibson and Johnny Depp. Other top actresses named were Meg Ryan, Michelle Pfeiffer, Winona Ryder, Kirstie Alley and Kim Basinger.

SOWETO, South Africa (AUG. 16) UPI - A spear-wielding mob swept through a railway station in the black city of Soweto Thursday, dragging passengers from carriages and stabbing them in a fourth day of faction fighting that has left more than 150 dead and hundreds wounded.

The dawn attack ignited a day of tension in the nation's largest black city, south of Johannesburg, after three days of carnage in townships to the east, and police battled to contain the conflict by attempting to keep the warring factions at bay.

Police reported at least six killed in Soweto Monday, including two people found burned to death near the Nhlazane railway station, sending the death toll in fighting since Monday to 154. Another 99 people were injured.

African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela held unexpected talks with President Frederik de Klerk in Pretoria on the slaughter, regarded as the worst in four years of internecine strife between the racially exclusive Zulu movement Inkatha and ANC supporters, who are mainly Xhosas.

''The discussions covered various aspects of the present state of unrest and violence in certain areas, as well as steps to curb it,'' according to a brief statement on the meeting. It said de Klerk planned holding further talks and ''taking action.''

ANC officials declined further comment on the talks and continued to reject Inkatha leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi's demands to meet Mandela in a bid to negotiate an end to the conflict that has raged in the Indian Ocean province of Natal since 1987 but spread to the Johannesburg area only recently.

Analysts blamed the latest violence on a combination of tribal rivalries between Zulus and Xhosas and Buthelezi's attempts to stake out his power-base in advance of formal negotiations with the government on a post-apartheid constitution.

Riot police roamed Soweto's dusty streets in personnel carriers and unmarked vehicles, firing tear gas and rubber bullets to disperse pockets of township residents massing outside the gates of hostels holding Zulu migrant workers.

Youths erected barricades in roads nearby to block police vehicles as dozens of tear gas canisters exploded and sent clouds of smoke through rows of matchbox houses.

Trucks unloaded razor-sharp barbed wire across the entrances of hostels to keep hundreds of Zulus inside. Many wore red headbands to identify themselves as Inkatha members, and carried machetes, spears, sticks and the traditional Zulu shields of cowhide.

One Zulu standing behind the blockade told reporters the hostel dwellers had no intention of attacking other township residents, but their mass of weapons seemed to betray their intentions.

Unlike Wednesday's sweep for weapons in the eastern townships, police made no effort whatsoever to disarm the Zulus - inaction that appeared to support ANC claims that lawmen had not taken all possible measures to defuse the situation.

The ANC has consistenly accused ''elements'' in the police of aiding Inkatha in its bid to gain stronger political clout and weaken the ANC's premier position.

''We are satisfied that with the presence of the police at the moment we may be able to keep them apart,'' Law and Order Ministry spokesman Brig. Leon Mellet said.

Senior police met local leaders of the two sides and both parties ''seem to have been persuaded to refrain from violence,'' he said.

In Thokoza, one of three eastern townships where the violence exploded Monday, about 3,000 ANC supporters filled a grandstand to hear local community leaders announce peace talks were underway to halt the bloodshed.

Fearing for the lives of his children, who were staying in Thokoza with his inlaws, Temba Wilton Ndlovu visited the township Thursday.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - The Federal Reserve is being pulled in two directions on interest rate policy, economists said Thursday, with inflation, fueled in part by the Middle East crisis, competing with the eroding U.S. real estate market.

The Federal Reserve, in its battle to whip inflation, has kept a tight fist on interest rates. But the battle appears far from won and has weakened other segments of the economy, namely real estate, economists said.

The Fed's monetary policy group, the Federal Open Market Committee, is scheduled to meet next week. Economist believe the Fed has been backed into a corner by the fear of even higher inflation stemming from rising oil prices that resulted from Iraq's Aug. 2 invasion of Kuwait.

Gasoline prices alone have risen in August an average of 12 cents a gallon or 15 percent, which translates to an 0.5 percent increase in the government's consumer price index, said Donald Ratajczak, head of the economic forecasting unit at Georgia State University.

''We have a high base (of inflation) on which to add the oil shock. ''That's not alarming, but distrubing,'' said Robert Dederick, chief economist at the Northern Trust Co., in Chicago.

The FOMC meeting is expected to center on a debate over whether to lower interest rates to spur the sagging economy or leave rates alone to cool inflation.

''It's a close call as to which one is going to carry the day,'' Ratajckaz said.

Inflation at the consumer level rose 0.4 percent in July with higher shelter and food costs offsetting a significant 0.7 percent drop in energy costs, the Labor Department reported Thursday.

July's price increased followed a rise of 0.5 percent in June and brought consumer-level inflation up 4.8 percent during the past 12 months, the department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

During the first seven months of the year, consumer prices have risen at an annualized rate of 5.8 percent, up from 5.5 percent during the same period last year.

Economists expect inflation to rise gradually this month and in the months ahead as the pinch of rising oil prices spreads through the economy. Oil prices skyrocketed following the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

''Because the economy is moving relatively slowly and will probably soon go into recession, an immediate surge in the (consumer price index) is not anticipated,'' said Gordon Richards, chief economist for the National Association of Manufacturers.

Instead, Richards forecast a steady rise during the next six to nine months, with the annual inflation rate hoving between 5 percent and six percent.

In more unsettling news for consumers, the government said real earnings for July rose 0.3 percent, not enough to beat the pace of rising prices.

''Although real earnings were up, in general, people's purchasing power has eroded and this accentuates that a recession is on the horizon or has already begun,'' Ratajczak said.

A recession occurs when the overall economy shows little or no growth for two consecutive quarters. The last time that happened was in 1981-1982.

Meanwhile, the Commerce Department reported that new housing construction plunged by 2.6 percent last month, for the sixth consecutive monthly drop, to the lowest level since the 1982 recession.

The last time new housing construction fell for six straight months was from June 1981 to November 1981, also during the worst recession since the Great Depression of the 1930s, a government spokesman said.

BRUSSELS, BELGIUM (AUG. 16) UPI - The Persian Gulf crisis has provided Europe an opportunity to assert its newfound confidence and could prove a landmark in the evolution of post-Cold War European security structures.

At a meeting next Tuesday in Paris, the revived Western European Union is expected to establish a European naval task force in the Gulf to help enforce economic sanctions against Iraq. Several countries have already committed warships to the task force expected to emerge from the nine-nation meeting.

West Germany, which has not sent ships into a combat area since World War II, said it would include five minesweepers in a multinational flotilla. Chancellor Helmut Kohl has been unfazed by constitutional objections from his political opponents.

Although top NATO officials have met daily since Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2, the region is ''out of area'' for the Western alliance unless NATO member Turkey is invaded.

With NATO's traditional role upended by the Cold War's collapse, and its future clouded, home-grown European groupings such as the 12-nation European Community and the once-moribund WEU have aggressively stepped forward.

''NATO was absolutely fine to coordinate the activities of 16 nations when they were faced with a nasty opponent on their doorstep, but it's a different story when the problem is in another part of the world,'' said Andrew Duncan of the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London.

Duncan said the European response in the Gulf could prove important to the debate over whether the EC, once known as the Common Market for its economic focus, should also adopt a defense posture.

Indeed, some NATO officials were miffed last week when EC foreign ministers hastily met in Brussels only hours before a scheduled session of NATO foreign ministers.

The Western European Union ''allows a small country like Belgium security and cooperation in a situation like the Gulf,'' said a spokesman for the Belgian government, which has sent ships to the Mediterranean pending the WEU decision on a Gulf task force.

''It makes no sense for us to send ships alone, but it does make sense to do it in a concerted way,'' he said.

Although the EC quickly joined worldwide economic sanctions against Iraq at a special meeting in Rome, Europe's response has been far from concerted.

Greece is allowing U.S. warplanes to fly over its territory en route to the Gulf, but will not permit the United States to use Greek bases for any military action in the Middle East.

Further, only Britain among European countries has backed the U.S. policy of ''interdicting'' ships trading with Iraq. France was sharply critical of the policy, saying participation by French warships would make it a ''co-beligerent'' in the Gulf.

Still, the European self-confidence was shown when EC officials unblinkingly rejected an appeal from Turkey that its application for Community membership should be speedily processed in return for its solidarity with the West in the crisis.

A push on Turkey's behalf from Secretary of State James Baker failed to impress in Brussels. Publicly, diplomats said no requests for membership would be considered before completion of the EC's internal market in 1992. Privately, they said Baker should mind his own business.

COLUMBUS, OH (AUG. 16) UPI - A drifter suspected of stealing up to $1 million from public telephone coin boxes in 32 states was sentenced to three years in prison and ordered to repay Ohio Bell $802.50 in a plea bargain with authorities.

Franklin County Judge Patrick McGrath sentenced James Clark to three consecutive one-year prison terms and to repay $802.50, little more than half the more than $1,400 he is suspected of stealing from Columbus telephone booths alone.

Clark pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count of theft and two counts of tampering with a coin machine. Ten other counts of tampering were dismissed in a plea bargain the day his trial was to begin.

Clark gained the nickname "the telphone bandit" because of his ability to pick locks of pay telephone coin boxes. Police said he designed a pick made out of piano wire and stole up to $1 million from telephone booths in 32 states from 1981 until his arrest in 1988 in California.

A one-year investigation in Columbus linked Clark, a drifter, to thefts from 23 phones in May and June 1985. "Nationwide, the phone companies think he took a $500,000 to $1 million with this activity," said prosecutor Tim Braun.

An accomplice, whom authorities won't identify, turned state's evidence against Clark on similar charges in Summit County and helped Franklin County in its investigation.

Clark is also wanted in several other cities and may be indicted next in Youngstown, Ohio. Police said authorities from California and Texas are waiting in line for him.

CAIRO, Egypt (AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq's traditional secretiveness and the current propaganda war between Baghdad and some of its Arab brother states have resulted in a flurry of unsubstantiated reports making the rounds of the world media.

The latest such report carried by world media outlets, including the Soviet news agency Tass, was a story picked up from Egypt's Middle East News Agency.

On Thursday, MENA quoted unnamed Egyptian workers returning home from Iraq as saying there were ''wide-scale arrests of military people and civilians in Iraq on Wednesday, and the arrests included tens of Iraqi army officers of mostly junior rank, in what apparently was believed to be part of an assassination attempt (against Iraqi leader Saddam Hussein).''

Western diplomats monitoring Iraq, as well as Egyptian Foreign Ministry sources, could not confirm the report.

But Yugoslavia's Tanjug news agency, reporting the unconfirmed story after it was carried to all corners of the globe and indicating it was perhaps a case of wishful thinking, put it like this:

''Independent sources in Cairo think that (unnamed) Egyptian workers can hardly be considered a reliable source upon which to base any conclusion of events taking place in Iraq.''

A reporter in Tass's Cairo bureau, when asked about the ''assassination attempt'' the Soviet agency had carried on its wires, admitted it was based solely on the MENA report and there was no independent confirmation.

Other such unconfirmed stories coming out of the region in segments of the Western press have included reports of Iraqi tank, troop and jet defections to Saudi Arabia, Saudi gunners firing on Iraqi jets, mass executions of Iraqi government officials and army officers.

''We're dealing with a very volatile situation, and Iraq's secretiveness and bad reputation don't help when it comes to accurate reporting,'' said

Peter Warg, a Cairo-based veteran U.S. reporter.

Warg gave the example of reports last week that Saddam may have executed his Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

''The reports that said he had been out of the public eye at an crucial time for Iraq were justified because this was unusual,'' he said. ''But to report unsubstantiated rumors leads to a vicious circle and accurate information is the victim. You have to go through everything with a fine tooth comb.''

The propaganda war between Iraq and brother Arab states such as Egypt, Syria and the Arab Persian Gulf states has also hindered accurate reporting.

''There is a psychological-propaganda war going on, and it looks as if (Iraq's Arab enemies) will only be satisfied if they topple Saddam to solve the acute crisis,'' said Dejan Vasiljevic, a veteran Middle East reporter for Tanjug.

MONTREAL (AUG. 16) UPI - A tribe of Indians has shut down an Onatrio railroad line to show solidarity with Quebec Mohawks, who Thursday began negotiating an end to their own lengthy armed standoffs with police.

Some 191 passengers, including American tourists, were forced to leave a west bound VIA Rail train at White River in northern Ontario Wednesday night when Ojibway Indians threated to blockade the rail line, VIA Rail spokesman Mike Williams said.

A second Indian band, the Longlac Ojibway Indians of northern Ontario, have blockaded a rail line that passes through their reserve since Monday.

The blockaded line and the threatened line are vital passenger and freight links between Toronto and Winnipeg.

The 191 Winnipeg-bound passengers taken off the VIA Rail train Wednesday night were taken by bus to nearby Thunder Bay and were to be flown to Winnipeg.

The shutdown of the two rails also stranded 159 east bound passengers in Winnipeg.

Canadian National railway spokesman Mark Matthews said the company was also looking for an alternate way to move 25 freight cars loaded with automobiles and other goods.

Meanwhile, Quebec Mohawks and their advisors began talks Thursday with the Quebec and Canadian governments in an effort to find a solution to two standoffs in Oka and Chateauguay.

In Oka, Indians erected barricades four months ago to block the expansion of a golf course they claim is on tribal land. In Chateauguay, Indians blocked a bridge to show their support of the Oka group.

Police attempted to raid the Oka blockade July 11 in an abortive action that left one officer dead. The Chateauguay blockade, meanwhile, has been the scene of almost nightly clashes between residents and police.

Twenty-four international observers from Switzerland, France, Great Britain, West Germany and Belgium started monitoring the Oka and Chateauguay blockades early Wednesday.

About 2,600 Canadian troops moved close to the white communities in the two cities Tuesday night at the request of the Quebec government, Maj. Gerald Baril said.

''We all hope that we won't have to intervene and that they find a peaceful settlement to the disputes,'' Baril said.

Many of the Mohawk warriors guarding the barricades are members of the Warriors Society from the troubled St. Regis Indian reserve that straddles the U.S.-Canada border near Massena, N.Y.

The St. Regis Mohawk Warriors sided with pro-gambling forces and against traditional chiefs when pro and anti-gambling factions clashed in May, leaving two dead.

Federal government officials have accused the warriors of being criminals who are holding the reserves hostage.

TORONTO (AUG. 16) UPI - Cineplex Odeon Corp. said Thursday it has extended indefinitely the closing date for a $31.75 million deal to sell 38 movie theaters to Plitt Amusement Company Inc. of Los Angeles.

Cineplex said ''negotiations are continuing'' and that the closing date had been extended.

Plitt Amusement is controlled by Henry G. Plitt.

A Cineplex spokesman said no specific date was set because talks with Plitt Amusement are on-going.

On Tuesday, Cineplex said the deal to sell theaters located in Utah, Idaho Minnesota, Oregon and Washington was in doubt and that ''all available legal remedies'' would be pursued if the deal fell through.

''The corporation believes that there is substantial uncertainty as to whether the transaction will close,'' Cineplex said at the same time it announced its second-quarter results.

The company posted a $38.4 million loss in the quarter for a total first-half loss of $50.4 million.

The sale of the theaters to Plitt Amusement is viewed as key to raising the $200 million in net proceeds by year-end as required under new banking agreements.

Cineplex's long term debt at the end of the second quarter totalled $479.4 million.

Cineplex operates more than 1,500 movie screens in 380 locations in Canada and the United States.

TOLEDO, OH (AUG. 16) UPI - A businessman who escaped from Kuwait with six Americans and two Britons said Iraqi guards turned them away at the Saudi Arabia border but they found other guards to let them through.

Fritz Bruggemeier, 42, who was in Kuwait on a construction project for a sheik when Iraq invaded Kuwait two weeks ago, designs waterfalls and landscapes for resorts and hotels.

The former Toledo high school football star arrived at Detroit Metropolitan Airport Wednesday night to an emotional reunion with his family. He was among a group that sled about 500 miles in three cars from Kuwait into Saudi Arabia.

He said they decided not to leave in a bus because they feared they would have a better chance of success if they fled by car.

''We had a map given to us by some people who had gone out the same way,'' he said.

Bruggemeier, who now lives in Hawaii, said the part of the border outlined on the map was blocked by Iraqi soldiers, so they drove southwest to another area and encountered a less threatening group of troops, he said.

''We happened to come across a group of soliders who were laid back,'' he said.

Bruggemeier said the Iraqis in Kuwait allowed them to move about on the fifth day of the invasion. He said the troops at his hotel were never threatening.

''The soldiers were never abusive or pulled a gun on us,'' he said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - President Bush's relationship with conservatives - always shaky at best - may have hit rock bottom.

In fact, the president's ties to the right wing are now so strained that a few conservatives are even complaining about his decision to send forces to Saudi Arabia, although they agree that defending the oil kingdom is in the best interests of the United States.

But while there is little doubt that the rift between the White House and the right wing is wider and deeper than ever, there are major differences over whether it will mean anything.

''As far as I'm concerned he's broken just about every campaign promise he's made,'' said conservative activist Richard Viguerie. ''There's a big blowup coming and it's going to hurt George Bush. In his genes he is not a conservative. In every fiber of his being he is a country club Republican.''

Even though Bush campaigned as a converted conservative in 1988, many in the right never really trusted him. They then watched with quiet dismay as Bush, instead of toeing a hard right ideological line, fashioned a moderate administration that has tried to keep communications open with mostly liberal groups such as blacks and homosexuals.

But in the past two months, several events have combined to force an open break between Bush and many conservatives.

The first came in late June when Bush turned away from his anti-tax pledge agreed that new taxes were needed to balance the budget. Then, on two separate occasions, the White House invited homosexual activists to bill signing ceremonies, despite conservative complaints that the president was abandoning ''traditional values'' by ''openly courting the homosexual lobby.''

Finally, earlier this month, Douglas Wead, a White House aide considered a key link to conservatives, left the administration after a series of internal fights, including his complaints that the White House was paying too much attention to homosexuals.

White House aides denied Wead was fired or that the departure was linked to the fight over the invitation to homosexuals.

But conservatives were outraged. Robert Dugan of the National Association of Evangelicals, fired off a letter to the president complaining Bush had ''put a White House stamp of approval upon the homosexual lifestyle.''

''Many evangelicals believe you are sacrificing your claim to be a 'traditional values president,''' he wrote.

But now that the so-called ''movement conservatives'' - the ones who helped push Ronald Reagan to power - have made no secret of this displeasure with Bush, they question remains whether it will have any effect.

Some analysts contend the conservative anger may be due, at least in part, to a lack of purpose in the movement. With the Cold War over, the theory goes, conservatives no longer have an easily identifiable common enemy and are in disarray.

''I think this (split with Bush) reflects more about problems in the conservative movement today,'' added Stephen Hess, a political analyst at the Brookings Institution. ''They are splintering and having problems with fund raising.''

''These things are cyclical,'' Hess noted. ''They (conservatives) have been in the catbird's seat for a long time now. There is something to the natural history of the political movement. This is a political movement that is now in late middle age and needs some rejuvenation.''

Hess and others also stress that in the eyes of average Americans, Bush's overall philosophy appears quite conservative - especially on issues such as abortion - and that he probably appeals to many rank-and-file voters.

But some of the hard-line conservatives insist that is not enough. When Bush's presidency develops an inevitable problem, they argue, he won't have a solid political base to fall back on. ''That's what helped Reagan during Iran-Contra,'' Viguerie said.

Many conservatives believe that a 1992 challenge to Bush from the right is inevitable. While none of them is predicting the popular president can be denied another Republican presidential nomination, they caution that unless Bush heals his rift with the right, it can expose some shortcomings and cause him damage against Democrats.

''As the president likes to say, 'Stay tuned,''' noted Howard Phillips of the Conservative Caucus.

(AUG. 16) UPI - South African officials say factional fighting in black townships east of Johannesburg spread today into Soweto. Police report that mobs armed with spears attacked train passengers and clashes erupted elsewhere in the black township of Soweto, where at least five people were killed. Another 78 people were wounded, at least 15 of them seriously. A government spokesman says three days of factional fighting has left as many as 150 people dead.

A Japanese climber was rescued from a mountain on New Zealand's North Island, where he had spent five days in blizzard conditions. He climbed the mountain eight days ago and was last seen on Saturday digging a cave in the snow to escape from the weather. He said he lost his way while climbing down. Six soldiers on a training mission were killed on the mountain a few hundred yards away this week.

Space agency investigators are at the Danbury, Connecticut, optical company that built the Hubble telescope mirror to find out what caused its defect. The investigators believe an instrument used to measure the mirror during grinding may have been faulty. The telescope was launched into space in April. JERUSALEM (AUG. 16) UPI - Israel's chief rabbi told ultra-orthodox Jewish men Thursday that they could cut their beards in order to wear gas masks during a chemical weapons attack.

Rabbi Mordechai Eliahu said on Army Radio that many ultra-Orthodox men were worried that gas masks would not fit properly because of their long beards, which Jewish tradition prohibits them from shaving off.

Eliahu's reassuring advice to the ultra-orthodox was part of a large educational effort being conducted by the Israeli media this week to inform the public about the use of gas masks and safety procedures during a poison gas attack.

Fears of an Iraqi chemical weapons attack have risen sharply since last week, when Iraq accused Israel of joining U.S. forces in Saudi Arabia and warned of retaliation against the Jewish state if attacked. Iraq's use of chemical weapons during the Gulf War gave the threat added weight.

Despite repeated statements by Israeli leaders and senior army officials that there is no cause for alarm, many Israelis have bought their own gas masks amid calls for immediate distribution of the army's supply of masks. People have also stockpiled sealed supplies of such staples as rice and sugar, and bought bicarbonate of soda to counter the effects of poison gas.

The government has said it has enough gas masks for the entire Israeli population that can be handed out quickly when necessary. Officials fear immediate distribution of the masks could be perceived as a sign Israel was preparing for war and fear the public will improperly store the devices.

''There is no need to speed up the distribution of gas masks,'' Defense Minister Moshe Arens said on Israel Television Thursday, adding that Israel was well prepared for the remote possibility of a chemical weapons attack.

Eliahu said he wanted to calm the ultra-orthodox community after another rabbi told him that men feared their beards would hinder the effectiveness of the masks.

''I told him, 'Immediately order all the bearded men in your area to carry a pair of sissors if God forbid something happens','' Eliahu said. He said the army's chief rabbi had told him the military was aware of the problem and was seeking a solution.

Under the strict interpretation of Jewish law, men cannot cut their beards with a razor.

Eliahu said, if needed, the men could use electric razors, a method of shaving that does not violate the religious prohibition.

Almost every day, Israeli newspapers and radio programs carry stories about gas masks and the civil defense program to distribute them.

A lengthy article in the daily Ha'aretz Thursday described in detail a television announcement that shows what the populace should do if the country is attacked.

At one point in the announcment, which has not been aired, a mother tells her family: ''Come on children, let's go seal the room'' and then demonstrates how to make windows air tight with tape and put a wet towel at the bottom of a door.

The slogan ''There's also one for you'' is featured throughout the announcement to prevent panic at gas mask distribution points, Ha'aretz reported.

EAST BERLIN (AUG. 16) UPI - The East German Social Democratic Party leadership Thursday asked SPD members to quit the ruling coalition, a move that could threaten unification negotiations between the two German governments.

The decision follows Wednesday's dismissal of four Cabinet ministers, including the three linked the closest with the rapidly deteriorating economy.

An SPD spokeswoman said the decision still needs the endorsement of the party's parliamentary faction, due to meet Tuesday. Party sources say the faction may call an earlier meeting.

Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere needs the support of the SPD to obtain the two-thirds parliamentary majority required to make the constitutional amendments necessary for German unification.

A two-thirds majority is also needed to ratify two key treaties to be signed with the West German government. One treaty deals with the procedure for all-German elections and the other is the final Unification Treaty.

The Liberal party had already quit the government coalition last month following disagreements over the technicalities of German elections.

SPD leader Wolfgang Thierse said Thursday his party will not support the draft Unification Treaty under its present form.

De Maiziere, whose Christian Democratic Union leads the government coalition, criticized the SPD and said that ''anyone who leaves the coalition now turns his back to national responsibility.''

The crisis in the 4-month-old government reflects mounting dissatisfaction over the rapid crumbling of the East German economy.

On Wednesday an estimated 250,000 farmers took part in nationwide demonstrations to protest the government's failure to control sinking prices and dwindling markets for East German agricultural produce.

In a surprise announcement Wednesday night, de Maiziere said he had dismissed the three ministers most closely linked with economic affairs, including Finance Minister Walter Romberg, of the SPD, and Agriculture Minister Peter Pollack, who is not affiliated to any party but was brought into the government by the SPD. De Maiziere said the third, Trade Minister Gerhard Pohl of the CDU, had offered his resignation.

Justice Minister Kurt Wuensche, who is not a member of any party, also resigned. Wuensche, who already held the justice portfolio under the Communist-led government from 1967 to 1972, had come under fire for moving too slowly against ex-Communist officials in the current legal administration.

SPD leader Wolfgang Thierse said he would call on his party, the second largest in the coalition, to quit the government.

''I personally cannot imagine anymore that one can continue to work together with a prime minister whose reactions are becoming more and more adventurous,'' he said.

He accused the CDU of seeking ''to belittle the SPD in order to get better starting chances for the CDU in the electoral campaign.''

The two parties will face a key test in Oct. 14 polls to elect regional governments in the five states that will replace the current 15 provinces in East Germany.

They are due to merge with their sister parties in West Germany - also called CDU and SPD - in advance of Dec. 2 all-German elections.

De Maiziere said the ministers who were dismissed had failed to use properly the funds they had at their disposal.

He said that of the $2 billion budgeted for the rehabilitation of infrastructure, only $63 million had been spent to date. He said that about half the budgeted amount will now be handed over to regional bodies for immediate use.

The West German government had criticized the East German authorities for holding up the funds. Senior officials in Bonn had also accused Romberg of incompetence and claimed his demands for additional West German financial support were outrageous.

De Maiziere said his decision to oust the ministers had not been influenced by the government in Bonn - which is also led by the CDU.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Corporations have reported ''phantom'' reductions in their release of toxic pollutants into America's air, water and land by using creative accounting tricks, an environmental group charged Thursday at a news conference disrupted by an angry industry president.

The National Wildlife Federation issued a 136-page report entitled ''Phantom Reductions: Tracking Toxic Trends'' that condemned many companies, including ALCOA - the Aluminum Company of America.

To the surprise of federation officials, ALCOA's president and chief executive officer, Paul O'Neill, was present when the report was released to reporters. He jumped up during the news conference to accuse the environmental organization of a ''malicious'' and ''scurrilous attack.''

O'Neill said the report unfairly misrepresented his company's performance, but National Wildlife Federation President Jay Hair rejected the allegation, saying: ''ALCOA, clean up your damn act.''

After O'Neill angrily stalked from the room, Hair added: ''It's clear that we've gotten their attention.''

The federation's report is based on new toxic pollution discharge data that must be disclosed by all major industrial plants under the 1986 ''community right-to-know'' law passed by Congress.

The Environmental Protection Agency has issued summaries for 1987 and 1988 with many plants reporting substantial reductions in discharges from 1987 to 1988, the last year for which figures are available.

A year ago, the federation identified the 500 highest-polluting facilities and dubbed them the ''Toxic 500.'' The new report re-examined 29 of them and concluded that many of their emissions did not decline significantly between 1987 and 1988.

The 29 facilities accounted for nearly 23 percent of 10.4 billion pounds of topic emissions reported to the EPA for 1987. Those facilities then reported a 39 percent decrease in emissions in 1988.

''On the basis of extensive interviews with plant officials, we concluded that most of the largest decreases in toxic emissions resulted from changes in reporting requirements, analytical methods, and production volume, and not from source reduction, recycling or pollution abatement,'' the report said.

''What good is the right to know if what we know is misleading?'' asked Hair. ''These were not real reductions, but phantom reductions.''

The report targeted ALCOA, which reported a reduction of 763 million pounds of aluminum oxide from three aluminum ore plants. The reduction was simply a result of more sophisticated measurement, not recycling or other measures to cut releases of the toxic chemical, the environmental group said.

''ALCOA's releases of aluminum oxide did not decrease between 1987 and 1988; the company just got better at measuring waste,'' said Gerald Poje, the environmental group's toxicologist. ''But the communities around those facilities need to know that ALCOA made no real improvements in its pollution control techniques.''

Many companies, including ALCOA, were able to show emissions reductions because the EPA has taken some toxic chemicals, including aluminum oxide, off its list of chemicals covered by the disclosure requirement.

Aluminum hydroxide was removed from the EPA list in February after the agency concluded the chemical was not toxic. It will not have to be reported to the EPA in 1989, even though it is still being emitted.

The reportable chemical list was initially created by Congress based on preliminary information on the most common industrial chemicals posing environmental or health threats. The EPA has authority to remove chemicals later found relatively non-hazardous.

MARION, IL (AUG. 16) UPI - Former baseball great Pete Rose has been given a job in the machine shop at the U.S. Penitentiary, the prison warden said Thursday.

Warden John L. Clark said Rose, who is serving a five-month prison term for tax evasion, works eight hours a day fabricating metal and welding. He is among 70 inmates of the minimum-security Marion Federal Work Camp who are working inside the main penitentiary, which is on lockdown and houses some of the nation's toughest criminals.

''Mr. Rose is working in a remote maintenance area,'' Clark said. ''Mr. Rose is not treated any better nor is he treated any different than any other inmate housed at the Marion Federal Prison Camp.''

Rose, the former manager of the Cincinnati Reds, was banned from baseball last year by Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti for illegal gambling, including betting on his own team.

Clark denied reports that baseball's all-time leader in base hits - 4,256 - is receiving preferential treatment.

''It is absolutely not true that Mr. Rose receives any special or preferential treatment,'' Clark said. ''There are no special dining, sleeping or recreational accomodations or privileges provided Mr. Rose or any other inmate. He is still assigned to an older, non-air conditioned dormitory.''

Clark also denied a report Rose had cut a deal to trim 20 days from his five-month prison sentence.

''He was sentenced under the new Sentencing Reform Act, which makes no provision for good time on sentences of less than one year,'' Clark said. ''Thus he will serve the entire five months day-for-day unless the sentence is modified by the sentencing court.

''We have no information that there is any move to modify the sentence.''

Rose reported to the prison camp Aug. 8 and is scheduled for release Jan. 7.

The Marion Daily Republican Wednesday quoted sources as saying Rose had cut a deal to shorten his sentence by 10 days for every day he reported to the camp before the Aug. 10 deadline set by a Cincinnati federal judge.

The newspaper also quoted a relative of one of the prison camp's inmates as saying Rose did not have to eat in the prison cafeteria, make his own bed, clean his room or watch television with the other inmates.

AUSTIN, TX (AUG. 16) UPI - The federal government is expected to ask Texas and other oil states to increase crude production to offset the loss of imports from Iraq and Kuwait, Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp said Thursday.

Sharp said federal energy officials have contacted the commission about exploring increased Texas production, and an official request is expected to be issued to oil states soon.

What the commission's response will be is unclear, he said, but the agency will call a special meeting if a formal request is made.

Sharp said he has ordered staff to begin studying what effect a substantial production increase would have on the Texas energy industry, which currently produces about 1.7 million barrels a day.

''An initial analysis has shown that if we were to push our production levels, we could provide this country with up to another 30,000 barrels of oil per day without long-term damage to the oil fields,'' Sharp said.

''There are only two ways to produce that much extra oil in Texas - by increasing the allowed production in the East Texas Field and from the new horizontal wells springing up in South Texas.''

Before Iraq invaded Kuwait, the U.S. imported about 750,000 barrels of oil per day from Iraq and Kuwait. Since then, oil from both countries has been embargoed.

For the last two decades, the Railroad Commission has set production rates in the East Texas fields - and with the horizontal wells since they have been developed - at less than 100 percent to avoid jeopardizing the long-term production of those fields.

''Substantially increasing production could have certain harmful effects on this state's energy industry. But during this time of crisis, we may be a critical player in maintaining our nation's energy demands, and we should study carefully what we can do to help,'' Sharp said.

Last week, Sharp and Enron Corp. Chairman Kenneth Lay of Houston urged President Bush to call on utilities in the Northeast and Midwest with dual-firing capacity to switch from fuel oil to natural gas for the duration of the Middle East crisis. If those facilities were to make the change, more than 160,000 barrels of imported oil per day could be offset through the use Texas-produced natural gas, Sharp said.

''If the producing states are going to be asked to do their part to help the country meet its energy needs, the consuming state should also pitch in by switching to the best domestic fuel we have - natural gas,'' he said.

MARION, Ill. (AUG. 16) UPI - Former baseball great Pete Rose has been given a job in the machine shop at the U.S. Penitentiary at Marion, the prison warden said Thursday.

Warden John L. Clark said Rose, who is serving a five-month prison term for tax evasion, works eight hours a day fabricating metal and welding. He is among 70 inmates of the minimum-security Marion Federal Work Camp who are working inside the main penitentiary, which is on lockdown and houses some of the nation's toughest criminals.

''Mr. Rose is working in a remote maintenance area,'' Clark said. ''Mr. Rose is not treated any better nor is he treated any different than any other inmate housed at the Marion Federal Prison Camp.''

Clark denied reports that Rose, baseball's all-time hits leader with 4,256 career hits, is receiving preferential treatment.

''It is absolutely not true that Mr. Rose receives any special or preferential treatment,'' Clark said. ''There are no special dining, sleeping or recreational accomodations or privileges provided Mr. Rose or any other inmate. He is still assigned to an older, non-air conditioned

Clark also denied a report Rose had cut a deal to trim 20 days from his five-month prison sentence.

Rose became manager of the Reds in 1984. He played for the Reds, Phillies and the Expos and broke Ty Cobb's hitting record in 1985 to become baseball's all-time hits leader.

PHILADELPHIA (AUG. 16) UPI - A judge Thursday threw the book at a California man for mutilating and stealing two rare books written and printed by Benjamin Franklin worth $60,000 from a university library exactly a year ago.

William Witherell, 39, of San Gabriel, Calif., was convicted on two counts of interstate transportation of stolen property after a one-day, non-jury trial.

U.S. District Judge J. William Ditter, Jr. freed Witherell on bail and ordered him to live with his parents in California until he is sentenced Nov. 28.

Witherell is a self-described loner who lived out of his Isuzu truck for the last 10 years and frequented libraries throughout the U.S., Canada, South America and Mexico. He was recently diagnosed as schizophrenic.

Witherell was convicted of stealing and tearing the covers off the two 18th-century books a year ago from the University of Pennsylvania's Van Pelt Library.

He was arrested in January after FBI officials raided his parents' California home and found about 300 other rare books authorities believe may have been stolen from libraries around the U.S. and Canada.

The parents were not charged and have been cooperating with authorities.

Defense attorneys admitted Witherell did remove the books from the library but contended he did not know what he was doing because he had mental problems.

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Walter Batty, Jr. said Witherell knew exactly what he was doing. He used an alias, Greg Williams, to borrow the books inside the library and substituted old-looking library books for the ones he had taken.

Batty also noted that Witherell tore the covers off the books because he thought the spines contained a piece of metal that would set off a library metal detector.

Christine Ruggere, curator of special collections at Van Pelt, said the value of the books has dropped by about half because of the damage.

At the time of the theft, one book, ''A Catalog of Choice and Valuable Books to be Sold by B. Franklin, April 11, 1744,'' was worth $50,000. ''A Sermon on Education/B. Franklin's Idea of the English School,'' was worth $10,000, Ruggere said.

Authorities said there was no evidence Witherell tried to sell the books.

NASHVILLE, TN (AUG. 16) UPI - Oklahoma native Garth Brooks, whose self-titled debut album sparked three No. 1 hits, was nominated for five awards Thursday by the Country Music Association.

Clint Black, Kathy Mattea, The Kentucky Headhunters and Alan Jackson received four nominations each for awards to be presented Oct. 8 during a live, two-hourshow telecast by CBS.

Finalists for country's top award, Entertainer of the Year, were Texan

Black and George Strait, West Virginian Kathy Mattea, Virginian Ricky Van Shelton and North Carolinian Randy Travis.

Brooks was nominated for the Horizon Award, given annually to the country entertainer whose career has shown the most significant development over the past year. Also nominated for the prestigious award were Jackson, The Kentucky Headhunters, Lorrie Morgan and Travis Tritt.

Each of the Horizon nominees have unquestionably had stellar career movement over the past year.

The final nominees were announced at a news conference hosted by Black and Patty Loveless in the courtyard in front of the Grand Ole Opry House.

A crowd of several hundred fans attended the announcement prompting Black to quip: ''Don't anyone work in this town?''

Brooks' other nominations were for Male Vocalist, Video, Single and Song of the year. Brooks co-wrote ''If Tomorrow Never Comes,'' the song nominated for top Single and Song.

In addition to his nomination for Entertainer, Black was also named a finalist for Single, Song and Male Vocalist.

The Kentucky Headhunters, whose debut album, ''Pickin' On Nashville'' went gold with sales of 500,000 without significant singles air play, were also nominated for Album, Vocal Group, and Video.

Mattea was also nominated for Single, ''Where've You Been,'' a song written by her songwriter-husband about the aging process.

She was also nominated for Female Vocalist and Video.

Others nominated for Female Vocalist were Loveless, Morgan, Reba McEntire and Tanya Tucker. Others nominated for Male Vocalist were Rodney Crowell, Shelton and Strait.

The 24th annual Country Music Awards will be broadcast live from the Grand OleOpry House. The show features the top performers in country music.

LYNN, MA (AUG. 16) UPI - General Electric's aircraft engines division, predicting a sharp decline in Defense Department contracts, will eliminate 1,500 jobs at plants in Massachusetts and Ohio by 1992, company spokesmen said Thursday.

A combined 500 employees at plants in Lynn and Evendale, Ohio, were expected to be laid off, while another 1,000 positions will be dropped as they are vacated, GE spokesman Robert Risch said.

Risch said it was expected the Lynn plant would lose slightly more jobs than the Ohio plant since one of its major subcontracts, the government's P-7 anti-submarine plane, was recently lost.

GE Aircraft Engines, which employs 37,250 people worldwide, drew $6.8 billion in revenue last year from military contracts, almost half its total. The division expects the figure to drop 30 percent by 1992, company officials said.

''We regret that our existing work load is not large enough to support current employment levels,'' said Brian Rowe, the division's senior vice president.

''However, in order to remain competitive in light of severely decreasing defense budgets and an increasingly challenging commercial market, we must operate our business in the most efficient manner,'' Rowe said.

The layoffs and attrition were expected to primarily affect salaried workers at the Lynn plant since most of the jobs there will be lost in the research and development areas, rather than in engineering and production, Risch said.

The spokesman said the commercial side of the division had absorbed about 5,000 jobs that were lost on the military end in the last three years, but has ''reached the saturation point,'' thus bringing about the layoffs.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq has ordered Americans and Britons in Kuwait to gather in hotels. The British Foreign Office said its citizens were told the roundup was for possible internment in Iraq. The State Department said it did NOT know why the Americans were told to congregate. This development comes as Iraq allowed some 45-hundred foreigners... mostly Egyptians... to enter Jordan.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein today issued an open letter praying that there will be NO war in the Middle East... yet again calling for a holy war against U-S troops in Saudi Arabia. The letter... read by a spokesman on Baghdad Television... vowed that President Bush will be defeated.

The United States is warning Iraq that if Baghdad uses chemical weapons in the Gulf conflict, Washington will respond with its own stockpile. The warning comes from the U-S delegate to the 40-nation Disarmament Conference in Geneva, Switzerland. The talks on banning chemical weapons have gone on for 12 years.

Two environment groups filed suit in Washington, D-C, today to try to stop the Navy and Department of Energy from testing a new type of nuclear submarine reactor. The tests would take place at the Knolls Atomic Power Laboratory near Schenectady, New York. The government says a 20-year-old study shows that the tests are safe.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - Iraq could become the dominant player in setting world oil prices if President Bush's efforts to oust it from occupied Kuwait fail, a senior executive from a major U.S. oil company said Thursday.

If there is a failure of the United Nations' embargo of Iraqi and Kuwaiti exports, the Iraq-Kuwait combine would dominate the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, the executive said. Bush has ordered U.S. warships to enfore the blockade.

''They would be the dominant player in OPEC and could pretty well set what the price would be,'' said the executive, who commented on condition he not be identified.

Unless the embargo is effective in forcing a withdrawal from Kuwait, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein will be in a position ''to assert almost total dominance over OPEC with control of Iraqi and Kuwaiti reserves,'' agreed Foster Mellen, an analyst with Energy Security Analysis in Washington.

OPEC pumps about 40 percent of the crude oil currently traded on world markets and the cartel appears ready to reassert the control of world prices it had in the 1970s as global demand catches up with supply.

In an effort to prop up world prices, the cartel has placed a ceiling on its combined daily output of 22.5 million barrels. Of this amount, Iraq and Kuwait have been alloted a combined total of 4.6 million barrels, second only to Saudi Arabia's 5.4 million-barrel quota.

So, Bush's peace condition that Saddam withdraw all Iraqi troops from Kuwait and allow the Kuwaiti government and ruling family to return is more than a political 'drawing a line in the sand.'

If the condition is not met, there could be severe disruptions in the economies of the major industrialized nations of the world as Saddam assumed a dominant position in the OPEC cartel.

This position would be even more enhanced if Iraq's peace package this week formally ending the eight-year Iran-Iraq war is accepted, and Iran allies itself with Iraq in OPEC councils. Iran has as 3.1 million-barrel daily quota.

OPEC prices plunged in the mid-1980s as use of alternative fuels, more efficient automobiles and general conservation markedly lowered world demand and the flow from new Alaska and North Sea oil fields raised crude-oil output.

Saudi Arabia' oil minister Hisham Nazer earlier this year forecast that the industrialized nations would become increasingly dependent on OPEC during the 1990s.

But Nazer painted a relatively benign picture of oil prices rising gradually so as not to cause economic disruptions and a flight to alternative fuels.

With Iraq's Saddam in the OPEC driver's seat, it is doubtful increases in oil prices would be as gradual and the effect as benign.

''However this thing comes out, we're going to have a new OPEC,'' Mellen said. ''Assuming that Saddam Hussein exits the scene altogether, Saudi Arabia will move back into a leadership position.''

The Saudi position had been eroded in recent years by the constant push of Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates for higher production quotas to utilize their large unused capacity, the analyst said.

Because of internal economic demands, the Saudis could not lower production enough to maintain prices at a desirably high level.

The result was OPEC overproduction and a world glut of oil developing in the wake of an unusually warm winter this year in Europe and North America. Crude prices plunged about $6 a barrel in the first six months of the year.

As a result Saddam said Iraq had lost billions of dollar in revenue needed to repair the damage from his war with Iran. He accused Kuwait and the UAE of being ''stooges'' of the United States by keeping oil prices low.

CAPE CANAVERAL, FL (AUG. 16) UPI - The European-built Ulysses solar probe's nuclear powerpack is safe and work is on schedule to ready the costly spacecraft for launch around Oct. 5 aboard the shuttle Discovery, officials said Thursday.

Ulysses, a joint $750 million project between NASA and the European Space Agency, is powered by a small nuclear generator, prompting criticism from anti-nuclear activists concerned about the threat of plutonium fallout in the event of a disaster.

But NASA officials say Ulysses' powerpack was designed to withstand even a shuttle explosion and Derek Eaton, the Ulysses project manager, said media reports about the issue amounted to ''scare mongering.''

''They're entitled to their viewpoint. I happen to think they're wrong,'' he said of activists who oppose Discovery's launch. ''Most thinking Europeans would think (recent media coverage) is wrong, it's scare mongering.

''This happens in every country in the world and you just have to live with that sort of thing. I don't feel offended, I don't feel disgusted, I don't feel amused, it's a point of view which I don't happen to share.

Discovery currently is scheduled to be hauled to launch pad 39B shortly after the shuttle Columbia takes off Sept. 1 from nearby pad 39A.

Work to ready Discovery for flight is extremely tight - only four days are built into the processing flow to handle unexpected problems - and the space agency could run out of money around launch time if debate over the federal budget is not resolved.

But deputy administrator Samuel Keller said by telephone from Washington that Discovery's launching would not be affected by any budget trouble.

''I do not intend to have that happen,'' Keller said. ''We do not see an impact on Ulysses. The worst case for us ... we believe, is that everybody would get laid off one day and we would exempt the Ulysses (launch) crew from that.''

Ulysses cost the European Space Agency some $250 million. NASA is chipping in some $500 million, which includes the cost of the shuttle launch, data processing and a $95 million three-stage solid-fuel booster system.

To accomplish its mission, Ulysses first must be fired to Jupiter so the giant planet's gravity can fling it down, out of the plane of the solar system and back toward the sun. The probe's post-Jupiter trajectory will carry it first over the sun's south pole and then the north.

Because of the positions of Earth and Jupiter, NASA only has 18 days to get Ulysses off the ground or the flight will be delayed for 13 months while the two planets return to favorable launch positions.

Discovery's roll out to launch pad 39B is somewhat uncertain given plans to launch the repaired shuttle Columbia from nearby pad 39A on Sept. 1, but engineers at the Kennedy Space Center are considering making the move a few hours after Columbia takes off.

Possibly working over the Labor Day holiday, engineers and technicians will have only four days of on-the-launch-pad ''contingency'' time at most to handle any unexpected problems that might crop up before liftoff. Discovery originally was expected to have 10 days of contingency time at the pad.

But a series of minor snags and mishaps have slowed launch processing. Given that NASA historically loses a day per week at the launch pad - and given the possibility of problems launching Columbia - the Oct. 5 target date for the Ulysses mission could be in jeopardy.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - With nearly three months left until Election Day, political action committees have contributed more than $90 million to the 1990 congressional race with five individual PACs each topping the $1 million mark, campaign documents showed Thursday.

Business-related PACs contributed almost two-thirds of the money - $62.1 million - with labor groups coming in second with $19.9 million. No other single category of interest groups or political fronts came close although all combined still gave $8.6 million.

The $90.8 million will go much higher before the Nov. 6 election when voters across the country pick all members of the House and 33 senators.

''The heavy giving comes in the last two months, especially in October,'' said Jane Mentzinger, a spokesperson for Common Cause, a citizen's group that specializes in tracking PAC money.

The National Association of Realtors was the single biggest giver of PAC money, having contributed $1,323,350 to candidates from Jan. 1, 1989, through the end of July.

Three unions and one other business-related PAC also gave more than $1 million each.

Trailing the realtors group were the Teamsters union, $1,208,327; the National Association of Letter Carriers, $1,125,950; American Telephone & Telegraph Co., $1,040,950, and the United Brotherhood of Carpenters & Joiners, $1,027,370.

Other top contributors among business and labor PACs were: American Medical Association, $942,220; National Association of Home Builders, $940,350; American Federation of State, County & Municipal Employees, $902,144; Association of Trial Lawyers of America, $899,700; National Association of Federal Employees, $887,700; United Auto Workers, $883,462.

The totals were compiled from reports filed by the PACs with the Federal Election Commission.

In the last two-year congressional campaign period in 1987-88, FEC records said PACs contributed a total of $147.8 million.

While there was no immediate comparitive figure for the period ending in July 1988, officials at the FEC and Common Cause both said it appeared contributions were running at least as strongly this campaign and probably were even greater.

Steve Driesler, senior vice president of government affairs for the National Association of Realtors, said an increase would be caused by rising costs of campaigns and growing understanding of the role of PACs.

''Our average contribution is less than $30,'' he said. ''Their interest in the process, both positively and negatively, has grown over time. There's more political iterest so more money is given, and there is more to give away.''

PACs representing interest groups other than business or labor in general could not match the overall spending of these two groups. For example, the 25th largest business-related PAC, Chicago Mercantile Exchange, contributed $313,450 and the 25th largest labor PAC, National Rural Letter Carriers Association, gave $255,400.

However, some individual PACs were big players in the money-giving league. National PAC, a group promoting Isreali causes, gave $497,500 and the National Rifle Association contributed $415,011.

Other big spenders were the National Committee for an Effective Congress, a generally liberal group, gave $362,225; the National Committee to Preserve Social Security, $283,250; Human Rights Campaign Fund, $261,550; and the National Abortion Rights Action League, $182,838.

For 905 candidates seeking either a seat in the Senate or House, the average overall PAC contributions was $100,352. Business PACs gave an average of $68,714 and labor PACs gave an average of $22,025.

Senate candidates fared better than those running for the House, getting an average total PAC contributions of $313,219 to $78,634 for House candidates.

And incumbents were way out ahead of their challengers. The average senator seeking re-election this year received $557,529 in PAC money, while the non-incumbent running got $120,889.

The ratio in the House was even more lopsided with sitting members getting an average of $135,433 to $12,637 for their rivals.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Motorists in a number of cities nationwide protested rising gasoline prices Thursday by refusing to purchase fuel and driving with their vehicles' headlights on.

The motorists responded to pleas from radio stations to make Thursday a gas boycott day to show their displeasure at gasoline price hikes since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

KGGI, the Riverside, Calif., that organized the boycott effort, said about 40 stations nationwide participated. According to a Houston station backing the boycott, another 15 other stations were taking part.

''We're just trying to make a statement. Our slogan is, 'Together we can make a statement,''' said Joe Libios, promotions director for KHYS in Houston.

Dave Ferguson, program director at WPGC in Greenbelt, Md., said that 3,000 calls were placed to the station supporting the boycott that about 200 did not. Steve Hegwood, KHYS program director, said the station received 702 supportive calls in three hours Thursday.

''The response has been fabulous,'' said Jeff Dean of KGGI. ''The reason is probably that people can relate to this. It gives the consumers ... a chance to cry out, to get their voice heard.''

Dean said the station received a negative call from a gas station owner who said the boycott was unfair.

Program Director Mike McCoy of KJ103 in Oklahoma City said a limousine service in the city offered to send a limo to pick up anyone who ran out of gas while supporting the boycott.

Many of the stations began promoting the boycott Monday or Tuesday and received a growing number of calls each day in support of the effort, station officials said.

''The phones have been ringing nonstop since Tuesday, when we announced it on the air,'' said Rich Stevens of 102 JAMZ in Orlando, Fla. ''We realize we can't stop buying gas. But we also understand there is no gasoline shortage and there is no reason for the higher prices.''

Dan Upton, program director for KITY in San Antonio, Texas, said people responded to the boycott because ''anyone who drives a car has been affected by gas prices going up.''

Some stations reported supportive calls from people with relatives among the American troops sent to Saudi Arabia to stop any Iraqi attempt to invade that country.

Jim Daniels of KGGI said a woman caller said she would not be driving Thursday and would support the boycott by posting a sign in her yard saying ''No Gas Thursday.''

''What we have to remember is that we have American servicemen overseas,'' he said. ''Everyone should remember we have people who may fight and die in the Middle East over the prices on the pumps. She said her brother-in-law and his brother had been shipped to Saudi Arabia.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - A jury in its eighth day of deliberations Thursday heard doctors and two of three youths on trial describe how a woman jogger was nearly beaten to death during a gang rape in Central Park last year.

Descriptions of her critical injuries and the gruesome way they were inflicted were contained in two hours of testimony read back by a court reporter at state Supreme Court in Manhattan. The readback was requested by the jury trying to reach a verdict on the attempted murder count.

Antron McCray, 16, Yusef Salaam, 16, and Raymond Santana, 15, are on trial on 13 criminal counts - including rape and attempted murder. They are accused of being part of a gang of up to 30 youths that rampaged through the moonlit park during a random crime spree on April 19, 1989.

''She hung onto life by a thread. I think it's close to a miracle she survived,'' testified Dr. Robert Kurtz, who treated the 30-year-old investment banker at Metropolitan Hospital.

He described how the attackers' blows crushed the woman's head and ''the tremendous force against her eyeball caused it to explode.'' He said the woman lost three-quarters of her blood and her blood pressure was so low it was almost non-existent.

''Her condition was life threatening,'' Kurtz testified.

The jury also heard testimony from the police officer who found the woman's body in a muddy gully off the 102nd Street Transverse, an Emergency Medical Service technician who rushed her to the hospital and the emergency room physician who treated her.

But the most powerful testimony came from the youths themselves, through videotaped confessions by McCray and Santana. Salaam did not sign a written confession or make a videotape but instead was interviewed by a detective.

On his videotape, McCray described in chilling detail how he kicked the woman twice and how, after she was raped and unconscious, they continued to beat her.

''After everybody was done, you still hit her on the head?'' asked Assistant District Attorney Elizabeth Lederer during the videotaped questioning.

''Yeah,'' McCray replied.

''She wasn't moving then?'' Lederer asked.

''Yeah,'' said the teenager.

On Santana's videotape, he described how another youth, Steven Lopez, who will be tried later, picked up a brick and hit her twice in the head.

''After he hit her in the head with the brick, was she moving?'' Lederer asked Santana.

''No,'' he replied.

ATLANTA (AUG. 16) UPI - More Americans may be cutting down on cholesterol and quitting smoking but most still shun exercise as a way to guard against heart disease, federal health officials reported Thursday.

A Centers for Disease Control study provides the first evidence that people are less likely to exercise than to make other lifestyle changes known to lower the risk of coronary artery disease.

The study also found between 30 percent to 40 percent of heart disease deaths probably could have been prevented if the victims had exercised.

''We have been waiting for this evidence,'' said Elaine Eaker, chief of the CDC's chronic disease control division. ''Physical activity has been sitting on the back burner for a long time while everyone has been focusing on cholesterol and smoking.

''The entire U.S. population needs to get out there and start moving,'' Eaker said.

Heart disease kills more Americans than any other single cause of death, claiming 2.1 million lives in 1987, the CDC said.

To avoid being labeled inactive by the government, people have to walk, run or engage in another sports activity at least three times a week for at least 20 minutes.

A survey involving people in 37 states found 58 percent failed to meet the recommended exercise level, while 31 percent had high levels of artery-clogging cholesterol, 25 percent smoked, 22 percent were obese and 17 percent had high blood pressure.

Cholesterol levels greater than 200 milligrams per deciliter of blood were considered dangerous. Obesity, smoking and hypertension are also known risk factors for heart disease.

In related research, the CDC studied heart disease deaths in 13 states with public health campaigns to increase exercise.

Of the 13 states, New York reported the greatest proportion of people who avoid exercise - 74 percent. Washington and Colorado had the best scores, with about 45 percent of respondents labeled inactive.

CDC researchers estimated nearly 40 percent New York's heart disease deaths may have been prevented if the victims had exercised more. About 30 percent of heart disease deaths in Washington and Colorado could have been prevented by more active lifestyles, they added.

ANN ARBOR, MI (AUG. 16) UPI - Airline pilots should be required to pass a cockpit sobriety test before they can start their engines, two University of Michigan researchers said Thursday.

The researchers propose installing a system to measure impairment not only by alcohol but also by fatigue or drugs, possibly modeled on those developed by the auto industry.

Known as an ignition-interlock system, the system would require a pilot to successfully perform tasks that gauge reaction time, short-term memory and visual tracking in order to take off.

Dr. Jack Modell, assistant professor of psychiatry at the U-M Medical Center, and Dr. James Mountz, an assistant professor of internal medicine, detailed their proposal in the latest edition of the New England Journal of Medicine.

Their report comes as three former Northwest Airlines pilots stand trial in Minneapolis for allegedly flying while impaired by alcohol. One of the pilots allegedly drank 15 to 20 rum-and-diet colas the night before flying a plane from Fargo, N.D., to Minneapolis.

In addition to the cockpit tests, the U-M physicians also recommended:

-Pilots be required to abstain from drinking for at least 12 hours before a flight instead of the current eight hours.

-Any pilot who consumes five or more drinks at one sitting be barred from the cockpit for at least 24 hours.

-Maximum allowed blood-alcohol be reduced from the current 0.04 percent to not more than 0.01 percent. In Michigan, the limit for motorists is 0.10 percent.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - Long Island utility crews came to Manhattan to help restore electricity to a 30-block section of Lower Manhattan, where the revival of street and traffic lights was expected Thursday.

Con Edison hoped to flip the switch by the end of the day, simultaneously relighting street and traffic lights around the Fulton district, which is south of the Brooklyn Bridge and includes Beekman Downtown Hospital and the Fulton Fish Market.

''Once we finish the final tie-ins, we'll perform safety checks to make sure our people are safe and out of there. The traffic and street lights may be restored all at once because of the way the circuitry is arranged '' said Con Edison spokesman Bill Murphy.

At New York Infirmary-Beekman Downtown Hospital, 182 patients along with administrators and workers also were anticipating a return of electrical power later in the day.

The non-profit hosital has closed its emergency room, canceled all elective surgeries, lost its air conditioning and managed with just two of its eight elevators. It has been relying on a Con Edison generator since its own generator system failed.

''We're just in readiness,'' said an excited Joan Macri, the hospital's director of development, before power returned.

The lack of full power did not stop nine babies from being born at the hospital since the blackout, and all infants and mothers were doing fine, she said.

The area, with about 2,500 residential units and 815 business customers, has been forced to rely on dry ice and emergency generators since a fire caused a blackout Monday and shut down power at the tip of Lower Manhattan.

Power was restored that day for most of region, including the World Trade Center, but the Fulton district, bordering the East River between William, Dover and Wall streets, was served by the substation that was the site of the fire and has been powerless while workers rush extensive repairs.

Con Edison officials say it will cost nearly $25 million to rebuild the nearly destroyed substation and it will take until late Sunday to lay and splice about 5 miles of new cable for interim power connections.

''We're still kind of on schedule. There are no serious setbacks at the moment,'' Murphy said.

Hundreds of crews, with three to five workers each, were working around the clock. The Long Island Lighting Company sent in about 40 reinforcements, including six cable-pulling crews and support personnel, to speed the effort, officials said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Farmers may face higher fuel and chemical prices as a result of the Persian Gulf crisis but it also could lead to higher demand for corn used in producing gasohol, government and industry officials said Thursday.

Consumers are unlikely to feel much of an impact from rising costs to farmers, analysts said, because fuel, utilities and chemical costs are about 15 percent of farm expenses and farmers get about 24 cents of each dollar spent on food.

Farmers might recoup some of the higher costs through larger consumption of corn, used in making ethanol, the grain alcohol that is mixed with gasoline to make gasohol. Refiners have vowed to step up production, which could result in demand for an additional 60 million bushels of corn.

Gasohol accounted for 8 percent of the gasoline market in 1989, according to Bob Dinneen of the Renewable Fuels Association. Production has been stable for several years, partly because federal incentives, such as the partial exemption from fuel taxes, are due to expire in 1993.

An oil price increase of $5 a barrel would equate to an additional $900 million in expenses for farmers, assuming the full increase is felt by all sectors of the agricultural industry, said Gerald Grinnell of the Agriculture Department's energy office.

Petroleum is used in producing many synthetic fertilizers and pesticides.

Farmers spent about $22 billion last year on fertilizers, fuel, lubricants electricity and pesticides. The department had forecast those items would cost from $21 billion to $24 billion this year.

Grinnell noted farmers are ''more likely to have to absorb it (higher costs) than others'' in the economy who have greater power to set the prices for their goods.

''American consumers should not see much of an increase in food prices from the farm end,'' said Mickey Paggi, an economist with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

However, analysts said there could be changes in grocery store prices because of other energy-related costs in the food system. They include the cost of refrigeration, processing and shipping.

The Agriculture Department was expected Friday to update its estimates of food price increases for this year. It initially forecast prices would average 3 percent to 5 percent higher this year than last year and an upward adjustment was likely.

DETROIT (AUG. 16) UPI - The Defense Department's Inspector General's Office confirmed Thursday it will look into whether it or Ford Motor Co. should get about $100 million in pension fund money from the automaker's sale this summer of its aerospace unit to Loral Corp., a New York defense and electronics company.

The Pentagon will conduct an audit into the sale because the government may rightly own that pension fund money, since it was paid to Ford to cover overhead costs in bidding for defense contracts.

As part of the $715 million sale of Ford Aerospace, Loral agreed to let the nation's No. 2 carmaker keep about $100 million from the aerospace unit's pension fund, which is overfunded by about $300 million.

''Our auditors will be looking at this issue,'' Pentagon spokesman James Turner said. ''We will be looking at how much federal funding in retirements there is, and whether it complies with regulations.''

Federal pension laws now prohibit companies from taking assets from existing pension funds. But companies have skirted that regulation by terminating pension plans and then re-establishing them under a new name.

Turner declined to characterize the audit as an official investigation.

''To characterize this as an investigation has a connotation of criminality,'' he said, adding that the audit ''is in a preliminary stage.''

Ford spokesman Tom Rhoades acknowledged the automaker has had daily contact with the Defense Department relating to this matter.

''They have asked us for a copy of the sale agreement which we will send shortly,'' Rhoades said.

However, a spokesman for Loral said the company has not been contacted by the Defense Department so far, but hinted that such an investigation is sure to be complex and lengthy.

Ford may have anticipated any problems with the sale of its Newport Beach, Calif., aerospace unit as it relates to pension funds. As part of the transaction, Loral agreed to assume any potential liabilities that could be incurred if the government tries to claim the pension money.

Loral said earlier this month it has no current plans to divest any of the operations of Ford Aerospace or make any major changes in its operations. Ford also assured the 17,000 workers at its former aerospace and defense unit that Loral would maintain wages and benefits equal to those of Ford's for two years.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - The United States is not planning to detain Iraqi students or visitors as a possible response to President Saddam Hussein's detention of Americans in Iraq and Iraqi-occupied Kuwait, a U.S. official said Thursday.

''The INS has not been contacted about a roundup of Iraq nationals,'' said Duke Austin, Immigration and Naturalization Service spokesman.

''We're not doing anything in that direction.''

A State Department spokesman also said he knows of no plans to answer Iraq's detention of Americans in Kuwait and Iraq by preventing Iraqis from leaving the United States.

Meanwhile Iraqi sources in Washington and Detroit said there has been no fear among Iraqi citizens that the United States would be detaining Iraqis in response for Saddam's detention of Americans.

''People are not leaving. There is no fear of being locked up,'' said an Iraq Embassy employee Thursday, who declined to be identified.

There are 1,403 Iraqi students in the United States, most of them in Michigan, California, Texas and Ohio, said Austin. In addition, from January to August another 2,600 Iraqis entered the United States on a variety of visas but Austin said there is no way to know how many remain in the country.

''The United States has no exit policy - most democracies don't,'' said Austin, in reference to Iraq's exit policy - in normal times - of requiring a week's waiting period for foreigners seeking to depart Iraq after making known their intentions to do so.

Any foreign national leaving the United States can voluntarily leave a departure card with the airline at the airport, but no government officials look at the passports of those exiting the country, Austin said.

''Only the air carrier looks at the passports to be sure the passenger has visas needed at the destination,'' said Austin.

In World War II, the INS ran detention camps - since declared unconstitutional - for several hundred thousand Japanese-Americans. Currently, the INS detains foreign nationals who are in the United States without legal documentation.

In Detroit, Iraqi-American businessman Faisal Arabo said he has not heard of Iraqis leaving the United States, or of any fear that those holding Iraqi passports would be locked up. He estimated the Iraqi community in Detroit at 75,000, most of whom are U.S. citizens, with several thousand permanent residents and still holding Iraq passports.

''We are very concerned, but have not felt hostility against us, and I have not heard of any fear about being able to leave the country,'' said Arabo.

ATLANTA (AUG. 16) UPI - Murder was the leading cause of injury-type fatalities at the workplace among women between 1980 and 1985, federal health officials said Thursday.

The Centers for Disease Control said 950 women were slain during the five-year period, most of whom died from gunshot wounds while working in retail or service industry settings.

Homicide accounted for 42 percent of the injury-related deaths among women making it the foremost cause of injury-type deaths at the workplace for females, the CDC said.

Other injury-related death causes include vehicle accidents, falls from heights, suicides, machine-related and electrocutions.

Among men, during the same period, 12 percent of fatal occupational injuries were homicides. However, more than three times as many men were slain at work during the period.

An estimated 7,000 fatal work-related injuries occurred in each of the five years for both men and women, with murder accounting for more than 13 percent of the total number, the CDC said.

''Homicide at the workplace is a tremendous problem in this country,'' said Catherine Bell, an epidemiologist with the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health, who authored the CDC study.

She said women were commonly slain at grocery stores, smaller markets, restaurants and bars, businesses that have heavy contact with the public and that involve the exchange of money with patrons.

The most common cause of death among women at the workplace was assault by firearms, claiming 609 of the female victims. Stabbings and slashings were responsible for 181 of the deaths.

''There are things the employer can do to reduce the risk of violence at the workplace,'' Bell said. ''They can improve the visibility of the work area, provide better-lit parking lots, control the amount of cash that is available on the premises and consider training programs in conflict management and non-violent response.''

While work can be a dangerous place, it is still safer than the streets, Bell said. The risk of murder is nearly twice as great for women out in the general public than at work.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Crib toys of the type blamed for the deaths of at least 30 infants were banned Thursday by the Consumer Product Safety Commission, which voted to set new standards for the popular toys found in millions of homes.

The ban applies to certain types of crib gyms, mobiles, activity centers and other popular nursery toys commonly used in cribs or playpens to provide stimulation or excercise for babies and toddlers up to 2 years old.

The commission voted 2-1 to grant a petition filed by the Consumer Federation of America and the attorney general of New York seeking to ban the toys as ''hazardous substances'' because the suspension cords, pull strings or other aspects of the toys' design can cause strangulation.

Speaking for the federation, Mary Ellen Fise said the consumer advocacy group was ''very pleased'' with the commission's action.

''I think it's significant because this is the government now saying 'consumer beware' about these products,'' Fise said.

But Fise cautioned that the commission action would not protect children from hazardous crib toys for probably three to four years - the normal length of time it takes the agency to complete new standards - and that meanwhile the ''banned'' toys could legally remain on the market.

''We are recomending that consumers not purchase crib toys because there are a variety of hazards that could strangle the child,'' Fise said.

The federation filed its petition to force the commission to take action on a report by its own staff that documented 49 incidents involving crib toys between 1973 and 1987, including 30 deaths and one case of severe brain damage.

According to the petition, ''These deaths and other incidents all occurred when the infant's or young child's neck became entangled in a cord or cords attached to the toy; became entangled in clothing worn by the child that hooked on to a part of the crib toy; or became suspended over a cord or toy parts attaching the toy to the crib or playpen.''

''Despite these statistics, no mandatory standard exists governing the performance of or labeling for crib toys,'' according to the petition.

A CPSC staff memo prepared this week in preparation for the vote cited data showing 79 percent of new mothers had acquired a mobile for their babies and 86 percent had bought or been given a crib gym. The memo estimated 7 million mobiles and 11 million crib gyms have been purchased in the last 3 1/2 years.

The earlier CPSC study of the 30 crib toy deaths showed that the greatest number of strangulations, 14, were caused by crib gyms while the second highest number were caused by mobiles or suspended stuffed animals.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Midlantic Corp. reported Wednesday that federal regulators are investigating the credit policies and loan quality of the company's banking subsidiaries.

In a document filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Midlantic - one of the 50 largest bank holding companies in the country - said that the examination began last July and is slated for completion next fall.

Pending the examination, federal authorities could force Midlantic to write off additional assets as nonperforming and increase loan loss reserves, according to Michael Plodwick, a regional bank analyst for C.J. Lawrence, Morgan Grenfell Inc. in New York.

Midlantic spokesman Jim Lacey confirmed that the examination is being handled by the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the federal agency that charters and regulates national banks.

The Midlantic examination is part of a continuing OCC program to identify regions of the country that have soft real estate markets and then look at the banks with the largest real estate exposure.

The OCC examinations have focused on bank policies towards real estate lending, the bank's systems for tracking existing real estate loans, and the loans themselves, according to Lee Cross, the OCC's director of communications.

Although Cross declined comment on the Midlantic examination, the company has been heavily involved in real estate lending, and recently had to add $186 million to its reserve for possible losses on real estate and other commercial loans.

Further, the OCC criticized certain Midlantic banking practices in a Report of Supervisory Activity issued last March, according to a June 21 letter that Midlantic sent to Karen Wilson, OCC's deputy comptroller for the northeastern district of the United States.

Midlantic, based in Edison, N.J., is the parent company for banks in New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, and Florida, including Continental Bank in Philadelphia and the United Penn Bank in northeastern Pennsylvania.

In total, Midlantic has over 500 bank branches and approximately $24 billion in assets, according to Dorothy Hinchcliff, a company spokeswoman.

Although the examination has not been completed, Midlantic's board of directors has begun a review program at the company's lead bank, Midlantic National Bank.

''Midlantic has not been sitting around for the OCC to come cream them,'' Plodwick said.''

Under the program the company will review the bank's policies, loan portfolio, loan administration and review processes, bank liquidity, and strategic and capital plans, according to the SEC filing.

''All necessary legal and prudent steps will be taken to require that the liquidity of the bank(s) is increased to a level which is sufficient to sustain the bank's current operations and to withstand any anticipated or likely extraordinary demands against its funding base,'' the board said in a letter to the OCC last June.

Steps that could result from the review would include the sale or securitization of assets, increasing lines of credit from the Federal Reserve Bank or obtaining credit lines from other commercial banks, reducing ''credit sensitive'' liabilities, and recovering charged-off assets.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 16) UPI - President Bush's uncle, Dr. John Walker died Thursday at Southern Maine Medical Center about 10 miles from Bush's summer home, a spokeswoman said.

The spokeswoman said Walker, who was the brother of Bush's mother, died at 6:41 a.m. EDT, about 20 minutes before the president arrived in a final attempt to see his uncle.

The White House did not provide further details.

Bush visited the hospital before he held talks at his seaside estate with Jordan's King Hussein and two Saudi leaders.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Farmers may face higher fuel and chemical prices as a result of the Persian Gulf crisis but it also could lead to higher demand for corn used in producing gasohol, government and industry officials said Thursday.

Consumers are unlikely to feel much of an impact from rising costs to farmers, analysts said, because fuel, utilities and chemical costs are about 15 percent of farm expenses and farmers get about 24 cents of each dollar spent on food.

Farmers might recoup some of the higher costs through larger consumption of corn, used in making ethanol, the grain alcohol that is mixed with gasoline to make gasohol. Refiners have vowed to step up production, which could result in demand for an additional 60 million bushels of corn.

Gasohol accounted for 8 percent of the gasoline market in 1989, according to Bob Dinneen of the Renewable Fuels Association. Production has been stable for several years, partly because federal incentives, such as the partial exemption from fuel taxes, are due to expire in 1993.

An oil price increase of $5 a barrel would equate to an additional $900 million in expenses for farmers, assuming the full increase is felt by all sectors of the agricultural industry, said Gerald Grinnell of the Agriculture Department's energy office.

Petroleum is used in producing many synthetic fertilizers and pesticides.

Farmers spent about $22 billion last year on fertilizers, fuel, lubricants electricity and pesticides. The department had forecast those items would cost from $21 billion to $24 billion this year.

Grinnell noted farmers are ''more likely to have to absorb it (higher costs) than others'' in the economy who have greater power to set the prices for their goods.

''American consumers should not see much of an increase in food prices from the farm end,'' said Mickey Paggi, an economist with the American Farm Bureau Federation.

However, analysts said there could be changes in grocery store prices because of other energy-related costs in the food system. They include the cost of refrigeration, processing and shipping.

The Agriculture Department was expected Friday to update its estimates of food price increases for this year. It initially forecast prices would average 3 percent to 5 percent higher this year than last year and an upward adjustment was likely.

LAWRENCEVILLE, NJ (AUG. 16) UPI - New Jersey's top gambling official suggested Donald Trump start selling off his shaky assets as regulators began hearings Thursday on revoking his casino licenses because of his $3.2 billion debt.

The Casino Control Commission could torpedo Trump's agreement with seven banks. Trump used his three Atlantic City casinos - along with just about everything else he owns - as collateral to borrow $65 million to refinance more than $1 billion in loans.

Trump sat quietly, conferring with a casino executive, as his lawyers outlined the plan for the commission and argued that the new loans along with an agreement by lenders to defer millions of dollars in interest will enable him to regain his financial health. But state gaming enforcement officials were skeptical.

"The bank agreements, by themselves, will not resolve all the financial troubles confronting (Trump)," state Division of Gaming Enforcement Director Anthony Parrillo noted in a report to the commission.

"Rather, it appears that the real opportunity afforded by these agreements is that it makes economic sense to break up the organization, sell off parts of the business, shrink overhead and refocus its energies on a few core operations."

Parrillo noted that two of Trump's casinos were on shaky financial ground, and the third may be unable to carry the others. He said the Trump Castle would have folded if not for Trump's last-minute loan and would very likely face another crisis by next June.

The Trump Taj Mahal, which opened in April, was in even worse shape, according to Parrillo. Trump still owes nearly $70 million to contractors who helped build the Taj Mahal, and another $47 million is due Nov. 15 to the casino's bondholders. Parrillo said the current rate of cash flow was insufficient to meet the bondholders payment.

The Trump Plaza casino hotel has been Trump's biggest breadwinner and continued to generate healthy revenues. But Parrillo said recent figures showed the Trump Plaza revenues were below projections.

"Given recent performance trends... this property may no longer be positioned as a crutch to prop up non-income producing or other cash-draining assets of the organization," Parrillo noted.

The DGE report blamed Trump's borrowing habits for his financial woes and said his various enterprises were simply incapable of generating the cash to pay off more than $3 billion in loans.

Trump's problems have been aggravated by a slumping real estate market which has helped delay the proposed sale of his Plaza Hotel in Manhattan. He has also been unable to find a buyer for his Trump Princess yacht and Trump Shuttle airline.

Trump is hoping to get $830 million for the Plaza Hotel, $70 million for the 282-foot yacht and $340 million for the commuter airline he bought last year from Eastern Airlines.

Trump estimated his assets were worth a total of $4.6 billion, but a report prepared by a New York accounting firm for Trump and his creditors estimated the assets could fetch no more than $3.6 billion if they had to be sold in a hurry. Analysts believe potential buyers, knowing Trump is in trouble, will drive hard bargains. Trump's lawyers were expected to complete their testimony before the commission Friday at a hearing in Atlantic City.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - Foreign exchange players sold the dollar off again Thursday, shrugging off fighting words from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein to drive the beleagured U.S. currency down to record New York lows.

Currency traders said the dollar started stronger, reflecting limited buying for safe-haven, or financial refuge, motives, after the Iraqi president called President Bush a liar and warned U.S. servicemen would die.

But the dollar's rally quickly collapsed. ''The fact the dollar failed to hold those levels was bearish in itself,'' said Bank of Tokyo senior customer dealer John Lyman. ''There's a lot of reverse logic going on.''

Currency analyst Anne Mills of Shearson Lehman Hutton said players also were disconcerted that the dollar rose so little on a higher-than-expected consumer inflation report that boded firmer U.S. interest rates.

''The dollar's inability to perform in response to what should have been good news was part of the problem,'' Mills said.

In late New York trading the dollar was quoted at 1.5520 German marks, down a pfennig and a third from 1.5650 marks Wednesday. It changed hands at 147.20 yen, also down from 147.60 yen the previous day.

That closing mark price was a record low for the dollar-mark rate in the 42 years since the German currency was created. Before Tuesday's new low rate of 1.5645 the record was 1.5715, set in December 1987.

During the day the dollar also plunged to a postwar intraday record low of 1.5500 marks before recovering, Lyman said.

He said the market is feeling torn on the dollar - nervous about selling when Mideast tensions are rising, but bearish on economic grounds.

''When the first shot is fired it's possible we'll get a significant rally '' he said. ''But in the war of the (poor U.S. economic) fundamentals against the situation in the Gulf, the fundamentals are winning now.''

Other New York dollar rates: 1.2915 Swiss francs, off from 1.3055; 5.2125 French francs, down from 5.2410; and 1,143 Italian lire, off from 1,149.

Britain's pound gained nearly a cent at $1.9095 vs. $1.90.

In Europe, the dollar closed mixed against the main currencies with investors uncertain how to read Middle East news. Some took Saddam's bellicose words as indicating the Gulf conflict would be longrunning.

The dollar started firmer after its battering the day before. Players bought the unit after selling it too short. But the mood turned bearish after release of data showing a strong rise in U.S. consumer prices.

The dollar moved up in Frankfurt, to 1.5618 German marks against 1.5585 marks Wednesday. In Zurich, it fell to 1.3015 Swiss francs against 1.3020.

In London, the British pound came off its lows to close at $1.8980 compared with $1.9025 Wednesday.

The dollar declined in Paris, Brussels and Milan as trading resumed following the Feast of the Assumption holiday Wednesday.

It ended at 5.2510 French francs vs. 5.2930 Tuesday, 32.15 Belgian francs vs. 32.43, and 1150.90 Italian lire vs. 1159.75.

Earlier in Tokyo, the U.S. dollar edged up against the yen on reports Saudi Arabia will cut crude shipments to oil-hungry Japan by a sixth in September. The dollar closed at 147.90 yen against 147.85.

Sumitomo Bank currency head Tetsuya Taura said players ''became anxious again'' that Japan's economy would suffer.

Gold closed higher in Zurich at $403 an ounce against $398.50. But it slipped in London, to $401.50 an ounce against $403.

Republic National Bank in New York closed cash gold at $409 an ounce, up from $402.50 Wednesday. The New York Commodity Exchange settled contract gold at $409.20 an ounce, posting a healthy gain from $402.60.

Silver was unchanged in Zurich at $5.10 an ounce. In London it was unchanged as well, at $5.12 an ounce.

Republic closed cash silver at $5.18 an ounce, a gain from $5.09 Wednesday. Comex silver closed at $5.168 an ounce, up from $5.068.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - An experimental transplant operation designed to free diabetics from insulin injections has produced the most promising results since the technique was developed, researchers reported Thursday.

The procedure enabled five of nine patients to significantly reduce their need for daily insulin injections, including one 16-year-old Louisville, Ky., girl who has remained completely independent of injections for more than six months, the researchers reported.

''I'm completely excited,'' said Dr. Camillo Ricordi of the University of Pittsburgh, who published the results with his colleagues in the British medical journal The Lancet. ''It's opening up a whole new perspective on cellular transplants.''

The procedure involves removing cells called islet cells from the pancreas of a donor, purifying them and injecting them into a patient. The cells, which are the insulin-producing cells in the pancreas, then lodge in the liver and begin cranking out insulin.

The procedure has shown promise for years in animal studies and some early attempts on human. But the new study has produced the most favorable results to date, experts said.

Although other researchers remained cautious, in part because the patients in the new study were not typical diabetes patients, they said the findings were highly encouraging.

''It's very encouraging, very exciting,'' said Dr. David Scharp, a professor of surgery at Washington University in St. Louis who is experimenting with the procedure. ''(This offers) new hope for diabetics.''

More than 12 million Americans suffer from diabetes. The disease causes the body to stop producing or react abnormally to insulin, a hormone produced by the pancreas to keep blood sugar in proper balance.

High blood sugar levels can lead to severe damage of the heart, kidneys, eyes, nerves and blood vessels.

The procedure has been tested most extensively for patients with Type 1 or juvenile onset diabetes. Such patients require daily insulin injections, and even then are prone to blindness and other complications. About 1 million Americans have Type 1 diabetes.

The new study, which will be reported next week along with similar findings from other researchers at a transplantation meeting in San Francisco, involved patients who underwent an multiple organ removal operation.

The patients had advanced abdominal cancer, requiring them to undergo the removal of their stomach, pancreas, spleen and parts of the small and large intestines.

Because the patients can be kept alive without the other organs and transplants are considered risky, only a liver transplant is performed. But without a pancreas, the patients become diabetics.

The doctors decided to try the islet transplant because it carries minimal risk.

Two of the nine patients died from complications from the cancer surgery, while a third died six months later when his cancer recurred.

Of the six remaining patients, four out of five only required insulin when they received intravenous nutritional supplements at night. The fifth, patient, Mary Arthur, 16, of Louisville has been independent of insulin since the Jan. 10 operation.

''It (diabetes) could have just destroyed what organs I have left. They saved me from having diabetes for the rest of my life,'' she said by telephone.

Previously, the longest published report of a patient who has remained insulin-free from the procedure was two weeks.

Ricordi attributed part of the success to use of an experimental anti-rejection drug called FK 506, which avoided the use of other drugs that may damage islet cells.

Ricordi cautioned, however, that the procedure requires much more refinement and study before being made widely available.

''It's a long way away still. This is just the first very exciting result '' he said.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Market uncertainty over the Mideast crisis and whether the OPEC cartel would raise output to make up for embargoed Kuwaiti and Iraqi oil drove oil prices up Thursday.

''The market is clearly focusing on OPEC and its plans or lack of plans for increasing production,'' said Robert Baker, senior energy analyst with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc. in New York.

''General uncertainty in the (Persian) Gulf region'' was driving prices upward, said Peter Beutel, vice president of Merrill Lynch Futures in New York.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, the benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for September delivery shot up 90 cents to end the day at $27.36 a barrel, near its high on the day of $27.50 a barrel.

Paine Webber Inc.'s Michael McDermott said the market was still awaiting definitive news on the crisis and merely trading at the top of a range he put at $25.50 a barrel to $27.50 a barrel it has been in for the past week.

Prompt delivery WTI was quoted at $27.35 a barrel, a gain of 85 cents, on the U.S. Gulf Coast cash market.

September delivery unleaded gasoline gained 3.41 cents a gallon on the Merc to 87.46 cents a gallon, while home heating oil added 2.62 cents to 75.47 cents a gallon.

On the European cash market, the United Arab Emirates' Dubai light - the key OPEC crude shipped mainly to the Far East - rose $1.05 a barrel on the day to $23.55 a barrel.

Britain's widely traded North Sea Brent was quoted at $27.40 a barrel, $1.20 cents higher than Tuesday.

Three companies - Sun Co. of Radnor, Pa.; USX Corp.'s Marathon Oil Co. ofFindlay, Ohio; and Du Pont's Conoco Inc. of Houston - also raised the posted price they will pay for crude at the wellhead by 75 cents a barrel to $26 a barrel for WTI.

An industry source in Tokyo said Saudi Arabia had notified five Japanese companies that it would cut Japanese crude exports by 16 percent next month.

A similar Saudi notification was sent to major U.S. oil companies Thursday as part of a reallocation of Saudi exports that would send more crude to Kuwaiti-owned refineries in Europe to help offset crude lost by the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

The Middle East News Agency, however, quoted Saudi oil minister Hisham Nazer as saying Saudi Arabia would provide its clients with their usual quotas.

It was not clear why the Saudis were reallocating their exports other than to perhaps set the stage for an overall increase in exports by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

A senior executive of a major U.S. oil company said he believed that the notification was ''merely operational'' and that the Saudis would eventually raise output as part of an overall OPEC increase.

''I do believe that all the members of OPEC would like to have a meeting on this and have an OPEC decision on how much they go up and when they go up,'' the executive said.

Nazer was reported as saying his country and other members of OPEC have asked for an immediate meeting of the cartel to discuss the current world-market situation.

There was no indication from OPEC, however, if or when it would hold anyemergency meeting.

About 4 million barrels a day have been lost to world markets as a result of the United Nations embargo of Kuwait and Iraqi exports ordered in the wake of the invasion.

Jordan's King Hussein met with President Bush at his Kennebunkport, Maine, vacation retreat, with attention focused on whether he was indeed carrying a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The possibility that the message might lead to a settlement of the crisis had dampened oil prices Wednesday.

But traders were discounting this possibility Thursday.

The monarch verified their skepticism in comments following his meeting with Bush. ''I did not bring any message,'' Hussein told reporters.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - Stocks closed sharply lower Thursday, pummeled by news of mounting tension in the Middle East and a gloomy government report on inflation.

The Dow Jones industrial average, which rose 0.50 Wednesday, plummeted 66.83 to 2681.44.

The uptick rule kicked in on the New York Stock Exchange at 3:41 p.m., when the Dow was down 50 points, the exchange said. Under the uptick rule, traders cannot sell stocks involved in arbitrage trades until their price rises.

The Dow Jones transportation average closed down 21.90 to 939.78 - a new low for the year and its lowest level since mid-1988.

Declines hammered advances 1,285-324. A total of 2,004 NYSE issues were traded.

Among broad market gauges, the New York Stock Exchange composite index fell 3.81 to 182.73. The price of an average share plunged 67 cents.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was down 7.67 to 332.39.

Volume amounted to 138,850,000 shares, up slightly from 135,210,000 traded Wednesday.

The stock market, following the bond market's lead, dropped in morning trading after a Labor Department report showing inflation at the consumer level rose 0.4 percent in July - before the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait and the ensuing rise in fuel prices.

Private economists had expected July's consumer prices to rise 0.3 percent and several noted the Middle East crisis is bound to boost August prices.

The market's decline accelerated and the breadth of the selloff widened after signs of mounting tension in the Middle East, analysts said.

In an open letter, Iraqi President Saddam Hussein accused President Bush of lying to the American people and threatened that ''you are going to receive some American bodies in bags.''

Iraq also ordered thousands of Americans and Britons in occupied Kuwait to gather in hotels for possible internment in Iraq.

''The market right now is in an emotional state closely related to the various news reports coming out of the Middle East,'' said Gene Seagle, technical research director at Gruntal & Co.

''Today, the war of words heated up considerably with the threat to American lives made public in the letter from Saddam,'' he said.

Adding to the grim outlook was news from Jordan's King Hussein, who told Bush that, contrary to earlier reports, he brought no message from the Iraqi president and did not foresee a quick solution to the crisis.

''The market is basically a slave to the news in the Middle East,'' said Edward Shopkorn, partner in charge of institutional equities at Mabon, Nugent & Co.

''Even if the Mideast crisis resolves itself, we still have a recessionary economy, now with inflation,'' he said. ''It looks like it's 1980 and 1981 all over again.''

Trading volume in stocks remained low as institutional investors sat on the sidelines, watching warily as events unfold in the Middle East, analysts said.

On the trading floor, Ohio Edison was the most active, off 2 1/2 to 17 3/8.

Navistar International followed, down 3/8 to 2 7/8.

IBM was third, down 1 1/4 to 103 3/4.

Among the blue chips, AT&T lost 7/8 to 34 3/8, General Motors lost 1 3/4 to 38 1/8, Philip Morris lost 2 to 45 1/4 and American Express lost 1 1/4 to 25 3/8.

Volume of NYSE-listed issues, including trades in stocks on regional exchanges and in the over-the-counter market, totaled 169,855,400 shares, up from 161,142,570 shares traded in the previous session.

Prices were lower on the American Stock Exchange.

The Amex Market Value index dropped 3.81 to 336.83. Declines led advances 441-164 among the 812 issues traded. The price of an average share lost 13 cents. Composite volume totaled 17,551,300 shares vs. 16,662,400 traded Wednesday.

Fruit of the Loom led the Amex actives, off 1/8 to 12 1/2.

The National Association of Securities Dealers composite index closed down 9.18 to 402.27.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Some defense contractors and U.S. military maintenance facilities are working overtime - and a few are operating around-the-clock - to ready aircraft and other weapons for the buildup of U.S. forces in Saudia Arabia, officials said Thursday.

But because of the complexity of modern arms, much of the defense industry could not expect immediately to match the military's swift deployment in the Persian Gulf with their own output of new weapons, spokesmen for defense contractors said.

They added, however, that new weapons systems would not be needed immediately and that supply of spare parts would be much faster, in some cases within 24 hours.

"A lot of the hardware is there already," said James Reed, a spokesman for the aircraft division of McDonnell Douglas Corp. of St. Louis, the nation's No. 1 military contractor. However, he conceded "It's not easy to speed up production" on major weapons systems such as the fighter jets his division makes.

The makers of Cruise missiles, ship-launched guided missiles, are working overtime to ready older weapons for Navy vessels about to be dispatched to the Persian Gulf.

Cruise plants owned by General Dynamics Corp. in San Diego and by McDonnell Douglas in Titusville, Fla. have added second shifts to speed their regular checks on previously-deployed missiles. This will allow ships that carry the missiles to leave sooner for the Middle East, said Bob Holsapple, a Navy spokesman in Washington.

And the Air Force is quickening the pace of its maintenance. The San Antonio Air Logistics Center at Kelly Air Force Base, Texas has been put on a 24-hour schedule to increase maintenance work done there.

Both the San Antonio center and one at Tinker Air Force Base, Oklahoma, where its schedule has also been expanded, work on B-52 bombers and all aircraft engines, said Ronald Fry, a spokesman for the Air Force Logistics Command at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. Many major contractors remained mum about their activities.

Raytheon Co. of Lexington, Mass., the country's fourth biggest military manufacturer and a major supplier of missiles, refused any comment, even to discuss its previous sales of weapons. In November, Raytheon said it had won a $469 million extension to a contract with the Saudi government for training and other services on a Hawk air defense missile program that's been running there since 1976.

United Technologies Corp. in Hartford, Conn. also refused comment on its activities, most of which are the manufacture of jet engines and radar.

Ironically, General Electric Co. Thursday said it planned to cut 1,500 workers by the end of next year from plants in Lynn, Massachusetts and Evendale, Ohio where the company makes engines for several U.S. jet fighter planes. A GE spokesman, Robert Risch, said the cuts were due to a contract for anti-submarine aircraft that was not extended.

However, Risch added that the company's ability to supply spare parts would not be impaired. "If there's an aircraft on the ground, we get it to them in 24 hours," he said. "But if we had to repair an entire unit, I don't know."

As for the military's need for spare parts during the Arabian Peninsula buildup, Risch said, "We've had some feelers, what-ifs (from the military) but no firm orders," he said.

Meanwhile, Boeing Co. of Seattle, the country's No. 9 military contractor, is continuing work on two major programs in Saudia Arabia, where the company still has about 400 employees, said Russell Long, a spokesman. He said 336 dependents were returned to the United States last week.

The programs are the AWACS radar control and communications planes and a similar, ground-based control and communications system, said Long. However, as for speeding up production because of the current buildup, Long said, "there's really nothing there we could pick up production on."

Similarly, a spokesman for General Dynamics Corp.'s tank division in Sterling Heights, Mich. said it takes the company about 35 weeks to build its M1 Abrams tank and "to expedite or increase delivery would be a lengthy process."

The spokesman, Donald Gilleland, added that the companmy has contracts to build versions of the tank for both Saudia Arabia and Egypt.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Breaking again with President Bush and other budget negotiators, assistant House Republican leader Newt Gingrich called Thursday for big tax cuts instead of tax increases to stimulate the economy and avoid a recession.

''My individual belief is that we ought to look at a broad collection of tax cuts,'' Gingrich, a budget negotiator, said in a telephone interview from his Newnan, Ga., congressional office. ''It's my individual belief that we ought to look at a fairly wide range of tax cuts that help the American family, that help home buying and that help job creation.''

He added that ''the most most important anti-deficit measure you can take is to stimulate the econmoy and avoid a recession,'' which he said would jack up the deficit even higher and add to the massive cost of the savings and loan bailout.

His comments came roughly two months after Bush on June 26 broke his ''read my lips - no new taxes'' campaign pledge and called for higher taxes to help cut the deficit. Gingrich and other Republicans broke with Bush over the tax issue and House Republicans passed a resolution opposing any tax increases.

Gingrich's comments also came three weeks before the stalled White House-congressional budget talks were scheduled to resume during the first week of September.

Negotiators have given themselves an unofficial deadline of Sept. 10 to reach agreement on a deficit reduction package of up to $50 billion in fiscal year 1991, which starts Oct. 1, and about $500 billion over five years.

Gingrich said he is ''not optimistic'' that the talks will succeed.

Failure to implement a deficit reduction package by Oct. 1 would cause imposition of about $100 billion in automatic spending cuts split between defense and domestic programs. Those cuts are required under the Gramm-Rudman balanced budget law.

Approximately half of the up to $50 billion in deficit reduction the first year and a significant portion of the $500 billion five-year savings was expected to come from new taxes or other revenue increases.

Negotiators have not yet made any decisions on which taxes would be raised or by how much.

But last month, a Republican negotiator leaked a GOP plan that included a $7 billion hike in alcohol taxes and limits on the amount of state and local taxes that could be deducted from federal taxes. Gingrich indicated in the interview he was prepared to support that plan.

So his call for tax cuts instead of tax increases runs counter both to Bush's position and to the view of other budget negotiators.

The outspoken GOP leader did not say if he would propose a broad package of tax cuts to other budget negotiators when they resume their talks next month.

Gingrich said he talked to ''eight or nine'' other GOP House members about his idea for broad-based tax cuts and said they liked it.

Asked what elements he would like to see included in a budget agreement, Gingrich mentioned budget process reform, serious spending cuts and ''real tax cuts this fall to stimulate the economy and very modest limited tax increases and fee increases.''

''I think the first year the shape of the package is less important than having a broad, sweeping tax cut that stimulates the private sector,'' he said.

''If we do not stimulate the private sector, we are going to be in a recession and if we are in a recession then it doesn't matter what you do on the deficit, it's going to get bigger. And a recession dramatically increases the cost of the savings and loan bailout.''

Gingrich said ''the weak economy has killed the kind of tax increase that they (Democrats) were hoping for'' and that ''unless you're a fan of (former President) Jimmy Carter, I don't see how you can argue that a weak economy needs a tax increase.''

''I think that the Democrats have shot themselves in the foot because where they could have gotten one kind of agreement in late May, I think the economy has changed and the Middle East has changed,'' Gingrich said. ''I think we have to be much more worried about a recession now and I think, if anything, any rational economic argument is for a tax cut this year, not a tax increase.''

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - The Lipper Analytical Services index of the 30 largest growth mutual funds Thursday was 466.28, off 2.07 percent. This index is net asset value weighted and adjusted for capital gains distributions and income dividends. It is based at 100 on Dec. 31, 1968.

NEW YORK (AUG. 16) UPI - Assets of the nation's 525 money-market mutual funds rose by $2.38 billion to $404.48 billion in the week ended Wednesday the Investment Company Institute reported Thursday. Average fund yields declined.

The Washington-based institute said broker-dealer fund assets increased $1.09 billion to $163.32 billion, while assets of general purpose funds increased $469.9 million to $140.40 billion and those of institutional funds rose $829.3 million to $101.11 billion.

''Assets of money-market funds increased for the seventh week in a row as both individual and institutional investors continued pulling their money out of longer-term instruments,'' said Jacob Dreyer, vice president and chief economist at the institute.

''Despite a slight easing of yields offered by money-market funds, the events in the Persian Gulf have enhanced their attraction as safe and liquid investment vehicles,'' he said.

The Investment Company Institute, a national association of the American investment company industry, reports the assets of money market funds to the Federal Reserve Board each week.

The Donoghue Organization, of Holliston, Mass., said that average seven-day simple yields were unchanged at 7.50 percent but that 30-day simple yields eased to 7.54 percent from the previous week's 7.58.

The average maturity of fund portfolios was unchanged at 45 days.

The Bank Rate Monitor, of North Palm Beach, Fla., gave average rates as follows: money market deposit accounts, 5.91 percent, down from 5.93 a week earlier; Super-Now accounts, 4.98 percent, down from 4.99; six-month certificates of deposit, 7.53 percent, down from 7.54; 1-year CDs, 7.63 percent, down from 7.65; 2 1/2-year CDs, 7.69 percent, down from 7.71; and five-year CDs, 7.79 percent, down from 7.81.

The average rate for a one-year, adjustable-rate mortgage was 8.25 percent down from 8.28.

The average rate on a 15-year, fixed-rate mortgage rose in the latest week to 9.62 percent from 9.51 and the average rate for a 30-year, fixed-rate mortgage reached 9.92 percent from 9.79.

The average rate for a four-year automobile loan was unchanged at 12.26 percent.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - The five primary ''greenhouse'' gases in the atmosphere have increased modestly in the past four years, but the key pollutant - carbon dioxide - is piling up at an accelerating rate, government scientists said Thursday.

Scientists with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration said information collected at the agency's Climate Monitoring and Diagnostics Laboratory in Boulder, Colo., confirmed earlier studies showing carbon dioxide - the main greenhouse gas - was accumulating at an ever-faster pace.

The monitoring program also discovered that the growth rate for carbon dioxide varied considerably over the four-year period, with the biggest increases coming during the little-understood El Nino ocean current phenomenon in the Pacific Ocean.

Carbon dioxide is the primary component of a thickening blanket of pollution in the atmosphere that can trap heat that otherwise would escape into space - much as glass walls and ceilings allow heat to concentrate in a greenhouse.

Scientists say the ''greenhouse effect'' threatens to increase surface temperatures by nearly 4 degrees Fahrenheit over the next 40 years, raising sea levels and altering climate patterns sufficiently to disrupt agriculture and kill off forests.

In addition to carbon dioxide, the new monitoring data covers methane, nitrous oxide and two types of chlorofluorocarbons, which are implicated in depletion of the Earth's ozone layer as well as global warming.

However, Pieter Tans, a scientist with the NOAA laboratory's Carbon Cycle Group, said the most interesting findings concerned carbon dioxide, including confirmation of earlier studies showing the accumulation of that gas was accelerating.

''What we have seen in the 1980s is a growth rate that is double what we saw when we first began monitoring carbon dioxide in the late 1950s and early 1960s,'' he said.

Tans noted the carbon dioxide growth rate closely matched the increase in fossil fuel use, suggesting the buildup and the burning of coal, oil and gas are related.

Perhaps the most striking discovery from the new data is that carbon dioxide increased more rapidly at some points during the monitoring period than others.

Carbon dioxide levels increased by an average of 0.5 percent annually over the four years. However, the growth rate shot up to almost 1 percent a year during the late 1987 El Nino event in the Pacific Ocean, a major eastward flow of warm water along the equator that often affects climate worldwide.

Tans said the cause of the growth variations was not known, but that the link with EL Nino clearly indicated the ecosytem responded to climate changes in a way that could affect a possible warming trend.

The monitoring also showed:

-Methane, a gas released from both manmade and natural sources, increased by 0.8 percent each year. Tans said the record suggests the methane growth rate may have decreased slightly recently.

-Nitrous oxide, from fossil fuel burning, soil cultivation and deforestation, increased 0.25 percent each year.

-CFC-11 and CFC-12, chemicals used as refrigerants and solvents, are increasing by about 4 percent per year.

WICHITA, Kan. (AUG. 16) UPI - Kansas Gas and Electric Co. said Thursday it has asked a federal court judge to issue a preliminary injunction against Kansas City Power & Light Co., which has launched a hostile takeover bid for KGE.

The Wichita utility seeks to prevent KCP&L from continuing its demands for a list of KGE stockholders and for a special meeting of KGE stockholders in conjunction with the tender offer.

KGE also Thursday asked the Kansas Corporation Commission to deny KCP&L's application for approval of its acquisition of all classes of KGE stock and its motion for an expedited hearing on the takeover.

Among other grounds for KCC disapproval, KGE said public policy ''does not permit the use of Kansas Corp. Commission approval to facilitate the hostile takeover of one public utility by another.''

In its court action, KGE also seeks to prevent KCP&L from publishing ''misleading information concerning the special stockholders' meeting and the legality of its tender offer.''

KCP&L, of Kansas City, Mo., on July 23 announced an unsolicited $857 million offer for all KGE's common shares.

The board of Kansas Gas has recommended that shareholders reject KCP&L's tender offer, calling it inadequate.

The Wichita utility filed suit in U.S. District Court in Wichita on July 31, challenging the legality of KCP&L's demands for shareholder information and a special shareholders' meeting.

The suit was amended Wednesday, saying KCP&L should be prevented from pursuing the tender because its actions have violated state, federal, and Securities and Exchange Commission regulations.

KGE also claims that KCP&L's newspaper ads earlier this week soliciting proxies from KGE shareholders contain misleading information and constitute an improper proxy solicitation.

KCP&L, in a letter Monday to KGE shareholders, said it believed the special meeting would be held and said it would need the proxies to ensure it could vote KGE shares acquired during the tender.

KENNEBUNKPORT, ME (AUG. 16) UPI - President Bush said Thursday Jordan's King Hussein agreed to close a key port to Iraq to comply with U.N.-ordered sanctions but the monarch said he was seeking clarification on whether food shipments should be allowed.

At a news conference after four hours of meetings with Hussein and top Saudi officials, Bush said the Jordanian had assured him he would close the Red Sea port of Aqaba and declared, ''I feel that the differences that possibly existed with Jordan, have been narrowed.''

And though stating he was not totally satisfied the blockade would be complete, Bush added, ''We've got to guard against cheaters ... from whatever country they come from.''

''I think it's going to work,'' he said. ''But I can't say that it's (the situation has) stabilized totally.''

Jordan, as Iraq's only route to bypassing the sweeping U.N. trade embargo, has permitted Aqaba to allow in limited shipments of food and other material, which is then sent to Iraq over land.

Bush warned earlier this week that the United States might close off the route for Iraq if Hussein did not. He also indicated that if Hussein cooperated, the United States would provide aid to help offset losses to the already shaky Jordanian economy.

Hussein emerged from the more than two hours of talks with Bush to say that, contrary to earlier reports, he had brought no message from Saddam nor did he foresee any quick solution to the diplomatic crisis.

''I did not bring any message,'' Hussein said. ''I am not talking on behalf of anyone in the area, but for myself ... with the interest and concern that this crisis hopefully will begin to de-escalate and we might find solutions to the many problems that are there now.''

He also maintained that his country was abiding by the sanctions but was seeking clarification on whether the economic cutoff applied to all food products.

''I'm not suggesting that we have altered our position at all,'' Hussein said. ''The government of Jordan stated very clearly at the very outset ... that it regarded these mandated sanctions and measures as ones that (it) would respect and this has been the case.''

He added, however, ''the situation is unclear'' regarding foodstuffs, and, ''this is something we are trying to clarify.'' At the same time he said he did not believe such shipments were now proceeding.

''There are no shipments at the moment as far as I know, no,'' he said.

Secretary of State James Baker, who sat in on the talks, said Hussein was referring to a question that has also arisen in U.S. circles on when and if a U.N. provision allowing food shipments in for ''humanitarian reasons'' would apply.

Bush remained firm on that question, noting the effectiveness of the international effort to block Iraqi oil so far, and adding, ''The other part of it has to be arms, being interdicted, and everything, across the board, foodstuffs, whatever it is.''

And though upbeat about his conversations with Hussein, as well as later with Saudi Foreign Minister Saud al-Faisal, Bush was doubtful of a breakthrough in the 2-week-old standoff brought on by Iraq's invasion of oil-rich Kuwait Aug. 2.

Though Hussein reported nothing of his recent trip to Baghdad, Bush said, ''I did not come away from that conversation with a feeling of hope that Saddam Hussein would do that which he has been called to do under international law.''

Even before the meeting between the two longtime friends began at Bush's summer compound, U.S. officials were playing down the chances Hussein would mediate a resolution despite word from Jordan that he carried a personal message and possible peace plan from Saddam.

Hussein, asked if he had any hope for an eventual solution to the crisis, offered only: ''I suppose one has to have hope. Without hope you can't get anywhere.''

TORONTO (AUG. 16) UPI - The Bank of Canada triggered a cut to 14.25 percent in prime interest rates at the country's major banks after lowering Thursday its key measure by more than a quarter of a percentage point.

The central bank's key rate now stands at 13.07 percent, down from 13.34 percent last week. It marked the bank's biggest decline since January.

Within hours of the Bank of Canada's 2 p.m. EDT rate setting, four of the country's major banks dropped their prime rates to 14.25 percent from 14.75 percent.

On Monday, the Bank of Montreal became the first major Canadian bank in almost three years to lower its prime, also to 14.25 percent. Personal loan and mortgage rates were lowered subsequently at several of the banks.

Economists have been predicting for several weeks that an easing of the central bank's high interest rate policy would translate into a drop in the prime.

But economists also remained skeptical over whether the prime would fall fast and far enough in time to restart the Canadian slowing economy.

The Conference Board of Canada said Wednesday in its semi-annual assessment of the world economy that real economic growth in Canada will be 1.7 percent in 1990 and 1.1 percent in 1991, compared with 2.9 percent in 1989.

Besides high interest rates and inflationary pressures, the economy has been battered by a strong Canadian dollar. The dollar recently went on a run of successive 10-year highs, most recently on Wednesday when the currency closed at 87.44 U.S. cents.

On Thursday, the dollar closed down at 87.09 cents.

CONCORD, N.H. (AUG. 16) UPI - The Nuclear Regulatory Commission is investigating whether its decision to grant a full-power license for the Seabrook nuclear power plant was ''corruptly induced,'' according to commission documents obtained Thursday.

The investigation apparently stems from a series of actions by the NRC appeals board, the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board and the NRC last November during approvals of Seabrook's license and evacuation plans.

Ivan W. Smith, chairman of the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board, said in an Aug. 7 memo to board members that the NRC inspector general's office was interviewing staff members about the board's ruling on Seabrook last Nov. 9.

In that decision, the board approved Massachusetts' evacuation plans submitted by Seabrook's owner, New Hampshire Yankee. New Hampshire's plans had been approved months before. It also recommended to the NRC that Seabrook should receive a full-power license.

The board action came just two days after an NRC appeals board, responding to suits by Seabrook foes, said it found four problem areas with the plant's evacuation plans. The appeals board remanded the problems back to the licensing board for comment.

The licensing board's recommendation to the NRC to issue Seabrook a license was released publicly Nov. 13. Unexpectedly, the NRC announced Nov. 16 it was bypassing the appeals board and would handle all future Seabrook appeals.

The appeals board's four problem areas, including alleged inadequate beach shelters and how to handle the removal of infirm persons, was later ruled not to be a problem by the NRC.

Smith in his memo said investigators apparently are checking allegations that the licensing board ''did not authorize the issuance of the Seabrook Station operating license'' Nov. 9 but that sometime between that date and Nov. 13 reversed itself and issued the license.

Smith said the investigators suspect ''the change was corruptly induced by NRC officers and corruptly made by members of the licensing board.''

In his memo, Smith said he suspects the allegations of impropriety were made by anti-Seabrook opponents ''seeking to nullify authorization of the Seabrook license.''

He suggested the board cooperate with the inspector general's office and make the investigation known to the public.

Meanwhile, Seabrook foes Thursday demanded an immediate shutdown of the nuclear plant until the inspector general's investigation is completed.

''The Seabrook license should be immediately suspended. There is no confidence or belief that the plant meets minimal requirements for protecting the public's health and safety. It's clear that the grossest misconduct and violation of the public interest occurred for the sake of the licensing,'' said Roy Morrison of the anti-nuclear Clamshell Alliance.

Ron Sher, a spokesman for Seabrook, declined specific comment on the NRC investigation but said the plant is ''the most closely scrutinized'' nuclear project ever built.

The NRC inspector general's investigative report is expected to be released ''in a month or more,'' said Smith's memo.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - The government's first community-based test of AIDS drugs will involve about 750 people nationwide and will try to find the best way to prevent a life-threatening brain infection that strikes AIDS patients, officials said Thursday.

Health Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan said the study, which will take place through a network of 18 sites in 14 cities, will compare two drugs to ward off toxoplasmic encephalitis in people infected with the AIDS-causing human immunodeficiency virus, or HIV.

''It (the study) represents our emphasis on identifying therapies that will prevent and treat the vast array of AIDS-related opportunistic infections. This will help us improve the quality of life of people with HIV disease,'' Sullivan said.

Toxoplasmic encephalitis is the most common infection of the brain in people with AIDS, and is a major cause of death in such patients. Infection by the same parasitic microbe usually causes no serious problems in healthy people, although it can damage unborn fetuses if a pregnant woman is infected.

If untreated, toxoplasmic encephalitis in AIDS patients is nearly always fatal.

Currently, the standard treatment for the brain infection in AIDS patients is a combination of the drugs pyrimethamine and sulfadiazine. However, lifelong treatment is necessary and the drugs often cause toxic side effects like severe skin rashes that may make it necessary to stop treatment.

The new study, which is expected to take three years, will compare the effectiveness of pyrimethamine and clindamycin, another drug sometimes used to treat the infection.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases recently decided to expand its AIDS drug testing beyond traditional university-affiliated research hospitals to more common health care settings. It is hoped the move will increase participation by women, blacks and intravenous drug users, who in the past have been underrepresented in such studies.

DANBURY, CT. (AUG. 16) UPI - The defect in the Hubble Space Telescope may have been caused by something as simple as the misplacement of a washer in a device used to measure one of the observatory's mirrors, NASA officials said Thursday.

An errant washer is among several possibilities a NASA investigative team is exploring after confirming the mirror was ground into the wrong shape because of a misaligned measuring device.

''The spherical aberation appears to be caused by a single but costly error,'' said Lew Allen of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif., who heads the investigative panel.

''The board has not yet been able to determine how such an error occurred. This question will be examined over the next few weeks as documentation can be located and reviewed,'' he said at a news conference.

But investigators found that the faulty measuring device, called a null corrector, contained spacing washers which were about 1.3 millimeters thick, which is the same size as the error in the null corrector.

''Therefore if the washers were inappropriately installed this could have caused the spacing error,'' Allen said, but he emphasized that there were several other possible causes.

The $1.5 billion telescope, which was ferried into space in April, was expected to revolutionize astronomy by peering more deeply and with greater clarity into space than ever before.

But engineers discovered that the telescope's supposedly perfect optical system was seriously flawed because its 94-inch primary mirror suffered from ''spherical aberration,'' meaning it was curved slightly incorrectly and could not sharply focus starlight.

The telescope still can conduct valuable research and officials hope to correct the mirror problem by 1993, but the flaw seriously reduced the telescope's capabilities.

Last week Allen's team reported that preliminary tests on the null corrector indicated one of the settings on the device was off by about 1 millimeter, which is only about the diameter of ballpoint pen tip but enough to account for the mirror's flaw.

The device was found in its original form at the Hughes Danbury Optical Systems Corp., where the mirror was built a decade ago when the company was called Perkin-Elmer Inc.

After two more days of meetings at Hughes Danbury, the panel announced it had confirmed the preliminary findings by additional tests, including examining another device and other documents, and more precisely measured the error.

''The board has concluded that the previously reported spacing error in the reflective null corrector ... is the cause of the spherical aberration '' Allen said.

''Several different tests using optical and mechanical measurements are all yielding similar results: a spacing discrepancy of about 1.3 millimeters between the design of the reflective null corrector and the device as it exists explains the observed spherical aberration,'' he said.

Allen added that there were clues that should have alerted officials to the problem that were ignored, in part because the company relied too heavily on the accuracy of the null corrector.

''There were clues which if analyzed at the time would have revealed a problem. They were not considered to be a problem at the time,'' he said.

''We would now judge that it was an error to place that much confidence in a single instrument,'' he said.

The board planned to continue its investigation and return to Hughes Danbrugy Sept. 12.

''We're all very distressed that a mistake like this could occur, and we're determined to understand it as fully as we can and ... ensure that it doesn't happen again,'' Allen said.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Pathe Communications Group reported that it has guaranteed the completion of its $1.2 billion merger with MGM/United Artists by offering the company as collateral a security interest in a U.K. theater chain.

According to documents filed this week with the Securities and Exchange Commission, Pathe has given MGM/UA a security interest in all of the issued and outstanding equity securities of its principal U.K. subsidiaries, including a film distribution company and the Pathe U.K. Ltd. cinema chain.

The value of the U.K. subsidiaries, estimated to be at least $320 million in the SEC filing, appears several times greater than the security interest Pathe previously offered to MGM/UA - a $75-million interest in Pathe's first three films.

But Craig Parsons, a Pathe spokesman, said that the net value of the U.K. subsidiaries is expected to be no more than $100 million by the time the merger is completed.

Under the merger agreement, MGM/UA would be entitled to sell the security interest if Pathe defaults on the merger. The proceeds would be held for Pathe and MGM/UA.

The merger, announced last June, calls for Pathe to pay $21 a share for the 63 million MGM/UA shares outstanding. In addition, MGM/UA will merge with a Pathe subsidiary, Pathe Entertainment Inc.

Last July, Pathe said it had amended the security agreement for the merger but did not say what the new security interest would be.

PASADENA, CA (AUG. 16) UPI - The Magellan probe's electronic brain was ordered to begin bouncing radar beams off the surface of Venus Thursday in critical tests to check out the craft's ability to photograph the planet's hidden surface.

Magellan, safely in orbit around Venus after a successful braking maneuver last Friday, is scheduled to begin a 243-day, $551 million mapping mission around Aug. 30 that is expected to revolutionize humanity's knowledge about Earth's sister planet.

Equipped with a sophisticated imaging radar system, Magellan is expected to map more than 90 percent of Venus's hidden surface, revealing features as small as a football field - 10 times better than any previous effort.

With such relatively sharp maps in hand, scientists may be able to learn why Venus, similar to Earth in many respects, ended up the 900-degree inferno it is today, the victim of a runaway ''greenhouse'' effect. The results could provide valuable insights into how Earth's environment operates.

Magellan's radar system was turned on and back off Wednesday to make sure the system is operating properly. The probe's on-board computer was scheduled to turn the system back on at 3:30 p.m. PDT Thursday to begin bouncing radar beams off the surface of Venus.

For technical reasons, however, confirmation that the radar system was working properly was not expected until later in the evening. The overall testing and checkout program is scheduled to last about three weeks.

Otherwise, JPL spokesman James Doyle said Magellan is operating in tip-top condition and that only minor problems were under discussion.

A computer chip in a backup attitude control system behaved erratically after Magellan's braking rocket was jettisoned last Friday, prompting the spacecraft to switch over to a backup system.

While it may take several weeks or longer to figure out exactly what went wrong, engineers believe they will be able to re-write the probe's computer programming to work around the apparent fault.

The only other issue involves one of the spacecraft's two high-data-rate radio transmitters.

Doyle said the ''B-channel'' amplifier shut down unexpectedly after the probe reached Venus orbit, prompting Magellan to switch back to the primary ''A-channel'' radio.

He said such amplifiers have a history of sudden shut downs every 10,000 hours or so of operation and that engineers expect this one to return to operation later. In the meantime, the spacecraft can still work as planned.

(AUG. 16) UPI - Iraqi President Saddam Hussein escalated the psychological warfare Thursday by predicting U.S. soldiers sent to the Persian Gulf would return in body bags and ordering thousands of American and British nationals in conquered Kuwait to gather in hotels.

British officials said the move was a prelude to possible internment of the foreigners in Iraq, although Baghdad said it was consolidating the foreigners to guarantee their safety.

In Kennebunkport, Maine, King Hussein of Jordan emerged after a two hour meeting with President Bush to report there was no breakthrough in the 2-week-old Persian Gulf standoff, which began Aug. 2 when Iraq invaded the oil-rich emirate of Kuwait.

Hussein, who has broken ranks with most other Arab states by maintaining ties with Saddam, had reportedly brought a message from the besieged Iraqi president to Bush. But Hussein denied the reports, saying he carried no messages and foresaw no easy solutions to the crisis.

Also Thursday, U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar said that Bush's proposed blockade of Iraq goes beyond the economic sanctions authorized by the Security Council last week.

Bush has ordered U.S. naval forces to cut off supplies to Iraq, without formally calling the move a blockade.

In Saudi Arabia's port city of Dhahran, 200 miles south of the Kuwait border, residents and foreigners flocked to the airport to depart despite the infusion of U.S. and other troops meant to deter an Iraqi attack. Flights out of the city have been filled to capacity, and Saudi Airways was operating on a first-come, first serve basis.

Saddam, in an open letter to Bush read by a spokesman on Baghdad television, bitterly attacked the American president and warned that there would be American casualties if a military conflict erupted.

''We will pray for God and pray that the two (forces) will not clash because then, thousands of Americans will be brought to you in bags after you have forced them in a dark tunnel,'' Saddam said in the letter. ''You are going to be defeated. There is no way evil will overcome.''

Saddam charged that Bush lied to the American people when he said Wednesday that most Arabs supported his decision to send U.S. forces to Saudi Arabia to guard against a possible Iraqi attack from Kuwait.

Saddam also renewed his verbal attack on Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak, a key Arab ally of the United States, and called again on Arabs and Moslems to rise up against their pro-Western leaders and fight in a holy war against the U.S. presence.

Mubarak in an interview with Cable News Network called on Saddam to avert war by withdrawing his forces from Kuwait, but he dismissed Bush's call for Iraqis to topple Saddam, saying Bush was intervening in the internal affairs of another country.

British and U.S. officials said Iraq ordered 4,000 Britons and 2,500 Americans in Kuwait to assemble in hotels for possible internment in Iraq.

Earlier Thursday, Iraq allowed some 4,700 foreigners - a group that was mostly Egyptian but included two Americans, three Britons and a French citizen - to cross into Jordan. The Americans, who were not identified, were the first U.S. citizens to cross into Jordan from Iraq since a group of 11 Americans arrived in the Jordanian capital of Amman Saturday.

Iraqi military authorities said the order issued in Kuwait was to ensure the safety of the foreigners, but the State Department reported there has been no signs that U.S. citizens have been singled out for harassment.

Asked in Kennebunkport about the Americans being held, Bush said ''I am concerned with the coercion of any foreign nationals of some other country is a violation of international norm.''

Bush also tried to de-escalate the war of words with Saddam in which he called the Iraqi leader ''a liar'' Wednesday and Saddam tossed the same epithet back at him.

''There's no need for me to respond'' since he did not make ''any concrete proposal,'' Bush said.

In Washington, State Department officials said the Iraqi decision to collect all Americans in Kuwait and Iraq is an ominous sign that Iraqi intends to escalate the confrontation in gulf.

The development appeared to diminish any possibility of a diplomatic settlement of the crisis, said the officials, who declined to be identified.

Asked if detention under such conditions would make the Americans hostages State Department Spokesman Richard Boucher said, ''I'm not prepared to go into that debate'' over definition.

British Foreign Officer Minister of State William Waldegrave called the edict a ''grave and sinister development.''

Britain urged its citizens to comply with the order, while the United States left the decision to each individual. Iraqi authorities had threatened to ''round up'' Americans if they failed to assemble at the hotel, U.S. officials said.

Iraq, seeking new alliances as it confronts the tightening U.N. trade embargo and U.S.-led military buildup, also Thursday made good on a surprise peace overture to its long-time foe Iran by offering to repatriate 2,000 Iranian prisoners a day.

Iraq had offered a peace program to Iran Wednesday that included the recognition of Iranian borders and the release of prisoners of war from the 1980-1988 conflict between the two countries.

But Tehran radio reported Thursday that Iranian President Akbar Hashemi-Rafsanjani had assured Turkey he still wanted Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait.

''The matter of our peace with Iraq is separate'' from the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait, the radio quoted the Iranian president as saying. ''We still believe that Iraq must leave Kuwaiti soil so that necessary grounds are established for peace and calm in the region.''

Egypt's semi-official Middle East News Agency quoted Egyptian workers returning home from Kuwait as saying there had been an assassination attempt against Saddam, but diplomats could not confirm the reports, dismissed by many as rampant rumor.

The news agency said the workers reported ''wide-scale arrests of military people and civilians in Iraq (Wednesday) in what apparently is believed to be part of an assassination attempt against Saddam at the hands of people close to Saddam.''

The report appeared to be part of a propaganda war between Iraq and Egypt, which deployed a second contingent of troops Thursday to stand alongside U.S. military forces in Saudi Arabia.

Iraq faces an increase in U.S. forces with the deployment of 45,000 heavily armed Marines who will join the 26,000 American troops already in Saudi Arabia for Operation Desert Shield.

Diplomats had hoped that Jordan's Hussein, who has not honored the U.N.-ordered economic sanctions against Iraq, had brought an Iraqi peace initiative to Bush's vacation home in Kennebunkport.

But Hussein said after meeting with his old friend Bush that there was no initiative and no breakthrough.

''I did not bring any message,'' he told reporters. When asked if there was any hope for a solution to the crisis, he offered only: ''I suppose one has to have hope. Without hope you can't get anywhere.''

Jordan has been permitting Iraq to use its port in the Gulf of Aqaba to bring in limited shipments of food and other goods, which are carried by trucks to Iraq. Hussein said he held a ''frank'' discussion with Bush, but did not suggest he would accede to Bush's wishes and close off the Iraqi lifeline.

Also meeting with Bush in Kennebunkport, Prince Saud, the Saudi Foreign Minister said he brought a message of ''gratitude and appreciation from'' King Fahd and the people of Saudi Arabia'' to the United States and other nations that are helping from possible Iraqi aggression.''

Asked if the crisis can be resolved without war, Saud replied:

''We still hope conflict can be avoided (but) if and only if Iraq withdraws from Kuwait and legality returns.''

In other developments Thursday:

- Iraq's air force command warned foreign pilots that they may not survive at the hands of civlians if they are shot down over Iraq, the Iraqi news agency INA reported.

- In Saudi Arabia, U.S. Air Force crew chiefs said several Iraqi fighter jets retreated when American jets locked them into weapon radar systems.

- Kuwait's ambassador to France, Tarek Razzouki, escaped from Kuwait City where he had been trapped after the Aug. 2 invasion by Iraq and has returned to Paris, the embassy said.

- Japanese authorities reported Japanese businessmen were being refused permission to leave Iraq and Kuwait, and Norway said Iraq has refused a request to permit Norwegian nationals to leave as well.

- A U.S. delegate at arms reduction talks in Switzerland repeated a warning that the United States would ''respond in kind'' if Iraq attacked U.S. troops with its deadly arsenal of chemical weapons.

- A Polish newspaper reported that the Iraqi ship Balques, on its way to Iraq, may be carrying weapons loaded in the Polish port of Gdynia hours before the invasion of Kuwait.

- French radio said King Hassan of Morocco plans to announce a peace initiative Monday that calls for Iraq to withdraw from Kuwait under the guidance of the Arab League.

FARMINGDALE, NY (AUG. 16) UPI - A 14-year-old high school student suspected of breaking into an Air Force computer last year was charged Thursday with organizing a gang of ''hackers'' who allegedly stole a $1.2 million software program from a university computer.

The teen, identified only by his computer nickname, ''Zod,'' because of his age, allegedly headed a gang of high school and college students that met in Manhattan and planned electronic heists to enhance their reputations, police said.

The group went by the name ''Mod,'' said senior investigator Donald Delany of the state police.

''Zod'' is a suspect in the break-in last November of the Secretary of the Air Force computer in the Pentagon, Delaney said. He declined to comment on whether classified material was taken from the computer.

Raids carried out by the state police, U.S. Secret Service, New York state Attorney General, and the district attorneys in Nassau and Suffolk, netted more than $50,000 in computer equipment and 12 other suspects.

''This was not an operation for financial advantage, although the participants stole and used copyrighted material,'' Delany said. ''But it gave those participating elevated prestige among computer hackers.''

''Zod,'' a student at Manhattan's prestigious Stuyvesant High School, two classmates, and a friend from the Bronx High School of Science, allegedly used a stolen toll-free phone number to slip into the computer of the City University in Bellevue, Wash.

The hackers stole a copyrighted ''C'' Source program developed by AT&T at a cost of $1.2 million to program the UNIX computer, and also stole a number of coyrighted computer games, Delaney said.

Investigators tracked down the hackers by obtaining New York telephone records for $1,000 worth of phone calls the group ran up.

Police arrested twelve others - five adults and seven juveniles - and said two more arrests were expected.

Charged with computer tampering, computer trespassing, unauthorized use of computers, and theft of services, each could face up to 4 years in prison.

The adults were identified as Cornell University student Teerawee Unchalipongse, 19, Staten Island; St.; Francis College student Anhtu Nguyen, 21, Brooklyn; Bronx High School of Science student Chai Hung Ling, 17, Queens; Bruce Monroe, 32, an unemployed electronics technician, Queens; and Jeff Miller, 21, Franklin Square, N.Y.

(AUG. 16) UPI - King Hussein of Jordan met with President Bush today and maintained that his country is abiding by the U-N-backed embargo against Iraq. But after the meeting in Kennebunkport, Maine... Hussein said he is trying to clarify whether the cutoff applies to food. Hussein denied earlier reports that he brought a message from Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. He said he came to ''de-escalate'' the crisis in the Middle East.

Federal health officials say Americans are cutting down on cholesterol and smoking... but they still aren't exercising enough to prevent heart disease. A Centers for Disease Control study found that 30 to 40 percent of heart disease deaths probably could have been prevented if the victims had exercised. A top official at the Atlanta facility said the entire U-S population needs to- quote- ''get out there and start moving.''

Hundreds of supporters rallied outside the Dominican Republic's National Assembly today as 82-year-old President Joaquin Balaguer began his sixth term in office. The rally follows two days of a bloody general strike in which 13 people died. Balaguer is raising food and gas prices more than 50 percent.

HOUSTON (AUG. 16) UPI - Motorists in a number of cities nationwide protested rising gasoline prices Thursday by refusing to purchase fuel and driving with their vehicles' headlights on.

The motorists responded to pleas from radio stations to make Thursday a gas boycott day to show their displeasure at gasoline price hikes since the Aug. 2 Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

KGGI, the Riverside, Calif., that organized the boycott effort, said about 40 stations nationwide participated. According to a Houston station backing the boycott, another 15 other stations were taking part.

''We're just trying to make a statement. Our slogan is, 'Together we can make a statement,''' said Joe Libios, promotions director for KHYS in Houston.

Meanwhile, Amoco Corp. and Unocal Corp., two of the nation's largest gasoline marketers, lifted the freeze on wholesale gasoline prices they had imposed last week after President Bush called on the oil industry to moderate the price runup at the pump.

Dave Ferguson, program director at WPGC in Greenbelt, Md., said that 3,000 calls were placed to the station supporting the boycott that about 200 did not. Steve Hegwood, KHYS program director, said the station received 702 supportive calls in three hours Thursday.

''The response has been fabulous,'' said Jeff Dean of KGGI. ''The reason is probably that people can relate to this. It gives the consumers ... a chance to cry out, to get their voice heard.''

Dean said the station received a negative call from a gas station owner who said the boycott was unfair.

Program Director Mike McCoy of KJ103 in Oklahoma City said a limousine service in the city offered to send a limo to pick up anyone who ran out of gas while supporting the boycott.

Many of the stations began promoting the boycott Monday or Tuesday and received a growing number of calls each day in support of the effort, station officials said.

''The phones have been ringing nonstop since Tuesday, when we announced it on the air,'' said Rich Stevens of 102 JAMZ in Orlando, Fla. ''We realize we can't stop buying gas. But we also understand there is no gasoline shortage and there is no reason for the higher prices.''

Dan Upton, program director for KITY in San Antonio, Texas, said people responded to the boycott because ''anyone who drives a car has been affected by gas prices going up.''

Some stations reported supportive calls from people with relatives among the American troops sent to Saudi Arabia to stop any Iraqi attempt to invade that country.

Jim Daniels of KGGI said a woman caller said she would not be driving Thursday and would support the boycott by posting a sign in her yard saying ''No Gas Thursday.''

''What we have to remember is that we have American servicemen overseas,'' he said. ''Everyone should remember we have people who may fight and die in the Middle East over the prices on the pumps. She said her brother-in-law and his brother had been shipped to Saudi Arabia.''

CLEVELAND (AUG. 16) UPI - Two of the New York Yankees minority owners filed suit against baseball Commissioner Fay Vincent and chief investigator John Dowd in U.S. District Court Thursday, seeking to keep George Steinbrenner in charge of the team.

Minority owners Daniel McCarthy and Harold Bowman filed the suit, seeking to nullify the July 30 agreement between Vincent and Steinbrenner that laid the groundwork for Steinbrenner to step down as the Yankees' managing partner.

McCarthy, a Cleveland tax attorney, is one of Steinbrenner's lawyers. A spokesman for Steinbrenner said the Yankees principal owner had nothing to do with the suit.

McCarthy and Bowman ''claim they are entitled to have Steinbrenner be the managing general manager of the New York Yankees and the commissioner is interfering with that relationship,'' Cleveland lawyer Mark Cohn told United Press International Thursday evening after filing the suit in behalf of McCarthy and Bowman.

U.S. Federal District Court Judge Alice Batchelder will hold a hearing Friday at 11 a.m. EDT to review the complaint.

Cohn says McCarthy and Bowman think Vincent's ruling was ''wrongfully based'' and they ''object to the way the investigation and hearing were conducted.''

''There are things we allege in the complaint that he should not have done '' said Cohn.

The minority owners are also seeking a temporary restraining order, preliminary injunction and permanent injunction enjoining Vincent and Dowd from carrying out their penalty against Steinbrenner.

On July 30, Vincent ordered Steinbrenner to step down by Aug 20 as general partner and to cease all activity dealing with the day-to-day running of the ballclub because of his dealing with admitted gambler Howard Spira.

Vincent said the suit was ''without merit.''

''The allegations against Mr. Dowd and me are without merit and we are confident that the matter will be disposed of by the court in Cleveland,'' Vincent said in a statement released by his office.

The suit charges Vincent with carrying out a preconceived plan to drive Steinbrenner from baseball. The suit said Vincent used ''vague and ill-defined powers vested in the commissioner'' to force Steinbrenner to step down.

Another Yankees minority owner, Leonard Kleinman, is expected to file suit against Vincent for rejecting him as Steinbrenner's replacement.

Vincent repeated his contention that the investigation was impartial and fair.

''The suit filed by the limited partners against John Dowd and me and, remarkably, the New York Yankees, represents an attempt to prevent Steinbrenner from having to honor his agreement with me on July 30, 1990 '' the commissioner said.

''Baseball deserves and demands that its affairs conform scrupulously to the highest standards of honor, principle, and integrity.

''This agreement was the result of a serious, impartial, and thorough investigation. It was entered into in good faith without stated equivocation or reservation. It deserves to be honored. We will honor it.''

The suit was filed one day after the Yankees limited partners approved Robert Nederlander as interim general partner. Nederlander will replace Steinbrenner pending approval of the American League and National League team owners.

Steinbrenner's original choice, his son Hank, decided not to pursue the post. Earlier this week the commissioner's office rejected Steinbrenner's second choice, Kleinman, Yankees executive vice president and chief operating officer, due to a pending investigation of Kleinman's role in the $40,000 payment Steinbrenner made to Spira in January.

WASHINGTON (AUG. 16) UPI - The Pentagon said Thursday it was preparing to send out an order to U.S. warships in the Persian Gulf spelling out how to block oil tankers and other commercial vessels from reaching or leaving Iraq.

''The president has authorized us to take action and the order will go out shortly. There is no standing order to the ships at sea right now,''

Pentagon spokesman Pete Williams said.

Williams refused to say what degree of force U.S. ships would be authorized to use to impose the trade embargo against Iraq that President Bush has set as a goal.

No commercial ships have been stopped by the growing U.S. naval armada in the Persian Gulf area since the U.N. Security Council last week adopted an embargo against Iraq in response to Baghdad's invasion of oil-rich Kuwait.

On Monday, an Iraqi tanker turned away from a Saudi Arabian port on the Red Sea when the Saudis refused to send out tug boats to help it dock.

The United States has nearly 30 warships in the region, including three aircraft carriers and the battleship USS Wisconsin, and could easily keep commercial vessels from leaving or approaching Iraqi ports.

The aircraft carrier USS Independence and seven warships are in the Gulf of Oman, at the mouth of the Persian Gulf, the carrier USS Eisenhower and four warships are in the Red Sea, off the coast of Saudi Arabia, and the carrier USS Saratoga and six warships are in the Eastern Mediterranean.

In addition, seven U.S. warships led by the command vessel USS LaSalle are in the Persian Gulf itself.

Williams declined to discuss the specific ''rules of engagement'' for the U.S. warships that would be contained in the interdiction order.

''In general terms, one would assume that it would be to stop ships going into or out of ports carrying goods destined for Iraq,'' he said, without elaborating on the kind of force to be used.

Indicating there is no sense of urgency to issuing the order, Williams said, ''There is no ship (in the region) about to take that sort of action for which a Navy ship would need instructions, say, within the next 24 to 36 hours.''

The rules are expected to include phased steps of action, such as U.S. warships first asking a commercial vessel to identify its cargo, requesting a suspicious one to stop for possible boarding, and then firing a warning shot across its bow if it refuses.

''There should be confusion in the minds of any cargo ship as to what it is that we are thinking about trying to discourage - that is, commerce with Iraq,'' Williams said.

Warships from Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Australia, Canada, and the Netherlands were either in the Persian Gulf or heading to the area.

But the U.S. interdiction order apparently was not part of any multinational effort.

''I assume that every navy will be under the control of its own government '' Williams said. ''Obviously we'd like to see them follow pretty much the same rules. But I think that that would be up to individual navies to decide.''

Meanwhile, the U.S. military buildup in the region continued. A defense official said ''in excess of 100,000'' U.S. ground troops will be sent to Saudi Arabia under Operation Desert Shield.

More than 30,000 troops were believed to be in the country Thursday.

The Pentagon said late Thursday the military deployment will cost an estimated $1.2 billion through the end of September. That figure did not include the expense of calling up reserve forces, a move still under consideration.

Williams said members of the 3rd Army Calvary Regiment from Fort Bliss, Texas, and the Air Force's tank-killing A-10 Thunderbolt jets from Myrtle Beach, S.C., were leaving Thursday for Saudi Arabia.

He also confirmed that radar-evading F-117A ''stealth'' fighter-bombers were being sent to bases in Saudi Arabia.

With bombers and amphibious assault ships being deployed to Saudi Arabia, Williams was asked whether ''Desert Shield'' had shifted from a defensive mission to an offensive one.

''It's there to deter acts of aggression. Remember, while we're talking about a buildup of U.S. forces ... Iraq currently has about 160,000 troops in Kuwait and 1 million men under arms. It's an enormously large, well-equipped adversary,'' he said.

Asked specifically about the defensive nature the stealth fighter-bombers, Williams said, ''Some of the forces you would have there would be deterrent by their mere presence.''

Williams also said he could not confirm a press pool report from Saudi Arabia that U.S. F-15 fighter jets on several occasions have locked their radar weapons systems onto Iraqi fighter jets and that the Iraqis turned in retreat.

''I have not seen any indpendent reports that our pilots are locking on,'' Williams said. ''Maybe they look with their radar, but I just don't know precisely what they meant by 'locking on.'''

Williams said there has been ''nothing imminent out there'' as far as U.S.-Iraqi incidents or hostilities.

NEW ORLEANS (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency honored The Louisiana Land and Exploration Co. (LL&E) (NYSE: LLX) here this week.

Regional Administrator Robert E. Layton Jr., selected LL&E to receive EPA's Environmental Recognition Award because of its "commitment to the preservation and enhancement of delicate marsh and wetland environments."

LL&E is the first company to receive this new award, created recently at the instigation of the Regional Administrator to encourage environmental responsibility in the business and industrial arenas.

Layton presented the award to H. Leighton Steward, chairman, president and chief executive office of LL&E, in ceremonies at LL&E's corporate headquarters in New Orleans.

In announcing the award, Layton noted that LL&E, the largest private owner of coastal wetlands in the United States, has a "long history of environmental consciousness . . . and has exhibited good stewardship of coastal resources."

He said, "EPA is particularly appreciative of LL&E's efforts to communicate the concerns for the extensive loss of Louisiana coastal wetlands and LL&E's continued leadership in developing wetland conservation programs devoted to preserving and enhancing these valuable aquatic resources."

LL&E's educational efforts have helped increase public awareness of the value of coastal wetlands and the growing problem of eroding wetlands, Layton said.

"In addition," Layton concluded, "LL&E has been instrumental in developing a plant species material center at Golden Meadow, La., by donating the use of appropriate land and office facilities to the Soil Conservation Service a program which develops plants which are hardy and salt-water tolerant to assist in control of erosion and wetland loss."

Mayor Sidney Barthelemy and Norm Thomas, chief of the Federal Activities Branch of EPA for Region Six, also participated in the ceremony. A specially designed plaque and EPA's highly coveted "E-E" (Environmental Excellence) flag were presented to LL&E by Layton.

Responding to the award, Steward sounded an upbeat note with regard to the wetlands crisis facing the country. Steward said that, while loss of wetlands is severe and continuing, "I am now convinced that there are ways to achieve the no net loss goal established by President Bush."

SUNNYVALE, CALIF. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - SOTA Technology has announced that its 340i graphics board is now available with TIGA 2.0 drivers for Windows 3.0 applications.

In a related move, the company challenged the high-definition graphics boards market by offering the bundled package, which includes a proprietary hardware windowing accelerator, CGA emulation, 1 megabyte of VRAM and a five-year warranty, for $1,590.

''Users are weary of piecemeal solutions,'' said Mike Raghavan, SOTA Technology vice president of marketing. ''We have therefore created a package that incorporates all the latest high-performance graphics features -- hardware and software -- and we have aggressively priced it at about $500 less than comparable products with the options added.''

The SOTA board is based on the Texas Instruments 34010 graphics processor. With 1 megabyte of VRAM, the SOTA 340i supports resolutions up to 1280 x 1024 non-interlaced in 16 colors. Lower-resolution versions, with 512K of VRAM and DRAM, are also available starting at less than $1,000.

The SOTA 340i comes with programming interfaces for TIGA 2.0, DGIS, 8514/A and a variety of drivers that include a DLP (Display List Processor) driver for AutoCAD Rel. 10. AutoCAD Rel. 11 is planned for early release.

As an added feature, the 340i has an on-board mouse port to save a full slot in the host system, which may be an IBM AT or 100 percent compatible system (including 286-, 386- and 486-based computers).

SEATTLE (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Nordstrom Friday announced it has settled all outstanding issues with the National Labor Relations Board, and will sign a settlement agreement later today.

''This settlement wipes the slate clean in terms of the unfair labor practice charges that have been filed by the union,'' said Joe Demarte, vice president, personnel. ''We felt it was more important to reach a settlement of the issues pending before the NLRB rather than continuing to debate the merits of the union's allegations.''

Over the past year, Local 1001 of the United Food and Commercial Workers Union had filed 19 separate charges against Nordstrom claiming violations of the National Labor Relations Act. Thirteen of those were dismissed or withdrawn in total; parts of others were dismissed as well. The union appealed four of those dismissals to Washington D.C. and each appeal was denied.

The most recent charge filed by the union alleged 44 separate violations of the Act. The NLRB found merit in less than 25 percent of the claims.

The settlement requires Nordstrom to post for 60 days a notice to employees explaining the findings of the NLRB and what the company will and will not do as part of its settlement.

PHOENIX (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Phoenix-based America West Airlines (NASDAQ:AWAL; PSE:AWA) has introduced a series of heavily discounted fares throughout the carrier's continental U.S. route system beginning as low as $158 round trip.

Marilyn Hoppe, vice president of pricing and revenue management said, ''We anticipate that these new discounted fares will help to stimulate traffic during the normally slow fall season.'' Hoppe noted that America West is becoming more aggressive in their pricing strategy and additional discounts could occur prior to the year's end. She added, ''We have already put in place a Labor Day fare special, as well as other market specific discounted fares.''

MIDDLETOWN, OH (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Pinnacle Bancorp Inc., (NASDAQ:MFSB) the holding company for MidFed Savings Bank, reported fiscal 1990 earnings of $416,000, or 60 cents per share, compared to a loss of $5.3 million, or $7.60 per share, in fiscal 1989.

The 1989 loss was the result of Pinnacle's decision to write-off its remaining supervisory goodwill.

For the fourth quarter of fiscal 1990, Pinnacle reported a net loss of $283,000, or 41 cents per share, compared to a net loss of $2.1 million, or $3.03 per share, for the fourth quarter of fiscal 1989.

Pinnacle's net income in 1990 was impacted by approximately $325,000 in non-cash charges taken in the fourth quarter to eliminate MidFed Capital Corp., its financing subsidiary.

Pinnacle expects to recover the cost of this transaction, which was previously announced in January, within six months through the utilization of net operating loss carryforwards (NOLs) to offset income tax expense in fiscal 1991 and the elimination of the finance subsidiary's annual operating expenses of approximately $225,000. Because of this transaction Pinnacle was able to reduce its income tax expense by approximately $250,000 in fiscal 1990.

Also during the fourth quarter of 1990, Pinnacle increased its loan reserve by $180,000 to provide additional protection against a weakening real estate market.

''This past year was one of transition for Pinnacle Bancorp and the savings and loan industry,'' stated Loren E. Richardson, chairman and CEO. ''A volatile financial market, unfavorable publicity about the industry and major regulatory restructuring created an uncertain operating environment.

''1990 was a year of positioning our balance sheet for future profitable growth,'' said Richardson. ''We have accomplished this goal.''

As previously announced, Pinnacle declared a $.125 per share quarterly dividend payable on Aug. 31, 1990, to shareholders of record on Aug. 15, 1990.

SAN FRANCISCO (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Today the Charles Ford Co. received the first disbursement of a $24.1 million SBA disaster loan. Oscar Wright, regional administrator of the U.S. Small Business Administration, announced that the loan is the second largest disaster loan in SBA history.

The Small Business Administration was able to exceed its usual lending limits because the Charles Ford Co. is a major source of employment in the central California coastal area and its continued operation is of significant economic importance to the entire coastal community.

Wright said that the loan proceeds will be used to replace existing financing, replenish damaged and destroyed inventory, furniture, and fixtures. In addition, the loan funds will provide more than $11.5 million to rebuild the store and service center in Watsonville, Calif.

Wright went on to say, "To date the SBA has accepted more than 25,000 disaster loan applications as a result of last October's earthquake. We have approved more than 14,700 loans to victims of the earthquake totalling nearly $550 million. Some $215 million have already been disbursed to loan recipients." FREMONT, CALIF. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Koala Technologies Corp. (ASE:KOA), announced Friday the appointment of a new president and chief executive officer, Stephen J. Russo, following the resignation of Douglas W. Kenny from the company.

Kenny, the former president and chief executive officer who joined the company in February 1988, stated that a dispute with the board of directors over the future direction of the company led to his decision to resign.

''After considerable discussion, the board felt that the company's acquisition efforts should be more focused on its primary business, rotational molded plastics,'' commented Russo. ''We understand that given Doug's background in electronics, he would prefer to move the company in that direction.

''Doug's resignation comes after the company has successfully completed its divestiture program and improved the performance of its operating companies under his direction.''

Russo, who will assume responsibility for the day-to-day operations, has served as the chief financial officer for more than four years. During this time, the company has undergone significant changes including acquisitions, dispositions and two reorganizations.

''We at Koala are pleased with the present operations,'' said Russo, ''and are looking forward to the next phase of growth and development.''

Koala Technologies Corp., formerly Petron Corp., is a diversified company. Its primary business, Rotational Molding Inc., manufactures proprietary and custom plastic products for industrial, agricultural, refuse and recreational applications. Additionally, the company develops, manufactures, packages and markets MacVision and KoalaPad, computer digitizing devices for use in graphics and desktop publishing markets.

TEMPE, ARIZ. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Amtech Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:ASYS) Friday reported a loss of $91,466, or 5 cents per share on revenues of $8,744,877 for the third quarter ended June 30, 1990.

This compares to earnings of $230,045, or 12 cents per share on revenues of $6,380,758 for the same period ended June 30, 1989.

For the nine months ended June 30, 1990 earnings were $141,776, or 7 cents per share, on revenues of $21,438,125.

This compares to earnings of $628,767, or 37 cents per share, on revenues of $15,104,914 for the same period in 1989. The 1989 period included $102,000, or 6 cents per share, tax benefit from a net operating loss carry-forward.

''Results for this quarter were negatively affected by decreased ATMOSCAN sales, the write-off of costs associated with the proposed acquisition of Tystar Corp. and by legal costs associated with our patent infringement lawsuit. Together these charges amounted to $149,000 pre-tax,'' said J.S. Whang, president of Amtech Systems.

''However, the company remains in strong financial condition with no long-term debt, a current ratio that exceeds two to one and shareholders' investment at 64 percent of the company's total capitalization.''

Whang continued, ''Martec Services, which had been operating at a loss prior to our acquisition, contributed $2,665,000 in sales and essentially broke even for the quarter. We expect the improvement of the Martec business to continue and to be profitable in the future.''

Amtech Systems Inc. manufactures the ATMOSCAN, an automated environmentally controlled process system which improves the yields of semiconductor manufacturers. In addition, through its wholly owned subsidiaries, RTS Inc., Echelon Service Co. and Martec Services, Amtech provides technical temporary employment services to major aerospace, defense, computer and high-technology companies throughout the Southwest, Baltimore/Washington, D.C. and Southern California areas.

TACOMA, Wash. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Weyerhaeuser Co. announced Friday that, given current market conditions and dependent on the continuation of those conditions, it expects to resume the repurchase of some of the company's outstanding common shares, in accordance with previously announced authorization to repurchase up to 15 million (after giving effect to the company's April 1988 stock split) of the company's outstanding common shares.

Pursuant to that authorization and after giving effect to that stock split the company has previously repurchased approximately 1,100,000 common shares.

The purchases may be made on the open market or in private transactions. Whether and the extent to which the company will buy shares will depend on developments in the stock market and other factors. Any shares purchased will be used for general corporate purposes.

Morgan Stanley & Co. Inc. and Goldman, Sachs & Co. will act as exclusive agents for the stock repurchase program.

TROIS-RIVIERES, QUEBEC (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - GL and V's board of directors has approved the consolidated results for the three-month period ended June 30, 1990.

Net earnings amount to $942,502 (Canadian), or 21 cents per share (Canadian), while sales totalize $258,338 (Canadian), or 6 cents per share (Canadian), and sales of $24.1 million (Canadian) for the same period last year, though representing increases of 265 percent (net earnings) and 115 percent (sales). Also, cash flow from operations increased from 15 cents (Canadian) to 37 cents (Canadian) per share, a 147 percent growth.

This increase in sales and net earnings results from the activities of both the Iles-de-la-Madeleine thermal power station remodeling (total contract of $125 million (Canadian)) and Ateliers Fabron Inc., a workshop operating since December 1989 (acquisition of mechanical division of Canron Inc.).

These results confirm the tendance of the sales and earnings per share of the fourth quarter of year ended March 31, 1990.

Dividend Declared

At the company's annual meeting on Aug. 15, 1990, Laurent Verreault, president and chief executive officer of Groupe Laperriere and Verreault Inc. informed the shareholders that the board of director had declared a dividend of 10 cents per share. It will be paid Oct. 5, 1990, to all shareholders registered on Sept. 14, 1990.

The board of directors decided to maintain the dividend policy in light of the company's financial situation and results for the year ending March 31 1990.

DALLAS (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Halliburton Co. Friday announced that its Brown & Root Inc. subsidiary has completed the sale of certain marine construction assets to Offshore Pipelines Inc. (OPI) for $77.2 million cash.

Halliburton said it expected to realize a pretax gain of approximately $33 million on the sale.

The assets sold include 23 derrick, pipelay and other marine construction vessels, as well as interest in certain land-based marine construction support facilities located in the Far East and United States. Sale of a marine construction facility in the Middle East to OPI is expected to be completed later this year.

Halliburton and OPI have entered into a consent judgment with the U.S. Department of Justice in connection with obtaining antitrust clearance for the sale from the federal government. Pursuant to the consent judgment, OPI is required to divest two vessels acquired from Brown & Root.

The assets to be sold do not include Brown & Root's interests in its other marine activities including European Marine Contractors Ltd., Rockwater Offshore Contractors, Highlands Fabricators, fabrication operations in the United States and Indonesia, and its worldwide marine engineering and project management business.

W. Bernard Pieper, chief executive officer of Brown & Root, said the sale of these assets represents a strategic action to intensify Brown & Root's focus on providing a wide range of marine engineering and project management services on a worldwide basis.

Halliburton Co. is one of the world's largest diversified oil field service, engineering and construction companies. Founded in 1919, Halliburton provides oil field service and products, industrial and marine engineering and construction services, and property and casualty insurance services.

Hole N-24 encountered the proper ''layer'' within the intrusive but was low in precious metal mineralization. Hole N-25, which was previously announced on August 10th, contained 15 feet averaging 0.666 ounces per ton gold. Hole N-25 was located 87 feet NNW of Hole N-24. Hole N-26 was located 75 feet NE of Hole N-24. All three holes were drilled vertically.

Mineralization occurs surrounding the contact of the light and dark phases of the monzonite intrusive.

Further drilling is planned on the San Lazarus property following completion of the present drilling program on the Jones Hill property massive sulphide deposit.

MIDLAND, TX (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Parkey & Parsley Development Partners L.P. (ASE:PDP) Friday announced earnings for the second quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Net income was $1.9 million, or 37 cents per unit, on oil and gas revenues of $12.3 million. Despite lower second quarter oil and gas prices, net income was 44 percent higher than the first quarter of 1990. Net cash provided by operations was $1.5 million, or 28 cents per unit, for the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Compared with the second quarter of 1989, oil and gas revenues increased 19 percent despite a 2 percent and 14 percent reduction in oil and gas prices, respectively. Production costs declined 7 percent and depreciation, depletion, amortization (DD&A) decreased 30 percent as a percentage of oil and gas revenues.

Commencing the first quarter of 1991, the partnership, whether in its current structure or as a corporate entity, anticipates retaining its cash flow for the purpose of remaining an active participant in the oil and gas industry in order to take advantage of the current opportunities which exist in the oil and gas industry and thereby maximize unitholder value.

Consequently, the partnership is not expected to pay any significant level of distribution and may discontinue distributions altogether.

TUSTIN, Calif. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Care Enterprises Inc. announced results of operations for the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Care reported revenues of $57,305,000 for the quarter, a decrease of $11,134,000 from revenues of $68,439,000 reported in the second quarter of 1989.

The revenue decrease was primarily attributable to lower Medicare patient census due to the repeal of the Medicare Catastrophic Coverage Act effective Jan. 1, 1990, and due to fewer nursing facilities operated in the second quarter of 1990 relative to the same period of 1989.

A net loss of $22,000 was reported for the second quarter of 1990, compared with a net loss of $455,000 which had been reported in the second quarter of 1989.

The company owned or leased 70 nursing facilities with 7,097 beds at June 30, 1990, compared with 93 facilities and 9,608 beds at June 30, 1989. Occupancy of nursing facilities operated throughout both six-month periods was 92.7 percent in 1990 and 92.0 percent in 1989.

STEVENS POINT, Wis. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - First Financial Corp. (OTC:FFHC) today announced that its major subsidiary, First Financial Bank FSB, has acquired all of the deposits and part of the assets of Security Federal Savings and Loan Association, an Illinois-based institution. Headquartered in Peoria, Security Federal has approximately $180 million in deposits and six offices.

The deposits were acquired for a premium of about $2.6 million or 1.5 percent from the Resolution Trust Corp., the federal agency which has been operating Security Federal. First Financial has agreed to purchase part of Security Federal's assets and has an option to purchase certain other assets related to the six offices.

''We are very excited to welcome the Security Federal customers and employees to First Financial. This addition strengthens our position in Illinois, increasing our Illinois branch network to 16 offices. We now look forward to future acquisitions which will further strengthen this position,'' said John C. Seramur, president and chief executive officer of First Financial.

The acquisition of Security Federal increases First Financial Bank's assets to over $3 billion. The bank now operates 81 offices in Wisconsin and Illinois. The addition of Security Federal's operations complements First Financial's acquisition of the former Illini Federal Savings and Loan Association in January 1990. Based in Fairview Heights, Ill., Illini Federal had deposits of $525 million and operated 10 banking offices in the Illinois suburban area of metropolitan St. Louis.

A consumer-oriented banking company, First Financial specializes in providing financing for homes and offers a variety of investment alternatives for their customers. They also operate their own credit card division and are heavily involved in home equity and student lending. The company currently employs approximately 1,500 people.

As of June 30, 1990, the holding company, First Financial Corp., reported net worth of $143 million, or 4.82 percent of assets. Mid-year earnings for the corporation were $7.4 million, or $1.28 per share. Of this total net income, core earnings amounted to $7.1 million, or $1.24 per share, a company record. This performance is on track with internal expectations and projections of industry analysts. Analysts predicted the company will continue its strong performance throughout the rest of 1990 and into 1991. Both of the holding company's banking subsidiaries currently exceed all federal regulatory capital requirements.

''First Financial offers Peoria and the Tri-County area a very stable place to bank. We are an exceptionally strong company dedicated to continued strength and stability,'' Seramur concluded.

First Financial Corp. is a holding company for First Financial Bank, FSB and first Financial-Port Savings Bank, a Port Washington, Wis., subsidiary. The corporation has $3.1 billion in assets and operates 85 banking offices in Wisconsin and Illinois. First Financial's common stock is traded in the national over the counter market under the listing symbol FFHC.

VANCOUVER, BC (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Clearly Canadian Beverage Corporation (NASDAQ Symbol: CLCDF; VSE Symbol: CLV), the registered holder of the trademark ''Clearly CanadianTM'', Thursday announced gains in market share as measured by Nielsen Marketing Research in June.

In the survey of the leading 42 brands in the Sparkling Mineral/Seltzer Beverage category, ''Clearly Canadian Sparkling Mineral Water'' led market growth, achieving new highs in the Company's major markets during the month and year-to-date. Share results for June continue to confirm strong sales gains in both established and recently opened territories.

The Nielsen survey also revealed that ''Clearly Canadian Sparkling Mineral Water'' became the leading brand in this category in Salt Lake City, Utah and Boise, Idaho during the month of June.

Glen Foreman, Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Clearly Canadian Beverage Corporation, stated, ''These positive results, as monitored by Nielsen Marketing Research, reflect the further strengthening of our brand franchise, as well as the additional trial and repurchase that has been generated from awareness programs. The strong upward trend reflects competitive gains in both the single drink and large pack size. We anticipate that recent listings and distribution agreements will assist in the continued growth in sales and market penetration.''

Clearly Canadian Beverage Corporation produces and markets ''Clearly CanadianTM'', a line of natural and flavored sparkling mineral waters. Through distribution agreements, ''Clearly CanadianTM'' is sold in 30 states, all of Canada, Japan and England.

KANSAS CITY, MO. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - U.S. Technologies Inc. (NASDAQ:USXX) Friday reported net sales of $3,438,027 for the six months ended June 30, an increase of 12 percent from $3,073,753 for the like period in 1989.

Net income for the six month period was $118,376 or 1 cent per share, down from $348,768 or 4 cents per share for six month period of 1989.

Second quarter net sales of $1,751,650 for 1990 were down from $1,924,837, or 9 percent for the corresponding period in 1989. Net income for the second quarter was $25,569 as opposed to $272,427 for last year (1989).

The increased sales over the six month period of 1990 are primarily a result of AMI adding new customers and increased repeat business from existing customers, said Ryan Corley, president of U.S. Technologies Inc.

He added that the decline in net income and net sales for the second quarter was primarily due to expenditures for product research and development and an increase in orders where AMI furnishes the components, and upon which AMI realizes a lower markup.

The company plans to go into production of its recently announced Remote Processing Module (RPM) units to the microcomputer networking market by Sept. 30. This is a proprietary hardware product which is small, quiet, secure and inexpensive and will operate on many computer network operating systems.

SANTA ANA, CA (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Gish Biomedical Inc. (NASDAQ:GISH), a developer and manufacturer of critical-care and surgical devices announced continued revenue and earnings growth for both the fourth quarter and the year ended June 30, 1990.

Sales for the fourth quarter were $5.1 million up 27 percent from the previous year's $4 million. Sales for the year were $18.3 million up 22 percent from last year's $14.9 million. President Jack Brown attributes this growth to expanded marketing and Gish's innovative product designs and superior service.

Fully taxed net income for the fourth quarter was $575,000, or 18 cents per share, up from $329,000, or 12 cents per share, last year. Fully taxed net income for the year ended June 30, 1990 was $1.5 million, or 52 cents per share, up from the previous year's $983,000, or 35 cents per share.

Jeanne Miller, chief executive officer, attributed the continuing growth in earnings to careful management of resources and to the timely automation of the business functions. She also stated that earnings were better than expected due to a decrease in the effective tax rate and the relief of excess inventory reserves.

Gish Biomedical designs and manufactures specialty devices used in open-heart surgery, oncology, emergency care, obstetrics, opthalmology and other specialized applications within the hospital. Gish distributes its products through an international dealer network who sell directly to the hospital specialists.

Gish maintains a competitive advantage through innovative product design, quality of manufacture and superior customer service.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - DHL Worldwide Express, the world's largest international air express network, Friday put into service their first two Boeing 727-200 series aircraft at a dedication held at their hub located at the Greater Cincinnati International Airport.

In total DHL will add six of the aircraft to their fleet, the largest aircraft purchase in the 21-year history of DHL. The planes are named the ''City of Cincinnati'' and ''Barb Miller'' after a DHL employee based in Cincinnati.

The first two planes will begin service on Monday carrying shipments between Cincinnati/Chicago and Cincinnati/Detroit/Minneapolis. Both planes replace chartered aircraft that previously flew those routes. DHL will handle 60 million shipments this year with service to 187 countries, more than anyone else in the air express business.

The hub in Cincinnati, the largest of 12 DHL hubs around the world, employs 700 people. Each night 32 planes converge on the hub where shipments are unloaded, sorted, reloaded aboard aircraft and flown to their final destinations to be delivered the next day by DHL couriers.

The majority of activity takes place between approximately midnight and 5 a.m. each Monday through Saturday. The hub handles about 125,000 pieces per night. DHL is the third largest carrier operating at the Greater Cincinnati International Airport.

The additional four jet aircraft are scheduled for delivery by February 1991.

DHL Worldwide Express is comprised of DHL Corp. and DHL International Ltd. two separate, independently owned companies. DHL Corp., the U.S. arm of the network, has headquarters in Redwood City, Calif., and operates an aircraft and sorting hub in Cincinnati.

SOUTH WINDSOR, CT (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Gerber Scientific Inc. Friday reported lower first quarter operating results. Consolidated sales for the first quarter ended July 31, 1990 were $66,609,000, a decrease of 11 percent from $74,670,000 for the same period last year. Consolidated net earnings for the three months ended July 31, 1990 were $2,733,000 compared with $7,721,000 in the same period of last year, a decrease of 65 percent. Earnings per share were 12 cents in this year's first quarter compared with 32 cents last year based on average shares outstanding of 23,642,000 and 24,066,000, respectively.

The company received new orders totalling $58,200,000 in the three months ended July 31, 1990 compared with $66,400,000 for the same period last year, a decrease of 12 percent. Backlog was $62,400,000 at July 31, 1990 compared with $74,600,000 a year earlier.

As previously reported, the company is experiencing softness in order entry in all of its major product areas and expects that this year's second quarter operating results will also be lower than the prior year. A number of addtitive factors have contributed to this downturn, including increased worldwide competition, a sluggish U.S. economy, tighter credit availability to our customers, bankruptcies in the retail industry, lower military spending, and disruption in Eastern Bloc markets.

The company is taking action to bring costs in line with the expected lower levels of business, including employee reductions, consolidation of facilities, and cost reductions in other operating areas. However, without an improvement in economic conditions, the company expects that it will be difficult to significantly improve upon the current level of operating results in the second half of the year.

The company is in a period of transition to newer products which are not expected to have major impact on the short-term consolidated results but which the company believes have excellent long-term market potential.

The company has a long-standing commitment to research and the development of new products and intends to continue its current level of R&D efforts during this period.

The company remains financially strong with high liquidity and a low ratio of debt-to-equity. Cash and short-term cash investments increased $9.4 million during the first quarter to $39.2 million at July 31, 1990, and total debt as a percentage of shareholders' equity was 9.7 percent.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Information Management Technologies Corp. (''IMTECH'') (NASDAQ: IMTKA (Class A Common), IMTKU (Units), IMTKW (Class A Warrants)) Friday announced unaudited results for the quarter ended June 30, 1990.

Sales for the quarter ended June 30, 1990 increased 67% to a record $5,076,147 from $3,036,168 in the comparable period one year ago. Operating profit was $163,121 versus an operating loss of $346,351 in last year's first quarter.

Net income was $5,402 or less than $.01 per share versus a loss of $303,972 or $.04 per share for the quarter ended June 30, 1989.

Pierce Lowrey, Chief Executive Officer of IMTECH commented, ''IMTECH has achieved profitable operations by further broadening our client base, expanding the contracts of many of our existing customers and incorporating Computer Output INformation System (''COINS''), an optical data storage system, into our product services. Our new clients include Oppenheimer & Co., IBM, Mudge Rose Guthrie Alexander & Ferdon, and Knight-Ridder. Also, during the quarter, we expanded the services we provide to American Express, Municipal Bond Investors Assurance Corp. and Barclays Bank PLC.

IMTECH provides on-site and off-site ''outsourcing'' of a wide range of back office services to firms in the services sector. These services include an optical data storage system -- Computer Output INformation System (COINS), electronic publishing, fulfillment, printing, reproduction and general mail room operations.

IMTECH's information facilities management (''IFM'') capabilities provide companies with the ability to contract out ancillary services to reduce operating costs and improve productivity, thereby allowing management to focus on its primary corporate objectives.

SALT LAKE CITY (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Pinnacle Environmental Inc. (NASDAQ:PENV) Friday reported that revenues were $1,689,635 for the first quarter ended June 30, 1990, a 6 percent decrease from the $1,799,579 posted for the same period in 1989.

Net income for the three month period increased 56 percent to $156,478 from $100,141 in 1989. Earnings per share were 8 cents compared with 7 cents for the first quarter of last year, based on 39 percent more weighted average shares outstanding in 1990.

Higher net income in the first quarter of 1990 compared to the first quarter of 1989 resulted from higher gross margins due to improved performance on fixed price contracts as well as increased interest income from higher cash balances.

The first quarter 1990 revenues represent consistent growth over the preceding quarters, but were slightly less than first quarter 1989 revenues when Pinnacle had unusually high revenues due to the timing of work on large, low margin cost plus contracts.

Pinnacle's balance sheet continues to be strong. Cash and short-term investments at June 30, 1990, were $3,809,609 compared to $144,087 at March 31, 1989. On July 30, 1990, Pinnacle established an unsecured $5 million revolving line of credit with a commercial bank.

Pinnacle Environmental Inc. provides industrial asbestos abatement and insulation services. The company also distributes industrial insulation products and materials, both to customers in connection with providing insulation services and to others, and fabricates specialty steel items. Its principal customers are industrial concerns that own or operate fossil fuel or nuclear power plants, petroleum refineries, chemical processing complexes, mineral smelters, steel mills, and other plants and facilities.

The company services the Intermountain states of Arizona, Colorado, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming. Pinnacle's stock is listed on the SHERMAN OAKS, CA (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - A flurry of net absorption of commercial office space across the greater San Fernando Valley has triggered a one-point drop in the vacancy rate to 14 percent, according to a report released Friday by Grubb & Ellis Commercial Real Estate Services (NYSE: GBE).

The study of 256 buildings 20,000 square feet and larger, plus 27 projects under construction, was conducted in the east, west and central San Fernando valleys plus the neighboring Santa Clarita and Conejo valleys.

Aggregate absorption in those five sub-markets climbed to 649,104 square feet in the April-to-June period, nearly 13 times greater than the 53,936 square feet absorbed in the first quarter when the vacancy rate stood at 15 percent.

Last year, absorption in the second quarter amounted to only 182,035 square feet and the vacancy rate was 15 percent. Absorption is defined as the net change in occupied square footage of office space.

In addition to the 649,104 square feet of total absorption, close to 238,000 square feet was pre-leased in the second quarter from an under-construction base of nearly 1.5 million square feet.

Of that base, 773,719 rentable square feet is expected to come on line through the balance of 1990, most of it in the Central Valley, according to the report.

The West Valley, which includes the burgeoning Warner Center section of Woodland Hills, has the largest share of space under construction with 626,018 square feet, followed by the Central Valley with 404,000.

Second-quarter absorption was also heavy in the West Valley, which also includes Canoga Park, Woodland Hills and Tarzana. A total of 253,699 square feet was absorbed as the vacancy rate fell three points to 21 percent. Negative absorption was 3,768 square feet in a sluggish first quarter.

Most of the second-quarter activity came in Warner Gateway II, 67,382 square feet; the Filmmation Co. building, 64,000; and two Voit Co. buildings: Plaza I, 32,439 square feet, and Plaza VI, 57,801 square feet.

Insurance companies accounted for much of the space absorbed in the second quarter in Warner Center and continue to be one of the leading users of office space in that area, according to Sheryl L. Mazirow, senior marketing consultant in the Los Angeles North (Sherman Oaks) office of Grubb & Ellis.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Resorts International Inc. announced Friday that the U.S. Bankruptcy Court in Camden, N.J., has confirmed the company's plan of reorganization.

Merv Griffin, chairman of the board of Resorts International said, ''I am extremely pleased that the court has approved our plan. We are now looking forward to becoming a public company and the most entertaining new resort in Atlantic City and the Bahamas.''

David Hanlon, president and chief executive officer, said, ''Thanks to our bondholders and the court, we have moved through the Chapter 11 process very quickly. With our new capital structure, we will be able to focus on improving our operations and financial results.''

The remaining steps in the reorganization process are the receipt of any necessary regulatory approvals from the New Jersey Casino Control Commission and from regulatory officials of the government of the Bahamas. A hearing on the plan is scheduled before the New Jersey Casino Control Commission today at 2:00 p.m.

Assuming no stay of the court's order, the plan will become effective on the eleventh calendar day after entry of the order and receipt of the remaining regulatory approvals. The company expects to make distributions according to the plan ten business days after it becomes effective.

The Series A and B Notes will share the same collateral and will be of equal rank in terms of priority of payments.

Merv Griffin will retain approximately 22 percent of the common stock of RII as recapitalized. As part of the plan, he will make a cash investment in the company on the effective date of the recapitalization in the amount of $15 million, and will invest an additional $11 million on the first anniversary of the recapitalization, the latter obligation to be evidenced by a promissory note to RII secured by a letter of credit.

In addition he will make available up to $2,500,000 for the cash payment to RIFI bondholders referred to above to the extent such releases are delivered on the effective date.

VALENCIA, CA (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - 3-D Systems Inc. (NASDAQ:TDSSF) Friday announced that it had entered into the following agreements:

EXCHANGE AGREEMENT: The company's 70% owned subsidiary, 3D Systems Inc. (3D US), the six other shareholders of 3D US (the ''Founders''), Lionheart Capital Corp., a British Columbia company which currently owns approximately 49% of the company's outstanding securities, and 1726 Holdings Ltd., the parent company of Lionheart and a wholly owned subsidiary of Ciba-Geigy Limited, have entered into an agreement pursuant to which the Founders have been granted the right, subject to regulatory approvals and other conditions, on or subsequent to Oct. 15 to exchange their shares of 3D US common stock for an aggregate of 4,000,001 shares of the company's common stock (the same as the exchange ratio previously agreed upon by the parties).

Following the close of the exchange, 3D US would be a wholly owned subsidiary of the company, and Lionheart and the founders would beneficially own, respectively, approximately 38% and 26% of the then outstanding shares of the company (assuming no other issuance of securities subsequent to the date of this release).

Under the agreement, and prior agreements of the parties, the board of directors of the company will, subject to certain conditions, be comprised of persons acceptable to Lionheart, the Founders and their nominees. In addition, provision is made for certain rights of first refusal between the Founders, on the one hand, and Ciba-Geigy Limited on the other hand. It is a condition of the exchange that Ciba-Geigy enter into a stand-still agreement, under which, without the prior consent of the Founders, it will agree, subject to certain conditions, not to acquire any additional shares of the company, or effect any transaction which could directly or indirectly effect the control of the management, board of directors or policies of the company.

The right of the Founders to effect the exchange can only be exercised subsequent to the later to occur of the receipt of an exemption from prospectus and registration requirements of the Securities Act (British Columbia) from the British Columbia Securities Commission and Oct. 15; the right of the Founders to effect the exchange cannot be exercised subsequent to Dec. 31, 1991. The closing of the exchange is subject to a number of conditions, including obtaining applicable stock exchange approvals, the favorable outcome of a ''fairness hearing'' before the Commission of Corporations of the State of California (which cannot occur prior to Oct. 15) and other regulatory approvals. The closing is not subject to obtaining any private letter ruling, or opinion of counsel, concerning the tax effects of the exchange.

While the possibility exists that one or more of the conditions will not be able to be satisfied, or that the Founders may determine not to proceed to effect the exchange, the company has been advised that it is the current intention of the Founders to effect the exchange at the earliest practicable date.

DISTRIBUTION AGREEMENT: 3D US has entered into a new Distribution Agreement with Ciba-Geigy Corp. of Ardsley, N.Y. Under this agreement, which supersedes a prior agreement under which 3D US had been granted exclusive US distribution rights to all StereoLithography chemicals developed by Ciba-Geigy or its affiliates, the new, five-year agreement grants 3D US, subject to certain quota requirements, world-wide exclusive distribution rights to such chemicals.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT AGREEMENT: 3D US has also entered into a new exclusive Photopolymer Research and Development Agreement with Ciba-Geigy Limited, which supersedes a prior agreement on the same subject matter. Under the new agreement, each party has agreed to cooperate with the other to develop chemicals for use with the company's StereoLithography apparatuses. Ciba-Geigy is primarily responsible for the development of the chemicals, and is obligated to bear all of its own costs and expenses related thereto.

However, as part of the new agreement, the parties have agreed that if a change in control (as defined in the new agreement) of the company or 3D US should occur, then at the option of Ciba-Geigy, 3D US will be required to pay Ciba-Geigy an amount equal to Ciba-Geigy's ''deferred research and development costs,'' up to $10 million.

A ''change in control'' is defined to have occured only if a person, or group of related persons, becomes the beneficial owner of in excess of 17.5% of the company's outstanding voting securities (such percentages to be ratably increased in the event of any sale by a Ciba-Geigy affiliate of any of its shares of the company's common shares), unless approved by Ciba-Geigy, or its indirect nominees to the board of directors of the company. ''Deferred Research and Development Costs'' means all costs incurred by Ciba-Geigy during the five full fiscal years immediately preceding the occurence of a change in control, multiplied by two.

Raymond Freed, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of the company and 3D US, stated ''I am heartened that the Exchange Agreement appears close to being put to bed; we believe it is in the best interests of all of our shareholders for the company to fully own 3D US, which conducts all of the company's business.

''We are also quite pleased that Ciba-Geigy feels comfortable enough with out international marketing and sales organizations to grant us exclusive right to distribute its StereoLithography chemicals, including those which it develops under our new R&D Agreement,'' Freed concluded.

3-D Systems Inc. is the Canadian parent company of 3D Systems Inc., a California company formed in March, 1986 to develop, manufacture and market equipment which produces plastic models from solid modeling CAD data. The company's StereoLithography process currently utilizes an ultra-violet laser beam which passes over a vat of liquid polymer, hardening the liquid wherever the beam impinges on the liquid, so that it creates a solid, three-dimensional object which conforms exactly to the stored computer design.

SIGNAL HILL, CALIF. (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Southwest Diversified (SWD), Signal Hill's largest property owner, has delivered to the city of Signal Hill an offer to purchase a parcel of approximately five acres of land at the corner of Willow and Cherry for $5,499,450, or $25 per square foot.

The five acres, together with SWD's adjacent 10 acres, comprises the Town Center planning area of Signal Hill. The terms of the offer, which expires on September 5, specify a lump-sum cash payment to the city at the close of escrow.

According to Michael R. Engle, SWD senior vice president, the offer almost triples the offer made by The Price Club for the same parcel of land.

Over the last several months, the city had been negotiating with The Price Club, following The Price Club's threatened move to Long Beach's new 'Power Center'; the city had sought to retain The Price Club and its annual sales-tax contribution of nearly $1 million to the city's general fund by negotiating an attractive development deal for the city's prime commercial corner.

The Price Club had offered $9 per square foot, or an aggregate price of $1.98 million -- or $3.5 million lower than SWD's offer -- for the five acres; that offer included complex financing terms that did not provide lump-sum cash payment to the city.

The SWD offer follows a period of intense negotiation among the city, SWD and The Price Club during which SWD originally agreed to sell its 10-acre adjacent property to the city for use by The Price Club; a sales and planning agreement for that transaction was worked out with the city, signed by SWD and delivered to the city on August 15. The city council then rejected the offer on the same day.

''We hope the city will consider our offer seriously in their role as the fiduciary representatives of the citizens,'' Engle said. ''For our part, we have always believed that the Town Center concept, with the city's first supermarket, is the best option for the people of Signal Hill,'' he said.

SWD is an award-winning master developer of residential projects and planned communities in California and Arizona. It operates in financial partnership with the Toronto-based Coscan Development Corp. and its major shareholder, Carena Bancorp Inc., two of Canada's major publicly held development companies.

NEW YORK (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - AmBase Corp. (NYSE:ABC) announced Friday that the company has received numerous inquiries about its intention and ability to repay outstanding indebtedness upon the completion of the proposed sale of The Home Insurance Co. to Vik Brothers International.

It is anticipated that the company's indebtedness at closing will be comprised of approximately $400 million of senior bank financing, $102 million of 11-3/4 percent Sinking Fund Debentures, $150 million of 14-7/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes due 1998.

The $76 million of 14-7/8 percent Home Group Funding Corp. Senior Notes due 1999 which are guaranteed on a subordinated basis by AmBase Corp. are also included.

The bank debt will be repaid at closing. This debt has been secured with the common stock of The Home Insurance Co., the common stock of Carteret Bancorp and approximately $23 million face value of the 11-3/4 percent Sinking Fund Debentures held by AmBase Corp.

The 11-3/4 percent Sinking Fund Debentures have been proratably secured, along with the bank group, with the common stock of The Home Insurance Co. as required by the indenture.

It is the intent of the company to repay this obligation upon the completion of the proposed sale. All securities are held by the Chase Manhattan Bank as collateral agent for the benefit of the banks and the 11-3/4 percent Sinking Fund Debentures.

Regarding the 14-7/8 percent Senior Subordinated Notes, the company must offer at least par value upon the sale of The Home Insurance Co.

Vik Brothers International intends to assume the obligations of the 14-7/8 percent Senior Debentures of Home Group Funding Corp. The $2.95 Series A, Cumulative Preferred Stock of The Home Insurance Co. will remain an outstanding security of that company after the sale is consummated.

AmBase anticipates that the proceeds from the sale of The Home will be supplemented by proceeds from the sales of or borrowings against other assets to permit repayment of all the aforementioned indebtedness of AmBase.

AmBase Corp. is an insurance, banking and investment services organization. Its principal subsidiaries include The Home Insurance Co., US International Re, Commonwealth Insurance Co., Carteret Bancorp, Gruntal Financial Corp. and Sterling Forest Corp.

CHICAGO (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Rodman & Renshaw Capital Group Inc. (NYSE:RR), Chicago-based financial services firm, Friday reported revenues of $71,882,000 for the year ended June 30, or a 20 percent increase over the $59,733,000 posted a year ago.

Net profit for the year was $1,752,000, compared with a loss of $3,429,000 for the same period last year. Earnings per share for the year were 42 cents vs. a loss of 83 cents for fiscal 1989.

''The Rodman & Renshaw performance for the year reflected the benefits of the strategic plan that we designed a year ago, and are now implementing '' said Kurt B. Karmin, chairman.

''This program is designed to expand several key financial service operations that have a significant impact on both the revenues and earnings of the company. The addition of these new profit-generating services, coupled with our on-going cost reduction programs, are having the anticipated positive impact on our bottom line.''

Fourth quarter revenues were reported at $17,816,000 compared to $17,836,000 for the comparable period last year. Net income for the quarter was $246,000, or 6 cents per share, compared to a loss of $914,000 or 22 cents per share for last year's fourth quarter.

Karmin said that Rodman & Renshaw's commitment to expand internationally was evidenced by the recent announcement of a joint venture with Creditanstalt Bankverein of Vienna, Austria, for the purpose of conducting financial and commodities futures brokerage services in Austria, the USSR and other major Eastern and Central European countries.

Rodman & Renshaw Capital Group Inc. is the parent company of Rodman & Renshaw Inc., a full service securities broker/dealer and commodities futures commission merchant with major offices in Chicago, New York, Kansas City and London. LOS ANGELES (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - A new partnership between National Polystyrene Recycling Co. (NPRC - Lincolnshire, Ill.) and TALCO Recycling Inc. (Corona, Calif.) will bring to Southern California the largest recycling facility for used foam and rigid polystyrene items in the United States.

The facility, located in Corona, Calif. will be able to process 13 million pounds of used polystyrene food service and non-food packaging products, such as foam containers, drink cups, plates, utensils, and packaging peanuts, every year. The facility is expected to be operational in October 1990.

NPRC will own the plant, while TALCO Recycling Inc. will operate it. THe new facility will be called TALCO Recycling Inc., an NPRC Facility. An 800 number has been established for anyone interested in developing polystyrene collection programs, 800/696-6965.

NPRC owns Plastics Again (Leominster, Mass.), the nation's first large-scale reprocessor of used polystyrene food service items. Plastics Again currently recycles polystyrene from hundreds of schools, restaurants, hospitals and businesses.

While Plastics Again can recycle up to three million pounds of used polystyrene per year, TALCO Recycling Inc., an NPRC Facility, will have a capacity of over 13 million pounds annually.

NPRC recycling plants are different from other plants around the nation in that NPRC facilities can wash food materials from used polystyrene. Users will not need to wash the material before sending it to be recycled.

The NPRC also plans to open at least three other centers similar to the Corona facility by the end of 1990. These recycling centers will be located in the metropolitan areas of San Francisco, Chicago and Philadelphia.

The plans for the Corona facility were announced today at Wadsworth Elementary School, a Los Angeles Unified School District (LA USD) school, where children have been recycling foam lunch trays for six months. Under a program developed by Amoco Foam Products and LA USD, the school district takes the used trays to TALCO Plastics in Whittier, where they are washed, ground and reprocessed into a recycled resin.

Through the program, TALCO Plastics has reclaimed over 1.5 million school lunch trays from 17 LA USD schools. The new resin is sold to manufacturers of office supplies, waste baskets and permanent food trays, to name a few. The program will be turned over to TALCO Recycling Inc., an NPRC Facility, when the Corona facility is completed.

TALCO Recycling Inc. is a new company affiliated with Talco Plastics Inc. of Whittier, Calif. The new company represents Talco Plastic Inc.'s first venture into volume processing of post-consumer plastic materials. Eventually, TALCO Recycling Inc. expects to recycle a number of post-consumer plastics.

Talco Plastics Inc. has facilities in both California and Texas, with more than one hundred employees and sales representation in every western state. Talco Plastics Inc. maintains one of the largest inventories of recycled plastics in the West, with over fifty types of resin.

The National Polystyrene Recycling Co. was launched in June 1989, and is the nation's first network of polystyrene foam recycling centers. The company's goal of facilitating the recycling of 250 million pounds of polystyrene annually by 1995 (25 percent of the polystyrene used in food service and other packaging applications) is consistent with the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency's solid waste reduction plan.

DOVER, NH (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - Seacoast Savings Bank (NASDAQ:SSBA), a $105 million savings bank headquartered in Dover, N.H., reported a loss for the fourth quarter ending June 30, 1990 of $2.2 million, or $1.84 per share, which compares to a loss of $299,000, or 25 cents per share, for the quarter ended June 30, 1989.

For the year ended June 30, 1990, the bank reported a loss of $3.9 million or $3.24 per share, which compares to a profit of $140,000, or 12 cents per share, for the year ended June 30, 1989. The fourth quarter loss resulted primarily from a provision to loan loss reserves of $2.2 million and a write down of the value of other real estate owned of $200,000.

Charge offs during the quarter were approximately $1.5 million. As of June 30, 1990, loan loss reserves totalled $2.2 million, or 2.6 percent of total loans outstanding and 30 percent of non-performing loans. The fourth quarter provisions were made as part of the bank's ongoing internal review of its loan portfolio and other real estate owned and reflect the current level and composition of non-performing assets.

At June 30, 1990, non-performing loans amounted to $7.2 million, or 6.8 percent of total assets. Other real estate owned totalled $3.3 million, or 3.2 percent of total assets. At March 31, 1990, non-performing loans totalled $5.1 million, or 4.7 percent of assets. The bank's equity to assets ratio, net of reserves, was 10.7 percent at June 30, 1990.

Seacoast Savings Bank is an FDIC-insured financial institution headquartered in Dover, N.H.

CINCINNATI (AUG. 17) BUSINESS WIRE - As they indicated they would do in court hearings earlier this summer, Federated Department Stores, Inc. and Allied Stores Corporation today asked the U.S. Bankruptcy Court for an extension of the period available exclusively to them for submission of a Chapter 11 plan of reorganization.

This is the companies' second request for an extension of the exclusivity period. If granted by the court, the exclusivity period for filing a plan of reorganization would be extended to February 28, 1991. An extension through the end of February will allow Federated and Allied to concentrate on operations through the all-important Christmas retail season.

Extensions of the exclusivity period are not unusual in large Chapter 11 cases. The companies' first extension was granted by the court on May 10, set to expire on September 12. At that time, and again at a court hearing on June 28, Federated and Allied attorneys told the court that the companies were likely to seek an extension beyond the September 12 date, due to the scope and complexity of the companies' reorganization effort. A hearing on the companies' request for an extension is set for September 11.

The companies' request is not expected to alter the timing of their Business Plans, which currently are being developed for presentation to Federated and Allied creditors in October. Federated and Allied filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the U.S. Bankruptcy Code on January 15, 1990.

GROUP LED BY DH PARTNERS LP OWNS 900,700 SHARES (47.90%) OF DIVERSIFIED HUMAN RESOURCES INC (TICKER: HIRE) OF DALLAS, TX.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

At a special meeting of shareholders on Aug. 3, 1990, held for the purpose of electing Mr. Bailey and other nominees of the Partnership to board of directors, Resolution Trust Corp., as successors-in-interest to Hallmark Service Corp. presented the registrant an irrevocable proxy which allegedly controlled the voting of the proxy shares. The proxy shares were pledged by Brothers to Hallmark pursuant to a security agreement-pledge as security for loans which Hallmark made to Brothers, of which Brothers was and currently is in default. RTC voted the proxy shares at the special meeting against the slate of nominees proposed by the Partnership and the slate was defeated. The Partnership has been evaluating its rights with respect to the Partnership proxy and the proxy shares and consider the irrevocable proxies held by the RTC over the proxy shares to be invalid and ineffective and has initiated litigation against RTC/Hallmark in an effort to have a judicial determination made as to the validity of the alleged irrevocable proxy previously given to Hallmark by Brothers, and to enjoining Hallmark from voting the proxy shares pursuant to the alleged irrevocable proxy until the judicial determination has been made.

ANNOUNCEMENT:

In press releases dated Aug. 16, 1990, the Kansas Gas and Electric Co. (TICKER:KGE) has requested both, the Kansas Corporation Commission and the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), to reject the application of Kansas City Power & Light Co. for approval to acquire all classes of the capital stock of KG&E and to deny KCP&L's motion to an expedited hearing and order from the Commission; and, to allow KG&E to intervene as an interested party and to reject the application by KCPL for approval of its attempt to acquire KG&E through a tender offer for all outstanding shares of KG&E's common and preferred stock, respectively. KG&E noted that its board has not consented to the filing of KCP&L's application and states that Section 203 of the Federal Power Act was never intended to facilitate the hostile takeover of one public utility by another.
